BILL NYE AT HIS HOME.

LIFE IS NOT ALL A JOKE WITH THE AMERICAN HUMORIST.

Mrs Personal Appearance—Mrs. Nye and the Children—His Home Habits—A Lazy Appearing Man Who Gets Through a Big Pile of Work.

A long, rosemy, home-like house, with a cupola, a wealth of broad verandas, and with tall trees waving their sheltering arms above it. A house which looks as though it had been made to live in and to be happy in.

The front door of this hospitable-looking mansion is deep in a double entry. As you stand waiting there a broad smile appears at the parlor door. Then you are conscious of gold bound spectacles and a very bald head which is just a little in advance of a pair of very broad shoulders. The shoulders and the stanch body which they overtop are incased in a snug smoking-jacket of blue velvet.

"How-de-do! How-de-do! Come right into my play-house here. Pretty bad weather, isn't it?"

MRS. NYE AND THE CHILDREN.

Bill Nye—Edgar William Nye, sure enough—is worth looking at when he's at home. If his smile were not so youthful that bald head would make him venerable. But if you notice closely you'll see that the fringe of hair which, like the tonsure of a monk, is left to adorn the square, well-shapped head, is as blond as a boy's. There's not even the shadow of a beard or mustache to cover the fun-lines about those thin lips.

Fond of a sofa is the merry Nye, and fonder of the loungingest, laziest position he can get into. So, after giving me my choice of cigar or pipe, "of which" I selected a particularly dirty member of a coterie of corncobs—he stretched himself upon the biggest, oldest, softest, most comfortable sofa you ever [illegible] and talked.

[illegible] as well you might think what with his droll ways, and bear his slow, drawlsome speech, that he was lazy. Make you no such error. He has mastered the nervous tendancy. He is like a good printer who makes no false motions. He works easily, as he does anything else easily, and when work hours are done he puts work completely out of thoughts. There are business men who "grunt and sweat under" their tuppenny cares, until nervous prostration throws them down and out at the age of thirty-five. And few enough of them ever find as big a money balance in their favor at the year's end as report credits this happy-go-lucky funny man with. He is the embodiment of system, and life doesn't wear on him. He doesn't let "ambition mock his useful toil." He just does the next thing—that is, provided it isn't noon-time. In that case, he puts off the next thing until to-morrow morning.

"That habit of working mornings," he said, "I reckon I never shall get rid of, an' I don't know as I care to. I sort o' fatten under it. Why, gracious! Three years ago I was lean as a scarecrow. Now, I'm in the neighborhood of 200 pounds. You see, in the first of my newspaper life nearly all my work was done in the morning, and my mind got in a habit of working then and laying off the rest of the day. And for three years I did all my work standing up at a tall desk, like a printer's frame, such desks as you see in old pictures."

When he was telling me about the woes of a wit, there came a soft little tap on the study door, and a lady appeared, plump—some might call her fleshy. She is somewhat below medium height, with dark, wavy hair, a clear, bright eye and the merriest sort of a smile. She is just the home sort of a woman, and she speaks in a low voice and calls her big, good-natured, funny husband "Mr Nye."

Just then there came a patter of little feet in the hallway, and two golden heads and chubby faces were at the door. "Aha!" cried Papa Nye, "there are the people." In a moment the two little fellows clad in black velvet had clambered up into Nye's lap. Max, the elder, had come armed with copies of the comic papers—for Nye is a subscriber to them all. He boasts, in fact, that he's one of the best living readers of current literature of all sorts, and especially of the news. The youngster, who had just reached the neighborhood in life when he can talk plainly, put his progenitor through the most trying catechism as to just where the fun came in in this picture and that. My! But the explanations were dismal. At last, tired of making diagrams of other men's jokes, he put the papers all aside. The little fellow's face was glum for a minute. Then some new fun began. The babe, the more tow-headed of the two, seized Papa Nye's smiling face between two chubby hands and looked at it for a long time. At last he seemed to find something very funny there, for he laughed a laugh that seemed to fairly bubble right up out of his little self.

"Papa, tate on dasses off. Won't woo?"

It was a plaintive request. But the paternal genius was curious. "What do you want me to do that for?" he queried.

"Tos I want to tes how 'oo' eyes 'ook."

Such praiseworthy research must not be hindered. Off came the glasses, and again the little toddler stared long and earnestly into the father's face. It must be there's a lot of humor in Bill Nye's spectacles, for this time the little one didn't laugh nearly so loudly as before. But he insisted on having the spectacles put astride of his own little nose and it was a jolly picture they made, Bill and his boy, in the lamp light there in that big room with its shadowy, far-off corners, and its tall shelves of books—for Bill has many books. The little fellow threw his shoulders back and his chest out, and puckered his small mouth and tried hard to look like Hannibal crossing the Alps.

So, far from the great noisy newspaper world, and the great other world which laughs at jokes and tarradiddles and never knows aught of the joker, we were away the Winter's day. In all your days, perhaps, you will never linger out an afternoon in a more homelike house, where more of the heart's stone spirit reigns.

Now and then Nye's wit breaks loose. But he keeps it pretty well in hand, and as for his children, bless you, to watch them you'd see they had never known that the author of their four little beings is the great funnie at whose "quips and cranks and wa[illegible]

"Not Equal to our Gussie Arlidge."

"Metronome" in Toronto Saturday Night, writes the following paragraph, the concluding sentence of which applies to Master Arlidge, son of the organist and choir master of St. Paul's church. "Metronome" says: "The boy singer, Master Fred Williams, of Westminster Abbey choir, has come and gone, and sang here to excellent houses. He naturally aroused great interest, as the curious ones were anxious to compare the lad that came from the home of choral song with the product of American talent, fostered under American skies, who as Master Blatchford Kavanagh appeared here last year. The criticisms of the morning papers are somewhat different in tendency, one of them going so far as to say that the boy Williams is not equal to our Master Gussie Arlidge, a judgment that must be quite flattering to that clever little chap."

THE "NATIONAL POVERTY."

Protection Does Not Protect the Workingman or Farmer.

The Manufacturer Gets the Benefit of it all—Lower Wages and Higher Priced Goods Than Before the N.P. was Adopted—Some Things for the Lobrtist Classes to Think Over—A Convincing Address to Workingmen by a Workingman.

The meeting of workingmen in the opera house Saturday night, though called on short notice, was well attended, and the two or three hundred present listened intently and enthusiastically to Mr. A. F. Jury's practical address. Mr. Jury is well known in Peterborough as a thorough and thinking labor man, and his utterances ought to bear great weight with the workingmen.

Mr. R. McGregor, president of the Carpenters' Union, occupied the chair, and had associated with him on the platform, Mr. Jury, of Toronto, and Mr. W. Hogan, a well known local labor man.

The chairman explained that Mr. Jury had arrived unexpectedly at noon that day, and it was not until three o'clock that it was decided to hold the meeting and handbills were got out. Under the circumstances a large crowd could not be looked for, and he was glad to see so many present. It showed that the workingmen took a deep interest in the present crisis in affairs. He called on Mr. Hogan to say a few words.

A LOCAL LABOR MAN.

Mr. HOGAN said the question before the electors was reciprocity in trade or protection for another five years. He had always opposed the N. P., and had better reasons for not believing in it now than in 187-, when it was first brought out. Sir John then got all the credit for the N.P., yet the fact was that it was originated by the Manufacturers' Association and was drafted by the secretary of that association, who, however, had since repudiated every line of it and was now a strong labour union man. It was said the N.P. was going to create tall chimneys all over Canada, but instead it had taken the smoke out of those which did exist. (Applause.) He instanced the towns of Oshawa and Dundas, where the iron industries were almost completely wiped away. In Oshawa there was only one malleable iron factory, and that was working short time. In Dundas, which place he had visited this summer, he did not hear the crack of a single hammer. It was said the N.P. would particularly benefit the cotton industry, but it was a palpable fact that the wages of these concerns did not amount to nearly as much as iron industries. The largest cotton factory was not worth as much as a good foundry to a town. Mr. Hogan then referred to the combines which were the result of the N.P., in stove manufactures and in sugar, which had the effect of raising the price of these articles. We don't grow cotton or sugar, he said, but if the iron industry had been fostered it would have been of some benefit to Canada. They said the N.P. would develop our mines, by bringing in American capital, but it had not. The reason was that a large smelting works in Canada would furnish more iron than this country would require. How did the N.P. affect the workingman? All the goods used by the workingman were taxed higher than the finer goods by the combiners and millionaires. (Applause.) Opposite to reciprocity say it will lead to direct taxation. The speaker, for one, did not care if it did; if they threw down the customs' wall he would be willing to pay 37½ per cent. and still live cheaper than he was today. Sir John claimed in his speech that the factories in Canada were prosperous, but in the same paper that reported this speech it was stated that the glass works at New Glasgow were thinking of moving to the States, because their warehouses were full, and they wanted a larger market. The steel works in the same town were running half time for the same reason. They talked of disloyalty, but it was no wonder if the people did get disloyal, when they did not get the same privileges as England, which made the treaties, but did not allow the colonies to have any say in it. Mr. Hogan mentioned one instance of high duties, where one road alone paid four millions duty on the coal and other articles used on that road. Mr. Hogan was loudly applauded on sitting down.

A COMING CHAMPION.

Mr. MCGREGOR called upon Mr. Stevenson's representative, if any was present, to come forward, and they would be given a hearing. Mr. A. Stevenson rose and stated that his party was not represented on account of the very short notice of the meeting they had received. He asked the electors not to form their opinions too hastily, as Mr. Armstrong, a Toronto labor man, would speak to them next Saturday night, when he asked that Mr. Jury be present. Mr. Jury replied that if he could make arrangements he would be at the meeting, and take all the time allowed him.

MR. JURY'S ADDRESS.

Mr. JURY then began his address. He was greeted with cheers. He said he was pleased to meet the workingmen of Peterborough again. When he first spoke here 12 years ago he predicted the N.P. would be a failure, that it was impossible to build up the industries of a country by taxation and protection. A great many workingmen did not believe him then, but he met some to-day who admitted that he was right. (Applause.) To show what arguments were used to bolster up the N.P., he said he had been told that day that the Edison Electric Company had closed down work until after the elections to see how they went, and if against the Government it would be shut down altogether and move back to the States. That was a campaign lie, as the townspeople knew, but it might be spread all over Canada if it were not promptly denied. (Cheers.) The same stories, that English and American capitalists were waiting to see if the government was sustained before they invested here was, were circulated in 1882 and 1886, but where was all this capital now? Surely the people were not always going to be satisfied with promises. It seemed to him the time had come for a change in the policy of the government to see if an improvement could not be made. (Applause.) In 1878, when the N. P. was adopted, a financial crisis existed all over the world, and no matter what had been the commercial policy of Canada, there could not have been good times here. Mr. Jury had said then the wages of workingmen could not be increased by taxation, because if wages became high the wage-earners out of employment all over the world would come here and the supply of labor would be greater than the demand and wages would drop. In 1878 Canada suffered commercial depression with the rest of the world. But to-day in England the imports and exports were greater last year than ever before, about the same state of affairs existed in the United States. Here in Canada our rural and town property and even city property was not increasing in value. Our farm property, the most important, was decreasing in value On the other side of the border there is nothing like the hard times there is here, which was shown by the fact that our workingmen when they got out of work here go there and find work. Is it not remarkable, he asked, that to-day, in spite of the prosperity elsewhere in the world, Canada, with all her great natural resources and public works, and facilities for producing wealth, was than England or the United States? (Loud cheers.) There was much more reason for changing our commercial policy to day than in 1878. We are told the people of Canada are prosperous, and the post office savings bank deposits are brought forward as proof of it. But they only prove that the people put their savings in the post office in preference to banks because they get good interest and have a safer investment. The bankers claimed that it crippled the industries of Canada, but their government retained their high rates of interest so as to be able to point to these figures in support of their statements. Mr. Jary then spoke to the workingmen from a labour standpoint. The report of the Royal Labour Commission was got out by the Government for the express purpose of basing labour legislation upon. How much labour legislation had they seen? Not a solitary clause based upon this report. Then there was the Government's Factory Bill. They promised one, and actually one was introduced in parliament, but it did not suit the Red Parlour magnates, and Mr. Wright, secretary of the Manufacturers' Association (the gentleman referred to by Mr. Hogan, who is now editing the Labour Union in Philadelphia), went to Ottawa and had it thrown out. The only Factory Act the workingmen ever got came from the Ontario Government. (Applause.) Touching upon the C.P.R., Mr. Jary said one of the great arguments in favour of the building of the C.P.R. was that it would give employment to thousands of workingmen. But in their charter the C.P.R. got 25 millions in cash, 30 millions in completed railway, 25 millions acres of choice land, exemption from taxation for 20 years and exemption from duty on all manufactured goods they required to bring into this country. What sort of protection was that for the workingmen? But further than that, they brought in Chinese navvies to build the line, and the Canadian workingmen did not get the labor after all. (Loud applause.) With reference to protection, Mr. Jary said the workingmen of Canada and the United States were getting their eyes opened on this question. There was scarcely a labor paper and scarcely a leader among the workingmen who had not

GIVEN UP THE IDEA OF PROTECTION.

(Cheers.) At the last assembly of the Knights of Labor at DENVER, Mr. Powderly, who comes from Pennsylvania, (the highest protected state and where the wages were the lowest), who has always been a protectionist, recommended in his last annual message the removal of the ban preventing the discussion of free trade and protection as a political subject in labor assemblies, because he had come to the conclusion that no other labor questions could be settled until this great problem was decided first. The United States workingmen were everywhere electing free trade representatives. The most unreasonable promises were made to the workingmen for the N.P. When Mr. Jary was here before he told the people that protection would never help the workingmen, because if the Government was elected by the manufacturers, no sooner would wages begin to rise than those manufacturers would use their influence with the Government to force them to spend large sums of money to bring emigrant labor in to reduce wages. Mr. Jary said he was prepared to prove that this had been done. (Applause.) The Government had expended in seven years $2,250,000 in bringing emigrant labor to Canada, principally from Europe. The great speakers of the Government in 1878 in their speeches condemned the principle of assisting emigrant -ion, but their conduct had been contrary to that idea. An interruption occurred at this point, and in answer to a cry of "disloyal," Mr. Jary read an extract from the London News, which characterized Sir John Macdonald as being unscrupulous in raising the cry of treason, which was merely an election dodge. The News said further that it was one of Sir John's ministers who had once stated when the N.P. was charged with disorganizing system England, "what if British connection stood in the way of Canada's prosperity, so much the worse for Britain." (Cheers) Continuing, Mr. Jary said wages in protected industries ought to be high, if protection was a benefit to the workingman, but what were the facts. He quoted four of the highest protected industries in Canada—cotton, wool, sugar and rubber. These were the most highly protected industries in Canada, and the employment was admitted to be close and unhealthy. Yet the lowest wages were paid them. Again, how was it that two highly protected factories he knew of standing side by side in Hamilton—a cotton and a glass factory—the wages were $4 to $7 a day in one and 90c. to $1 in the other. The secret is, that in the cotton factory the workingmen had no organization, in the glass factory they had.

IT WAS THE LABOR ORGANIZATION

that made the difference. (Applause) Some four or five years ago the Cedardale implement works at Oshawa was given increased protection by the Government, the men assisting the proprietor on the promise that their wages would not be reduced. But today the wages were lower than then. This was another of the broken promises connected with the N. P. (Cheers) The people were promised that if the N. P. was adopted the manufacture of articles then imported would be encouraged at home. In the trade and navigation returns the contrary was shown. In 1878 the imports in iron and steel amounted to $9,293,000, duty $971,000; in 1889, $12,225,000, duty $2,950,000. In woolens—imported in 1878 $9,000,000, duty $1,500,000; in 1889, $10,000,000, duty $2 963,000. And so on with paper, glass, hats and caps and other manufactures. The imports had largely increased and the duties in proportion. The carriage industry was more crippled here than any other by the tar.ff. If we could only get the trimmings as easy as we could under free trade, the carriage industry would prosper. But the figures were:—In 1878, $154,000 worth of carriages were imported into this country, on which the duties were $27,000; in 1889, the importations were $398,000 and the duties $127,000. Mr. Jary said he believed three-fourths of the carriage manufacturers in Canada were voting to-day for free trade. But in addition to the fact that a high protective tariff had failed to bring about the manufacture of imported articles at home, the government had admitted free of duty $12,234,000 worth of manufactured goods. If their policy was to encourage home manufactures, why discriminate against certain industries? (Cheers.) Mr. Jary said he was amused by an argument of Mr. Tupper in Lindsay, who said there were thousands of workingmen in the Nova Scotia who went to the States and worked every summer, and returned home in the winter. A nice encouragement that for workingmen, that they were at a distance to get money to keep them in Canada in winter. (Laughter and applause.) Mr. Jary then referred again to the report of the Royal Commission to show the effect of the N. P. upon wages. The result of the "tall chimney hunt," was given in these figures. In 1878 there were 18,069 men employed in Canadian industries, whose wages were $6,624,473.97. In 1884 there were 26 275 employes, with wages amounting to $8,850,769.70. Thus under the Mackenzie Government the average wages of the workingman was $366 82 per year, and under the N P. only $333.42 Where, he asked, was the benefit to the workingman in taxing himself to build up the industries and yet have their wages reduced by importation of foreign labour? The returns showed that there were more men employed in 1884 than 1878, but the standard of wages was lower. (Applause.) Now, we know protection is the mother of combines. The combines limit production, and increase the price of goods to the consumer. This also means that a large number of workingmen are thrown out of employment and the price of wages come down. The result is, under the N.P., we have higher prices for goods and lower wages. They say we cannot compete with the States and that free trade would ruin our industries. Canadian workmen were smart and industrious, and were preferred on the other side to Americans. Canadians occupy the best positions in the States; yet they say, in spite of this, that he cannot do the same here. It was nonsense. (Applause.) The fault, therefore, did not lie with the workingmen. Mr. Jary believed Canadian manufacturers would be able to compete with Americans. It would make them sharper and more active. Protection from competition was all right for the manufacturer, but not for the workingman, who was subjected to competition of the world, both the artisan and the farmer. By what law of divine right, he asked, when our workingmen have to meet the

with low wages and high taxes, are the manufacturers protected? (Applause.) Then, the N.P. had the effect of largely increasing the price of raw material. When raw material is heavily taxed the manufacturer is crippled. That was the first effect of the McKinley bill on the manufacturers who had to use other manufactured goods in the production of their manufactures. The manufacturer in turn took it off the workingmen and his wages were lowered. If all the goods were free, every industry—carriages, stove, agricultural implements and cotton factories—would thrive as they never did before. Their products would be cheaper, more would be consumed and the labour market strengthened and wages consequently increased. (Cheers.) The Canadian tariff was an anomaly. All the common goods, the clothing and tools of the laboring classes, were taxed higher than the fine clothing and machinery of the manufacturers. But even if protection did have the effect of raising wages (which was not the case), Mr. Jary would oppose it because he knew that it could only be at the expense of the consumer, and his sense of justice would not allow him to prosper at the expense of another. (Applause.) But how was a farmer protected? A Nova Scotia fisherman can get his salt duty free, but the Ontario farmer has to pay a duty on it. Then the farmer has to pay a duty on his corn, while the distiller, after making it into whisky and shipping it away again, has the duty refunded. The brewer and distiller are protected, but the farmer is not. (Applause.) The cotton and woolen manufacturers also get their raw material free, but the farmer who raises our beef and produces has to pay a heavy tax on the very articles necessary to that production. The government supporters say, even Mr. Foster says, that farmers and workingmen do not pay taxes because they do not buy imported goods. Now the fact was that the consumer of imported goods pays the duty to the government, but the workingman, in buying Canadian goods, paid it to the manufacturer, and therefore paid as

as if he bought the imported articles. (Applause.) But even admitting that, what a recommendation for the N.P. that the farmer is too poor to buy the imported goods that are exclusively for their's! (Laughter and cheers.) Now, the United States was the natural market for Canada. We were geographically unfortunately situated for trading among ourselves. Our country was widely extended and with a small population. But we were more fortunately situated with respect to the United States. Canadian farmers were nearer the American market than the American farmers themselves, for about 75 per cent. of the total agricultural products of the United States was produced west of the Mississippi river, while three-fourths of the population, the best market centres, were in the east and lying close alongside the Canadian Provinces. The Canadian farmer under reciprocity would get the same price as the American farmer, plus the great saving in freight in bringing his produce to the East. (Applause.) The agricultural products of Canada were more important than the manufactures, the export trade in eggs alone was half as much as the whole trade in manufactures. Some protectionists say that if we had reciprocity we would lose our British market. But we have had that market for the last fifty years duty free, and so le would remain, and surely they did not require the McKinley Bill to enable them to discover this great market. Then the statement that reciprocity would lead to annexation, was an argument that reciprocity was such a good thing that we would want annexation. If reciprocity was such a great calamity, where would be the danger of annexation?—an outcome which Mr. Jary did not believe at all probable, but he simply used the argument to prove that reciprocity was good for the laborer and farmer. If the N. P. was such a good thing, why was it not a panacea for the hard times now, as well as it was said to be in 1878? Mr. Jary said he was present at the Toronto Board of Trade meeting when free trade with the United States was discussed. Mr. John Macdonald stated that protection put an artificial value on goods, and when a man bought a dollar's worth he got 67 cents worth of goods and 33 cents worth of protection. (Laughter and applause.) Ought not the manufacturer to give the workingmen the benefit of the protection in wages? The N. P. had builds up a such as Mr. Gurney, and Mr. McCleary of London. The latter wanted to reduce the wages of his men, and when they would not yield and struck, members of his firm went to the Elmira state prison and got convicts to replace the Canadian workingmen. That was a sample of the men produced by the N. P. (Loud cheers.) These facts were printed in the Royal Commission report. Mr. Gurney, of Toronto, was trying to starve his moulders into submission and compel them to have ordinary laborers work with them and do moulders' work. He tried to import laborers from the States. The manufacturer is protected from the States, but the Canadian workingman is not, and the manufacturer can go to the States and get foreign labor to gratify his selfish ends. The Toronto moulders, who were to be protected by the N.P., issued an appeal to the public for support and protection against their own protected employer. (Cheers.) Mr. Gurney was reputed worth two million dollars and could afford to pay better wages if he chose, but can bring in labor free of duty; but the poor man cannot bring in a stove to keep himself from freezing without paying a heavy duty. (Loud applause.) Another instance was Mr. Redpath, who had been made so rich by the Canadian people that he could not live in Canada, but was lording it in England.

NUMBER OF RICH MANUFACTURERS

At this point a voice in the audience asked a question. Mr. Jary said that the workingman could go to the States and buy a stove cheaper than he could here, but had to pay a heavy duty on it. If the customs barrier was thrown down, what would become of the stove industry and the moulders in Canada?

Mr. JURY promptly replied that if all duties were abolished and the raw material admitted free, stoves could be made as cheaply here as in the States. (Loud applause.) As he had stated before, the duty on raw materials crippled our manufacturers.

In answer to another question, Mr. Jary said he did not state that the foreign labour brought in by Mr. Gurney was paid less than the Canadian moulders. He had forgotten to mention in that connection that Mr. Gurney actually paid these fellows more than he had the home labourers, for he was and grinding them as much as possible for his own selfish ends. (Loud cheers.)

Continuing, Mr. Jary said the Conservatives, of course, say they never passed the McKinley bill, and were not responsible for it. Of course not; but the point was that the Liberal policy advocated the abolition of the McKinley bill as it affected Canada. Mr. Jary pointed out the contradictions in the Conservative policy, for their claim that they favoured partial reciprocity was opposed to their other argument that two countries producing the same things could not trade profitably together. In any case the Liberal policy of unrestricted reciprocity was much better than limited reciprocity, for it admitted some things otherwise to be taxed. The speaker pointed out that the cry that unrestricted reciprocity would mean discrimination against the mother country was groundless, because the very reciprocity proposed by the Conservatives discriminated against England in some articles. Mr. Jary criticized the policy of double shuffling on the part of the Tory government. They talk about evils of free trade in natural products, and then they say they are ready to give it to us. Again, the Conservatives say we cannot get unrestricted reciprocity anyway. Mr. Jary read an editorial from the Port Perry Observer as a sample of the shuffling done in this line, in one article stating reciprocity is not an element in the elections, because the Americans will not agree to it, and in another place they say the Conservatives are going to give the people reciprocity. Mr. Jary read two planks in the platform of the Democrats of Massachusetts, which demanded wool, iron and coal, free of duty, of which Canada had the supply, and recommending a with Canada. On this platform the Massachusetts Democrats had carried the recent elections. Mr. Jary also read a resolution presented by Senator Carlisle in the Senate, which recommended that the question of reciprocity and other questions as issue be left to a commission of three representatives from each country. This would effectually disprove the statement that the Americans would have the making of our treaties. (Applause) Mr. Jary also read the letter of Secretary Bayard to Sir Charles Tupper on the subject, saying he was willing to settle all the difference between the two countries on the basis of free trade, on the understanding that the legislative independence of neither country should be effected. And yet they say we cannot have reciprocity without annexation. (Cheers.) Referring to the commercial depression in Canada, Mr. Jary read figures, showing that in eleven years our customs duties had increased 60 per cent. more than the imports. The signs of depression were conspicuous on every hand. Farms mortgaged, and depreciated in value; workmen out of employment; the young men being driven from our country, on one side; on the other, protected manufacturers, who were wealthy and selfish, growing rich out of the people, and some of them changing their politics in order to get their hands into the public's pockets. Goldsmith's description of the "Deserted Village," with which Mr. Jary closed his address, he considered aptly described the position of too many places in Canada to-day. The speaker sat down amidst tumultuous applause.

RENEWAL OF RECIPROCAL RELATIONS

The meeting closed with cheers for the Queen, Mr. Jary, and the Liberal candidate, Mr. Hall.

Church Chimes.

Rev. Mr. Burns, of Havelock, preached two excellent sermons in St. Luke's church Sunday. He exchanged pulpits with Rev. Mr. McCleary, Rector of St. Luke's.

Master Gussie Arlidge sang at both the morning and evening services in St. Paul's church Sunday, and delighted the large congregations with his sweet sweet soprano voice. It is understood the boy will appear every other Sunday until Mr. Arlidge moves his family to town.

The pulpits of the town churches were occupied by several stranger—Rev. James McFarlane, of Keene, in the George street church; Rev. M. N. Bethune, of Grafenhurst, in St. Andrew's; Rev. J. B. Hough, in the Baptist church.

East Peterborough.

A Rousing Meeting for Mr. Rork at Lakefield.

One of the best meetings of the campaign was held at Lakefield Saturday evening. In the absence of Mr. Rork in the north country, Dr. Bell, Peterborough, and Mr. Jos. Tate, M.P.P., Toronto, addressed the large gathering of electors. Arrangements were made to give the opposition an hour, and the opposition appeared in the persons of Mr. R. M. Donnelsmen and Mr. E. B. Stone, of Peterborough, who appear to be boasting in couples in opposition to Mr. Rork. The hour was divided between them. Dr. Bell was the first speaker. He dwelt with the public questions of the day, and made a strong speech in behalf of reciprocity. He was followed by Mr. Donnelsmen, who addressed the electors in behalf of Mr. Burnham. He spoke in the most approved spread-eagle fashion and made some very wild statements, particularly with regard to some figures he professed to have received privately from the Government concerning the trade between the United States and Canada and some alleged correspondence between Sir John Macdonald and Mr. Blaine with regard to reciprocity. He was followed by Mr. Tate who gave him a thorough yet gentlemanly dressing down. Mr. Tate said he himself had not the advantages of a University education and as high social position such as the gentleman who had preceded him, and had to work for his living since he was ten years old; but during his struggles for a livelihood he had at least got hold of common sense, and he was going to make common sense replies to the legal arguments of his adversary, and leave the electors to judge for themselves. Mr. Tate said Mr. Donnelsmen in his address was shifting with surprising facility from reciprocity to protection, following the example of Sir Charles Tupper, who is considered to be the best stretcher in Canada; but this young man seemed to even outdo him. Mr. Tate illustrated his arguments by several good stories well told, and made a rattling speech in favour of reciprocity, which carried the house. He also exposed the tactics of the government with reference to the Trent Valley Canal. He read extracts from a book entitled "Roughing it in the Bush," by Mrs. Moody, a Lakefield lady, who stated that, sixty years ago, she bought some land in Lakefield in the expectation that it would increase in value on account of the canal. This showed that the Government had been using the Canal for the last sixty years as an election ball. Mr. Tate also pointed out that the Government employed Italian labor in the construction of the locks, in place of giving work to native-born Canadians. At this point a man in the audience spoke up, and asked if there was a single man in Lakefield who had ever received an hour's employment on the Burleigh or Buckhorn locks. There was no reply. Mr. Tait said the Conservatives were using the Canal to get the workingmen's votes, but when the work was done they employed Italian or Chinese laborers. Mr. Tait was tumultuously applauded, and, though it was in the Tory village of Lakefield, carried the house. Never at any political meeting in Peterborough did a man receive such a thorough castigation as Mr. Donnelsmen. Mr. Tait used no unfair arguments or insinuations, but in a quiet, yet effective way, exposed the fallacies of his argument and the falsity of the position he took.

A Word of Advice.

Little troubles are proverbially the ones that cause the most worry, annoyance and vexation. But what are sometimes considered little troubles, if left to themselves, soon magnify into grave evils, producing disastrous results. This is especially true of cold in the head. The sufferer looks upon it as a trifling annoyance that needs no treatment and will speedily pass away. This is a grave mistake. There is not a case of catarrh in existence that did not have its origin in neglected cold in the head, and the longer the trouble runs the more serious the results. Cold in the head, developing into catarrh, renders the breath foul, causes a loss of the senses of taste and smell, partial deafness, distressing headaches, constant hawking and spitting, and in many, many cases ends in consumption and death. No case may have all the symptoms indicated, but the more the sufferer has the greater the danger. It is obvious, therefore, that no case of cold in the head should be neglected for an instant, and that to do so is courting further disease—perhaps death. Nasal Balm, in the most aggravated case of cold in the head, will give instant relief, and speedily effect a cure, thus preventing the developing of catarrh. No other remedy has ever met with the success that Nasal Balm has, and this is simply because it does all its manufacturer claim for it. As a preventionary remedy a bottle of Nasal Balm should be kept in every house. Sold by all dealers.

A Beauty all Over.

At the music warerooms of Mr. J. W. Crosby, 423 George street, is now on exhibition one of the most beautiful and expensive upright pianos ever produced in Canada The design and finish of the case are magnificent. The design is unique and the material walnut, finished in unsurpassed style, and enriched with artistic carving and fret-work. The piano has a receding canopy top, a feature that is registered and cannot be duplicated. The keyboard recedes inside out of sight, leaving nothing to be marred by handling, and the music rest is the whole length of the keyboard. The action is American, and first-class, and the tone, while loud, strong and brilliant, can, by the use of the damper, be modified for general practice, to the great comfort of the rest of the household and saving of the hammers. Altogether the upright piano spoken of, made by the Uxbridge Organ and Piano Company, is a beauty, and lovers of the beautiful should call at 423 George street, where the piano can be seen for a few days.

CHEATLEY, Druggist, Peterborough

TO THE ELECTORS —OF— West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to secure my return in the present election. In dread of the disastrous consequences to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country to the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my efforts centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

MURDER IN TORONTO.

A FARM HAND BRUTALLY DONE TO DEATH.

The Tragedy the Result of Whisky and a Talk Over Good Old Times—The Victim Presents a Terrible Sight.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—On Saturday evening last James Chapman, carpenter, Baxter and James Morrison, jr., left Little York about 7 and proceeded to Chapman's house. In the estimation of the rustic mind Morrison was pretty drunk, Chapman comfortably so and Baxter, according to the evidence, was sober. On arriving at the house, which is situated in what is commonly known as "Chapman's Hollow," Morrison accumbed to the influence of the liquor and fell asleep. In the meantime the deceased, John Wright, who had been spending the day in Little York, came into the house. He was an old friend of Chapman's and producing a bottle of liquor they partook pretty freely, and then followed a long, and according to the evidence, a friendly chat about the "good old times."

At 10 o'clock Morrison and Baxter bade their host and his friend good night, and proceeded home. Between this hour and 12.30 Wright met his death, and exactly how he met it may never be told. The details connected with the tragedy and its announcement will be found in the subjoined evidence taken at the inquest.

A Revolting Sight.

The body was removed from Chapman's house early on Sunday morning, and taken to Hunter's undertaking establishment in the village. When The World's young man arrived he pushed his way through crowds of gaping rustics who swarmed around the building and spoke in subdued whispers. Up two flights of stairs and over piles of lumber the scribe at last found himself in a small apartment, where, stretched on a rough bench and covered with a blood-stained sheet, lay the body of the unfortunate victim. It presented a most revolting appearance. On the forehead were two ugly bruises, swollen and livid, and at the back of the head a gaping wound, about three inches long, told of the terrible violence which the deceased had met with. The thin white lips, tightly compressed, the sunken eye, the pallor and emaciation of death, and the blood-spattered body, all contributed to render the sight revolting and sickening.

The post mortem had been performed by Drs. Shaw and Walters, and the necessary incisions added to the awful disfiguration.

Arrested for Murder.

Yesterday morning at 11 Constable Burrs arrested James Chapman on a warrant charging him "that on or about the 21st day of February, at the township of York, he did feloniously kill and slay one John Wright."

The accused was seen in the hotel dining-room. He voluntarily told The World he was very drunk at and the time, denies having had anything whatever to do with Wright's death. He appeared very dejected and seems to feel his position keenly.

Chapman is a man of about 50 years of age and has hitherto borne an irreproachable character. He was never known to be quarrelsome, whether drunk or sober, and those who know him do not entertain the slightest suspicion as regards his innocence.

The inquest was opened before Coroner Britton at Empringham's Hotel yesterday.

The inquest will be continued to-day at 4, and in the meantime the jury will inspect the surroundings of the house and yard.

The evidence given thus far, though material in a sense, will have but little effect in dissipating the cloud of mystery that envelopes this unfortunate occurrence.

The question as to whether Wright met his death through foul play or whether it was accidental hinges upon the probability or improbability of death resulting from a fall upon the sharp edge of the scantling mentioned in the evidence. That he should be killed by a mere fall upon the ice is highly improbable if not impossible. The scantling rises from the ground for about two inches and is about two feet from the door. By falling in a very peculiar manner Wright might have struck this piece of timber. There is no blood or hair on the stick, but there is a patch of blood about six inches from it. It was rumored that Chapman and Wright had been discussing politics and that the discussion waxed pretty hot, but the witnesses do not remember having heard anything but a friendly chat. It is expected that considerable medical testimony will be given to-day, and the exact nature of the wounds made known.

19 Seamen Went Down with the Ship Elizabeth Near Trieste.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 23.—The loss of lives by the wrecking of the clipper ship Elizabeth off North Head Saturday night is now estimated at 19, including Capt. Henry of the local life-saving service. Eleven persons were saved.

First Mate Barclay, who, with 4 others floated ashore, says that after the captain's family (who were rescued) had been placed aboard the tug Reliance, efforts were redoubled to save the ship. Capt. Colcord, who was badly hurt during the afternoon by being thrown against a capstan, protested that he desired to stay by the ship. Told it was certain death to remain, he replied: "Save yourself, Barclay; I'm crippled and will only hamper you." Barclay took the captain by the arm and started to lead him forward, when a heavy sea struck them, and on looking at the captain's face he saw that he was dead. Barclay and eight men remained on the vessel until she struck the rocks, and five were washed ashore, the other three perishing. The boat containing 13 seamen which left the vessel before she broke up overturned and only four were saved.

The list of survivors so far as known comprises Mrs. Colcord, the captain's wife; their son and daughter, Chief Mate Barclay, James Paine, wheelman and six seamen. Captain Colcord, Second Officer Pendleton, William Raimond and Edward Miles, Boatswain's Carpenter Smith, 12 seamen and the Chinese cook were drowned. The body of Captain Henry of the life-saving service, who was washed overboard from the lifeboat, has been found, and a body believed to be that of Captain Colcord has been picked up.

THE STORY OF A MONSTER

CANNIBAL FEASTS OF A BRAZILIAN MULATTO.

Driven by Hunger the Man and His Companions Live on Human Flesh. Anthropophagic Experiences Coolly Described by a Fellow Who Rivals One of Gilbert's Queer Creations.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 21.—There is in prison at Salinas, State of Minas Gercies, a monster in human form. In a degree he is a living personification of one of W. S. Gilbert's very queer characters—the jack tar who sang:

I am the cook, and the captain bold,
And the mate of the Nancy brig,
And the midship mite and the bo'sn tight
And the crew of the Captain's gig.

The following from the journal Cidade de Leopoldina tells his strange story:

Learning that there had been confined in the jail of this town by the energetic police delegate an individual who for months had been living on human flesh a desire arose for seeing him, notwithstanding the horror that as regards him is inspired in every heart. His name is Clemente Villza. He is a mulatto, about 25 years old, medium height and of a slight body; a flat forehead, oblique eyes, with black pupils; deformed feet, with concave soles; a native of this district.

Without the slightest disturbance of manner he replied to my question as to whether it were true that he had been living on human flesh, and not only he, but Basilio, Leandro and others for a long time had been living on this food.

To Kill Hunger.

"What purpose led you to practise such acts, barbarous before God and man?"

"To kill my hunger, master."

"How did you make your first victim?"

"I was at Leandro's house when he invited me to eat a piece of a boy that he had killed in a thicket, where the lad was gathering fruit, and as I was very hungry and had no other resource I accepted the invitation for the first time. On the next day returning home I found a woman asleep by the roadside and was at once tempted to kill her. I took a stone and made my first victim and carried her home to satisfy my hunger.

"Some days after I killed Simplicio, and invited Francisca and Severa, who were dying from starvation, to help me eat him.

Children Eaten.

"When Simplicio's flesh was finished and I being without any means of satisfying my hunger Francisca told me to kill her two children for us to eat, which I did. Two weeks after, in the same straits, Basilio and I killed Francisca for the same purpose. Afterward I found that Basilio had stolen a shirt from me and I killed him when he was unsuspiciously gathering roots for supper. I only ate a little of him, for I was arrested two days after killing him. This was the last I killed."

The police found a part of Basilio salted down and the cannibal eating the calves of the victim's legs with a good appetite.

Taste of Human Flesh.

"Does human flesh have an agreeable taste?"

"No, it is rather sweetish. The best things I found in those I killed were the brains, tongue and marrow; I suffered slightly from diarrhœa while I was eating people's flesh."

"How did you prepare the flesh for eating?"

"We ate it roast or boiled with a good deal of pepper."

"Did not the remains of your victims inspire you with fear?"

"When I looked at them I felt a slight tremor."

"Did you sleep well?"

"Perfectly quiet."

"Have you no remorse for having practised such abominable and wicked crimes?"

"I no longer remember having done such acts."

HAUNTED BY A DEAD MOTHER.

Edward Fegley Brooded Over a Promise and Cut His Throat.

TREMONT, Pa., Feb. 23.—"At the dead hours of night I will come back to you," were the dying words which Edward Fegley's mother addressed to him at their home in the western part of Schuylkill county a short time since. He appears to have been haunted by that promise. He has not committed suicide by cutting his throat from ear to ear with a razor. He was 55 years old, and had been twice a widower, but left no children.

PLUNGED TO DEATH.

A Hamilton Fireman Tumbles From a Hose Tower.

HAMILTON, Feb. 23.—Jeremiah Thomas, a fireman located at the central fire station, fell from the tower in which the department dry the hose, a distance of 60 feet to the ground, this afternoon. The ambulance was called and Thomas was removed to his home, but before reaching the house he died from his injuries. He leaves a widow and small family.

A Petrified Body.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 23.—The body of the person found in the river at Lockport Wednesday proved to be a woman instead of a man. An examination of the remains by the authorities and physicians at Lockport revealed the fact that it was completely petrified, having been turned to stone by the action of the water. It was properly cared for, coffined and sent to Johnstown on the train Thursday evening, where it is thought it will be identified, as she was doubtless one of the victims of the big flood of '89.

The Cashier of the Ayer National Bank Returns From Montreal.

BOSTON, Feb. 23.—Harry G. Spalding, the absconding cashier of the Ayer National Bank, arrived here to-day and surrendered to the authorities. He was bound over to appear to-morrow under $20,000 bonds. Spalding's return is due to the counsel and advice of Rev. J. T. Johnson, the well-known evangelist. He found Spalding living in Montreal.

Could Not Save His Life.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Sir Knight Dickerson, upon whose body a foot square of skin taken from the arms of his brother knights of St. Bernard Commandery, Knights Templar, was grafted three weeks ago, died to-day. All the grafted skin became properly attached, but the patient's vitality was exhausted.

The London dockers committee have issued a manifesto charging the shipping federation with committing breaches of faith. The union men had a demonstration in Victoria Park to-day and were advised by the speakers not to go out on strike until thoroughly organized.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

THE FIGHTING AT TOKAR SUBJECT OF AN ENQUIRY.

The Government Announce That They Have No Intention of Attempting the Re-Acquisition of the Soudan.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Morley asked whether the operations now being conducted by the Egyptian army around Tokar meant the eventual re-acquisition of the Soudan. Sir James Ferguson, political secretary of the Foreign Office, said the occupation of Tokar was found necessary in order to prevent Suakim from being harassed and its trade interrupted. No further advance would be made in the interior.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Advices from Suakim say that Osman Digna does not accept his defeat tamely and that he is already rallying the dervishes to give the Egyptian troops another challenge. On the other hand the chief of the Beni Amer tribe, one of the most powerful chiefs in that part of Africa, has made friendly overtures to the Anglo-Egyptian forces and may come to the assistance of the Khedive's troops. Colonel Holled Smith, the commander of the Egyptians, is confident of being able to hold his own against the enemy.

After leaving a force of troops to garrison Tokar, the Egyptian troops marched direct to Afasite and ascended the hills recently occupied by the enemy. Afasite was found to have been vacated, though there were hundreds of Arabs in the vicinity. These Arabs quietly surrendered to the Egyptians, handing over to their captors a number of banners, spears and rifles and two guns. The Egyptians also captured large quantities of stores and ammunition.

A despatch from Afasite says the cavalry overtook many dervishes who escaped in the recent fight and the latter surrendered. Numbers of wounded dropped by the roadside.

LABOR TROUBLES.

Threatened Strike on the Pennsylvania Railway Lines—The Troubles in Cardiff—Strikes in Rio Janeiro.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 23.—A general conference of the employes of the Pennsylvania lines, east and west of Pittsburg, is being held today to consider the wage troubles. The members of the Eastern Grievance Committee arrived this afternoon. They have just concluded a lengthy conference in the east and came here to confer with the western men. An advance has been demanded in the east also, and in event of trouble it is claimed by members of the Grievance Committee that the employes of the two systems will work together. Chiefs Arthur and Sargent are holding a private meeting in Cleveland to-day. The division superintendents of the Pennsylvania are holding a consultation to-day with General Manager Wood. They will prepare a schedule of wages which will be submitted to the Grievance Committee. If it does not prove satisfactory to the latter, more conferences between the officials and the men will be held. Every effort to avert a strike will be made by both sides.

Large Meeting in East End Park Addressed by Michael Davitt.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The meeting in East End Park yesterday, in support of the Cardiff strikers, was attended by about 7000 members of the trades unions. The gathering was orderly and respectable, and both speakers and audience avoided any expression of disorder. Michael Davitt, who has just returned from a 10 days' illness in Ireland, was the principal speaker. He urged that all the workers in Great Britain should be joined in a universal union for the support of each other's interests. The employers, he said, had shown the example, in the shipping federation, of vast combination for a mutual object, and it was only by a general and binding pledge to support each other in their just claims that the rights of the workingman could be upheld.

Mr. Tillet and the others earnestly urged that the workingmen of all trades should come to the support of the Cardiff strikers. It was, Tillet said, not a local contest, but one in which the principles of trades-unionism were at stake. A victory for the dock company would affect more than the dockers' union.

Twenty bands of music were present and played at intervals during the meeting.

The new hands engaged for the Bute docks at Cardiff are not permitted to live on shore, but are kept on shore steamers, laid up and stationed in the middle of the docks. The transit to and from their work is by boat. They receive 30 shillings a week.

The Military Under Arms.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 23.—The strikes caused in this city and neighborhood by reason of labor disputes are extending and are paralyzing business. The laborers who have been at work on the Central Railroad have now gone out on strike. Traffic has been stopped on the railroad and the supplies of beef which come in from the country have been cut off owing to the fact that no trains are running. The military forces are under arms and are being employed in keeping order.

Collapse of the Durham Mining Strike.

DURHAM, Feb. 23.—The Durham coal mine owners have refused to accept the compromise terms offered by the men who are out on strike.

A Strike at Aberdeen.

ABERDEEN, Feb. 23.—A strike among the men employed in the shipping trade has been declared here.

Will Not Accept Liberal Funds.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—At a meeting of the McCarthyites to-day a further protest was issued declaring they would never accept funds from the English Liberals. Several Parnellites have informed the chairman of the National League in Great Britain that they cannot take part in St. Patrick's Day celebrations because of the decision of the executive leaving speakers free to deal with the party disputes.

Extraordinary Charge of Murder.

BIRMINGHAM, Feb. 23.—Harry Oldcroft, a lad of 18, was committed for trial by the coroner, charged with the murder of a girl named Mansell, only 14 years old, who, some time ago, rejected him as a sweetheart. Oldcroft passed the girl talking to her sweetheart in a passage in Russell-street, and wished them good night. Soon afterwards a pistol shot was heard, and the girl was struck in the head. She died next day. Oldcroft was found with a revolver in his hand. When apprehended, Oldcroft said he fired for a lark to frighten the girl and her sweetheart.

A Servian Pretender.

BELGRADE, Feb. 23.—A manifesto has been issued by the party of the Pretender Karageorgevic, who aspires to the Servian throne. This manifesto calls upon the people to rise and declare a revolution to overturn the Obrenovitch dynasty and incidentally to place Karageorgevic upon the throne. The people, however, have not responded to the appeal. The troops forming the garrison of Belgrade are confined to the barracks in readiness for an emergency.

THE DEATH ROLL 120.

Funerals of Many of the Victims of the Springhill Mine Disaster.

SPRINGHILL MINES, N.S., Feb. 23.—The list of dead now numbers 120. Twelve of the dead were buried this afternoon. This afternoon a brother-hearted Frenchman named Olive Dugire took from the morgue the body of his son James, who was killed in No. 1 slope. His other little boy ran out to meet the sorrowful father, slipped on the ice and struck his head with such force that he was instantly killed. This affair added another to the death roll.

Last night one of the orphans of a family of eight was in a restaurant begging for enough bread for her little brothers and sisters for this morning. Other cases of extreme destitution are cropping up continually and must be promptly met.

The subscriptions to the relief fund received to-day are $7750.

The workmen, when urged to resume work as quickly as possible to dispel to some extent the prevailing gloom, stated that it is utterly impossible to get the men to enter the mine before all the bodies are recovered. It is also known to-night that, owing to the number of grief-stricken persons in the town, considerable difficulty has been experienced in getting men to dig graves for those who were killed. A meeting was held Sunday, when a number volunteered for that purpose, but another is being held to-night to take steps to have graves dug to-morrow.

The miners claim that the death rate will reach 150 when all the bodies are recovered, but the owners say 130 covers all. So far 106 bodies have been recovered.

The whole surrounding country has been telegraphed to for coffins. One carload has been received from Amherst and another is expected to-night.

There were touching scenes at the funeral services, especially at the English church, where 10 members of three families were buried. Mr. Arimshaw buried his two sons and adopted son, Reid Carter, and his two sons, aged 21 and 18, were carried out of the house. The eldest was to have been married next week to Phœbe Brown. Every arrangement had been made for the wedding.

Tottersall, the well-known cricketer, who came out from England to coach the Wanderers' Club in Halifax, is among the dead. He sent his wife away a few weeks ago, and when saying good bye gave her his ring and watch in case he never saw her again.

HAZELTON, Pa., Feb. 23.—"Alive, alive!" was the joyful tidings to-night as 11.30 from the ill-fated slope No. 1 at Jeanesville. After being for 18 days entombed in the darkness of a mine five victims of the terrible disaster of Feb. 4 were found alive. They are John Tomaskusky, Joseph Mastuskowich, John Berno, Bosco Frinko and an unknown Hungarian. These with the 13 bodies already found make 18 men, the exact number given in these despatches the day of the accident. How they survived is a miracle. Nothing like it has been known or heard of in the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania. When Superintendent McMarlane and Caleb Williams were making a search to-night in a breast of the east gangway of the north pitch they were startled to come across the bodies of the 5 men lying in various positions, all huddled together in their efforts to keep warm. Careful examination revealed the fact that although weakened by the awful torture of hunger and thirst were still alive. They were so weak that with one exception they could not be moved. Doctors were summoned to the mine. Many blankets were secured and the men wrapped in them. One named Tomaskusky was just strong enough to raise his head and look around. When spoken to he raised his eyes mournfully, a look of despair passed over his face and he muttered. "John much sick." The men will not be brought to the surface for several days. Careful nursing will be given them and every effort put forth to save their lives.

LORD LORNE ON CANADA.

So Long as Britain Remains True Annexation Will Never Take Place.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The first of a series of articles published in The Daily Graphic upon "The Canadian Crisis," and written by the Marquis of Lorne, appeared to-day. Among other things the marquis says: "The annexationist scare is a useful lesson, bringing home to our minds the fact that the colonies are practically independent nations. This is a wholesome thing for the public to be reminded of. No comparison is possible between the colonies and Ireland." The marquis ridicules the idea that Canada desires to barter her political independence "for the government of the stars and stripes."

The Daily Graphic to-morrow will publish the Marquis of Lorne's second article on Canada. In this article the Marquis will say: "Free trade, whatever the result of the coming election in Canada may be, is impossible. All possible change of Government, so far as Great Britain is concerned, will mean either a few per cent. decrease in the tariff, or, if Canada joins the United States in a zollverein, an increase of tariff in conjunction with the United States against Great Britain."

The Marquis contends that an increase in the Canadian tariff is to be expected and is not undutiful in a country developing great resources. Canada, the Marquis claims, would never be satisfied with Am rican government, and he classes the talk about annexation as absurd. Referring to the reciprocity question the Marquis says that the reciprocity that Canada favors is "like that negotiated by Cobden between England and France." In conclusion he adds: "If the United States want more they and Canada must be content to wait until the engulfing policy of Mr. Blaine has run its course like other delusions. So long as Great Britain remains true Canada will remain loyal."

The Ripper as a Writer.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—At the coroner's inquest to-day a statement by Sadler, charged with murdering "Carroty Nell" in the Whitechapel district, was read. It gives a coherent account of his doings between the time of his leaving the woman in a lodging house and the time of his arrest. As far as his drunken condition that night permits to recollect, at the moment of the murder he was going to a hospital to get wounds dressed that he had received in a row at the docks. He denies selling a knife on the day following the murder. A seaman identified Sadler as the man who came to the sailor's home on the morning the crime was committed and sold him a big-bladed clasp knife, saying he had cut many a model with the knife.

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—A terrible explosion occurred to-day at the German powder works at Spandau. Twelve cars of powder just loaded for the government arsenal exploded, destroying an immense amount of property and injuring several workmen. Father and Son Fraternize.

An Interesting Epistolatory Exchange—A Pair of Typical Converts to a Rational Trade Policy.

The following letters, which have been handed us for publication, are eloquently expressive of the feeling that has been forced upon the farmers of this country:

A BRUCE COUNTY BOY TO HIS PETERBOROUGH FATHER:

PAISLEY, Feb. 13th, 1891.

DEAR FATHER,—This election business is troubling me so much that I thought I would ask your advice about it. You know our family has always been Conservative, and when I left home I brought with me my political leanings, and I am know here as a straight Tory, but to tell the honest truth, father, I am beginning to think the wool has been pulled over us all for some time back.

You remember when the N. P. was introduced, how the Conservative speakers and papers said that it would create manufacturing cities and towns, and give us a home market, which was the best market in the world. When the Grits said it would result in the Americans retaliating, by putting heavy duties on what we sold them, our leaders laughed, and replied that if they did so much the worse for them, because the purchaser paid the duty. Well things are different from what we expected, and the manufacturers themselves up here are dissatisfied, and as to the home market, that is all bosh. There is none here for our horses and barley; and as for who pays the duty, I learned that sweetly when I sold the greys last week, and got $93 less than I was offered by the same buyer last spring. When I kicked, he coolly told me he could not afford more, as he had to pay the big duty. I notice that everything I buy is getting dearer, and everything I sell is getting down in price. All the Conservative speakers are saying that we must cultivate a foreign trade—that there is a commissioner away now to open a trade with the niggers of Jamaica. The home market, just at our door, with the States, is now despised, and everyone who says that it is our best market is called disloyal. Now, father, I don't understand it, but I do know that we are in a bad fix up here between mortgages and low prices. It troubles me when I look back and remember that I used to think myself more loyal than our Grit neighbours, and how I would swear by John A. and thought there was nothing good in the Grits. As I think over matters, I am not satisfied, and what is more, most of my neighbors are beginning to think that they have been fooled. I don't like to turn my coat, but I never will cast another vote for John A. until I am better satisfied with his policy. It is all very well to point to the C.P.R. and British Columbia, but all the time the people are selling out and going away as fast as they can. So many farms are on the market here, that I would lose $2,000 on mine if I tried to sell. Let me know what you think about it, and if you say so, I will vote for the unrestricted reciprocity party, as I am quite sure that is the only thing will save us.

Yours Affectionately,
JOHN HORNING.

P.S.—Mary and the children are well. Tell mother we got the socks all right—the boys are proud of them.

The Father's Reciprocity Reciprocation.

SMITH, Feb. 19th, 1891.

DEAR JACK.—I got your letter, and have read it twice, and I am glad you wrote it, for indeed, I was considering in my mind for some time if I should not write to you and tell you of my conversion. Yes, we have been Tories for five generations, and I now think if we had less stiffness about our parties, and would think more for ourselves and just vote as our judgment leads us, it would be better for the country. We get supporting a party till we get blind to the merits of measures and arguments, and we even deny facts because they don't sustain our leanings. And so we keep a party in office long after they should be kicked out. All that you say in your letter dawned on me some time ago, but I was ashamed to admit it. Last time I did not vote because I had no faith in our party, and now I intend to say little, but I will vote for free trade every time. This talk about the flag is the rottenest thing I ever heard. I know we need to think it right to call the Grits rebels, but I have got over all that. Then they point out that our trade with England is greater than with the States. What has that to do with it? Won't English ports be always open to us as they are to every country in the world, and no duty to pay. It is for the stuff we don't send to England—our horses, barley, eggs, hay, lumber, etc., which go to the States—that we must have a free market or we will be ruined.

Arthur Rutherford—we all know Arthur—well, he is out in a letter saying: "It is all right for the farmer to get free trade, but what about the factories in town?" Did you ever hear the like!—the whole country must be sacrificed for a few little factories!—this is protection for the factories at the expense of the rest of the world. Well, John, the rest of the world is the biggest, and if Canadian factories have not got pluck and skill to compete on their own dung-hill against the foreign trade, let them go. But I tell you, John, if we had a settled policy of free trade with the Yankees they would swarm over here with their capital and the country would jump under their energies. Why, Peterborough, above all places, would get the benefit, and it would grow so fast that in five years you would not know it. Some one says that the Edison Works are stopped until it is known how the election is going. We all know better. It was because they would not give the wages the bricklayers asked, and now no bricklayer will come into town to work against the local men. The Edison people have such big profits on their patent rights that they don't care a fig for the duty. I guess Arthur has got a Conservative job—you know him—and he is sour because the old Third Ward dropped him at last election. Now, John, you and I have been forced to the same conclusion—not willingly—but we could not help it. It is no use shaking the old flag over my head when I find myself getting poorer every year, and I remember my two boys who are doing so well under that other flag. You know how hard they tried to get me all to go there. Well I am too old now. I want to die a British subject. I think someway it will give me a better chance of getting to heaven, but I don't see how sulking with my neighbour, and cutting off my nose to spite my face, will help me. Our nearest market, and quickest, and best for nearly all we in this part of the country have to sell is the States. It always has been and it always will be, and I won't support a party who force me to sell my stuff for a foreign market, that will cut half of it up in freight, or who support such a tariff arrangement with our neighbours as make my horses, hay, eggs and barley not worth raising. Go on, John, and do just what your good judgment directs. As for me, I am determined to show my loyalty by consideration my country before party, and myself before all. Mother sends love. Jane has another youngster, and they say he is like you.

Your affectionate father,
HENRY HORNING.

How to Attain Health and Happiness.

The latter half of the 19th century will pass into history as one into which is crowded more inventions and discoveries for the benefit of mankind than in all the centuries that have preceded it. Among these discoveries, let none will take higher rank than those in medicine, calculated to relieve "the ills that flesh is heir to," restore vitality, and prolong life. Ladies everywhere will rejoice at the discovery of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, undoubtedly the greatest remedy for their peculiar ailments yet discovered. These pills are the result of an almost life study, and are a certain nerve tonic and blood builder, supplying the elements necessary to enrich the blood and transform pale, sallow or greenish complexions to the pink and glow of perfect health. These pills are an unfailing cure for nervous debility, palpitation of the heart, loss of appetite, headache and all the irregularities of the female system that entail so much misery and distress. Every suffering woman should give them a trial. For sale by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Beware of imitations.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

HAVE NOT LOST A SINGLE DAY

"WHAT YOUR GREAT GRANDMOTHER DID.

She betcheled the flax and carded the wool, and wove the linen, and spun the tow, and made the clothes for her husband and ten children. She made butter and cheese, she dipped tallow candles, to light the house at night, and she cooked all the food for her household by an open fireplace and a brick oven. Yes; and when she was forty years of age, she was already an old lady whose best days were over. Her shoulders were bent and her joints enlarged by hard work, and she wore spectacles and a cap.

Her great grand-daughter, with all the modern conveniences for comfort, refinement and luxury, may be as charming and attractive at forty-five as at twenty. Especially is this true if she preserves her health and beauty by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which wards off all female ailments and irregularities, cures them if they already exist, keeps the life current healthful and vigorous, and enables the woman of middle age to retain the freshness of girlhood upon brow and cheek, the light of youth in her eyes, and its elasticity in her step.

Go to your drug store, pay a dollar, get a bottle and try it—try a second, a third if necessary. Before the third one's been taken you'll know that there's a remedy to help you. Then you'll keep on and a cure'll come.

But if you shouldn't feel the help, should be disappointed in the results—you'll find a guarantee printed on the bottle-wrapper that'll get your money back for you.

How many women are there who'd rather have the money than health? And "Favorite Prescription" produces health. Wonder is that there's a woman willing to suffer when there's a guaranteed remedy to be had in the nearest drug store.

A Word of Advice.

Little troubles are proverbially the ones that cause the most worry, annoyance and vexation. But what are sometimes considered little troubles, if left to themselves, soon magnify into grave evils, producing disastrous results. This is especially true of cold in the head. The sufferer looks upon it as a trifling annoyance that needs no treatment and will speedily pass away. This is a grave mistake. There is not a case of catarrh in existence that did not have its origin in neglected cold in the head, and the longer the trouble runs the more serious the results. Cold in the head, developing into catarrh, renders the breath foul, causes a loss of the senses of taste and smell, partial deafness, distressing headaches, constant hawking and spitting, and in many, many cases ends in consumption and death. No case may have all the symptoms indicated, but the more the sufferer has the greater the danger. It is obvious, therefore, that no case of cold in the head should be neglected for an instant, and that to do so is courting farther disease—perhaps death. Nasal Balm, in the most aggravated case of cold in the head, will give instant relief, and speedily effects a cure, thus preventing the developing of catarrh. No other remedy has ever met with the success that Nasal Balm has, and this is simply because it does all the manufacturer claims for it. As a precautionary remedy a bottle of Nasal Balm should be kept in every house. Sold by all dealers.

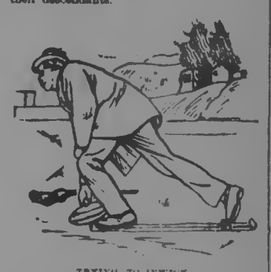
THE GAME OF CURLING.

DESCRIPTION OF THE SCOTTISH NATIONAL WINTER GAME.

How the Game is Played—The Mystery of It to the Casual Spectator—The Scale of Points and How They Count—A Breezy and Merry Game.

Bir-r-r-r! that's the sound that charms the ear;
Oh, callants fond o' curlin',
When o'er the ice in full career
The channel stanes are birlin'.

In common with all outdoor sports that depend on a low temperature for pleasurable indulgence, the game of curling has had quite a revival with the return of at least a good imitation of the old-fashioned winters that once prevailed hereabouts. This Scottish-born pastime is as much the national game in the land o' cakes as cricket in England, lacrosse in Canada, or base ball in the United States. Its exponents on this side of the Atlantic are in most cases Scotchmen or their descendants.



TRYING TO INWICK.

As for the game itself, one can scarcely get an adequate notion of it by description, while to the uninitiated observer it is a complete puzzle. To see a group of stalwart men, each armed with a broom, pushing a lot of cheese-shaped stones about over the ice on a frosty day, and shouting at frequent intervals with no apparent cause, strikes the casual observer as a mystery he or she can never fathom.

Like all other sports, curling has developed from primitive stages till it has become a game of skill and science. The stones roughly cut, with a rudely shaped handle of iron, have given way to the smoothly turned and highly polished piece of granite, with a movable handle covered with wood, made much more comfortable to grasp for the purpose of propelling the stone over the ice. The old-fashioned "besom" has been superseded by brooms of modern make, with which the ice can be made more slippery and to have less friction than in its natural state. Instead of a notch cut in the ice where the player can have a fulcrum from which to use his strength, there is the crampet on which he can employ his muscle and skill to much better advantage. This is shown in the accompanying sketch. In it the player has had instructions to make a difficult shot called inwicking, and is in the act of sending the stone on its errand.

What is known as the rink means technically a piece of ice forty-six yards long. At each end is cut a hatch just behind the foot circle, which has a diameter of eighteen inches or the crampet already referred to may be used to deliver the stone from. A straight line is drawn as a tangent to the foot circles, so that the latter are on opposite sides of it. Four yards from the foot circles are points in the lines called tees. About this four more circles are described, the largest having a radius of seven feet, the next a radius of four feet, and the third of two and a half feet. The fourth and smallest circle has about the same circumference as the ordinary curling stone. The largest circle is the important one, as it is the boundary which a stone must reach to count in the game. Seven yards from each tee is a line at right angles to the central one, called the "hog score." There is also another line across the rink twenty-three yards from each tee, known as the middle line, and one also at right angles through the tee to mark "the sweeping score." This, with the two tangents to the largest circles at the point nearest the foot circles, completes the diagram for a rink, which should be about twenty feet wide, so that, in addition to the fourteen feet required as the diameter of the largest circle, there is room for the players to line up on each side for sweeping without obscuring the view of the men as they deliver a stone. In using the rink only forty-two yards are needed at a time, as the play is from one foot circle to the tee at the other end.

The ice is now ready for curling, and two men representing the opposing sides go to one tee and direct the actions of the players who are at the other end. They are called skips, and the following section from the rules expresses concisely how the men are arranged: "Each rink to be composed of four players a side, each with two stones. Before commencing the game, each skip shall state to his opposing skip the rotation in which his men are to play, and the rotation so fixed is not to be changed during the game. Each pair of players shall play one stone alternately with his opponent till he has played both." Another rule provides that the stones must be circular in shape, not more than fifty pounds in weight, or more than thirty-six inches in circumference. The height must be at least one-eighth of the circumference, unless iron blocks are used. Iron for curling is an innovation which has not spread, and is not likely to do so. Such blocks may weigh up to seventy pounds, and are used under the same regulations as the stones. The latter are polished to a greater degree on one side for use when the ice is rough or sticky, and players may change the side from keen to dull, or vice versa, only once during the game, unless by consent.

The three men on each side under the respective skips are designated by the order in which they play as "first stone," "second stone," and "third stone." After the third man has played on each side the skips come down to deliver the last two pairs of stones. They select one of their side, generally the "third-stone" man to direct them, and he is called the "mate." Naturally the most skilful and experienced players are selected as skips, and the mate requires to be as well versed, for on his judgment the game frequently depends.

Primarily, the object of the game is to get the stones as near to the tee as possible, and the effort to do this is called "drawing." If the first player succeeds in landing a stone on, or close to the tee, his companion opponent tries to dislodge the shot or come nearer to the tee. Should he fail, the second stone of the first player is designed to guard the former, and then the game becomes more intricate as each pair of stones is sent on their way. When the skips have delivered the last of the stones sixteen have gone over the rink. Those nearest the tee belonging to a side count one each to the score, and it is possible for eight points to be made at one time. The playing of the stones comes to an end when "hogs" and the game may be for a fixed length of time or a certain number of reels. Of course, the winners are determined by the total of point-made, not by the number of ends won.

That is about all there is to curling, in the abstract, unless it is the use of the handle, which is probably the most scientific thing about the game. Besides being necessary in delivering the stone, the handle has a use which suggested the name of the sport, as it is by it alone that the granite cube can be really "curled." A twist of the forearm gives the motion, and as the stone goes forward it is spinning as well. As the impetus grows less the spin takes effect, and the stone begins to deviate to the right or left. Sometimes the curl is to counteract the bias of the ice, but its most scientific use is to enable the stone to pass round another and drop it behind it. With a right-hand player if the skip wants the stone to pass on the right he gives the order "out turn," or "elbow out." This means that the player throws the elbow from the body as he delivers the stone, which, by means of the handle, produces the spin on that side. If the object is to pass on the left side the command is "in turn," or "elbow in," which is also fully explained by the words themselves. It is only when there is a number of stones to be cleared away that the skip pays no attention to the turn, for when he tells his man to come down "wi powther," he knows that the force will be superior to the curl and have no effect on the direction. Sometimes a stone does not take the turn and sails away, "straight handle," as the skip roars to the luckless player.

Besides the contests between sides there is a trial of skill known as playing for points, when each player is tried at certain classes of shots, eight in number. These include all that are useful in games or matches except "outwicking," which is reserved as a final test in case of a tie. Every competitor has four trials at the eight classes, and each success counts one point. These are as follows:

1. Striking. A stone placed on the tee to be struck out of the circle.
2. Inwicking. The stone is placed on the tee, another with its inner edge two feet distant, its fore edge on a line from the tee at an angle of 45 degrees with the central line, the played stone to hit the latter and perceptibly move the former. This is like a carrom in billiards.
3. Drawing. The stone played to lie within or on the circle.
4. Guarding—The stone played to rest on the central line over the hog, but must not touch the stone to be guarded.
5. Chap and Lie—The stone placed on the tee must be struck out of the circle; the stone played to within or on it.
6. Wick and Curl In—A stone to be placed seven feet from the tee, its fore edge on a line making an angle 45° with the central line, the stone played to hit this, and rest on or within the circle.
7. Raising—A stone played exactly on the central line, seven feet from the tee, to be struck into or on the circle.
8. Chipping the Winner—One stone to be placed on the tee, and another with its inner edge ten feet distant, just touching the central line and half guarding the one on the tee; the stone played to pass the guard and perceptibly move the other.

Outwicking means to strike a stone from the outside and drive it within the circle. It is on the same principle as pocketing a ball at pool. In all these wicking shots there are two trials on each side of the central line.

When a player can accomplish these nine feats, once out of four trials, he is a curler of no mean ability, and is pretty sure to win his share of the medals.

So here's to a' our Scottish weans
In ringin' frosty weather.
Wha slirl their broons and hurl their stanes,
And yell like deils thegither!

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS,—My mother was attacked with inflammation of the lungs which left her very weak and never free from cold, till at last she got a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and, on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried.
MRS. KENNEDY, 50 Smith Ave., Hamilton, Ont. 2w6d

Familiar Family Friends.

The family store of medicine should contain a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. MRS. Hannah Hutchins, of Rosaway, N. S., says: "We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil in our family for six years, for coughs, colds, burns, sore throat, croup, etc., and find it so good we cannot do without it." 2w6d

No Shadow of Doubt.

No sane person doubts that what we say of B.B.B. is true. The evidence of its power and popularity is too overwhelming to confute, besides it is all home testimony making it certain that B.B.B. will cure dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, and all blood diseases. 2w6d

"WHO PAYS THE DUTY?"

An "Unsettled Elector" (and there seems to be a good many old school protectionists of that class) in a letter to the Review of Monday, asks, "Who pays the duty?" We have much pleasure in volunteering the necessary information. It is the "producer" in this case. In support of this we quote an authority which no good Tory outside the Imperial Privy Council would dare to dispute—Sir John Macdonald himself. In the House of Commons in 1878, as reported in Hansard, page 1,878 :—

"Suppose a man has 100 acres on the Canadian side of the line and 100 acres on the American side of the line. Suppose he grows 1,000 bushels of barley on each of his farms. He take his 1,000 American bushels to the American market and gets one dollar a bushel for it. He takes his 1,000 bushels of Canadian barley to the American market and gets but 85c. per bushel, because he has to pay 15 per cent. for taking it across that imaginary line. How can it, in this case, be said that the consumer pays the duty? It comes out of the pockets of the Canadian farmers."

Though it be rank disloyalty to be disrespectful enough to supplement such an irrefragible authority, we venture to add what Sir David McPherson said on the same subject at Walkerton in 1878 :

Suppose a farmer in this country takes five horses valued at $100 each to Detroit to sell The duty on horses in the United States is 20 per cent, which the Canadian farmer must pay before he can enter the Detroit market. That is he must pay $20 for each horse, and on his five horses $100, or the value of one horse at the United States custom house, before he can take them to the market. Then he will get no more than a Michigan farmer will get for five equally good horses Suppose that he and a Michigan farmer each sell five horses—each gets $500 for his horses. The American takes his $500 home in his pocket; while the Canadian take home only $400.

The answer of Sir John Macdonald must be regarded as sound and sufficient. But Sir David's opinion may, in these ultra loyal times, be subject to a little discount, because he signed a manifesto demanding "a peaceful separation from British connection and a union, upon equal terms, with the great North American Confederacy of Sovereign States"—in other words, he signed a demand for annexation in 1849. Otherwise his opinion is sound. This ought to settle an "unsettled elector."

Another "Pertinent Question."

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—I was in the opera house Saturday evening and heard Mr. W. J. Minore asking questions—which, by the way, were fully answered by Mr. Jury, though I see the Tory organ, in its report of the meeting, while it gives the question and and says it was received with applause, has not the fairness to state the reply, or that any reply was given at all. But I would like to ask Mr. Minore, without any intention of making unkind allusions, but purely in the interests of truth, with regard to the question of protection, what the N. P. has done for him? What personal reason has his business experience in the last few years afforded him for being grateful to the N. P. and for championing the cause of protection? Yours truly,

News Nuggets.

—Miss L. Leplante, Crescent street, wishes the EXAMINER to state that she was not a masquerader at the carnival Friday night. Her name appeared in the list, and was copied by our reporter from a card handed in at the door. Perhaps there was another "L. Leplante" at the carnival.

—For bracing up the nerves, purifying the blood and curing sick headache and dyspepsia, there is nothing equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

To the Editor of the Examiner :

Town.

DEAR SIR,—We wish to call your own and readers' attention to our announcement in another column. As we are of the opinion that the plan there outlined will meet with general approval.

We have decided to give it a trial, and are confident that we will be supported.

Yours truly,

1d1w HILLIARD & PEPLOW.

A Fruitful Cause of Insanity.

This is a question that from time to time is discussed in scientific journals, and when one sees the vast number of broken down, listless and prematurely old men found in every community one is almost forced to admit that the race is deteriorating. The causes leading to this decline in manhood are various, and among them may be mentioned overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, over indulgence of appetites, and excesses of various kinds, all leading to shattered nerves, loss of vital forces and premature decay, and often to insanity. To all thus suffering Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a boon. They build up shattered nerves, enrich the blood, stimulate the brain, and reinforce the exhausted system. All who are suffering from any of the causes that break down and enfeeble the system should use these pills, and will find them a sure and speedy restorative. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

If you have any pains in the joints caused from cold or dampness, do not wait until it develops into a bad case of rheumatism, but ask W. R. Greatrex, druggist, for a bottle of Royal Rheumatic Remedy. dw

NATIONAL DEVELOPMENT.

The Result of the Liberal Policy.

A Mass Meeting in the Opera House—The Subject of Reciprocity with Discussed—Many Capital Points Made Clear—The "Loyalty" Cry Criticized—Speeches by Messrs. O'Leary, Crerar and Corson.

A magnificent mass meeting of the electors of Peterborough and vicinity, was held in the Opera House last night in Mr. Richard Hall's interest, and the success of the speakers in his behalf, and the careful attention and enthusiasm of the audience was a very encouraging indication of the success of the house of the Liberal candidate.

The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion, Turner, who had the decorations in charge, doing himself credit. The proscenium arch of the stage was festooned with the British and Canadian flags, and throughout the hall the grand old flag was tastefully and plentifully displayed. Cordons of smaller flags stretched from corner to corner, crossing in the centre of the hall. The walls were brightened with appropriate mottoes. Over the stage was the loyal blazon, "God Save the Queen," while at the farthest end of the hall were the mottoes, "The Masses, not the Classes," and "Freedom of Trade." Over the gallery were the companion mottoes, and its complement, "Restriction Means Stagnation." Opposite these were the mottoes, "British Connection and British Trade Policy," and "Capital Protected: Labour Neglected." The gallery was crowded with ladies, who patiently sat through the speeches and appeared to take an intelligent interest in the addresses and to appreciate the many telling points made.

"RECIPROCITY MEANS DEVELOPMENT,"

The chair was occupied by Mr. Peter Hamilton, and on the platform, besides, were Mr. Richard Hall, the Liberal candidate; Mr. J. Crerar, Q.C., Hamilton; Mr. Hugh O'Leary, Q.C., Lindsay; Mr. Thomas Gowan, Gelt, who appeared on Mr. Stevenson's behalf; and the following local gentlemen:—Messrs. Geo. Brown, Thos. Tucker, Wm. Walter, R. S. Davidson, Dr. King, P. McHugh, Ed. Brown, J. B. McWilliams, Thos. Gladman, and G. M. Roger.

Mr. Hamilton, after a few preliminary remarks indicating the order of the speaking, introduced Mr. Richard Hall, who was greeted with enthusiastic cheers. Mr. Hall briefly referred to his candidature, and, disclaiming any idea of making a speech, explained that he did not enter the present contest from any ambitious desire for public prominence, but because in accepting the nomination at this time he felt that which he owed to this riding. (Cheers.) He felt that the people at large, and especially the workingmen, upon whom the incubus of taxation fell most heavily, should have their rights considered, and he was willing, if honored by the confidence of the people to do his duty faithfully. (Loud cheers.)

Mr. HUGH O'LEARY was very warmly received. After a few introductory remarks he referred to the circumstances under which the elections were brought on and to pleas that had been advanced to justify dissolution at a time a year in advance of the constitutional expiry of the parliamentary term. Referring to the policy with which the Liberal party went to the country unrestricted reciprocity he pointed out that the substitute for argument with which it was met was that it meant annexation to the United States. Upon that point the speaker cited the policy advocated by Sir John Rose in 1871, which included a reciprocity arrangement that included manufactured articles. Why was not that policy equally liable to end in annexation, and equally disloyal as the policy denounced by interested parties to-day? Had the N.P. failed to develop the strength and resources and energies of the people that they were less able to compete with the United States than they were in 1871? He asserted, amidst applause, that the

and they must do it. During the currency of reciprocity, from 1854 on, the commerce of Canada had increased with the United States in the ratio of 100 to 230, whereas in the 23 years that had elapsed since its abrogation, the increase had not been in the same ratio. He went on to show that in the three years since 1886, the trade with the open market of England had decreased, in round numbers, from eighty-nine millions to eighty millions, while in the face of a high tariff, the trade with the United States had increased from eighty-two millions to ninety-four millions, showing that the latter country was the natural market of Canada. An interruption called out the fact that the Dominion Government withheld from the general public the trade returns for 1890, while giving them out secretly to their organs and political friends. The speaker pointed out Ontario had its chief trade with with the United States, eleven out of fourteen millions going to that country. It was our nearest market, as Sir John had said at Newmarket. Where, asked Mr. O'Leary, was the home market and the great increase of population that had been promised? Where was the growth of population in Port Hope, Cobourg and Oshawa? He drew a picture, according to Mr. Lurke, of the state of stagnation in Oshawa under the N. P. He referred to the abundant evidence of lack of development and growth of our great resources. Reference was also made to the deterioration of farm property, and the lack of prosperity of the farm in the offer of partial reciprocity made by the present Government was like sending skim milk to a cheese factory. (Laughter.) In view of reciprocity being assigned as of Parliament, the people demanded that some specific form of reciprocity should be named. Sir Charles Tupper could have a colloque with a Detroit Free Press reporter without being called disloyal, and in his interview he stated that the policy of the United States was that of free trade, and so, the speaker said, would be the policy of the people of Canada on March 5th. (Cheers.) The whole country was alive to the issue of the day. Sir John appealed to the "young hope of the country" to repel the enemy and the traitor. What weapon had he put in the hands of 100,000 of the "young hope?" He had dealed them the ballot. Did Sir John appeal to them or to dead voters in their graves? Did he appeal to the million of the "young hope" in the United States? (Cheers.) If that outrage of a revision going over two years were condoned, we could have it go over five years, and then, finally, not at all. There was no need, under this revision, to ask if a man was twenty-one years of age. (Cheers.) The names left off the voters' lists represented the disfranchisement of six of the largest counties of the Province. Sir John and he had tied their hands. Reference was made to the broken promises. Sir Charles had said we were "only on the fringe of prosperity"—but the speaker said that we were, rather, on the "ragged edge." (Cheers.) The tariff wall removed we could still flourish. We were told that goods were very cheap under the N.P., and if that were the case the shrewd Yankee would want to buy them. Some favoured parties were growing wealthy—Redpath, the sugar monopolist, had gained more wealth than the farmers of Ontario. (Cheers.) The sugar combine, the salt, the binder twine and coal oil combines were denounced and the people appealed to to denounce this also by their votes on the 5th March. The men who were true to themselves must be true to their country, and consequently to their interests.

Mr. THOMAS COWAN, of Galt, who was suffering from severe hoarseness, paid his respect to Mr. O'Leary's statement, respecting the results of the National Policy, and urged it was inconsistent to say there was no prosperity under the N. P. when we have the Redpaths', (who have made their millions in sugar taxes out of the Canadian people.) The speaker, of course, lauded the Tory policy, and said they were the Johns of the country, driving ahead at great rate, (cheers) rather forgetting the fact that the Lord used Johns as the scourge of his people. Sir John, he said, would be returned on March 5th the successful king. (Cheers.) Sir John had been striving for reciprocity for years, and was longing for it now. The Tories were justified in using the loyalty cry, because there was business in it. (Ironical cheers.) Mr. Cowan denied that there was any combines, (Oh! Oh! and laughter.) The speaker closed by building up an enormous inter-provincial trade, and loyally using the Yankees as examples of patriotism.

THE CLOSING ADDRESS.

Mr. CRERAR received a most enthusiastic reception. He said he was extremely flattered at the way he had been received. He supposed it was because he was at one time one of the young men of Peterborough. Fifteen years ago he was a politician and did the shouting, when he discussed the National Policy on the platform with the previous speaker. In 1878 he did not interest himself as politics because he was told that the country wanted a protective policy—nor in 1882 nor 1887, because it seemed then the people were apparently not ready to throw the N.P. over, and there did not appear to be any vital principle at stake. But to-day the people were aroused and restive. The question was free trade with the United States, and he was here to support it. (Applause.) He did not care a fig for the personality of the candidates. It was measures, not men, he was supporting. So he asked for neither cheers nor hisses, and wished his arguments to be calmly received and considered. How, he asked, did this policy of protection arise? In 1877 and 1878 there was great distress in Canada, as well as the rest of the world. The opposition party thought this was their opportunity, and under their astute chieftain the chance was seized. The manufacturers went to Ottawa, and said to Mr. Mackenzie and Mr. Cartwright, "our and unless the duties are raised our country will become simply an agricultural country. We must have duties put on from 17½ to 20 per cent., or over, and then we will become a manufacturing country." But the free trade maritime provinces said, "No, if you do it, we will secede in a body." So the manufacturers went home, and banded themselves into a trade league. The Government went to the country and the new policy came in force. Members of the Manufacturers' League went through the country preaching their doctrine of protection. The country believed what they said, and the result was the N. P. of which we have had an experience for 12 years. The question then became, how was the policy to benefit both the farming and the manufacturing class? The manufacturers knew they were all right, and the farmers were told that they would be given a growing home market to consume their produce; and if they had a poor crop, they would be subject to no competition on account of the high tariff and they would be able to put up their prices. The farmers believed it, though it was not a new idea. The same measure was introduced by Robert Peel in England, in his famous sliding scale But at first the farmers had the worst of the bargain for several years; they were told they would have no market for their produce for several years until was raised up, but after we became a prosperous manufacturing country, the farmers were then to sell their produce to the artizans at a high price, and the artizans were to sell their goods to the farmer at high prices, and both were to flock each other and grow rich at each others' expense. (Laughter and applause.) What was the result? At that time we were prophesying; now we stood in the arena of history and looked back over what had been accomplished. Had any of these promises been carried out? Not in the city of Hamilton, where Mr. Crerar lived, where industries had failed and men were out of employment; not in Toronto where the black flag was flying and thousands were crying for bread. (Applause.) In Hamilton, Mr. Crerar instanced the Wanzer Company, one of the most prosperous concerns in formers, but now bankrupt; the Dundas Cotton Mills went the same way; he could describe dozens of others similarly situated. Peterborough boasted of her prosperity. She had great natural facilities and railway connection, and if the town was prosperous, so much the better. But could Peterborough expect to go on prospering when the rest of the country was deteriorating? The N. P. had, then, failed in this regard. What was to be the remedy? He said, free trade with the United States. (Tremendous applause.) England, in 1836, was brought to a low ebb by protection, and the workingman was glad to get eight shillings a week. Poverty was so intense in that country that legislation was passed with 48 hours after it was baked. Why? Because it got harder, and went further. But after the passing of the corn laws grain poured into England in unprecedented quantities. One would naturally expect that the market would have been swamped and the farmer crushed, but that was not the case. Industries were started, meat and grain became cheaper, the home market became a purchasing market and the country prospered. That was free trade. The previous speaker had said he loved the old British policy, but he (Mr. Crerar), when he met him on the platform in 1878, said he was sorry to see him going back on his British principles of free trade—(applause)—and adopting Yankee notions of protection. (Applause.) Mr. Cowan said the Yankees were smart fellows, and we would do well to take a leaf out of their book. But, Mr. Crerar said, what about the mother country? The rest of the answer, he said, you know; "if it endangers British connection, so much the worse for Britain." (Loud cheers.) The remedy for the present state of affairs, Mr. Crerar said, was the British policy of free trade—free trade for Canada with the United States. Personally he would like to have free trade with the whole world, but that could not be got. The N. P. had raised up pampered and pap-fed industries. Free trade with the United States would do away with the slaughter market which was once charged with

PROHIBITING THE SALE OF BREAD

RUINING THE CANADIAN TRADE.

Mr. Crerar proceeded to point out how the slaughtering of goods was carried on. The American market becomes glutted with certain products—say woollens and cottons. There is so much competition that the supply becomes greater than the demand. The manufacturer must clear off the surplus, and this is the way he does it. He cannot go against the combine on his own side of the line; prices must be kept up there at all hazards. So he dumps his goods into Canada, where under the revenue tariff they were said to be slaughtered. Under free trade this could be prevented, for American goods sold under price here could be bought up and taken back to the States and sold in their own markets by Canadians cheaper than the manufacturers were selling them. Under a moderate tariff the goods when once in Canada could not get out, the American big tariff preventing that, and therefore under a moderate tariff the American could make Canada his slaughter market with impunity. Free trade would do away with this state of things, for the reasons above advanced, and the Canadian trade would be STRENGTHENED AND SOLIDIFIED.

(Applause.) The N.P. also had the effect of deteriorating the quality of Canadian goods. For instance, in woolen goods, the prices under a high taxation policy were so high and the money so scarce that the people could not afford to buy the genuine woolen goods originally manufactured in Canada, and the retail dealers cried out for cheaper goods. So the manufacturers had to give them cheaper goods, and they did it by working in shoddy, thus keeping their own profit the same, but giving the people an inferior quality of goods. The N.P. got the credit for reducing the price of woolens—but it was shoddy that did it. (Applause.) Mr. Cowan had said there were no combines in Canada.. Mr. Crerar stated, on the authority of Mr. Boss, a Montreal manufacturer, that the Canadian cotton manufacturers who recently shipped two million yards of cotton to China, sold it at Manchester prices, and made up their loss by raising the price one or two cents at home. It was said the "infant industries" of Canada must have protection or they could not live. Mr. Crerar further gave the names of three Canadian manufacturers of soil pipe who were so highly protected here they made their own prices, and from the profits were able to maintain branch establishments in the United States. These looked like infants, didn't they? (Applause.) These men don't want free trade because they would have to hustle more than they do—and they don't want to do it. Under free trade they would have to concentrate their establishments, largely increase the capacity of their home industries, and employ the profits of the business (made out of the Canadian workmen, combines, and protection) in giving employment to Canadians, instead of, as at present, using Canadian money to use in industries in the States. (Applause.) Mr. Crerar also instanced the case of Mr. Redpath, the sugar refiner, who put the prices up here three or four cents a pound, and the Canadians have the

of knowing that in return for it there is a factory employing three hundred men in Montreal—and the thousands of money he was making out of Canadians enables him to buy a castle in England, have a coat-of-arms and liveried servants, and live like a prince. He also puts money out at interest, in mortgage, etc. This partly explains how there are ninety millions dollars in mortgages in Canada to-day. His money is invested in property, and Mr. Redpath becomes the landlord and the borrowers the tenants. A nice system, that, which brought about such a state of things. (Applause.) Mr. Crerar then replied to Mr. Cowan's argument that reciprocity was the thin edge of the annexation wedge. When, he asked, had the making of this reciprocity treaty? Did he not know that every treaty entered into by Canada must be signed or ratified by Her Majesty? If there was annexation in the reciprocity treaty, would the Queen be disloyal to herself? The question of annexation was, therefore, nonsense. But to show that the United States was our best market, Mr. Crerar said, according to the returns, we in Ontario sold to the United States 28 millions worth of goods and got back 29 millions worth. We sold to England three millions worth and got back fourteen millions worth. Now, if there was any sentiment of loyalty to the colonies among the merchants and manufacturers of England, why did they not trade more with their Canadian brethren, and say we will buy Canadian goods even if we have to pay a little more for them—for the sake of the British Empire? Because they

and trade where they can do so the most profitably. So, there was no power under the sun could prevent Canada from trading with her natural and most likely market, the United States. We have all the elements of a great people, and a great manufacturing people at that. All we want is a market. We are too cramped, there is not room for us to expand. With 13 years' experience of this wretched mockery, the N.P., that has brought nothing but misery, many of the largest manufacturers in this country are coming forward and saying they cannot stand it, they want that market, and if they get it they will double the capacity of their mills. And some of the more honest ones, who have steadily refused to join the combines, say if the people stick to the N. P. they will fall in line too, and join the combines. How will the people of Canada like that? Was it not better to fight with the world on our own merits than to ask for an act of legislation which will give us an advantage over the others, and rear up a lot of pap-fed industries not capable of standing on their own merits! We must have free trade. How can trade thrive if it is bound? The air is full of free trade. Freedom is as essential to free trade as it is to life itself, and we must have trade free as the winds. (Loud and long applause.)

The meeting was closed with cheers for the Queen, and Mr. Hall, the Reform candidate.

COURSE OF THE CAMPAIGN

Past, Passing and Future Events in the Ridings.

As the campaign progresses there is the most encouraging prospects of the success of the Liberal party in the Peterborough. And unless, in the interval, arguments of a sinister and practical nature interfere with the popular feeling on the trade question, the result will be a victory for the Liberal party and reciprocity.

Young's Point.

Mr. C. J. Leonard and J. R. Stratton, M. P. P., addressed a meeting Monday night in Mr. Hall's interests here, and their addresses were very heartily received. Mr. R. M. Donaldson appeared for Mr. Stevenson.

Springville.

Mr. E. B. Edwards addressed a fine meeting of electors at Springville on Monday night. The prospects are that Mr. Hall will poll a splendid vote in this vicinity.

The Sinews of War.

A correspondent enquires if the presence of the Postmaster-General here to-night has anything to do with providing the "stumpe" for the campaign.

Meeting of French Canadians.

Monsieur L. O. L. Gallardet, who is announced as a French "workingman" from from Montreal, addressed upwards of a hundred French Canadians in Mr. Jas. Stevenson's committee room last night. H. LeBrun occupied the chair. The speaker indulged in fulsome flattery of the Conservative policy since Confederation, claiming that Canada was great and prosperous to-day, while the future was bright with hope. He further advanced the theory that protection for the French language and the Catholic religion was only to be obtained by supporting Sir John A. Macdonald. The harangue was barren of argument, but sufficiently fluent to maintain the attention of the audience for more than two hours.

Warsaw.

A largely attended meeting in the interests of Mr. Rork was held in the Town Hall, Warsaw, last night. In the absence of Mr. Rork, capital addresses were delivered by Dr. Goldsmith, town, and Mr. — Pedley, of Toronto. Mr. J. H. Barnham appeared for Mr. Barnham. The meeting was largely in Mr. Rork's favor, and there is every indication that the farmers of this vicinity are going strongly for Mr. Rork and the Liberal policy.

How to Prevent Consumption.

"Life is sweet," is an old saying, and just as true as it is old. No one in his or her right senses courts death; all wish to prolong life to the utmost limit, and yet, in spite of this universal desire to live the allotted three score years and ten—and even longer—thousands upon thousands of people through carelessness and neglect, are hastening the time when they must stand face to face with the grim reaper, and make the plunge alone into "the dark valley of the shadow of death." No disease on this continent claims so many victims as consumption, and reliable statistics prove that fully two-thirds of the deaths occuring from consumption had their origin in catarrh. Nothing but negligence caused this last disease to develop into consumption, and the person who neglects to promptly and persistently treat catarrh until all traces are eradicated, is simply hastening the coming of death. Even should catarrh not develop into consumption, it nevertheless shortens life, as every breath the patient inhales passes over poisonous secretions and thus affects the whole system. For the cure of catarrh no remedy ever discovered equals Nasal Balm, which is recognized from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the only certain cure for this disease. It removes the secretions from the nostrils, stops the poisonous droppings into the throat and lungs, and makes the user feel that a new lease of life has been given him. This great catarrh remedy is on sale with all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price—50cts. for small and $1.00 for large size bottles—by addressing Falford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Home Again.

Both ridings of Peterborough will likely hear from Mr. H. LeBrun to-morrow. He has just returned from spying out the land in Ontario and Quebec in search of new goods for spring, taking in Uncle Sam's territory on the home run. Look for his announcement to-morrow.

The Races.

The winter races are billed for to-morrow and Thursday on Little Lake. A good track has been laid out and there are a number of fast horses in town. It is probable the soft weather may cause a postponement. To-morrow's events are the named race, 2:40 trot, and 4 year old stallion trot.

Curlings.

Two rinks of Campbellford curlers played a friendly game at the rink here this morning, the score being as follows :—

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. TO THE ELECTORS —OF— West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of that Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to ensure my return in the present election. In dread of the disastrous consequences to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard is in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

RICHARD HALL.

GIBSON'S BIG MAJORITY.

HE DEFEATS STINSON BY 679 VOTES.

The Provincial Secretary Naturally Elated at His Success—The Unusually Large Vote Polled Shows the Interest Taken in the Fight.

HAMILTON, Feb. 24.—In June last Thomas Stinson was elected member of the Legislature for Hamilton by a majority of 78 votes, but was unseated some few weeks ago on account of corrupt practices by his agents. To-day's election was to fill the vacant seat, and never before has there been such interest taken in a local contest in this city. Scores of rigs from all over the county were brought to the city to work in the interest of either Gibson or Stinson, and from 8 o'clock this morning until the poll closed this evening both parties worked like Trojans. The result of this is seen by the tremendous vote brought out. In only one ward out of the seven, and that the banner Conservative ward, did Stinson have a majority and in this ward, No. 7, his majority was only three votes. The Conservative party claim that to-day's election was won by unfair means and say they will be able to unseat Mr. Gibson on this account. The Reform party are very jubilant over the result and are having a torchlight procession with fireworks to-night in honor of their victory.

The Provincial Secretary, Hon. J. M. Gibson, is deluged with messages of congratulation to-night from all parts of the country, and naturally feels much elated over his victory.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, Feb. 25. In a fight in the ward last night Patrick Elwood was stabbed in the thigh.

The excitement at Little York over the mysterious death of John Wright on Saturday night continues to increase. It was thought that the medical testimony given yesterday would throw some light upon the mystery, but it has simply served to render it darker than ever.

Empringham's Hotel was again crowded when the adjourned inquest was opened at 4 p.m. before Coroner Britton.

At 7 p.m. the jury retired and at 3 this morning they were still out.

The Dominion Shorthorn Breeders' Association held its fifth annual meeting yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance, the president, Hon. John Dryden, being in the chair.

The executive committee's report showed that in 1890 the association was paid for 3185 registrations, 2212 certificates and 350 changes of ownership. From these, 39 registrations, 38 certificates and 2 changes of ownership were rejected, leaving 3106 registrations, 2889 certificates and 348 transfers against 2749 registrations, 2572 certificates and 307 transfers in 1889. The registration fees have increased from $2666.50 in 1889 to $3043.75 in 1890, an increase of $375.25. The financial sheet is satisfactory, showing $446.09 to the credit of the association.

The association is anxious that the display made at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893 should be worthy the resources of Canada. Accordingly this resolution was adopted. That the Provincial Government take into consideration the object of the above, as no better opportunity of advertising Ontario and her productions could possibly occur than to have them properly represented at Chicago in 1893. It is therefore recommended that a deputation be named to wait on the Government with a view of carrying out suggestions and conclusions arrived at.

On the suggestion of Mr. Simmons the deputation were also empowered to communicate with or wait upon, the Dominion Government in order to get their co operation.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Richard Gibson, Delaware, Ont.

Vice-Presidents—Ontario, James I. Davidson, Balsam; Quebec, J. C. Stockwell, Danville; Nova Scotia, Prof. George Lawson; Prince Edward Island, Hon. D. Ferguson, M.L.A. Further particulars regarding the fire Feb. 19 in the apartments by the Empress, at Anitchkoff Palace, show that the Czar first detected the fire. The fire originated from the fusing of electric wires in the bathroom. Considerable damage was done to the Empress' study and costly paintings. Tapestry and statuary were destroyed.

ENGLAND IN EGYPT.

LIVELY DISCUSSION IN THE IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

A Motion for the Reduction of the Army by Labouchere Defeated by a Vote of 124 to 57. Balfour says That the State of O'Brien and Dillon's Health is Satisfactory.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—In the House of Commons Lord Hartington asked what the intentions of the Government were in regard to complying with the recommendations of the Royal Commission on the Army and Navy. Mr. Stanhope, Secretary for War, in the course of his reply indicated that the Government had resolved not to disturb the Duke of Cambridge so long as he desired to retain his position as Commander-in-Chief of the army. Neither would they discuss any changes that might be needful on a vacancy presenting itself.

Mr. Labouchere moved a reduction of the army, embodying in the motion a provision for the evacuation of Egypt.

Sir James Fergusson, Under Foreign Secretary, repeated in detail the statement he made in reply to Mr. Morley's question earlier in the day. He declined to fix a date for the evacuation of Egypt. He would only say that the English would withdraw as soon as a good government was assured and no danger of foreign occupation remained. The fixture of a date for evacuation would undo all the good that had already been achieved.

Mr. Morley said that he feared the Government were relapsing into their old policy. The advance into the Soudan would necessitate another advance of the British troops. He ventured to predict that this warning would be justified before long. He had no desire to hamper Lord Salisbury's policy, as he was aware of its difficulty, but England was playing a bad part before Europe by breaking her pledges. Difficulties in Newfoundland might arise similar to those which had arisen from the anomalous position in Egypt, which gave Germany power over England and compelled her to do what she did in respect to Zanzibar.

Mr. Stanhope, in a brief rejoinder, said he thought the fact that there were only three thousand troops now in Egypt, against ten thousand when the Government came into office, was sufficient proof of England's intentions.

Mr. Labouchere's motion was rejected—194 to 57.

Secretary Balfour stated he had received a detailed medical report regarding the condition of prisoners Dillon and O'Brien, and according to this report their health was becoming satisfactory.

Nickel Money in France.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—The Governor of the French Mint has just sent the Minister of Finance a sample of the new nickel money, which is to comprise five, ten and twenty centime pieces. It is announced that the Government intend to put seventy thousand francs worth of this coinage in circulation. The new money bears on one side the effigy of the Republic, and on the other the value in figures surrounded by the words, "Liberte, Egalite, Fraternite"; and, in order that there may be no confusion with the silver coinage, the rim bears twenty notches, which the newspapers point out will play havoc with the pockets of those who are not in the habit of carrying purses. Some dissatisfaction is felt because 25-centime pieces have not been coined instead of 20-centime pieces.

They Won't Gag the Press

PARIS, Feb. 24.—The annoyance to which the Empress Frederick is subjected on account of the espionage of reporters is attributed to the meagreness of the information furnished by the German embassy as to the movements of the empress. The German ambassador has been informed by the prefect of the Seine in response to a communication on the subject, that the authorities are unable to interfere with the exercise by the members of the press of their legitimate activities.

Crazy Otto Unconscious.

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—The crazy King of Bavaria went into a torpor 24 hours since, from which he has not yet recovered consciousness.

King Otto I. succeeded his brother, Ludwig II., who drowned himself in Lake Starnberg in 1886. As he is insane his uncle, Prince Luitpold, was appointed regent. Some time ago it was announced that Prince Luitpold would be proclaimed King of Bavaria on March 12, his seventieth birthday.

AN INSANE AGITATOR.

He Struck Lord Inglis and Was Committed to an Asylum.

EDINBURGH, Feb. 24.—A sensation was caused in labor circles here by the committal to an insane asylum of a noted Scotch land-agitator named Alexander Robertson. Robertson, who is popularly known under the name of "Dundeemachair," committed an apparently unprovoked assault upon Lord Inglis, president of the Court of Sessions. Robertson struck Lord Ingles over the head with a stick in Princes-street, inflicting, however, slight injury. The land-agitator was promptly arrested, and it was obvious he was of unsound mind. He was sent to an asylum by the magistrate before he was taken before the court.

What Lord Randolph Wants.

DEATH OF A SOLDIER HERO IN INDIA.

Resignation of the Norwegian Cabinet—Uproar in a Legislature Hall—The Fire in the Palace of the Czarina.

WARSAW, Feb. 24.—Prince Bastinieff was to-day found guilty of the murder of the actress Wisnowska in July last. He was sentenced to eight years imprisonment at hard labor. Jealousy was the cause of his deed. When Bastinieff was examined by the justices in January he produced letters showing that the dead actress had asked him to kill her. There were other scraps of letters in the murdered woman's handwriting, which were portions of letters written her mother, and saying that Bastinieff would not allow her to leave him, under constant threat of death, and she expressed in these writings the belief that Bastinieff would eventually be her executioner. At the time of her death Wisnowska was busily studying English, with the view of going to the United States in order to try her luck on the American stage.

The Hero of Rorke's Drift.

CALCUTTA, Feb. 24.—Major Bromhead of the 2nd South Wales Borderers, whose name is inseparably connected with the defence of Rorke's Drift in 1879, died at Allahabad on Tuesday of typhoid fever. Gonville Bromhead served with his regiment in the Zulu War of 1879, and took part (as second in command to Lieut. Chard of the Royal Engineers in the gallant and successful defence of Rorke's Drift on Jan. 22 and 23.

The death of Major Bromhead takes us back to January, 1879, when England was stirred with excitement by news of the disaster to the British arms at Isandlana, where infuriated and warlike Zulus all but annihilated a British force left to guard the camp while Lord Chelmsford was fighting at Dartnell to clear the way for further advance. Much irritation was caused in the public mind by this disaster, when news came of another fight in which British heroism appeared in such glowing colors as to cause a feeling of elation to prevail. Tuis was the gallant defence of Rorke's Drift by Lieut. Chard, R.E., and Lieut. Gonville Bromhead, with 86 of the 24th Regiment. Through some of the fugitives who had escaped from the slaughter these officers heard of the disaster at Isandlana. Believing that the victorious Zulus would attempt to cross into Natal, they prepared, if possible, to defend the Drift till help should come. Defences had to be improvised. They had barely finished a hasty barricade of bags and biscuit tins when the Zulus, gathering round, began to pour in their fire. They numbered in all about 4000. The attack lasted the greater part of the night. Six times the enemy got within the barricade, but were driven out at the point of the bayonet. Creeping to the rear, they set fire to the hospital. At dawn the assailants withdrew. But afterwards, looking towards Isandlana, the defenders descried a fresh host advancing. However, soon they saw, to their relief, that it was Lord Chelmsford's jaded men, and these latter, too, were glad to find that Englishmen still held the Drift. Around the entrenchment 351 Zulus lay dead.

Threatened Famine in India.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—In reply to an inquiry, the India office has received the following from the Governor of Madras: "The tract most affected by drought, about 3500 square miles in extent, chiefly Zemindary, lies between the Madras Railway and Pounar River. Reports by the settlement member of the Revenue Board, after personal inspection, show serious failure of crops. All that is necessary at present, however, is to afford sufficient employment for the poorer classes on ordinary public works in convenient centres. This is being done. Large remissions will be required, but I do not anticipate that relief measures will be needed.

England's Richest Peer Sued.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The Duke of Westminster, the wealthiest of English noblemen is engaged in a squabble in the courts with a surgeon named Surell over the cost of embalming the Duke's son, Lord Robert Grosvenor, who died at Constantinople. The claim, which includes professional attendance before the death, amounts to £222 6s. The Duke is only willing to pay £42. There is something behind the dispute which has not yet come to the surface. The plaintiff was anxious to give evidence taken at Constantinople, but this the Duke strenuously resisted, and the court decided the point against the plaintiff. There has always been some mystery about Lord Robert Grosvenor's death.

Mysterious Crime at Zanzibar.

ZANZIBAR, Feb. 24.—Intense excitement has been caused among the native population by a tragic discovery, which, according to popular rumour, involves grave charges against a European resident. The body of a girl was found on the beach this morning in a terribly mutilated condition, being, in fact, according to the description of eye-witnesses, almost cut to pieces. There is no doubt that the girl was the victim of foul play, and it is asserted that the perpetrator of the crime is a German resident, who is accused of having decoyed away and outraged the girl two days ago. Report adds that he himself buried the body last night on the sea shore, where it was discovered to-day. Speculation is rife as to the course which will be adopted by the German Consulate.

In Aid of the Hebrews.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The Earl of Aberdeen presided this afternoon at a meeting of the Society for the Relief of Persecuted Hebrews. In the course of his address he explained that the object of the meeting was not to express any opinion on the course of the Czar in returning the Lord Mayor' memorial, but to provide means to enable the exiled Hebrews to form colonies in Palestine.

The following resolution was ultimately passed:

That it is the duty of all Christians to give practical aid to the persecuted and suffering Hebrews, especially in the Holy Land, in the manner suggested by the late Lord Shaftesbury

The Priests and the Fund.

DUBLIN, Feb. 24.—Archbishop Walsh has written a letter, published in the newspapers in this city, in which he says six priests, responding to an official invitation to assist in the administration of the Zetland-Balfour fund, attended a meeting of the Belmullet Relief Committee at Belmullet, county Mayo but upon learning that they would not be allowed to have effective control of the distribution they withdrew. The archbishop says that similar action will be taken by other priests in other districts.

Labor Troubles Abroad.

The strike of plush weavers at Bradford is extending and threatens to involve 5000 workmen.

The Belgian council of industry composed of masters and workmen have sent memorial to the Government asking it to avert a general strike by extending the right of suffrage.

A Switch Rod Pierced Her Brain.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Feb. 23.—While coasting down Howard-street last night, a traverse with 16 persons ran into a snowbank near the railroad track, throwing the coasters in all directions. A projecting rod of a switch pierced Mrs. John Feaneff's left eye, and, entering the brain, caused instant death.

Two men were fatally injured and 300 thrown out of employment by the destruction by fire of the Burlington, Vt., spinning mills last night.

The death is announced of Rev. James Caughey, the well-known Methodist Evangelist. He died at New Brunswick, N. J., in the 63th year of his age.

SWORE TO AVENGE HIS DEATH.

Murdered by His Fellow-Countrymen who Followed Him from Italy.

BUFFALO, Feb. 24.—Coroner Keaney received a letter this morning from Dr. J. Haven Ross informing him that he had been called upon to visit Sebastian Pecci, at No. 17 Water-street, who had been assaulted and was about to die. Coroner Keaney found Pecci on the third floor of a tumble-down rookery in a dying condition. Pecci died without regaining consciousness. His body was a mass of bruises and cuts. Very little could be learned of Pecci or how he was injured beyond the fact that five days ago he was set upon by three brothers who had come from his native province in Italy and cut and beaten into unconsciousness.

This is apparently an ordinary murder, but behind it there is a romantic story of the vendetta which is being told in the Italian quarter to-night. Pecci came from Naples a year ago. Before his departure he quarrelled with a member of the Luigi family, and in the fight which followed Luigi was so badly injured that he died. This Luigi who was killed was a brother of the three brothers who murdered Pecci. The oath of the vendetta was sworn and the brothers came to America a few months ago and located in Buffalo. Pecci was afraid of them and tried to avoid meeting them. He knew their oath would be kept.

A week ago Pecci quietly made arrangements to leave Buffalo and on the day set for his departure the oath of the vendetta was kept and Pecci was murdered. The police have sent descriptions of the murderers to all the principal cities.

THE GOVERNOR JOINS ISSUE.

Newfoundland's Governor on the Reference to Reciprocity in the Address.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb. 24.—The governor received the address of the House of Assembly to-day. In his reply he took exception to the reference in the address to the trade convention with the United States, and said that when Lord Knutsford's dispatches, which were coming by mail, were before the Legislature the House of Assembly would find that their conclusions and deductions had been erroneous.

5 Cents Would Have Saved a Life.

DENVER, Col., Feb. 24.—H. F. Beninete this evening committed suicide. Beninete was a barber and recently came to Denver from Cincinnati on account of his health. For weeks he endeavored to secure employment, but without success. In order to economize he roomed with W. G. White, another barber in search of work. This morning a local paper published an advertisement calling for a barber. Both White and Beninete were anxious to respond. White had a nickel to take a horse car, Beninete was compelled to walk. When he arrived at the shop the first thing that attracted his attention was White shaving a customer. This proved too much for Beninete, who shortly afterwards went home and blew his brains out.

"No Court Martial For Me."

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 24.—William J. Handrau, a marine at the Naval Academy, committed suicide last night at the barracks. Yesterday morning he started for Philadelphia, but missed the train. In the evening he was found very drunk and was locked up. He had never before been known to touch liquor. As he entered the cell he said: "No court martial for me to-morrow." This morning he was found dead with a chain wrapped about his neck and one end of which was still clinched in his stiff fingers. He had knelt down to cause death by strangulation.

A Shoe Button in Her Nose.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 24.—Mary McKiernan, 9 years old, has been suffering from violent nasal hemorrhages for three weeks. While the doctor was bathing her face yesterday he discovered a black shoe button in her nose. The child's mother said the girl got the button in her mouth four years ago, after which her health began to fail, though it was supposed the button had been blown out. She is feeble, but it is hoped that she will recover.

A Colored Woman's Albinos.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 24.—A colored woman named Woodruff, living at St. Elmo, a suburb of Chattanooga, has two albino children. Their hair is perfectly white and their eyes shine like two diamonds. Both are exactly alike and cannot be told apart. The old man was found yesterday dead on the roadway.

A GOOD SIGN.

The Empire, the organ of the red parlour patriots, seems lost to all decency, and to have substituted the policy of abuse, blaster and assertion, for the semblance of argument it affected before the present election contest began. It runs rampantly to roorback, and daily publishes a list of alleged Liberals who have not fallen in with the Liberal policy of Unrestricted Reciprocity. This was, in many cases, to be expected. Many Liberals have, like men of any party, from the natural desire for gain, been by virtue of catering into the manufacture of certain articles, placed in the position of enriching themselves by the help of a high tariff at the expense of the many. Now the policy of the Liberal party means the removal of such anomolies, and means that the burden is to be equitably placed and that no favoured class, like the highly-protected manufacturing monopolist and the combinester, shall exist in a free country. Therefore, there may a few bona fide names of once-Liberals now allying themselves with the high-tariff party. The Empire's list, in so far as it is correct, is a source of encouragement, rather than dismay to the Liberal party. The defections from the Liberal ranks are no larger, nor as large, as similar defections from the Conservative party. On a question, which by its immense importance becomes exalted from the party to the national arena, it is natural to expect that there should be a certain ol avage of the old parties, especially as the two parties are as a body arrayed on opposite sides of the question at issue in this campaign—the party of progress naturally adopting the policy of trade extension, fair play to all classes, and special favours to none, that is, reciprocity—and the party of restriction, class privileges, enriching the few at the expense of the many, etc., that is the Conservative party. In such contests it is to be expected that the defections from the Conservatives will be larger, for they are emerging from tariff bondage to trade freedom, they are declaring for a policy of true patriotism—the greatest good to the greatest number—while the few defections from the Liberals are from the more sordid object of gain. Even after thirteen years of government by boodlism, there is no room to doubt that the body of the electorate is still more amenable to the plea of patriotism than to the lust of gain. In this riding, in this district, in this Province, in this Dominion, there is gratifying evidence that the people are awake to their true interests, and that the present government, if they are not swept from power, will receive such a shaking that they will be on their good behaviour, and be willing to modify their retrogressive trade policy so that we can not only have a chance to produce and manufacture under the minimum of disabilities, but be allowed to have at least a much more extended market for our wares. In any event, the country will gain from this contest. If the Liberals are returned, the gain will be of the widest proportions, and if the Conservatives hold office by the skin of their teeth, they will be much more humble and biddable.

SPRING HILL MINES, N. S., Feb. 23.—A mining disaster attended with fearful results unparalleled in the history of Canadian mining has fallen upon the town and the people of Spring Hill, N. S. The loss of life is probably as great as the combined appalling loss at the Drummond and Foorse pit explosions. About 117 lives are lost. Fifty-one widows have been left been left behind and 157 children made fatherless. The widows and the fatherless will require abundant assistance, and that promptly, from a public shocked and horrified by this terrible calamity. Seventy thousand dollars will be required to meet the demands and to alleviate the sufferings of the bereaved and distressed during the most pressing period of their direful misfortune. The residents of Spring Hill in meeting assembled have appointed a committee consisting of the mayor, town council, and all of the resident clergy, to solicit and acknowledge subscriptions to the Spring Hill Relief Fund, and they confidently and earnestly ask for an immediate response from all persons of all denominations, societies, guilds, trades and nationalities.

Signed { WILLIAM HALL, Mayor. A. C. McLEOD, Secretary.

Let us Secure These Things.

The pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the great art in life is to have as many of them as possible.

In order to secure this condition in life, it is necessary that we be healthy mentally and physically, and cast out all selfishness and jealousy and cultivate from day to day a cheerful temper.

It is almost impossible for the nervous, irritable, morose, sleepless and used up man or woman to cultivate pleasant thoughts. The dyspeptic subject cannot refrain from growling and grumbling, and his stomach is to him a perpetual text for darksome thoughts. A gentlemen recently declared that he wished "the world knew more about Paine's Celery Compound."

"If more of this grand and healthful restorer were used," said he, "we would see more complete and perfect contentment, less discontent with one's lot in life, more charity and forbearance, and a unity which is necessary not only in families, but in communities as well."

Paine's Celery Compound can restore strength and vigour to the nervous and weak; it gives a vim and energy to the morose and despondent; it gives sweet sleep and rest to the sleepless and wakeful, and builds up a new body, after which naturally come pleasant thoughts and a cheerful and happy disposition.

A RARE DISEASE.

Request That Premises Revelations For the Medical Profession.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 24.—An inquest of great interest to the medical profession is being conducted by Coroner Ashbridge in the case of Miss Catharine Robbins, an aged spinster, who died suddenly in this city. The disease which caused her death is one of rare occurrence, known as acute pancreatitis, and one of the peculiarities of its symptoms is their resemblance to those of poisoning. Stout persons only are attacked—Miss Robbins weighs 300 pounds and the fatty tissue becomes spotted with a grisly substance, white as snow, which slowly and painfully poisons the victim's blood. Gradually the pancreas becomes inflamed, the heart and stomach are attacked and death ensues from heart failure. Sufferers have a morbid fear of poison and reject medical attendance. Only one other case is known to have occurred in this country.

THE QUEEN'S SYMPATHY.

Her Majesty Sends a Despatch to the Mayor of Springhill Mines.

SPRINGHILL MINES, Feb. 24.—Queen Victoria has just cabled as follows through Lord Stanley of Preston to Mayor Hall. The cable reads:

Her Majesty commands me to inform you that Her Majesty has heard with much regret of the Springhill colliery disaster, and desires me to convey an expression of her sympathy with the injured and with relatives of those who have lost their lives. Be good enough to send for Queen's information. (Signed), KNUTSFORD.

Secretary of State for the Colonies.

The total subscriptions for relief now reach $500,000.

The Governor-General has already sent a contribution of $500. The Town of Moncton telegraphs $1000, and John McDougall & Son of Montreal have subscribed $1000 today.

There are eleven bodies still in No. 1 slope. Searching parties are under ground. The bodies that will be recovered hereafter will be badly multilated, as all in the pits are covered with tons of stone.

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1885 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system. I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age, and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEMB, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

PARNELL AT ROSCOMMON.

He Will "Adopt an Attitude of Armed Observation"

DUBLIN, Feb. 23.—Mr. Parnell made a number of short speeches on his way to Roscommon. The general burden of his remarks was that not even the Healyites dare say that Mr. Gladstone's assurances are satisfactory. The men to whom Ireland had looked in confidence had now sunk low enough to accept English gold in payment for their subserviences to the English parties.

No opposition to Mr. Parnell was manifested along the route. At Knockroghery a man who was standing in the throng about the window of Parnell's railway carriage was dragged along the platform by the moving train and was only saved from death by the prompt action of Messrs. Parnell and Redmond, who seized him by the shoulders and held him safely on the footboard until the train reached Roscommon.

Upon arriving at Roscommon Mr. Parnell was escorted to his hotel by a torchlight procession. From a window of the hotel he made a speech, in the course of which he declared he would adopt an attitude of armed observation until he saw what solution was offered on the police and land questions.

Parnell at Roscommon.

DUBLIN, Feb. 23.—Mr. Parnell, during the course of his speech in the town hall at Roscommon yesterday, said he did not believe the police could be got rid of in five years by the stoppage of the recruiting, etc., as proposed by Mr. McCarthy. He had assurances that the plan he himself proposed was very simple. These men are armed soldiers. I sympathize with the opinions that it would not be proper to hand them over to us in an armed condition, but I proposed to disarm them, and to diminish them if you like, and then to transfer them in a civilized condition to the control of the Irish Executive responsible to an Irish Parliament.

Unfurl a New Banner.

A procession of several thousand persons met Parnell upon his arrival in Strokestown to-day. Parnell made a speech, which was a virtual repetition of remarks made yesterday. This evening he went to Longford. He met with a cordial reception en route and at the town where he delivered an address. Parnell will speak in Irishtown April 19, the anniversary of the meeting which he addressed there in 1879. On this occasion he will unfurl a National League banner. He will continue his tour in June, visiting Mayo and Sligo. The McCarthyites at Londonderry to-day dissolved the Parnell branch of the National League and reconstructed as a branch of National federation. Resolutions were passed condemning the actions of Parnell and Harrington.

Mr. Dillon and Mr. O'Brien have been steadily failing since their imprisonment began and both are now in the prison infirmary. Dillon is much broken in health. O'Brien is also suffering considerably, but is 14 pounds heavier than when he was last in Galway jail.

Mr. Healy's Speech.

DUBLIN, Feb. 23.—Healy and Kenny met with a mixed reception upon their arrival at Carrick-on-Shannon Saturday night. A large contingent of Parnellites arrived in the town yesterday and occupied the platform which had been erected for the speakers. The priests made futile attempts to pacify the people. When the procession of McCarthyites arrived on the ground they were assaulted with stones and sticks and 40 policemen were unable to control the opposing factions. Healy thereupon adjourned the meeting to a chapel. There he said their opponents were unable to meet them in a fair argument and resorted to violence. If Parnell did not yield to the Irish majority in the English Parliament, what would he do in the Irish Parliament? At this point the Parnellites outside began hooting and groaning, but the noise was not sufficient to drown the voices of the speakers. Healy, continuing, asked why Parnell did not resign his seat and found a new party. Parnell told them to beware of the Saxon smile. Why did he not beware of it himself and also of Mrs. O'Shea's smile? When, at Boulogne, they were willing to accept Mr. Dillon as leader, Parnell had another proposition to make with reference to representation at Westminster. After the general election the brotherhood of the two countries would be restored. Other speakers followed. In the course of the day's rioting several persons received scalp wounds and were otherwise bruised.

Six Unfortunates Cremated.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 22.—A fire broke out last night in the four-story double flat house, Nos. 129 and 131 Sands-street. Before it was extinguished it resulted in the death of six persons. In the two buildings were 33 families. All escape for the inmates were cut off by the staircases. The flames caught the dress of Mrs. Griffin and she was quickly burned to death. Soon afterwards Mrs. Margaret Dorsey, aged 33, Daniel Dorsey, 8 years, Minnie Dorsey, 6 years, were burned to death. Jacob Benedict, 71 years of age, and Edward Benedict, a 17-months-old child, were also burned to death.

She Wedded a Witness.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 23.—Ernest Forbes, a young colored man, is now in jail here under sentence of death for a brutal assault on Nov. 6 last on Bertha Phipps, then not quite 16 years of age. Bertha is now said to have married Benjamin Franklin Griffith, a thrifty young farmer.

Griffith was summoned as a witness. The case was removed to Baltimore and Griffith accompanied the young lady to the court room.

Alleged Forgery.

MILTON, Feb. 20.—License Inspector W. D. Brothers was arrested on the information of Mr. Amos Dorland of Trafalgar, uncle of Brothers, charging the latter with having forged certain notes, some of them alleged to be drawn against fictitious parties, which were given as securities, to the prosecutor some years ago to induce him to endorse for Joseph Brothers & Sons, who were in the foundry business here at that time. Joseph Brothers and all his family have left Milton and are now living at San Francisco, Cal., except the eldest son, W. D., who was the business man of the firm of Joseph Brothers & Sons and kept its books. Brothers was brought before Mayor Dick. If he prosecutor failing to appear, the case fell through.

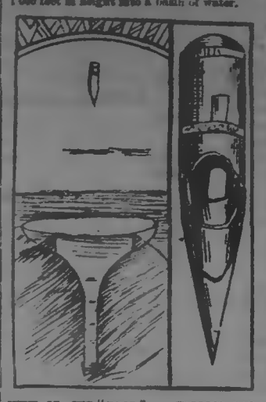
A Prolific Patriarch.

RUTLAND, Vt., Feb. 23.—Charles Tebo of Barre, Washington county, who is of French descent, is 85 years of age. He has 20 children, all living, 27 of them being girls. The youngest is 3 years old. Mr. Tebo has 300 living descendants, including children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. Tebo is a good violinist and clog dancer.

A BRAND NEW SENSATION.

France Projects a Scheme by Which a 1000 Feet Drop is Possible.

The French are making amusement plan suggestions to Chicago for its World's Fair. Says the Graphic, the suggestion from this source, as far as novelty is concerned, is that exploited by the accompanying illustration. The scheme, in brief, consists simply in dropping a projectile-shaped car from a tower 1 000 feet in height into a basin of water.



VIEW OF THE "DROP." FALLING CAR.

The originator of this plan says that certain emotions are aroused by falling a considerable distance; these sensations are excited in a minor degree by a rapid descent in an elevator. If it be possible to make a fall of 1,000 feet perfectly safe, the human family will have an opportunity to experience a new set of emotions.

The inventor of this project has worked out many of the details. The cigar-shaped car, according to his plan, should be built of steel, with a number of interior cones to prevent compression of air in the passenger compartment when the craft strikes the water. The proper height of the projectile is given as about forty feet and its weight is estimated at eleven tons.

If dropped from a height of 1,000 feet the car will be traveling at a speed of 250 feet per second when it strikes the water. As this is considered more than three times as fast as an express train the occupants would gain an idea of what rapid transit really means.

The basin is to be 200 feet deep. Before reaching that depth the resistance of the water will bring the projectile to a gradual stop, when it will rise to the surface ready to be carried to the elevator leading to the tower from which the drop is made. The arrest of motion will be so gradual that the eleven passengers seated on cushioned chairs on a floor resting on springs will not be jarred when the craft strikes the water.

Unfortunately the suggestion will be considered preposterous. The scheme, however, some which is seriously discussed by Aristide Berges of the Paris Polytechnic school. Charles Garnier, has made a careful study of all the conditions connected with the execution of a project of this kind. He has stated as his opinion that there are no reasons, practical or theoretical, to prevent the actual realization of the scheme.

LIBERAL WORKERS!

It is especially requested that all the Ward Committees in Mr. Hall's interest should meet Thursday night, without fail, at the Reform Committee rooms, Water street. It is expected—nay, urged—that every member of every committee will be on hand to report. The time is short. Let every minute be improved. Let every worker be alive. The result of the election depends on you. If you do your duty and leave nothing undone that can be done for our cause and candidate, and others follow your example, there can be no reason to doubt the result. In a close riding like this, every vote counts—half a dozen might decide the election. Let every worker be on hand to-morrow night. Mr. Hall will attend the committee rooms Thursday night, and will be pleased to see his supporters present and have a few minutes conversation with as many as possible.

HURRAH FOR HAMILTON!

Hon. Mr. Gibson's glorious majority in Hamilton, where he was elected yesterday by 679 votes over his Conservative opponent, Mr. Stinson, means a grand Liberal victory, and is encouraging indications of what we may expect on March 5th. The tremendous triumph of the Reform party in Mr. Gibson's election, will give a big boom to the prospects of the Liberal candidates in the Dominion elections—not only in Hamilton, but throughout the province. Nothing succeeds like success, and the moral power of a victory like Hamilton will give new courage to workers, decide the wavering and solidify the ranks of Liberals, who will much to be cheered by the prestige of the present as the omen of future success. Let Liberals everywhere gird on their armour afresh, and put forth every nerve from now. The time for argument will soon be over, the hour for hard work is at hand. No vote is good unless it is polled. See that it is polled, and polled early. A vote polled for Reciprocity and Reform at 10 o'clock can't be "mesmerized" at 3 in the afternoon.

Nominations To-Morrow.

The official nominations of candidates to-morrow at the Court House will be of a formal character, the candidates, fatigued by constant campaign work, having mutually agreed that there shall be no speaking.

Apsley.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

On Tuesday last Mr. John Burnham held a meeting here. He was accompanied by Mr. R. C. Strickland. The Equal Rights candidate, Mr. A. R. Kidd, also attended the meeting. The meeting was pretty well attended, but as no vote was taken it was impossible to tell how the meeting stood, whether for Mr. Burnham or Mr. Kirk.

The president of the Methodist Conference and Rev. Mr. Johnston, Lakefield, also Mr. John Hall, J.P., arrived here on Tuesday and held a meeting in the Temperance hall relative to having an ordained Methodist minister stationed here, instead of having students.

I forgot to mention in my report sent a fortnight ago that the Roman Catholic chapel, Chandos, was very nicely decorated with evergreens, out of respect for His Lordship's first visit to this country. His Lordship called at the chapel before he went to Mr. Lynch's, and was much pleased with it. On Saturday, the 7th of February last, the children were prepared for confirmation, and on Sunday fifty children were confirmed. In the morning His Lordship celebrated mass at nine o'clock. Father Scollard, later, "The Blessed Sacrament" was administered to about one hundred and fifty people. On Monday His Lordship celebrated mass again at eight o'clock a.m., and Father Scollard at nine o'clock a.m. Afterwards His Lordship proceeded to the cemetery, about half a mile from the church, and consecrated it. Miss Fobert played nicely and the choir sang very well during the occasion.

Some people are in the habit here of startling on Sunday with a loaded sleigh or wagon, which they dare not do anywhere near the front. If it is not stopped the law will have to be enforced to put a stop to it. In Peterborough, or Lakefield, or any place in the front they would be fined for doing so.

BIG BOOM IN IRON MINING.

What Unrestricted Reciprocity Would do for East Peterborough.

A Conservative's Opinion on the Subject—Talks off the Tories and the Boom Begins—A Tremendous Trade Probability—Put our Mineral Wealth in Circulation—A Conservative Convert to Unrestricted Reciprocity.

The following letter will have more weight with thinking electors than volumes of M.P. promises for the future in face of the failures for the past. What this country needs is the development of her great natural resources. To this end we must have abundant capital and a wide market. Open our natural market, and we shall have millions of American capital developing our iron and other mines, and a market of almost unlimited extent absorbing the products. This will give employment to hundreds and hundreds at the American standard of wages—the highest in the world, and a few tariff will make living cheap. Read Mr. Ledyard's letter:

Unrestricted Reciprocity and East Peterborough.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—Will you allow me to say a word in favor of unrestricted reciprocity? There is no part of Canada that would benefit more by free trade than East Peterborough.

The eastern and northern parts of your county contain valuable deposits of iron ore which are at present lying idle. Similar deposits are found in New York State, some of which have been working for over fifty years, and are still yielding about 900,000 tons of ore annually.

The New York ores are no better than ours, in fact some of them are not nearly so good, but they have a market of 60 millions of people and find ready sale for all they can produce.

If there was no duty between Canada and the United States our iron mines would be worked to the same extent as those in New York State.

Many of your readers, who recollect when the Blairton mine was working, know the great benefit a mine is to the surrounding country; a good mine will employ several hundred men and make a market for farm products equal to that of a good sized town.

This is not a question of politics, it is a matter of business, for if a few iron mines were working in East Peterborough, all classes of the community would be better off.

The wages paid to 300 or 400 men, and spent in the county, would help the farmers, the merchants, the mechanics, and especially the laboring men.

One large iron mine can employ several hundred men, and charcoal furnaces in the back country would employ several hundred more.

Some New York parties are about taking hold of some iron mines in Belmont, and are now applying for a charter to build a railway to the mines.

But the duty is a great drawback. If this was removed the Blairton mine and many others would be worked, and charcoal furnaces started in connection with them; but the duties will not be removed in any other way than by unrestricted reciprocity.

Although I have always been a Conservative, and never gave a Grit vote in my life, I am heartily supporting the B. farm policy of reciprocity, and trust that all, without respect to party, who wish to promote the prosperity of the country, will do likewise.

Yours, etc.,
T. D. LEDYARD.

Toronto, Feb. 24th, 1891.

A Big Campaign Meeting.

A Crowded House at Last Night's Conservative Rally—An Enthusiastic Audience and Effusive Speeches—Rehashed Promises and Political Platitudes.

There was a crowded house last night to listen to the speeches delivered on behalf of Mr. Stevenson's candidature. Two ladies turned out in strong force, and in keeping, the hall was very finely decorated, the "trooly loil" sitting under the same flags that the Liberals had put up the night before. One characteristic piece of symbolism was the hot-house flowers that adorned the stage—a symbol of "infant" industries that, after thirteen years of protection, cannot stand the sunshine of competition "three months."

Mr. W. H. Moore occupied the chair, and on the platform were many prominent Conservatives, including Rev. G. H. Davis, T. Cavanagh, Rev J. C. Davidson, Wm. Croft, C. Stapleton, Thos. Brooks, Jas. Kendry, W. H. Law, Arthur Rutherford, Thos. Kelly, C. H. Clementi, Collector of Customs, H. C. Rogers, Postmaster, T. Cahill, deputy collector Inland Revenue, A. V. R. Young, U. S. Consular agent, T. Bradburn and others, beside the orator of the evening, Hon. John Haggart.

Mr. JAMES STEVENSON, the first speaker, was received with loud cheers. The first part of his speech was listened to with the respect due to old age—the same old Trent Valley Canal promises, mouldy with age. Mr. Stevenson seemed to think the electors fools enough to believe in new-born promises laid on the graves of the scores of dead ones that have served as election cries in the past. The exploded yarn about the Edison works he repeated, and lauded the N. P. as the foundation and fountain of all the factories in town, incidentally stating how hard it was to raise capital to invest in factories, and how they had to pay even under the stimulus of protection a bonus of $20,000, and ten years free taxes, to have the Edison works remove from one place to another in Canada, to show the effect of the N. P. in developing manufactories. After inferentially denouncing Reformers as annexationists, Mr. Stevenson said you wouldn't find a baker's dozen of them in Peterborough; but he will find that there are enough Liberals in West Peterborough on March the fifth to make him anxious to keep the promise with which he closed his speech—that he would never again be a candidate. He was warmly cheered on sitting down.

Afterwards Mr. W. H. Law, Mr. T. Brooks and Mr. Jas. Kendry, all of them highly protected manufacturers, were given a hearing, and they stated that if they were deprived of a protective tariff they would have to remove to the United States, where they wouldn't have any protection either. Mr. Kendry put an exceedingly low estimate on the intelligence of his audience when he stated that if reciprocity were adopted the Auburn Woollen Mills would close down in three months! (at which the unthinking boys in the crowd howled, forgetting the fact that if the mills were booming as Mr. Kendry said they were doing under the N.P., it would take at least four or five months to work off their orders.

HON. MR. HAGGART, the orator of the evening, was received with great cheering. To a good personal presence, he adds a deliberate style of speaking, and a fluency that smacked of speeches often rehearsed. After a very fulsome laudation of Mr. Stevenson, the speaker rehashed the history of the bogus pics of Sir John for bringing on the elections. The Government had made every effort to get reciprocity and failed, by gloaming by bullying the United States to facilitate negotiations. Reciprocity would kill our manufactures, he said. It would destroy the right of the people to a voice in their own taxation, but no mention was made of the thousands on the three-year-old voters' lists who would have no voice in deciding their own taxation, which will be high enough if the Tories are returned to power. The speaker went on to show that the government had been economical and prudent, but in spite of their economy he hoped the government would see its way clear to make a grant to the Trent Valley Canal, "which Mr. Stevenson said (mind Mr. Haggart didn't say it) was of so much local importance." (Loud cheers, as if the boys who were hired to shout believed Mr. Haggart and Mr. Stevenson meant what they said.) The old story of the cotton combine shipping their cottons at a loss to Japan so that they could limit supply and raise the price in Canadians, was cited as an example of an industry that could not, as Mr. Kendry ably stated, exist "three months." under the competition of unrestricted reciprocity. The "home market" was again dangled before the electors of the farmers—like a nurse promising the baby to her baby for a boy—never [illegible] never letting which said that "Commercial Union," the Tory name for Reciprocity, would defeat itself. This was read as a proof of the traitors of the Liberal party. Hon. Mr. Haggart played a well deserved and plausible cadence by a dashing peroration, much in the upward angle style of the Yankee orator, and whilst the internal evidence of having done yeoman service in arousing the enthusiasm of the boys in many a campaign gathering. Altogether, from a party standpoint the meeting was a good one. Good order was preserved; better than at the Liberal meetings the night before, when a young cub of the "party of gentlemen" employed a lot of toughs to disturb the meeting.

Bamismore.

Address and Presentation to Rev. Father Scollard.

On Sunday, the 8th inst, the Rev. Father Scollard celebrated mass and preached in St. Martin's church, Ennismore, his native parish. This being the first opportunity the people had of giving outward expression to the feelings of respect which they entertained for him, Mr. J. F. Sullivan stepped forward after the sermon and read the following address in behalf of the people of this parish, accompanied by a liberal gift of $100:—

DEAR REV. FATHER.—It is with feelings of heartfelt gladness that we embrace this, the first opportune occasion afforded us, to express in the first place the respect and esteem we have for you, and secondly, the gratitude we feel to God for the honor He has conferred on our parish.

We are here to bear to you the respect due you from the people of this parish, for we know full well the piety and zeal which actuated you to pursue your studies for so many years, so that you might be worthy to imitate the Saviour of mankind on earth and perform his work; and at the same time we wish to express our gratitude to that Saviour for endowing you with those rare qualities so necessary to a member of the holy priesthood, and for elevating you to the dignity of a priest of the Holy Catholic Church.

Words fail to express the devotion and gratitude we feel, when we think that this little parish of Ennismore has sent forth one of its sons to do battle for the faith of our fathers, and try to win souls from the demon of darkness and bring them to the abode of light and peace. More especially do we feel this when we know of the temptations to which the members of our church are exposed in this age of impiety, and of the necessity there is for men, zealous, eager and true to qualify themselves, that they may be able to keep their children in the narrow way, and teach them to shun the broad road which leads to destruction.

And well we know, dear father, that through you Ennismore will do its part in this great church work; well we know that in you the Church of St. Patrick will find a valiant champion, one who will be fearless and unwavering in his duty, and who will never flinch to obey the call and perform the work of his Divine Master.

In years to come the fathers and mothers of Ennismore will point you out as a model to their sons and to them will say, "Go thou and do likewise." And we hope and trust that their words may bear fruit, that you may soon have worthy companions from the same little place; that the fathers and mothers of this parish may follow the example set by your worthy parents and send forth their sons to uphold the banner of christianity.

In conclusion, we beg of you to accept this testimonial as a slight token of the reverence and homage we have in our hearts for you, hoping that God may shower His choicest blessings on your path to enable you to fulfil the divine mission you have undertaken, and that He may finally lead you to your reward in the bosom of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Signed on behalf of the congregation,

Richard Cosgrove,	Michael Gannon,
Daniel Crough,	John Conway,
James Twomey,	John F. Sullivan.

REV. FATHER SCOLLARD said in reply that words failed to express his feelings of surprise and gratitude for the beautiful address and magnificent gift which they had given him. He assured them that he was greatly surprised when a short time ago he learned from their reverend pastor the reason why they had invited him to be present among them that day. We are always surprised, he said, when anything occurs for which we cannot render adequate and cogent reasons. Now, he said, he could find no reason why the people of Ennismore should pay him the flattering tribute they did on that occasion. Had he served among them as their pastor for a number of years, perhaps he would then have some claims upon them; had he been the extraordinary person which they had pictured in their address perhaps also there would be a reason why they should do such things for him. He said he did not recognize himself in their address; that they knew him not, otherwise they would have so written; that, however, "by the grace of God he was what he was" and that by the grace of God he would endeavor to be the true, zealous and devoted priest whom they had spoken of in their address. He therefore was at a loss to discover a reason for what they had done.

He assured them also that it was a pleasure for him to come amongst them; he had spent his vacations always amongst them since he entered St. Michael's College in 1882; he made this church at the instance of their pastor the scene of his ordination, and consequently there were many reasons why it would be always a great pleasure to him to come and visit them and their church.

He took this opportunity to thank those who had been instrumental in having everything so well arranged for his ordination. He thanked the young men for spending so much of their time and labor in decorating the church and its surroundings so beautifully; he thanked the members of the choir, who had come so often, at great personal inconvenience, to practise the necessary pieces; he thanked their Rev. Pastor Father O'Connell, who had spared no pains in carrying out everything so perfectly. Their acquaintance had been short, and he, consequently, could not say why Father O'Connell should sacrifice so much for his sake. He felt, however, that their Rev. Pastor was actuated by a spirit of faith, and therefore considered not the speaker but the divine character of the Christian priesthood, which he (the speaker) so unworthily received, and hence too much honor could not be given to the occasion. The Rev. Father concluded by saying he should try and repay the people in some way, and, therefore, he would willingly come, whenever he could leave his post of duty in Peterborough, to assist their pastor in preaching and hearing their confessions. He then asked God's blessing upon them in the words of the Psalmist: "May God add upon you and you children."

How to Prevent Consumption.

"Life is sweet," is an old saying, and just as true as it is old. No one in his or her right senses courts death; all wish to prolong life to the utmost limit, and yet, in spite of this universal desire to live the allotted three score years and ten—and even longer—thousands upon thousands of people through carelessness and neglect, are hastening the time when they must stand face to face with the grim reaper, and make the plunge alone into "the dark valley of the shadow of death." No disease on this continent claims so many victims as consumption, and reliable statistics prove that fully two-thirds of the deaths occurring from consumption had their origin in catarrh. Nothing but negligence caused this last disease to develop into consumption, and the person who neglects to promptly and persistently treat catarrh until all traces are eradicated, is simply hastening the coming of death. Even should catarrh not develop into consumption, it nevertheless shortens life, as every breath the poisoned inhalen passes over poisonous secretions and these affects the whole system. For this cause of catarrh no remedy ever discovered equals Nasal Balm, which is recognized from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the only certain cure for this disease. It removes the secretions from the nostrils, stops the poisonous droppings into the throat and lungs, and makes the user feel that a new lease of life has been given him. This great catarrh remedy is on sale with all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price—50c in. for small and $1.00 for large size bottles—by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

Baby's Face was Raw

Disfiguring Itching Skin Disease Cured in One Month by Cuticura Remedies.

When our boy was six weeks old he had a rash on his cheek. It spread on both cheeks and chin. The face was raw. I doctored with various remedies, but it got worse. Finally a neighbor advised me to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I procured them from the nearest druggist and got a bottle of CUTICURA, a box of CUTICURA SOAP, and a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT. In one month he was entirely well. He was cured, and now he is a strong, healthy child. The child was not a baby when I began to use the Cuticura Remedies, but I do believe if I had used them when he first broke out he would not have been disfigured for life. I cannot speak too highly of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I recommend CUTICURA wherever I can. I would be pleased to see any one call or talk to them of the good it has done my boy.

Alfred Hines of Toronto Committed to Jail at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Feb. 24.—Alfred Hines of Toronto was making a few calls on the business men of Seneca-street yesterday afternoon when detectives took him, silk hat, fur collared overcoat and all, to the police station. When searched the dapper young Canuck's effects consisted only of a bogus check on the Third National Bank of this city for $35 and signed "Manager Toronto Bank." He was endeavoring to get some one to cash it for him when arrested. When questioned concerning it he said that on the way from Toronto yesterday afternoon he engaged in a game of cards with some gentlemen on the train. One of them got broke and he obligingly gave him $35 for the check. Hines was bagged for 30 days in the police court this morning. On the way to jail he told Special Holmlund that he was a Methodist revivalist while in Toronto.

Fatal Accident at Thamesville.

THAMESVILLE, Feb. 24.—A shocking accident occurred yesterday at the sawmill at Wabash postoffice, about six miles west of here. Mr. Henry Traxler, a highly-respected man, aged about 24, a blacksmith, at that place, was standing just inside the mill talking to Mr. Elgie, the proprietor, when a plank was thrown from the saw, striking him on the back of the head, crushing the skull and killing him instantly. Mr. Elgie was also knocked down, but received no serious injuries. The deceased leaves a wife and child and a large number of relatives and intimate friends to mourn his untimely end.

Driving Out World's Fair Workmen.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—The contractors for grading Jackson Park in preparation for the World's Fair resumed work this morning. About 100 men were set to digging in the trenches, when a mob of about 3500 idlers gathered about and ordered them out. The workmen obeyed at once. The contractors called for police protection and a squad of bluecoats soon appeared on the scene and dispersed the mob. Work was then resumed

Durham and Northumberland.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 24.—A meeting of the reeves and deputy reeves of Durham was held here to-day to consider the advisability of separating the united counties of Durham and Northumberland. As there was not a sufficient number of members on hand to form a quorum nothing could be done on the subject. It was, however, the unanimous opinion of those present that the separation would be for the best interests of the county.

Horse Thief Caught.

PETROLEA, Feb. 24.—Chief Jackson received a telegram to-day from a livery man in Dutton, Ont., requesting him to arrest a young man named Campbell, for stealing a horse and buggy and harness. TO THE ELECTORS

West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate [illegible] of the Riding, I [illegible] of the county, and the [illegible] to support my return in the present election.

In deed of the disastrous consequence to the Government of the Dominion, which the other session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and will marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard is this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

RICHARD HALL.

A COMMISSION ON LABOR

APPOINTED BY THE BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Wedding Ceremonies Without the Presence of the Registrar—The Recent Robbery of Bank Funds—Military Outrage in Nuremburg.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Sir G. S. Baden-Powell (Conservative), member of Parliament for Kirkdale, Liverpool, who recently made an extensive tour of Canada, in a letter to The Times says he has perfect confidence in the loyalty of both parties in Canada. The Canadians, he says, are fully alive to the value of independence and will soon dispose of the few annexationists who are to be found in their country. The probable outcome of the present agitation will be a system of modified reciprocity between the United States and Canada. Canada, he says, would not consent to lose her foreign markets.

Mrs. O'Shea's Legacy.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The will of Mrs. Wood, aunt of Mrs. O'Shea, bequeathed to Mrs. O'Shea a large fortune, of which the divorces expected to obtain possession, but frequent public allusions to Mr. Parnell's probable interest in the fortune have induced her brothers to bring an action to have the will declared invalid on the ground that undue influence was used and that the deceased was incapable of making a will. The suit, which is brought in the names of Charles and Sir Evelyn Wood, is being tried before Justice Jeune.

Military Outrage in Nuremburg.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Great excitement prevails in Nuremburg, Germany, over a military outrage. A sergeant of the German army named Brunfeldt compelled a private soldier, whom he accused of neglecting to keep himself clean, to stand in a semi-nude condition under a pump. The man was not in robust health, and the exposure to the chilly torrent of water caused his death almost immediately. The people who witnessed the outrage loudly denounced it, and a riot for some time appeared imminent. The affair is being investigated by Brunfeldt's superiors.

Attributed to American Experts.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Some of the £1300 in Bank of England notes stolen by sneak thieves on the 15th instant from a bank messenger in the office of the National Provincial Bank, this city, have been traced to Queenstown, from which fact it is inferred that the two men who accomplished the robbery have sailed for America. The police believed at the time of the theft that the criminals were American experts.

The New Remedy.

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—Prof. Liebrich's new method of treating tuberculosis was described by him before the Berlin Medical Society to-day. The substance used is cantharidate of potash, which is administered in solution of systematic injections under the skin. Chemical experiments made by Drs. Fraenkel and Hermann seem to prove that the substance is remedial in tuberculosis and other diseases.

Why Favor the Wesleyans?

LONDON, Feb. 25.—A bill has been introduced in parliament to enable ministers of the Wesleyan Methodist Society to celebrate marriage on the same terms as the ministers of the established churches, that is without the presence of a registrar or his representative. Some surprise is expressed that the bill does not propose to extend the privilege to all the non-conformist clergy.

Admiral Moraby Fatally Injured.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—First Admiral Sir Geoffrey Thomas Phipps Hornby, K.C.B., was thrown from his trap to-day at Havant, near Portsmouth, and sustained concussion of the brain. He has been insensible since the accident and doubts are entertained of his recovery. He is 66 years of age.

The New McCarthyite Paper.

DUBLIN, Feb. 25.—Preparations have been completed for publishing in Dublin a daily paper devoted to the interests of the McCarthy faction. The paper will be entitled The National Press. The first number will be issued March 7. The McCarthyites will begin a vigorous campaign in Ireland March 8.

Foreign Notes.

Large numbers of dervishes are pushing forward from Kassala to assist Osman Digna.

Prior, Wooten & Co., timber merchants, London, have failed. Liabilities $480,000.

The heirs of Meissonier have decided to sell the contents of the great painter's studio at auction.

Mr. Parnell, because the McCarthyites are sending subscription deputaties to the United States to collect funds, will send one too.

A banker in the Place Boieldieu, Paris, has absconded. The police found his safe empty. His deficit amounts to 600,000 francs.

The League of Patriots in Paris has violently denounced the visit of Empress Frederick of Germany to the Palace of Versailles.

A debtor summoned to recover the sum of £1700, the amount of costs awarded against William O'Brien in his suit against Lord Salisbury for libel, has been issued.

M. De Freycinet is privately pressing Deroulede and other deputies to refrain from carrying out their intentions with regard to asking questions in the Chamber in connection with ex-Empress Frederick's visit.

In the Court of Sessions at Edinburgh yesterday Alexander Laing Brown, Liberal member of Parliament for Hawick district, Scotland, asked for a divorce from his wife on the ground of her adultery with a commercial traveler named McNeil.

The steamer City of New York, which arrived at Glasgow from New York yesterday, reports that on Feb. 21 she sighted immense ice fields lying across her course. The ice was too heavy for the steamer to pass through and she was compelled to steer in a southerly direction.

Herr Frockenbeck, the Burgomaster of Berlin, was knocked down, run over and seriously injured by coming into collision with a rapidly driven public carriage to-day. The driver was arrested and the Burgomaster is in the hands of his physicians.

Advices have been received in London to the effect that Sultan Bobosh, the ruler of Witu, has been dethroned by his brother, Fumo Omari, who is said to be insane. Bobosh only recently succeeded his elder brother, Fumo Bakari, whose death was announced in the latter part of January.

Prof. Liebrich's remedy for tuberculosis is described as a salt which is one of the strongest of poisons, but it is injected only in such minute doses and with such precautions that it is quite harmless, causing neither fever nor any other inconvenience. It is said to be efficacious not merely against laryngeal tuberculosis but against tuberculosis in general, and has already been applied against lupus of the larynx, phthisis

BEER BETTER THEN GIN.

Gen. Booth says it is More Strengthening and Less Heating.

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—Gen. Booth of the Salvation Army held a raising meeting here this afternoon. Afterwards in conversation he remarked that from what he had seen of the lowest order of the German populace they were less utterly degraded than the English of the like class. The poorest people in Germany make some show of keeping up appearances, at least. The General thinks that beer is a better beverage for the poor than gin, being more strengthening and less heating. He gave great praise to German workmen's and women's colonies, which he intends to investigate by a special Salvation Army Commission.

THE BRITISH NAVY.

Lord Hamilton Asks for More Money to Build Vessels.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—The First Lord of the Admiralty, Lord George Francis Hamilton, in the annual statement of the naval estimates, issued to-day, calls for an increase of £358,000. He also gives a satisfactory account of the progress made with the new vessels, and of the large saving effected by the admiralty's insistence on the rapid building of warships instead of putting up with the old delays, which it was claimed were necessary to take advantage of the new ideas and fads of the time. Lord Hamilton, on the other hand, complains of the vagueness of the progress of the armaments for the new men-of-war and the inadequate provisions for mobilizing the reserves.

DOWN AN EMBANKMENT.

Wreck on the Pan Handle Railroad—Four Persons Killed and Several Others Fatally Injured.

RICHMOND, Ind., Feb. 25.—On the Richmond division of the Pan Handle Railway at Hagerstown this afternoon, a train was coming down a steep grade when the frame work of the engine in charge of W. W. Bartlett, engineer, and Noah Dunn, fireman, broke and derailed every car. The cars caught fire, but the fire was quickly extinguished. The day coach and parlor car rolled over twice down a 16-foot embankment. The engine held the rails. The accident resulted in the death of four persons, two more being probably fatally injured and twenty more others more or less severely hurt. The killed are Conductor Case, O. F. Deal, maintenance engineer, Claim Agent Needham and A. M. Reeves, banker of this city. Fatally hurt: Mrs. G. McCrew and Mrs. J. C. Busim.

SWALLOWED A PIECE OF GLASS.

Death of a Woman Under Peculiar Circumstances.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Feb. 25.—Mrs. Sarah Weinert, wife of Conrad Weinert, the ex-Councilman of the Second Ward, died yesterday afternoon under peculiar circumstances. Two or three weeks ago Mrs. Weinert accidentally swallowed a piece of glass. In opening a jar of canned grapes a piece of the top, about an inch long and 1-16th of an inch wide, broke off at the top and was lost in the fruit and later formed part of a pie which Mrs. Weinert baked. Later she ate a piece of the pie and swallowed the glass, which lodged in her throat. A pus sac formed and produced blood-poisoning, from which Mrs. Weinert died.

Had His Coffin Measurement.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—James Owens, a traveling salesman, 60 years old, was found dead in his room in the Coleman House to-day, and his death was supposed to have been caused by apoplexy. Two days ago he showed to the hotel clerks a card on which was written his name and address and his measurement for a coffin. Owens lived in Milwaukee.

Burglars Foiled.

HENSALL, Feb. 25.—Burglars effected an entrance in McArthur & Co.'s private bank last night, endeavoring to drill the combination of the vault, but apparently the drill was broken before the drilling was completed. They then resorted to the smashing of the hinges and combination of the vault, but were unsuccessful in opening the same, although severely damaging the vault.

The Two Toronto Murders.

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—The coroner's jury in the case of Christopher McGrain charged with the murder of Jane Harding returned a verdict of wilful murder against the accused at 2.30 this morning.

How John Wright met his death at Little York on Saturday is still as great a mystery as ever. The coroner's jury did not return a verdict until 3.30 yesterday morning and it is to the effect that Wright died from a fracture of the skull, but how the fracture was caused cannot be determined from the evidence. James Chapman, who was arrested on Monday, is still in custody.

A man named Watkins, employed by Ice Dealer John Graham to cut ice from Small's pond, met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon. He fell in front of the ice-roller and was badly crushed, his right leg being snapped in two places. Dr. Burgess was called in and relieved the sufferer, after which he was conveyed to his residence in Queen-street east.

A meeting of the creditors of Boyd Bros. & Co., the insolvent wholesale drygoods merchants, was held yesterday afternoon in the office of Assignee Ferguson. Mr. Tilden, president of the Canadian Cotton Company, occupied the chair, and there were about 100 creditors present. The meeting was harmonious throughout.

Mr. Alexander Boyd explained the position of the firm. He had worked hard for 23 years endeavoring to build up the business. They had been moderately successful, but owing to the great losses sustained through bad debts their capital had disappeared. The statement showed a deficiency of $30,000.

Mr. Lash, Q.C., representing the insolvents, stated that in view of the large number of creditors, it would be practically impossible to make an offer of composition which would secure the debtors their discharge.

Those were then appointed inspectors, under whose direction the assignee will wind up the estate: Messrs. Angus, MacIntash, Tilden, Cassels, Lockhart.

THE TAKING TO TOKAR.

DETAILS OF THE SLAUGHTER OF OSMAN'S DERVISHES.

A Battle With Burmese—A Chieftain's Palace Looted and Burned and Many of Its Defenders Killed—Over 100 Rebels Executed.

SUAKIN, Feb. 25.—Further particulars of the recent fight at Tokar have just been received. Colonel Stitt, on learning that Osman Digna was preparing an attack on the flank while the Egyptians were marching from El Teb, hastened his advance to Tokar. The cavalry drove in the enemy's mounted scouts, but the enemy advanced rapidly in a semicircle through the thick brushwood. Their presence was made known only by occasional glimpses above the bush of moving men and banners. The hills, a mile distant, were covered with reserves.

Both sides tried to seize outlying houses for protection. The Egyptian infantry rushed to and occupied some ruins and then raced with the dervishes to seize the houses outside of the general line of defence. One company, succeeding in occupying a house, poured a withering fire upon the dervishes, over one hundred of whom fell within a yard of the building. This checked their advance. The semicircle of the enemy was now shifted and was extended until it enveloped the entire line, gradually outflanking the Egyptians.

Horsemen led by Osman Digma and Naib dashed around the right flank and threatened the rear, where the transports had been placed with weak protection. A reserve battalion of Egyptians, however, advancing rapidly, checked the horsemen. The situation was critical for a moment, but the front battalions advancing ran five hundred yards and cleared the ground, carried all the houses and swept off the enemy, who did not stop until they took a position on rising ground.

At the height of the fight the transport camels and mules stampeded and the enemy's horsemen got among them. The Egyptian cavalry immediately charged and drove the dervishes out by hard fighting, which ended in a rout. The enemy having re-formed on rising ground, the Egyptians advanced again, but the enemy's reserves fled without waiting for them. On reaching the second position held by Osman Digna, a hilly place, the Egyptians saw an Arab town stretching in a crescent below them, with rows of tents backed by thousands of straw huts extending for miles. Marching to the village, a host of Arabs poured out begging for pardon. A number of bodies of sheiks were found whom Osman Digna had executed, suspecting them of treachery.

MARSEILLES, Feb. 25.—The captain of a steamship which has arrived here from Madagascar reports that as a result of a revolt upon the part of the natives, the Governor of Nossi-Be, an island and French colony off the north west coast of Madagascar, has caused the execution of over a hundred rebels and killed their wives and children.

CALCUTTA, Feb. 25.—The British forces under Major Smythe have captured the stockades of the Tsawbwa of Wuntho in Upper Burmah, killing 27 of the defenders. The Tsawbwa palace was set on fire, looted and finally destroyed. The British loss was 13 killed or wounded. The Tsawbwa escaped.

A FAMOUS MANAGER.

Harry Wright Again at the Head of the Philadelphia Club.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25.—Harry Wright, the famous baseball manager, who last week tendered his resignation as manager of the Philadelphia league club, has been induced by President Reach and Secretary Rodgers to withdraw his resignation. All differences between Mr. Wright and the officials of the club have been adjusted to the mutual satisfaction of all concerned, and the veteran manager yesterday signed a contract to continue as sole manager of the club for the next three years.

Fatal Hunger.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—"Gimme a cup of coffee and some steak; be lively, too." This was the order which a middle-aged man, dressed very plainly and having a hungry look in his eye, gave to a drowsy waiter in the Climax restaurant, No. 302 State-street, yesterday morning at 1 o'clock. A few moments later his meal was set steaming hot before him. Like a ravenous wolf he began to bolt the meat. At the second bite he slid from his chair to the floor, his eyes bulging from their sockets. He was unconscious before any assistance could be given him and a minute later was dead. Investigation disclosed the fact that the man had died from strangulation, a large piece of the steak being found in his throat. He was about 40 years of age, had a brown beard and wore dark, plain clothes.

Leffler's Novel Death.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Otto Leffler, an elderly fresco painter, out of work and despondent, committed suicide in his furnished room at No. 311 East Thirteenth-street yesterday forenoon by asphyxiating himself with illuminating gas. Leffler was a German, a widower, 65 years old. He did not respond to repeated knocks on his door yesterday noon and finally the door was forced. Then it was found that he was dead. He lay on his back on the bed with his eyes staring at the ceiling, holding a piece of new rubber pipe in his right hand. One end of this pipe was thrust into his mouth and the other was placed over the gas jet, the cock of which was wide open.

Anson for Cincinnati.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25.—John I. Rogers returned from Chicago Tuesday full of the doings of the National Board of Control, and still much disgusted at the American Association people for withdrawing from the National agreement. He says he feels confident that there will be a grand scramble of the Association clubs to get in out of the wet before the March meetings, but in case it proves otherwise the National League will carry on the war with great vigor. He declares that there will be a League club in Cincinnati managed by A. C. Anson in case the Association people succeed in holding the present Cincinnati team. But he doubts very much Al Johnson's ability to carry out his Cincinnati threats. Mr. Rogers says League men have $25,500 in the Cincinnati team, and since the club cost but $40,000 he considers that a controlling interest.

He Mourned Ten Days.

YANKTON, S.D., Feb. 23.—Yankton was excited to-day over the marriage of William Munroe, County Auditor, on Saturday night to Mrs. C. E. Bartlett, a widow. Mr. Munroe's first wife died less than 10 days ago.

The Springhill Disaster.

SPRINGHILL MINES, N.S., Feb. 25.—Four bodies, those of Henry Livingstone, John Francis, Neil McLeod and W. E. Hyde, were recovered late last night, and two others, those of Donald McKay and Richard Murphy, were taken out this morning. They were all buried beneath a great heap of stone. There are still five bodies to come out, and searching parties are now looking for them. Another of the wounded, Henry Nash, died at midnight. Yesterday afternoon, shortly after the body of her husband was taken home, Mrs. John Connerton gave birth to a child. The mother is now in a critical condition. Daniel McDonald, who was taken out unconscious from the effects of afterdamp, is in a bad way and may die.

The Dead.

George Sylvain, Crown lands agent, and for some years M.P. for Rimouski county, Quebec, died at Rimouski yesterday.

Rev. J. O. Simard, parish priest of Rimouski, died yesterday at the presbytery.

Senator E. K. Wilson of Maryland died suddenly at Washington yesterday.

James Scott Buttles, for a third of a century principal of the Halifax institution for the deaf and dumb, died last night. He was the most successful and one of the most noted teachers of deaf mutes on the continent.

EVICTED MINERS ASSAILED

FIERCE BATTLE WITH POLICE IN DURHAM.

The Miners Use Sticks and Stones and Many on Both Sides are Wounded and are Found Weltering in Gore on the Roadside.

DURHAM, Feb. 23.—The eviction of families of striking coal miners from the houses they occupied on the Marquis of Londonderry's and other property near here was continued to-day. The occupants of eight houses returned to the mines, pelted the police with stones and hooted and yelled at the officers. The latter charged upon the strikers and a furious fight followed. The police used batons freely and the strikers retaliated with sticks and stones. Many persons were injured on both sides after the battle, in which the police were victorious, numbers of wounded men were found lying by the wayside fainting and covered with blood.

Electrotypers Strike.

BOSTON, Feb. 23.—All the electrotypers of this city struck to-day for a uniform minimum rate of pay. Nearly 300 men cease out. The strike will seriously interfere with the work of 3000 others in the printing trade. The strikers have a strong union and are backed up by compositors, pressmen, paper-rulers, bookbinders and stereotypers.

Particulars of the Destruction of the Parliament Buildings.

TOKIO, Feb. 24.—On the night of Jan. 19 the houses of the Japanese Diet were completely destroyed by fire, which is supposed to have originated from a defect in the wires supplying the electric light. Following so close upon the exciting events connected with the banishment of the Soshi the week before there are many who believe that the fire was only the outcome of that political transaction.

Within sixteen years there has been no fire in Tokio which has been compared with this one, and the burning of the great Shiba Temple 24 years ago is the only other one within a century which has attracted such widespread attention throughout the Empire.

Because the idea of a representative legislative body was new to a great majority of the masses as well as to the press of the country the meeting of the Japanese Diet has given rise at times to feverish excitement, and to many of those who watched the burning of the Parliament buildings it appeared that the Parliament itself was at an end. Its proceedings, however, were only temporarily interrupted, as the House of Peers has found quarters in the immense ballroom of the Imperial Hotel and the House of Representatives in the Engineering College, a half mile away.

The loss of the buildings was complete and will cost the Government 250,000 yen. (A yen is about one dollar.) The crowd of spectators at the fire was immense, even for a Japanese crowd, and for squares there was nothing but one mass of human faces. Almost every available rickshaw in town was pressed into service carrying people to the fire

BERHING SEA WATERS.

Lord Salisbury is Ready to Arbitrate, so it is Said.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 25.—It is stated that Lord Salisbury's reply to Secretary Blaine's last letter on the Behring Sea question is on its way to Washington, Lord Salisbury not considering it necessary to await the decision of the Supreme Court in April in the Sayward case. It is also stated that there is reason to believe that Lord Salisbury agrees in his letter to submit the Behring Sea questions to arbitration as suggested by Secretary Blaine. Blaine expects the outcome of the matter to be a convention between the United States, Great Britain and Russia for the preservation of the seals not only in Behring Sea, but in the North Pacific.

FIRES IN ONTARIO.

Several Buildings Destroyed at Parry Sound—Loss $10,000.

PARRY SOUND, Feb. 25.—Last night fire destroyed the premises occupied by Gribbin & Co., George Raymond, baker, and H. W. Wolton, furniture dealer. Gribbin's loss on stock is $8000, Raymond and Wolton's loss on stock will be slight; insurance unknown.

Arnprior's Costly Blaze.

ARNPRIOR, Feb. 25.—Fisher's block and adjoining buildings were destroyed by fire last night. The total loss is $4550, as follows: John T. Wait, owner of the block, loss $1000, no insurance; Alexander Kellough, loss $2000, insurance $1100, Western and City of London; E. C. Armand, loss $3500, insurance $2300; Misses Drummond and Pattison, dressmakers, $150, no insurance; R. G. Moles, damage by removal, water and fire $900, fully insured; J. E. Thomson, lawyer's office, $300, no insurance; Oddfellows' Hall insured, $800; Foresters' Hall, insured $300; J. S. Moir, damage $200 in removing; Alf. C. Pye, $500.

Incendiarism at Sarnia.

SARNIA, Feb. 25.—A determined attempt was made to fire the outbuildings of the mid die ward school. A large quantity of coal oil had been used to saturate the boards of the shed and the building was burning furiously before the firemen succeeded in quenching the flames. A reward of $100 is offered by the Town Council for the detection of the incendiary.

FIGHTING IN CHILI.

A Series of Battles in Which the Insurgents are Successful.

IQUIQUE, Feb. 23.—On the 15th inst. a battle was fought on the pampa at Dolores. The Government was defeated with the loss of about 500 men. On the 16th Iquique surrendered to the fleet. A riot the same night, caused by an incendiary mob, was quelled by the fleet and the foreign residents. One hundred and seventy-five of the mob were killed and wounded. On the 17th the opposition party suffered a check on the pampa near Huara. On the 19th Iquique was surprised by the remnant of the Government troops defeated on the pampa. There was hard fighting from morning till evening in the town, the opposition holding the intendencia, and firing from the fleet to protect the intendencia and to cover the landing of the marines. The business part of the town was fired by incendiaries the same evening. Capt. Lamblon of the Warspite landed under fire to arrange an armistice and to take on board any of the remaining women and children from the town. An armistice was declared till noon of the 30th and was arranged by the mediation of Admiral Hotham. On the afternoon of the 30th the government troops were surrendered to the fleet by Col. Soto, who had fought gallantly. The town is now in possession of the fleet. No foreign residents were killed.

The women and children are mostly living in the ships in the harbor, all the men remaining at their offices. The hospital is full. It is probable there will be a decisive battle north of Pisagua soon. Much loss of life and damage to property has been avoided by the action taken by the English admiral on the spot. All is quiet to-day.

What It Costs.

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people, in buying even necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla surmounts itself with special force to the great middle classes because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last a month.

THE "LOYALTY" HOWL.

Decent men are becoming disgusted with the mouthing of a few thirty-five per cent. loyalists, who are in fear of being separated from the spoils, and impugning the loyalty of men better than themselves. The idea of the party supporting a government that has as one of its members a man who was drummed out of a volunteer regiment for disloyalty presuming to impeach the loyalty of good citizens. He signed a manifesto demanding annexation to the United States, and Lord Elgin (who, by the way, was rotten egged by good loyal Tories), received the warm thanks of Her Majesty's Colonial Secretary for his (Lord Elgin's) prompt dismissal from the mounted light infantry of Second Lieutenant John Joseph Caldwell Abbott, now Hon. J. J. C. Abbott, a member of Sir John's cabinet—and Sir John has never been without an annexationist in his cabinet. And it is from howling hypocrites and political blackguards that the accusation of disloyalty against honest and honourable citizens of Canada, comes. They are the real traitors—the slanderous sneaks that for their own selfish and sordid ends, seek to convey to the world the impression that half the people—and we shall see that it is considerably more than half on March 5th—are annexationists and traitors.

AN EXPRESSIVE CARTOON.

The Conservative politicians are inclined to make this contest a picturesque one. Part of the loot of the red parlour has been converted into staring lithographs for adorning vacant shop windows, where the ghosts of bankrupt dealers stalk in illustration of the prosperity the N. P. has bestowed. More of the red parlour fund has been devoted to newspaper cuts. That of the workingmen bearing Sir John on their broad shoulders is a capital caricature of the Chieftain's policy. It emphasizes that Sir John and his policy of high taxation has been a burden on the shoulders of the farmers and working men and now they are showing a decided disposition to shake off the "old man" and stand erect as free men—men free from tariff tyranny—free to devote their own energies to the promotion of their own welfare—free from paying taxes to enrich the favored few—free to deal where they can make the best bargain. "The old man," "the old policy," have lost their power to charm. The people are going to look out for themselves.

DIRECT TAXATION.

The Conservatives pretend that one of the chief objections to the adoption of unrestricted reciprocity is that it would involve direct taxation. Tois is not the fact, but if it were, it would be only an extension of what is actually in existence at the present time. Apropros of the visit of the Postmaster General, it is stated on good authority that the retrogressive step of putting on increased postage, added more to the expense of prosecuting one branch of business, than the whole of their municipal taxes. That is the increase of postage makes the photographers of Canada pay far more in increased postage than the whole of their municipal taxes. A vexed photographer wants to know how much nearer Hon. John Haggart could come to direct taxation?

AN EASY ONE.

The Brockville Times, a foaming-at-the-mouth organ of the protection party, argues that an addition of 800,000 to the population of Canada, outside of farmers, would make Canada a perfect home market that would absorb all the agricultural produce. What a pity the Tories hadn't thought of this before. The million of Canadians, whom lack of employment at home has sent to the United States, would fill the bill exactly, with 200,000 to spare. Its a tremendous pity the Times hadn't spoken of this before. We would have had the "home market" the N.P. promised us.

How to Prevent Consumption.

"Life is sweet," is an old saying, and just as true as it is old. No one in his or her right senses courts death; all wish to prolong life to the utmost limit, and yet, in spite of this universal desire to live the allotted span of years and even longer—thousands upon thousands of people through carelessness and inaction, are hastening the time when they must stand face to face with the grim reaper, and make the plunge alone into "the dark valley of the shadow of death." No disease on this continent claims so many victims as consumption, and reliable statistics prove that fully two-thirds of the deaths occuring from consumption had their origin in catarrh. Nothing but negligence caused this last disease to develop into consumption, and the person who neglects to promptly and persistently treat catarrh until all traces are eradicated, is simply hastening the coming of death. Even should catarrh not develop into consumption, it nevertheless shortens life, as every breath the patient inhales passes over poisonous secretions and thus affects the whole system. For the cure of catarrh no remedy ever discovered equals Nasal Balm, which is recognized from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the only certain cure for this disease. It removes the secretions from the nostrils, stops the poisonous dropping into the throat and lungs and makes the user feel that a new lease of life has been given him. This great catarrh remedy is on sale with all dealers or will be sent on receipt of price—50. $1.00 for large size bottle. Sold by N. Ballard & Co., Brockville, Ont.

East Peterborough.

(Belcayguan Independent.)

The contest in this riding is very keen, and both sides are using every exertion to obtain victory. Mr. Burnham is a gentleman who is well known throughout the riding; he is popular, respected, and has a large family connection. Personally he is everything that could be desired in a representative, but being pledged as an out-and-out adherent of Sir John Macdonald's Protection policy, deprives him of all support except from the Macdonald faction. His opponent, Mr. Rork, is a practical farmer, and is known in various parts of the riding as a man of untiring energy and industry, and is familiar with the needs of the people in the riding. He is essentially a free trader, and being so, will carry with him the northern vote, for in these districts free trade with the States is of vital importance. Just now there is a most deplorable stagnation in the trade in forest produce, whilst at the same time the minerals and phosphates are lying idle for want of a market. Free trade with the States would give enormous activity to the trade in forest produce, and the whole of the northern districts would instantly have a period of great prosperity. This is perfectly well understood by the people in the north, who, to a man, demand reciprocity with the States, and as the election is between Sir John and Protection on the one side, and Sir Richard and Free Trade on the other, the northern vote will go almost entirely for Mr. Rork. This will go far to decide the election. The township of Monmouth, possessing great phosphate and iron deposits, will have all its interests in favor of Mr. Rork, for those phosphates and iron deposits cannot be operated successfully without free commercial intercourse with the States. The free trade sentiment in the north is very strong, and for this reason the probabilities point to Mr. Rork's election.

A Word of Advice.

Little troubles are proverbially the ones that cause the most worry, annoyance and vexation. But what are sometimes considered little troubles, if left to themselves, soon magnify into grave evils, producing disastrous results. This is especially true of cold in the head. The sufferer looks upon it as a trifling annoyance that needs no treatment and will speedily pass away. This is a grave mistake. There is not a case of catarrh in existence that did not have its origin in neglected cold in the head, and the longer the trouble runs the more serious the results. Cold in the head, developing into catarrh, renders the breath foul, causes a loss of the sense of taste and smell, partial deafness, distressing headaches, constant hawking and spitting, and in many, many cases ends in consumption and death. No case may have all the symptoms indicated, but the more the sufferer has the greater the danger. It is obvious, therefore, that no case of cold in the head should be neglected for an instant, and that to do so is courting farther disease—perhaps death. Nasal Balm, in the most aggravated case of cold in the head, will give instant relief, and speedily effects a cure, thus preventing the developing of catarrh. No other remedy has ever met with the success that Nasal Balm has, and this is simply because it does all its manufacturer claim for it. As a precautionary remedy a bottle of Nasal Balm should be kept in every house. Sold by all dealers.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Sarsaparilla. It had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

ARCTIC ARCHITECTURE.

POURTRAYED BY LIEUT. SCHWATKA, THE EXPLORER.

Aspiring Young Snow Builders Taught by His Experiences—Igloos of the Esquimaux—Hints for Boys Who Want to Use Nature's Material.

I have had scores of inquiries from American boys as to the best methods of building the snow houses used by the Esquimaux of the Arctic regions, as a result of my casual writings about these curious abodes when describing these strange people, so I deem such a subject would be interesting to most of these boys as well as a few others not necessarily ambitious enough to attempt this rather difficult Arctic architecture.

There are many difficulties to overcome, of course but they should be divided into two classes, or those which the boy cannot master in this country with any amount of practice, as those due to climate, etc., and those in which practice will perfect.

A SNOW HOUSE OR IGLOO.

As to the former, the boy should remember that the very low great cold of high latitudes combined with the fierce gales that sweep unmolested by timber tracts or other wind breaks, across the level lands where the snow houses are usually built, "packs" the snow into a peculiar texture which he can never hope to obtain in our country, and which will make the building of the snow house a much more difficult feat than with the Esquimaux, even if all other things were equal between them.

ARCTIC SNOW BLOCKS.

This white polar pumice stone is "hard as a rock," and during extremely low temperature, 60 to 70 below zero, if a block of it be suspended and struck it will ring like a bar of tempered steel, although, of course, not nearly so loudly or sonorously. It never has the wet, soggy, and heavy texture of most of our snow, and is much stronger in resisting breakage of blocks when cutting them out.

ESQUIMAU IMPLEMENTS.

The only implements used by the Esquimau in building an igloo is a snow-knife with a blade seven or eight inches long and a handle of nearly equal length so that it can be grasped readily by both hands. Formerly these were made in a rude way from reindeer horn, but where they can get them by trading with the whalers or fur traders they now use common "butcher" knives, removing the handle and putting on a new one of about double the length of the old one. To the novice of this country a common hand saw will be found as convenient as any and will need no change in its handle or other parts.

The snow blocks are to be made about two feet long, about a foot and a half wide, and six or seven inches thick. These blocks are to be cut from a trench in a compact snow drift whose depth is the width of the blocks and whose width is the length of the blocks. The builder stands in the bottom of the trench as he cuts (or saws) out block after block, placing them alternately to right and left of the trench on the snow drift.

Right here I would speak of an error that nearly all boys fall into who take an interest in this cold weather work. They have an idea that the snow blocks are in flat courses in the completed building, like we construct our houses, when in reality there is only one course, a spiral one leading from bottom to top, and which can well be compared to the old beehives, made of long rope that is wound round and round until a dome shaped hive is made.

HOW TO LAY THE COURSES.

When the first course is completed, which rests on the solid snow drift, the first block laid down is cut in two by a diagonal sweep of the knife upward from the lowest corner, where it touches the last block laid on this course, to the diagonally opposite one, and on this incline the next snow block is laid, and which may be truly said to be the beginning of the spiral course which ends only at the centre and top when the igloo is done. Each block thereafter inclines inward slightly more than its previous fellow, until the last one, which we may call the key-block, in the centre and top, is perfectly horizontal, and firmly wedges in and binds the whole structure.

The snow house looks very much like the half of an egg shell cut in two parts perpendicular to its longer axis; and if a spiral lead pencil mark is drawn around this shell from the point on the edge, where it rests on the table, to the top, and about one-fourth of an inch wide, or between the lines, as measured vertically, then block-work courses are made on these by drawing upright lines every half inch, but "breaking" joints with, or overlapping those below, then the little egg shell as it rests on its rim, will look very much like the outside of an Esquimau igloo, or snow house.

Now imagine the shell to be about an eighth of an inch in thickness; pour in one-third (vertically) full of plaster of Paris—about a fourth to a third of an inch—and when this hardens slice off one-fourth of it by a vertical cut of your knife, and what is left will represent the snow bed, or bed room if you desire to call it such. The sliced off parts will then represent the parlor (hardly enough room to turn around without scraping the snow off the roof with the pointed hood of the reindeer coat), and just opposite the wall of the snowbed the door is cut—only large enough to allow a person to enter by getting down on his hands and knees, and even sometimes by crawling through flat-wise.

From twenty to twenty-five snow blocks are used in the average sized snow house, although the camping igloos, or those used only for the single night while on a journey, are much smaller, and certain fewer blocks of snow. Then again there are those built for permanent abodes and are correspondingly large and roomy, with probably forty or fifty blocks used in their construction.

CHOOSING A BUILDING SITE.

The young snow-builder having cut the required number of blocks lays his base course of them on the slanting snow drift, endeavoring to put one block back in the trench where the last course crosses it on the down hill side. The vertical crevices between the snow blocks are firmly cemented, so to speak, by working the snow knife up and down between them two or three times, the fine powdery snow produced acting like a sort of mortar to chink the courses quite securely. Each block, as it is thus fitted to its previous fellow, is given a light but smart rap with the open palm of the hand on the free vertical edge before the builder turns to the next one to be put in its place.

Once completed so far, then take a shovel and cover the whole structure one or two feet in depth with loose snow, and you will have a true Esquimau igloo, into which you can crawl and enjoy yourself to your heart's content—if you are a true Esquimau. Stand from under if it shows signs of falling; although they are not dangerous.—Frederick Schwatka.

The quarterly public meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society was held in the lecture room of the George street church on Tuesday evening. An excellent programme of reading and music was rendered. Rev. Mr. Houck gave an admirable address on mission work, to which all listened with deep interest. The members of the Fire Brigade and Battalion band met at their practice room Tuesday night for "special business." This was the presentation to Mr. John Fraser, a leading member and for many years secretary of the band, of a handsome gold ring. Mr. Fraser has been connected with the band for a long time and is recognized as one of its most valuable members. An address was read by the secretary, as follows:—

Mr. John Fraser, Peterborough Fire Brigade Band:

DEAR SIR.—The members of the Peterborough Fire Brigade Band, of which you have been a prominent member since its organization, wishing, in a measure, to show their appreciation of your numerous voluntary acts of kindness in endeavouring in every way to best advance the interests of the band, have decided to do so.

Your efficient services as secretary for a long term of years, and your wise counsel on many important occasions have done much good to the organization, and the members feel that they are under a heavy debt of gratitude to you.

As a slight token of the high esteem in which you are held by your brother bandsmen, your acceptance of this gold ring is asked, and the hope expressed that for many years to come you may continue amongst us and give us the benefit of your lengthened experience, as you have always been ready and willing to do in the past.

In closing, we would ask you to convey to Mrs. Fraser and the members of your family our best wishes for their future happiness and prosperity.

Signed on behalf of the band,

W. A. SANDERSON, Hon. President.
ERNEST MCCABE, President.
HILLIARD JONES, Treasurer.
WILLIAM H. CROWN, Secretary.

Mr. F. W. MILLER, bandmaster, added a few words expressive of his warm feelings for Mr. Fraser, whom he had always found a most valuable assistant and adviser.

Mr. FRASER was totally surprised, but expressed his gratitude for the kindness shown him. He was proud to be a member of the band and enjoy the fraternal intercourse with the other members, amongst whom the best of feeling always prevailed. He predicted a bright future for the band.

COURSE OF THE CAMPAIGN

Past, Passing and Future Events in the Ridings.

To-Night's Meeting.

Every worker must put in an appearance at to-night's meeting at the Reform committee rooms on Water street. A grand rally of workers and committeemen, at which reports are to be had from every worker in town. Mr. Hall will be present and confer with his supporters. Let no excuse nor engagement prevent every worker from being present to-night. The prospects are bright, but nothing can be effected without work, and persistent work.

Dont Pair with Anybody.

We have it on the best authority that Equal Rights Conservatives, wishing to be able to say that they did not vote for Mr. Stevenson, which they can't conscientiously do, are trying to pair with Liberals. Let no Liberal trust to any such arrangement. The only way a Reformer can be safe is to mark his ballot for Mr. Hall. If he pair with an opponent, ten chances to one he nine cases out of ten, he will both lose his candidate a vote, and have his pair vote for Mr. Stevenson. The safe way is for every voter to vote. Beware of pairing. Let every man record his vote like a man, and if his neighbour doesn't want to vote that is his own look-out. See that YOUR vote is safe, and the ballot box is the only safe place for it. Don't "pair-off."

Otonabee.

One of the largest, most enthusiastic and most successful meetings ever held in the riding was held at the Foresters' hall last night in the interests of Mr. Rork. Messrs. W. A. and J. R. Stratton gave addresses in behalf of Mr. Rork, and Mr. Hilliard was allowed three-quarters of an hour for Mr. Burnham, and Mr. Kidd three-quarters of an hour for himself. The meeting was ten to one in Mr. Rork's favor.

North Smith.

A large and enthusiastic meeting in Mr. Hall's interests at Montgomery's school house, was addressed last night by Mr. Hall, Dr. Goldsmith and Mr. E. B. Edwards. Mr Moore appeared for Mr. Stevenson. The meeting was a most encouraging one. Smith will show a solid front for Mr. Hall on March 5th.

To-Morrow Night's Meeting.

Mr. A. F. Jury has written Mr. Wm. Hogan that he will be present at the meeting in the Opera House Friday night, to be addressed by Mr. John Armstrong, of Toronto. To-morrow night's meeting will be an interesting one for workingmen.

Orthodox Political Economy.

To the Three Waiting-to-be-Converted Tories.

Those who desire to be converted have "sorrow for sin and a sincere desire to flee from the wrath to come." Therefore, I feel constrained to tell the three Tories who wrote to the Review, that I am glad to come to your assistance, you poor sinners, and as you only want answers to your questions, here they are:—

First.—"What is the Opposition trade policy?"

Answer.—Unrestricted reciprocity.

Second.—"How do you propose to raise revenue?"

Answer.—The same way as any country raises the revenue, by customs, excise, &c.

Third.—"How would you get over the necessity for a uniform tariff between the States and Canada, as against the outside world?"

Answer.—I would not try to get over it. The United States will lower their tariff, without doubt; and then there is no sin in having the same tariff as our neighbours.

Fourth.—"You say that, in order to have profitable export, there must be cheap freights, and if no imports, no shipping."

Answer.—The United States, with their tremendous tariff against England, have no trouble in shipping many times as much cattle and produce to England. Why should we have any peculiar trouble?

Fifth—"England bought as much from us last year as all the rest of the world, including the United States, put together. Do you wish to destroy that market, a sure and certain market, bound to increase largely every year, for an uncertain market across the border where almost the same industrial products are raised as in Canada?"

"What about annexation?"

Answer—A lot of fustian and flapdoodle. Our trade with England in 1889 was $38,-106,126. The trade with the United States was $43,522,404. The American market will increase as their population increases, and it doubles in twenty years, and theirs is the near market with short freight lines, while England is so far away that the freight eats up the goods. The varied clime of the United States does not produce our barley, eggs, lumber or minerals, with such easy reach, hence the natural demand.

Sixth—"One half of the farms in the Eastern States have been abandoned."

Answer—Another falsehood, which one forty or even three Tories truly seeking conversion would not be guilty of. And "the New York farmers are staggering under mortgages," etc. Are there any mortgages on the farmers in Canada? Have not lands gone down 33 per cent. in Canada? Has not Sir John's Government increased the national debt in a dozen years?

In conclusion, let us ask why the entire farming community is up in arms. Has the Government been ruining this country for the masses—for the sons of toil or for the Red Parlour?

Oh, you ye three sinners, ye do surely need conversion, but godly sorrow for sin is not yours, and I have little hope for you. After the fifth of March, when the pains of hell get hold of you, there may possibly be some hope, but for the present I turn you over to the "Old Serpent," whose ye are.

ORTHODOX.

Some Good Cavan Horseflesh

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. W. H. Greer shipped a car of horses on Monday to Brandon, Man. Among this lot was a splendid span, one of which was "The Farmers' Profit," the well-known stallion, and the other the mare "Anderson Maid." These two were bred by Mr. John Bothwell, of Cavan, and were sold for the handsome sum of $535. The stallion was sired by "Enterprise" and the mare by "John Anderson," the dam of both being "Lady Palmerston," a pure-bred French mare. Good as the above price was, Mr. Greer would have purchased these animals for the United States market, but the 20 per cent. McKinley duty levied on horses worth over $150, amounted to $160.50 on the price paid. But for the duty he would have been able to pay $160.50 more to Mr. Bothwell and then have made more money, for the freight would have been less to the United States market than to Brandon.

How to Attain Health and Happiness.

The latter half of the 19th century will pass into history as one into which is crowded more inventions and discoveries for the benefit of mankind than in all the centuries that have preceded it. Among these discoveries none will take higher rank than those in medicine, calculated to relieve "the ills that flesh is heir to," restore vitality, and prolong life. Ladies everywhere will rejoice at the discovery of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, undoubtedly the greatest remedy for their peculiar ailments yet discovered. These pills are the result of an almost life study, and are a certain nerve tonic and blood builder, supplying the elements necessary to enrich the blood and transform pale, sallow or greenish complexions to the pink and glow of perfect health. These pills are an unfailing cure for nervous debility, palpitation of the heart, loss of appetite, headache and all the irregularities of the female system that entail so much misery and distress. Every suffering woman should give them a trial. For sale by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Beware of imitations.

PALE, weak women need a tonic, strength giving, flesh building medicine like Milburn's Beef, Iron and Wine. dw

Commercial Christianity.

Two Kinds of Christianity Contrasted—The Commercial and the True.

The sermons at the regular Lenten service in St. John's Wednesday night was delivered by Rev. W. E. Cooper, of Grafton, who took for his subject "Commercial Christianity." Rev. Mr. Cooper explained that by commercial Christianity he did not mean Christianity in commerce, but commerce in Christianity. There were two kinds of Christianity. In the one, selfishness predominated, in which Christianity was adopted simply because the person hoped to enjoy life eternal in the future. That was commercial Christianity. It embodies the idea that as Christ died for us and his death was of abundant merit those sins are imputed to those who believe in Him. Those Christians believed simply for the sake of the future advantage they expected to derive from their faith. They, like Peter, asked "What shall we have therefore?" Theirs was an individual, isolated Christianity, for self only. The true Christianity was that taught by Jesus, whose life was one of unselfishness and devotion. The idea of true Christianity was that Christ was the head of the church and we the members, and between the Great Head and the other members there was perfect sympathy and accord. When one member suffered all suffered; when one rejoiced all rejoiced. This idea of unity and oneness with the Lord and ourselves did away with the selfishness of individual Christianity. This was the true gospel of Christ. In conclusion Rev. Mr. Cooper referred his congregation to the book of Ephesians and the twelfth chapter of First Corinthians for further ideas on the subject. Commercial Christianity was the Christianity that thought of Hivis but self interest; true Christianity was that in which the Christian entered the work for the sake of the work, took an unselfish and sympathetic interest in the welfare of others and tried nearest to follow in the footsteps of our blessed Lord.

Fruit Growers' Association.

At the meeting to be held about the 10th of March, Mr. A. MacD. Allan, of Toronto, and Mr. L. Woolverton, of Grimsby, will probably be the speakers sent by the general association. The former is an authority on apples. The latter is secretary of the association and editor of the Horticulturist, and a very successful fruit grower. It is to the interest of every fruit grower in the country to join the association, and thus gain the benefit of the experience of others. Those who wish to join should send their names to Mr. E. B. Edwards, secretary of the local association.

In a season like this, when apples are very scarce throughout the country, large prices are realised by shipping to Montreal and other outside markets. A buyer from the east came here last week and in a couple of days picked up a carload. In there anything to prevent our farmers selling their apples in pretty much the same way as they sell their cheese, viz: appointing a seller to represent a district, and to open negotiations with the buyers?

South Monaghan

(From Our Own Correspondent)

CENTREVILLE.—Mr. Thos. Doyell, of Centreville, and Mr. Veal, of the Cavan mill line, lost valuable horses lately. Mr. Doyell's horse got its head fast in a partition and died there.

Mr. Rodgers is recovering rapidly.... Mrs. Robt. Lang, of Peterborough, formerly of South Monaghan, and Mrs. John Veal, on the Cavan mill line, have been very ill lately. Both are recovering.... Mr. John Lightfoot lately purchased at Oak Hill a very valuable deer. We wonder what freak John is up to now? What ever it is, we wish him success.

BREVITIES.—Mr. Thos. Bradshaw's family are all better of their late attack of the measles.... Mr. Bryce, teacher of S.S. No. 5, went to Peterborough last Saturday.... Mr. S. P. J. Kent, formerly teacher of our public school here, is visiting friends.

Otonabee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. James France in company with Mr. W. Cleghorn, sawed forty cords of double wood for Mr. Patrick Hallahan in nine hours one day last week, with a Little Giant Mowry machine. It was all principally straight maple green about two foot through clear of knots. It kept three men busy with a horse and stone boat drawing the wood away, while a fourth man stood at the machine keeping the timber clear of the saw as it was cut. Their machine was well attended to. As soon as one log was sawed there was another on. They had no need to stop the horses.

Personal.

Mr. M. J. Tierney is home from New York for a few days.

Mr J. H. LOGG, M.A., late of Spokane Falls, Washington, U. S., formerly principal of the Collegiate Institute, is in town and will remain until Saturday, when he leaves for Philadelphia, where, he will spend some months. He expects to go to England to reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Hall were called to St. Catherines yesterday by the tidings of the serious illness of Mr. David Thomas, brother of Mrs. Hall. Mr. Thomas died shortley after the message was sent. Mrs. Hall will receive the sympathy of her many friends in the affliction which has befallen her.

A Fruitful Cause of Insanity.

This is a question that from time to time is discussed in scientific journals, and when one sees the vast number of broken down, listless and prematurely old men found in every community, one is almost forced to admit that the race is deteriorating. The causes leading to this decline in manhood are various, and among them may be mentioned overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, over indulgence of appetites, and excesses of various kinds, all leading to shattered nerves, loss of vital forces and premature decay, and often to insanity. To all thus suffering Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a boon. They build up shattered nerves, enrich the blood, stimulate the brain, and reinforce the exhausted system. All who are suffering from any of the causes that break down and enfeeble the system should use these pills, and will find them a sure and speedy restorative. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The California Storm.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Feb. 25.—The present storm has caused a great flood. All the bridges over the Santa Anna River have been swept away excepting the Santa Fe bridge on the Redland branch and the Southern Pacific bridge. The latter is partially destroyed. The Santa Fe bridge and the railroad bridge on the road to Riverside are all gone. All the bridges over Little Creek are washed away. The storm appears to be over.

At least six persons have lost their lives in the floods. Many houses have been swept away and a number of families are missing.

A Balloon in His Throat.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 25.—Charles Snyder, 7 years of age, of 128 Arlington-avenue, died at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He choked to death on a balloon. The family were seated in the parlor when a cry of pain from another part of the house alarmed them. Charlie was found struggling on the floor. The boy's face was purple from lack of breath and his eyes were bulged out in pain ful effort. Charlie's respiration lessened fast, and before the doctor arrived he expired. The balloon was later extracted from the boy's throat.

Bricklayers at War.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—At the recent international convention of bricklayers' unions in Toronto, Canada, Union No. 7, New York consisting of 2500 members, was called upon to pay a strike assessment which it thought unfair and it refused to do so. The result has been an attempt on the part of the other international unions to discipline No. 7. On Saturday night a secret meeting of these antagonistic unions was held, at which resolutions were passed to the effect that unless the members of Bricklayers' Union No. 7 complied with the demands of the International Union by March 1 they would be considered non-union men and the other unions would refuse to work with them.

An Old Man Burned to Death.

WYOMING, Feb. 25.—About 9 o'clock last evening residents on the 6th line of Plympton saw fire issuing from a log house occupied by Charles McGinnis, aged 60. It was impossible to enter, as the high wind had fanned the flames so that the whole interior was in a blaze. The old man was seen to be lying on the floor near one of the windows, from which he had evidently been trying to escape. This morning his remains were found burned to a crisp.

RETURNING OFFICER,
West Peterborough.

PETERBOROUGH,
February, 24, 1891.

I declare that I have appointed GEORGE M. ROGER, of number 325 Water Street, in the Town of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, barrister-at-law, to act as my Agent in the election now to be held of a member to represent the electoral district of West Peterborough in the House of Commons of Canada.

I remain, yours, etc.
RICHARD HALL.

TO THE ELECTORS —OF— West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to secure my return in the present election.

In dread of the disastrous consequences to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagances which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard is this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by readering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

RICHARD HALL.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Then Her Father Followed His Example When He Saw the Girl's Grief.

BERLIN, Feb. 26.—A singular tragedy is reported from Rogasen, in the province of Posen. A young man named Rosenblatt of Hebrew origin desired to marry the daughter of a Lutheran named Ensenberg. The father objected, although Rosenblatt offered to join the Christian faith and the daughter was willing to marry him. Rosenblatt in despair killed himself with poison and Ensenberg, upon hearing of the suicide and seeing his daughter's grief, was stricken with remorse and also took his own life, leaving the girl without father or lover.

SUBSIDY REFUSED.

The Action of the Colonial Office Regarding the Proposed Steamship Line Between Canada and the West Indies.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The projectors of the proposed steamship line to run between the West Indies and Canada have received somewhat of a set-back. It was expected that the Colonial Office would have given material assistance to the project, both pecuniary and otherwise, as the line would foster trade relations between different colonies of the Empire, and also bring together the peoples of the several countries at which the vessels stopped. The Colonial Office, however, has intimated that the British Government cannot consider the proposal to subsidize the line, though it is quite willing to sanction any action the different colonial governments may take regarding the granting of subsidies similar to that granted by the Government of the Leeward Islands. The reason for the refusal is stated to be that were the British Government to grant a subsidy to this line other colonies would expect like treatment, and there is no telling where the matter would end. From opinions expressed by prominent gentlemen interested in the colonies, it is expected that the line will be pushed forward with vigor, notwithstanding this refusal on the part of the Colonial Office.

LONG SHOT AT GLOUCESTER

Favorites Beaten in Four Out of Six Races Bargain's Victory.

GLOUCESTER, Feb. 26.—The track was a sea of mud. Salute, split favorite at 5 to 2 in the first race, ran unplaced, as did Fitzlea, a 4 to 5 favorite in the third race, and Friar, favorite in the fourth. Long Island, even money choice in the fifth, ran third. Summery:

Second race, ¼ mile—Sir Rae 1, Gildeaway 2, Alice Ward gelding 3. Time 1.29¼.

Third race, 4½ furlongs—Genevieve 1, Thorne 2, Lomax 3. Time 1.05.

Fourth race, 1¼ miles—Ralph Black 1, Repudiator 2, Harasburg 3. Time 2.18.

PROMISE OF A ROW.

German Papers Resent the French Insult to the Emperor.

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—The Cologne Gazette commenting on the conciliatory overtures which Emperor William has made to France of which the visit of ex-Empress Frederick is regarded as proof says: The French have a right to think of revenge, but they have no right to injure the feeling of the head of the Empire and his mother by insults that could be expected only of scoundrels. The German people feel deeply the outrage upon the person of their Emperor, and they have a right to expect the French people and Government to give ample satisfaction and to wipe out the stain upon the honor of France by energetically calling upon the French Government to make reparation.

Fails to Have Much Effect.

PARIS, Feb. 26.—Ex-Empress Frederick and daughter visited the cathedral of Notre Dame, the Cluny Museum and Luxemburg Gardens to-day. Excited groups gathered in the lobbies of the Chamber of Deputies this evening discussing The Cologne Gazette's article to-day, and the effect of the rebuff on the imperious nature of the Emperor. In view of The Cologne Gazette's reputation for such angry ebullitions, the article fails to have the effect it might have had if produced by a more sober journal. The Paris evening papers reprint the article, but none makes any comment excepting Liberte, which says the article will enlighten the Boulangists as to the imprudence of their eccentricities. This reflects the general opinion among moderate men.

GERMANS WANT A NAVY

To Shut Up Russia in the Baltic While Britain Looks After France.

BERLIN, Feb. 26.—The Secretary of the Admiralty made an unreserved statement before the Reichstag Committee on naval estimates yesterday. He declared it was imperative that Germany should have a first class navy or none. The money asked for in the estimates was necessary. He alarmed the committee by pointing out the possibility of a joint attack by France and Russia on Germany. He also made a number of statements which he asked the committee to keep secret, but which it is believed related to a method of locking up the Russian navy in the Baltic Sea while England or Italy held the Russian navy in check in the Mediter-

THE LABOR COMMISSION.

TO DEAL WITH STRIKES AND HOURS OF LABOR.

Mr Morley to be a Member of the Commission—Funeral of Carretty Nell—The Massacre in Brazil—General Foreign News of Interest.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The period has not been fixed for the completion of the labors of the commission of inquiry which will investigate the labor question and disputes which grow out of it. It is hoped, however, that the commission's work will be concluded in 1891. The two main questions which will be considered are the best method of averting strikes and the regulation of hours of labor. The Conservatives warmly approve of the appointment of the commission, and the Liberals do not intend to obstruct the progress of this new plan to find a cure for labor troubles. The Liberals intended to introduce a similar action. John Morley, who has made a special study of the labor question, considered that immediate legislation was necessary. The Conservatives, according to report, heard of the Liberals' intentions and forestalled them. However, the Conservatives are prepared to give Mr. Morley a prominent place in the coming work. The labor members of Parliament are strongly in favor of the idea

The Irish members of Parliament intend to move that the commission should take special cognizance of the interest of Ireland. The appointment of the commission will have the effect of removing several motions now before Parliament which refer to the labor controversy, including Earl Spencer's resolutions in favor of appointing a Minister of Industry.

The cabinet to-day discussed the personnel and scope of the commission. The scope, it is understood, will include almost every branch of the labor question, the causes and remedies for strikes and the condition also of the agricultural interests. As to the personnel, the Prince of Wales, Lords Churchill and Derby and Sir John Gorst are mentioned for the chairmanship. The commission will almost certainly include Morley, and the peers will not be numerous. All parties seem to be fairly satisfied.

ORDERS TO BISMARCK.

Emperor William to Call the Prince Before a Court Martial.

BERLIN, Feb. 26.—The latest report is that the Emperor has decided to bring Prince Bismarck before a court martial to which, as he holds an army rank, the Prince is amenable. He will be asked on his honor to state whether he is the author of certain articles attacking the Government. Prince Bismarck has declined an offer of the town of Hartung to nominate him for the Reichstag. His refusal is based upon the ground that domestic circumstances would prevent a conscientious performance of his duties as a member.

Terrible Slaughter of Women and Children by Insurgents.

BUENOS AYRES, Feb. 26.—Additional advices from Chili state that the bombardment of Iquique by the insurgents was productive of great loss of life and heavy damage to property. When the rebels entered the city they attacked the stores and residences of six of the principal squares and completely wrecked them. The buildings had afforded shelter to a large number of women and children, but the insurgents, heedless of the rules governing civilized warfare, gave them no chance to escape and pursued their work of destruction regardless of the frantic endeavors of the helpless occupants to seek a place of safety. It is known that 200 women and children perished in the ruins of the sacked buildings. The insurgents seized the custom house and then pillaged all the principal houses in the city. After Gen. Sotto, the commander of the Government forces, had surrendered the city, the rebel leaders landed more troops from their vessels for the purpose of holding the place and despatched a force into the country with the object of meeting and engaging the Government troops.

Earl Dudley's Big Income.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—It is authoritatively announced that William Humble Ward, the youthful Earl Dudley, is about to sell the family mines and iron works to a joint stock company and sever his connection with the commercial world. It is also stated that his Lordship will marry one of the daughters of the Prince of Wales, although his Royal Highness has hitherto opposed the match on account of the young nobleman's eccentric habits. Lord Dudley's income is now stated at $2,000,000 per annum.

Irish Matters of Interest.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—Parnell is considering on the advice of friends, the proposition to send a Parnellite delegation to the United States. They will represent Parnell's policy and will collect funds for its furtherance.

In his speech at Dublin yesterday, Parnell declared that all English Governments had used a standing army in the guise of constabulary to oppress Ireland. There was nothing to choose between them.

"If Gladstone," he said, "bids us remember Mitchelstown, Lord Salisbury can bid us remember Belmullet. Unless you secure the desired concessions, you will certainly again see a Liberal Government employing coercion. Let McCarthy go back and get better assurances."

The Land Purchase Bill.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The Radicals in Parliament, led by Mr. Labouchere, have resolved to oppose by every method in their power the final passage of the Balfour Land Purchase Bill, on the ground that it means a large gift of money to the landlords, at the expense of the British treasury. Parnell, on the other hand, approves the bill in its general outlines, and wishes to see the land question settled by making every farmer an owner.

The Earl of Northbrook, formerly Governor-General of India, addressed the Yorkshire Liberal Unionist Federation at Leeds last evening. The Earl pictured in strong language the evils that he said would result should the Irish Home Rule movement succeed. He urged the wisdom of continuing the Conservative and Liberal Unionist Alliance, and expressed confidence of victory at the next general election.

Rioting Resumed at Durham.

DURHAM, Feb. 26.—Rioting at the scenes of the evictions of the families of the striking miners from the houses which they occupied on the property belonging to Lord Londonderry and others was continued to-day. The strikers again stoned the police, who charged on the crowds who assaulted them. The strikers wrecked a number of houses as copied by the new men.

HE IS ALL RIGHT.

Got a Nest Egg and is Ready to Jump the Country.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—Advices from Guatemala say President Barillas has made all arrangements for leaving the country. He has sold his coffee crops for the next three years for $1,800,000 cash, besides which he has mortgaged his entire estates for $2,300,000 to a German syndicate, so that in case he is forced to leave the country his property can not be touched. Barillas is said to fear an outburst of popular resentment against his rule, and to be prepared for flight at any moment. He has a "nest egg" of $20,000,000 deposited in the Bank of England.

Floods in N. Y. State.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Feb. 26.—The streams in St. Lawrence and Lewis counties are dangerously high. Canton's waterworks are temporarily useless. The Raquette is higher than it has been in many years. Raymondsville, six miles north of Norwood, is submerged. Several houses have been carried away. At Norfolk a dam and sawmill have been swept away. Copenhagen, Lewis county, has half its streets submerged in water.

A SCENE AT A HANGING.

THE MURDERER STABBED HIMSELF SHORTLY BEFORE.

And He Had to be Carried to the Scaffold Strapped to a Board—Horrible Scene of Torture—The Dying Man Fought Like a Maniac.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—West, who was hanged to-day, made an attempt at suicide this morning while the death watch were changing. After stabbing himself he became unconscious. Physicians were unable to restore consciousness. Up to 2.30 p.m. when he was hanged his condition had not gressly changed. He was strapped to a board and carried to the scaffold. At 2.33 the trap was sprung and the rope broke. The murderer was in terrible distress and it took five men to hold him, though manacled.

At 2.40 the rope was strung up again, and this time it was successful. At 2.45 West was pronounced dead. The hanging and the horrible occurrences connected with it created great excitement.

THE QUESTION OF COMPETITION.

The combinesters say that Canadians cannot stand the competition of the United States. Are not Canadians man for man as good as their Yankee cousins? We are hundreds of thousands of young men leaving Canada for lack of profitable employment at home, and they have in thousands of instances shouldered aside their Yankee opponents and won a foremost place in the various callings to which they have addressed their energies. Fighting on their native heath the industrial battle in Canada, have Canadians less chance of success than the Americans? A hundred times no. Hon. John Haggart, at the opera house on Tuesday night, declared that competition with the United States would swamp Canadian manufactures, and to show his consistency, before the echo of his words had died away he told how the energy and enterprise of Canadians had enabled them to not only compete with Manchester and New England, but to undersell them in the markets of Japan and China. He referred to a shipment of cottons. Of course he attributed this to the effects of the N.P., but he omitted to state that this shipment of cotton, (it was cotton) was the over-production of over-protected cotton mills, and that it was sent out of Canada so that some of the mills of the cotton combine could be shut down, thus throwing hundreds of operatives out of employment, and enabling the combine to advance the price of cotton to Canadian consumers to recoup them for the loss in shipping a cargo of cotton at slaughter prices to the heathen Chinee. A beautiful thing is protection—a fine competition that enables the cotton lords to sell cheap cloths to heathen pig-tails, so that they can make the Christian Canadians pay through the nose for their cotton. Yet it is the most highly protected manufacturers that are the most emphatic in declaring that they can't stand American competition. Its the narrow market that is killing Canada. It was the lack of market that has almost made the sewing machine industry a thing of the past; that is handicapping the stove industry; that has brought to the wall within a year three of the largest agricultural implement works in Ontario. The N.P. orators want to fill this country with factories, and make them prosperous by restricting the market to 5,000,000 consumers. This policy is absurd on the face of it. Our manufactories produce now more than they can find a market for. How will it be if our manufactories are increased ten fold and our population remain stationary or nearly so, as it has done for the past ten years? How would it be if the factories of New England in the United States should have a cordon drawn around them, reducing their market to 5,000,000? How long would they stand that?

AN INDEPENDENT "INFANT."

Mr. Francis Mason occupies nearly half a column of the Review of last night to answer a playful allusion of the EXAMINER in its report of the opera house meeting. The EXAMINER said, in effect, that the beautiful flowers that adorned the stage, being hot-house flowers, were a symbol of the N.P., which had nourished hot-house industries—(not Mr. Mason's)—but artificially protected factories that, being infants of twelve years of age, could not, according to Mr. Kendry's flap-doodle, stand competition "three months." The EXAMINER did not refer to Mr. Mason's flowers except to point its little point as to the hot-house system of protection failing to make "infant" industries self-sustaining. It would be too palpable a misnomer to call Mr. Mason's flower business an "infant." Under the "protection" of his own industry, energy and intelligence, for, under the tariff he has no protection other than is supplied from these sources, it has flourished and expanded splendidly. Mr. Mason's flower and plant business would last over "three months" under unrestricted reciprocity.

THE Empire's "Honor Roll" of Reformers who have as it alleges declared against reciprocity does not include include the Reform brewer at Portsmouth near Kingston who is opposed to reciprocity because it would increase the price of his barley and he would have less profit on the sale of his beer. That is a good reason from his point of view but does the farmer who has barley to sell think that is a valid reason why he should oppose reciprocity?

Self-Reliant Manufacturers.

Men Who Make Good Articles and are not Afraid of Competition.

BRANTFORD Feb. 25—The Brantford Expositor continues its reports of interviews with manufacturers, with the result of heaping up testimony for unrestricted reciprocity. Mr. Alexander Harris, president of A. Harris, Son & Company, says:—I cannot see for the life of me why, if we cannot compete with the American manufacturer all over the world, and do it successfully, we should not be able to compete with him in the American market. We want to get over there and try. I am not the least bit afraid of them coming over here and beating us. If we can hold our own with them in London, Liverpool and Melbourne, surely we should be able to do the same thing with them in the markets of Toronto and Montreal. We are able to compete with the Americans on equal terms anywhere in the world. I don't see where Canadians are not as smart as Americans. Our home manufacturers want to brace up a little for the work, that is all. Am I in favor of unrestricted reciprocity? Most decidedly I am and the late Mr. John [illegible] should [illegible] who was in favor of it. You may [illegible] down as a hearty supporter of [illegible] and of the Liberal party.

Mr. Ellis, of the B. N. A. starch factory, had been reported as a pervert to Toryism. Mr. Ellis repudiates that story. He says:—"I simply disagree with extreme measures advocated to secure a treaty with the United States. I have confidence, however, that the Liberal party, if they secure the popular votes of the people, will do nothing to seriously prejudice or destroy the manufacturing interests of Canada, more especially when those interests have been brought into operation largely under the Liberal policy, and should therefore be so minded."

Do you intend to support Mr. Paterson?

Mr. Ellis—Irrespective of politics, I think he is by all odds the best man we can get, and for that reason I shall certainly support him.

Mr. Fred. T. Wilkes said:—The effect of free trade upon the Waterous Engine Company would be to double their hands from 230 to 460. This would be brought about by our increased market in every line of goods and a share of the higher prices obtained by the manufacturers on the other side. We might instance the threshing engines. At the beginning of this trade ten years ago the Waterous Engine Company built over 200 of them per annum, and there were produced in Canada altogether about 300 per year. The total output of Canada to-day is not 200, and our own is not over 50.

What is the cause of th decline?

Mr. Wilkes—Because the market is filled. Payment for them has become so uncertain, and the addition of the farmers so bad, and prices have so fallen that purchasers cannot pay for their engines, and the result is that fully 25 per cent. of those sold are returned to the makers' hands every year, the purchaser being too poor to pay for them. The engine is sold in Canada for $750, while the price in the States is $1,000 and some makers of engines there cannot supply the demand, although factories turn out from 200 to 600 per year. With a market and the advance of prices, we could readily double our factory in threshing machines alone. In all the better classes of machinery prices are better in America. What I would like the opponents of reciprocity to consider is, if we can make and sell threshing machines at $750 now, how much more cheaply we could sell them if we had no duty on every item of raw material used. This is a pointer for the farmer.

A Word of Advice.

Little troubles are proverbially the ones that cause the most worry, annoyance and vexation. But what are sometimes considered little troubles, if left to themselves, soon magnify into grave evils, producing disastrous results. This is especially true of cold in the head. The sufferer looks upon it as a trifling annoyance that needs no treatment and will speedily pass away. This is a grave mistake. There is not a case of catarrh in existence that did not have its origin in neglected cold in the head, and the longer the trouble runs the more serious the results. Cold in the head, developing into catarrh, renders the breath foul, causes a loss of the senses of taste and smell, partial deafness, distressing headaches, constant hawking and spitting, and in many, many cases ends in consumption and death. No case may have all the symptoms indicated, but the more the sufferer has the greater the danger. It is obvious, therefore, that no case of cold in the head should be neglected for an instant, and that to do so is courting further disease—perhaps death. Nasal Balm, in the most aggravated case of cold in the head, will give instant relief, and speedily effects a cure, thus preventing the developing of catarrh. No other remedy has ever met with the success that Nasal Balm has, and this is simply because it does all its manufacturer claims for it. As a precautionary remedy a bottle of Nasal Balm should be kept in every house. Sold by all dealers.

A True Bill.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

MUNCASTER'S

391 GEORGE STREET.

A SETTLER'S EXPLOIT.

As Samuel Bowditch, one of the early settlers on Green River, in Kentucky, was going across a patch of swamp one afternoon, about half a mile from his dwelling, to look after some cattle, he heard a stick snap behind him, and turning quickly round, he found himself confronted with a huge savage, in all the hideousness of war-paint, and with a rifle or a musket leveled at his head, the muzzle not more than four feet from him. Bowditch himself had a rifle in his hand, but he knew the Indian could shoot him before he could raise it and fire, and so he did not make the attempt, but dropped it to the ground, and held up his open palms, in token of surrender.

On seeing this the savage walked up, and said:

"Give Injun gun!"

The settler picked up his piece, and as he handed it to the other, said, in a conciliatory tone:

"I see you're a big chief, and I hope we may be friends."

"Where live?" asked the savage, as he produced a stout thong of deer-skin, and proceeded to bind the hands of his captive, who, being a small man, saw he was no match for the other, even without weapons on either side, and so submitted quietly, though agonized at the thought of his poor, helpless wife and children, in their lonely cabin over the hill.

"I live out yonder, not a great ways from here," replied the captive, nodding his head in the proper direction.

"How many in cabin?" queried the savage.

The settler hesitated about telling correctly. He first thought he would name a number large enough to deter the Indian from going thither, and thus, perhaps, save his wife and children from a fate like his own; but, after a moment's reflection, it occurred to him that, should the savage take him there, a chance might arise for him to regain his liberty; and so he decided upon speaking the truth.

"Why no long-knife tell?" demanded the Indian, with an impatient frown. "No lie make!"

"No, chief; I'll tell you the truth. There are only three persons in my cabin—my wife and two little children—but I know a big, brave chief like you won't hurt 'em."

"Me go see 'em!" returned the savage, with a fierce gleam of triumph, which the other did not fail to notice.

Having tightly bound the hands of his captive behind his back, the savage felt about his dress for any other weapon, took away his ammunition, and putting both weapons over his own shoulder, told the white man to lead the way. This the latter did full of hope, fear, and general anxiety, till he came in sight of his humble log-dwelling, situated in a pleasant valley, through which flowed a pretty little stream, a branch of the Green river, when the Indian ordered him to stop, and proceeded to make him fast to a tree, by means of another deer-skin thong secured to that around his wrists.

"Ain't you going to let me go down to the house with you?" inquired the captive, now beginning to feel much distress as well as alarm for the safety not only of his property but also of his family.

"Me go alone!" was the abrupt and decided exclamation of the savage. "Me big chief—want scalp of any Long Knife!"

"Oh, for God's sake don't kill my poor innocent wife and children!" pleaded Bowditch, fairly agonized at the thought, "You're a great chief, I know, and you'll remember that they never did you any harm!"

"Long-knife scalp much good!" rejoined the Indian, sullenly, as he finished binding the other to the tree, and strode away down the hill, carrying the two weapons with him. Bowditch watched him, step by step, as he glided away under cover of the trees, keeping some rock, stump, or clump of bushes between him and the inmates of the dwelling, so they might not by any chance perceive his approach, and take the alarm.

"At any rate I can holler yit," mutte ed captive, "and maybe they'd hear me;" and forthwith he set up a series of yells that went echoing and re-echoing far away through the forest.

The settler saw his wife and children come in haste to the door, and look up the hill in alarm. At this he shouted at the top of his lungs:

"Quick, Esther—go back into the house, and bar it up tight! The Injun's arter you, and I'm a prisoner. Quick! quick! or you're lost, and the children, too!"

For a moment or two the mother and children stood as if paralyzed with amazement and terror, and then, to his great relief, he saw his little boy point in the direction of the skulking savage, and all three hastily retreat and close the door.

The Indian now uttered a fierce yell, and stepping out into plain view, fired both pieces, one after the other, at the dwelling, as if he had impulsively adopted this means to vent his rage at being discovered and foiled of his murderous purpose. Then looking round at his captive, he threw down the rifle belonging to the latter, and drawing his tomahawk, started toward him on a run. Bowditch, who had watched every motion, and knew that in his rage the savage would brain and scalp him, now gathered all his strength and made one desperate effort to free himself, acting rather from the instincts of self-preservation than from any real hope of success.

But to his great joy, his unspeakable joy, he heard and felt his bonds strain, crack and snap, and suddenly found himself free and his arms at liberty. He looked quickly and wildly around, almost disposed to doubt his senses—to discredit his good fortune—for any fortune then seemed good which would give him even a bare chance for his life where he expected only certain death. The Indian was at least a hundred and fifty yards from him, and his rifle was unloaded, and with that start in a race for life—in a race that involved not only his own life but that of his beloved wife and children—who so swift of foot as to overtake him?

With a loud yell of mingled joy and defiance, away he went over the hill, and with a louder yell of rage at his unexpected escape, the fierce savage came bouncing after him. Bowditch knew every inch of ground in that vicinity, and he had already regained sufficient presence of mind to shape his course so as to take advantage of all the chances in his favor. The hill, about the summit, was a succession of rocks and bushes, with caves, chasms and precipices and over, through, and along these natural obstructions the fugitive believed he could make his way with any man living, either white or red, and so took the most troublesome route for his larger and more unwieldy pursuer, resolved, should he by chance find the latter gaining on him, to double on him at a certain cave not more than half a mile distant, where he could enter, and by following one of the labyrinthian passages within come out on the same side into a thicket not more than fifty feet from the main opening.

Looking back occasionally as he fled along his rocky way with the ease of a mountain goat, Bowditch soon discovered that, however superior to him his adversary might be in mere physical strength, he was no match for him in speed in that particular locality; and this not only inspired him with the hope of escape, but with such confidence in his own resources, that he began in turn to calculate how best he might compass the destruction of his foe.

"Why not lure him into the cave," he muttered, "and let him fool his time round ther, whilst I start back arter my rifle, and then foller up the audacious whelp? I'll do it, and if I don't git even with him yit, then it's 'cause fortin 's agin me."

Having come to this determination, Bowditch slackened his pace till his pursuer was within fair view, when he pretended to stumble and fall, and then got up and ran with a limp, which caused the savage to yell with fierce delight, and redouble his exertions to overtake him. This was exactly what he intended to bring about, and now he managed his pace with so much deception that, though seeming to exert himself to the utmost, he permitted the panting savage to gain a little every minute, till the mouth of the cave was reached, at which time not more than a hundred paces divided them. The Indian saw the fugitive disappear in the dark opening, and believing he now had him secure once more, he came bounding up and plunged in after, with a yell of triumph. The settler, who knew every twist and turn of every passage in the cave—and there were many—now uttered a sort of waning groan from the centre to draw the Indian on, and then quietly slipped off in a different direction, and reached the bright, open air about the same time the other did the middle interior.

"Now then for it!" muttered Bowditch, as he slipped over the brow of the hill and ran down toward his dwelling, which, owing to the ridge bending around the valley, in the shape of a magnet, as far distant as when he called to his wife.

His family saw him, and with a cry of joy his wife threw open the door.

"Quick, Esther!" he exclaimed, as he came up panting: "t'other powder horn and some bullets—quick!"

"Alf you coming in, Samuel?" inquired the wife, in surprise and alarm.

"Just long enough to git them things, since you won't!" he answered, as he bounded in and hurried to the rude shelf on one side of the room. "I've sort of played the coward once to day," he added, "and now I'm going to wipe it out. Shut the door Esther, and keep yourself and children out of danger! I'll be back soon. Good-bye!" and without waiting for a reply, he ran out in the direction of his rifle, his wife vainly calling to him and entreating him to come back and not risk his life foolishly.

As soon as he had once more got hold of his rifle, he hastened to load it, and then felt, as he afterward expressed it, "like a new man." Then keeping himself as much under cover as possible, he hurried up to a point where he could secrete himself and command a fair view of the mouth of the cave, within easy rifle range.

"If old Paint-face haint mizzled," he muttered, with an ominous frown, "it's my opinion he never will!" and like a cat watching for game, he kept his eyes riveted upon the spot where he expected to see him appear.

For ten minutes all was still—nothing moved—and then, to his bitter satisfaction, he beheld the Indian coming out with a stealthy step, looking cautiously and suspiciously around. The settler's rifle was already leveled, and for a moment or two he sighted directly at the heart, and then fired. The savage threw up his hands convulsively, uttered a noise between a groan and a yell, and fell back quivering on the earth. Bowditch took time to reload, and then approached him cautiously. He found him quite dead, and when he had secured everything of value, he threw the dead body down the rocks, and left it to be devoured by the wild beasts and vultures. He then went home in triumph, and related his exploit to his astonished family. He lived for many years after in that vicinity, but was never again molested.—Memoirs of a Kentucky Hunter.

Race Day Drunks.

A couple of drunks were before the Police Magistrate this morning. One of them, a paddle-wheel fakir from Cobourg named Patrick Smith, who was doing business on the ice yesterday, was kept in the cells until noon and sent out of town on the train bound for his native place.

Another Veteran.

A large concourse of people attended the funeral of the late M. J. Sullivan this forenoon. Deceased was a well known business man in town and he had many friends, who showed their esteem by paying the last sad respects to the remains.

The Derrick Fell on Him.

Mr. Nelson, sr., met with a painful accident in Ashburnham on Thursday while assisting in loading ice on the G. T. R. cars at Mr. Mulhern's siding. A derrick which was erected for the purpose of hoisting the ice off the sleighs into the cars gave way and fell to the ground, one of the beams striking Mr. Nelson on the head and inflicting a bad cut. It was feared at first that Mr. Nelson, who is an aged man, would succumb to his injuries, but to-day he is reported to be improving.

Missionary Meeting.

A missionary meeting was held in the South Ward Mission building last night. There was a good attendance from all parts of the town. Rev. J. C. Davidson conducted the proceedings. Interesting addresses were delivered by Rev. W. C. Allen, Millbrook; Canon Harding, Apsley; Archdeacon Allen, Millbrook, Rev. John Gibson, Norwood; Rev. W. E. Cooper, Grafton; and Rural Dean Davidson, the latter closing the meeting. The speakers dwelt upon the importance of the missionary work in connection with the church, and gave some information concerning the work being done.

Mr. and Mrs. Jinks begin their married life with the warmest wishes of a host of friends, whose cordial congratulations were given practical emphasis by the unusually large array of handsome and valuable gifts received by the bride.

COURSE OF THE CAMPAIGN

Past, Passing and Future Events in the Ridings.

Mr. McIntosh and the Farmers.

The astonishing information is given that Mr. C. H. McIntosh, of Ottawa, will address a meeting of the farmers in the opera house on Saturday afternoon. The idea of bringing C. H. McIntosh, who knows more about the beedle brigade and Government pap than he does about ploughing, into contact with an audience of honest Peterborough farmers is richer than Jersey cream. What topic he can possibly talk on that will interest farmers it is difficult to fancy. He will perhaps be too modest to thrust his personal reminiscences upon his audience or he might discourse feelingly on timber limit top ox, the benefits of railway subsidies (to those who have parliamentary influence to turn to advantage, and of the general features of the highly protected boodle brigade industry. We could perhaps tell his hearers something about Mr. Rykert and Mr. Robillard. Mr. McIntosh is fresh from the head centre of beedleism and he may have incidentally, heard something about their movements in the current campaign. But the idea of Mr. McIntosh talking to an audience of honest farmers!

Mr. Hall at Baillieboro.

Mr. Richard Hall, the Liberal candidate, will address a meeting of the electors at Baillieboro to-night.

At Northey's School House.

A well attended meeting of the electors in Mr. Hall's interests was held at Northey's school house last night. Mr. Edwards and Mr. Roger spoke in Mr. Hall's interests, and Mr. Donaldson appeared for Mr. Stevenson.

Sale and Musical "At Home."

About Eighty-Two Dollars Realized at Mrs. Mercer's Social.

A most successful sale and social in every particular, was that held at the residence of Mrs. Mercer, Hunter street west, Thursday afternoon and evening. In the afternoon the house was converted into a bazaar for the sale of a large quantity of bric-a-brac, useful and ornamental, made up by the young ladies of Miss Mercer's Sandaw school class (who arranged the entertainment) and their friends. The sales were most satisfactory, being wound up in the evening by a general auction. At night the spacious rooms were thronged, but Mrs. Mercer and the members of her family did all in their power to make their guests comfortable and give them an enjoyable evening. A brief musical programme was rendered, as follows:—

PART I.

Piano forte Solo.....Miss Bertha Lech
Vocal Solo.....Mr. Droge
Vocal Solo.....Miss Lizzie Mercer
Vocal Solo.....Mrs. Daly

PART II

Vocal Solo.....Miss Fawcett
Piano Duet....Miss Wrighton and Mr. Clark
Vocal Solo.....Mr. Knowles
Vocal Solo.....Mr. Ketcham

The proceeds, which will be devoted to the Pointe Aux Trembles Mission in Lower Canada, amounted to about $32, a most satisfactory result indeed, over which all concerned should feel proud. The ladies of St. Andrew's are never behind in matters of this kind, and in this instance they reaped a merited reward for the last two months of preparation they have been making.

Trotting on the Ice.

A Successful First Day—Only One Event Finished.

Several hundred spectators braved the cold yesterday afternoon and shivered in the chill wind while the horse races were being run off. There is a fascination about horse racing to those fond of sport which will attract crowds even under the most discouraging circumstances. But everything was lovely for the races yesterday—fine weather, though cold, splendid ice and well-contested events. The judges, warmly wrapped up in great-coats and buffalo robes, sat on the top of a 'bus on wheels which was converted into a judges' stand for the occasion. All around, the crowd surged to and fro in their efforts to keep their blood in circulation, and the additional vivifying influence of good cheer was frequently extracted from the flask, which played a conspicuous part in the proceedings.

The races were among the best that have ever been held in Peterborough, and the managers are rather disappointed that there was not a larger crowd of spectators. The judges' decisions met with general approval, though considerable opposition was aroused against the last, when the heat won by Mr. Clancy's horse, in the colt trot was disallowed.

Following is the summary of the races:—

The Juniors Entertained.

The Y. W. C. T. U. entertained the Junior Branch of the Y. M. C. A. last evening in their hall, nearly all the members of the branch were present and entered heartily into the games, amusements, etc., so bountifully provided by their lady friends. The lads made themselves right at home. After a time spent in enjoying the games, music, books etc., an impromptu programme was given. Miss L. Sanderson introducing the following young gentlemen who gave selections on the accordeon and mouth organ, viz.; Messrs. Williams, F. Hudson and C. Hendrick. Short addresses were given by Messrs. G. J. Early, president Y. M. C. A., E. J. Kidd, chairman of the branch, and Rev. Mr. Halstead, Portage La Prairie, Man., who delighted all by his racy address full of helpful and practical thoughts. The young ladies of the Y then passed around an abundant supply of cake and coffee which all present did justice to and enjoyed greatly. A hearty vote of thanks to the Y.W.C.T.U. for their kindness in providing the lads with such a pleasant and profitable evening was moved by Master A. Thompson, seconded by Master W. Roadhouse, and carried unanimously amid great applause. General Secretary Colville in a brief address tendered the same, to the Y. W. C. T. U. through the Secretary Miss L. Sanderson, who made a happy reply. After devotional exercises led by Rev. Mr. Halstead the evening's entertainment closed, all realizing how good it was to be there. During the evening Miss E. Hall and others rendered delightful instrumental music, also Prof. Seward added much to the enjoyment of the hour.

To Extend Church Work

Among the business transacted at the quarterly meeting of the clergymen of Peterborough Deanery in St. John's yesterday, was the formal welcome and tendering of congratulations to Archdeacon Allen, of Millbrook, who succeeded the late Archdeacon Wilson. Reports were also read from the different parishes giving encouraging accounts of the progress made in the past quarter. A discussion took place regarding the disposition of the $34,000 bequeathed to missions by the late lamented Archdeacon Wilson. It was decided to recommend that the money be expended on aggressive church work in new centres to be opened. Archdeacon Allen and Rural Dean Davidson and standing were appointed a committee to make this recommendation to the Bishop. The meeting was concluded in the afternoon, when the clergymen attended service at 5 o'clock, at which the full choral service was rendered.

MR. KENDRY CONTRADICTED.

His Opera House Statement Disproved.

Mr. Cremer Was Right and Mr. Kendry Wrong—The Biggest Woollen Factor in Canada Favours Free Trade in His Line.

At the opera house meeting on Monday night, Mr. Cremer, in illustrating his argument, stated that Mr. Fender Bros, of St. Hyacinthe, the proprietor of the largest woollen mill in Canada, was not afraid of competition with the United States—he only wanted a market, and unrestricted reciprocity would give it him. Mr. Kendry contradicted this statement, and said that Mr. Bens had an insignificant woollen mill and had no standing of any account among woollen manufacturers. Below is published a letter from Mr. Bens himself, in which he shows the falsity of Mr. Kendry's assertion and also the falsity of Mr. Kendry's claim that unrestricted reciprocity would close the Auburn Woollen Mills in "three months." A practical contradiction to the truth of this statement is found in the following letter of Mr. Bens, a manufacturer with much more at stake, working for unrestricted reciprocity, because it will benefit his business:—

BRANTFORD, Feb. 25th 1891

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I am not in the habit to answer slander or slanders but at the request of Mr. John Crerar of Hamilton, I write to you to-day to make good that gentleman's promise to that effect made at a recent meeting in your place. Mr Crerar informs me that some gentleman connected with a local woolen mill stated that my mill is one of the smallest and that I am the smallest man in the trade. As to the latter part of the assertion I do not know whether it is to be taken literally. If so I may say that I am 5 feet 8 inches tall and weigh 180 pounds—a comparison may be made at his pleasure. If he meant it to apply in the other sense I may say—that I am not afraid either of any Canadian competition nor of any American but feel quite competent to hold my own and to stand on my own bottom and do not ask to be protected. As to my mills, I may state that I run in all 16 sets of woollen cards, and I run them about as fast as any in this country. In Granite mills, St. Hyacinthe, I ran 5 sets on hosiery employing 300 hands in the mill and from 100 to 200 at house-work outside of the mill. In the Pike River mills, Notre Dame de Stanbridge, I run 7 sets entirely on shirts and drawers and have produced and sold 42,000 dozens of underwear in 1890 I there employ from 150 to 200 hands. In the St. Hyacinthe Manufacturing Company I have run 4 sets on flannels employing 75 hands. The first two mills, Pike River and Granite mills, I practically own alone, and from these facts your townsmen may judge whether or not the statement made is correct. I suppose he runs more than 16 sets—if so, he is a larger manufacturer and he may be a larger man than I am.

I am advocating free continental trade as a manufacturer, having firstly, confidence in my own ability to hold my own against all comers, secondly, feeling confident that our Canadian factory help is "SUPERIOR"—NOT ONLY EQUAL, but "SUPERIOR" to that of any on this continent, both as to intelligence, industry and frugality; and thirdly, because our waterpowers cannot be equalled. All I ask is for a large market. Task, of course, can only be obtained by continental free trade, and if we get that, which I hope we will, I am satisfied that its immediate results will be, FIRST, great prosperity of our farmers, and a great development of all our natural resources, bringing into practical existence all that endless natural wealth of our lands, of our forests and of our immeasurable mines.

NEXT, our factory help will, as a matter of necessity, enjoy a large share of the results of their labour, as their wages will have to rise gradually until they equal those paid in the United States—the best paid labour in the world—for neither would there be want of employment, but, I honestly believe, that all our manufacturing concerns, intelligently managed, would increase in such a manner as to double and treble their capacity. Capital will be found when it can be invested in paying enterprises without any trouble; but there is no gainsaying the fact that our factory help will have to be better paid and better treated. I trust that no working-man in any factory will be so foolish as to allow his vote to be influenced by THREATS OF INTIMIDATION; both are equally HOLLOW. There will be plenty of men found capable and willing to run every mill in Canada to its fullest capacity, if we only have a market for our products.

I regret to find that our Canadian workmen and mechanics are not everywhere properly organized. A proper organization would enable them to discuss their own interests intelligently with each other, and if led by honest and intelligent men—not charlatans—they would have no difficulty in bringing into harmony their own interests and those of their employers. There is no natural enmity springs from the UNFAIRNESS of the ONE towards the OTHER—while both being interdependent—should support each other. If for one feel satisfied that as a result directly of continental free trade our help will rise to a higher level—that they will exercise their influence in obtaining proper labour legislation—that instead of attempts being made at making criminals of men who organize to protect their own interests and those of their families, they will be enabled to do so more effectually by proper legislation. Fortunately the ballot is absolutely secret, and I therefore hope that every man who has a vote will poll it on March the 5th, irrespective of party inclination, for free trade, which is represented by the policy of the Liberal party to-day, and for freedom, which is the birthright of every true and loyal British subject. There is hope in free trade for all. The sun of freedom is rising on this glorious Canada of ours. WORKMEN, DO YOUR DUTY on March the 5th. FEAR NAUGHT and MISERY will be driven from your homes as well as SLAVERY. You will be FREEMEN and you will be respected. There will be work for all and fair pay for a fair day's labor. DOWN with INTIMIDATION! DOWN with the TRAITORS who want to make a FREE PEOPLE SLAVES!

Yours truly,
FEODOR BOAS.

Your Vote and Influence.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—As the day approaches upon which the future destiny of Canada depends, it is now in order to particularly draw each Reformer's attention to the one special and most important argument, viz.:—your neighbour's vote. Listening to speeches is one thing, but getting a vote is another.

Do you know if your neighbour has been canvassed—ask him, it can do no harm, and possibly you can secure his vote for Mr. Hall. One thing remember—you are fighting against the most corrupt, the most untruthful and the most unscrupulous party that ever solicited the suffrages of the Canadian people, and while we are not and do not intend to fight them with their own weapons, we put the question to you individually, "do you want profitable dealings of a commercial nature with our cousins to the south of us?" If you do, then you owe it to yourself, to your children, and to future generations, to vote for Richard Hall, the Reform candidate; if you do not, then vote for Mr. Stevenson, the champion of monopolists, the Red Parlour and the timber limits party. There is only one issue in this election, and that is Unrestricted Trade versus High Taxation, and do not allow the callow young barristers, who are now rushing from village to village instructing (?) the intelligent yeomanry how to vote, and who to vote for, to side-track that issue. Be awake. The enemy is on the alert, and if the utmost effort is not put forth, the victory will be snatched from you.

VOTER.

Norwood.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Last Thursday evening the ladies of the Presbyterian church gave an "At Home" at the residence of Mr. Wm. Webster, Aspelcot. At seven o'clock sleighs were in readiness at the church. These were soon loaded with jolly young people, and after a pleasant ride the destination was reached. The evening was spent in games and songs. Refreshments were served, and at a reasonable hour the return trip was made.

The second recital is announced at the residence of Mrs. Clydesdale, Dummer, on Friday evening, Feb. 27th.

A similar series of entertainments is being held in connection with the Methodist church. These should afford a splendid opportunity of getting acquainted and of spending a very pleasant evening. We wish the promoters of the scheme every success.

Work is progressing in both political camps with enthusiasm. Both Conservative and Reform committee rooms have been decorated, and we can only imagine the planning and intriguing that proceeds in these political hot beds. The general opinion is that Mr. Kirk will be returned with a respectable majority on March 5th.

Hon. Mackenzie Bowell's meeting on Friday last passed off very quietly and the result was satisfactory to both parties. The Conservatives were delighted as long as it was Tertium; the Liberals rejoiced that the statements fell with such little effect on the intelligent audience.

The frequent changes in temperature have made the skating good, to the great satisfaction of our young people.

Men Must Have Some Occupation.

Take away the occupation of men, and what a wretched world we will have. Half of it would commit suicide in less than ten days. Man must continually keep the physical, moral and intellectual currents going. A stream that does not move soon begins to stagnate. Hence the secret of happiness for man is work—some congenial occupation. The man who is incapacitated for work through illness, soon wearies and frets, and he longs for restored health that he may resume his daily toils. Honest healthful toil will certainly prove conducive to true pleasure, vitality and long life. In some callings of life, it is not always the amount of labor done that overtaxes a man and wrecks him to enjoy life and health; it is, in the majority of cases, mental worry and brain work; the continued strain of mind and nerves; the ambition for wealth, power, position and fame, which breaks down the constitution. It is to this class our remarks are specially directed; to those who suffer from nervousness, tired brain, insomnia, irritability, headaches, dyspepsia, mental depression, weak muscles and bad digestion. These troubles result from overwork, worry, hurry and basic and improper physical exercise. For such victims Paine's Celery Compound is the great renovator and restorer. If new power, force and life are to be found, it must come through the use of this valuable compound, prepared especially for these ailments. Medical skill has never attempted or achieved results that Paine's Celery Compound can give. It works safely, surely, and quickly in the restoration of perfect health and strength.

Canadians Can Compete

Effect of the N.P. on the Sewing Machine Industry.

Mr. J. T. B. Lee, of Toronto, is a Canadian who believes in the ability of his countrymen to compete with all the world. He is an ardent free trader, and one in the present Reform party a step forward that end. In his business relations he has had occasion to mingle a good deal among sewing machine manufacturers, and, in conversation, told of the disastrous effect of the tariff on that industry. "Why," said he, "the increase in the cost of raw material and the limitation of the market caused by the policy has had a disastrous effect on the trade. In 1878 there were in Hamilton three sewing machine manufacturers—the Wanzer, the Gardner, and the Wilson & Bymans. They have been wiped out completely. The capital invested has been wasted and mixed up. In the case of two of them they did not pay 10 cents on the dollar and it is not yet known what the other will pay. In Guelph there were two, possibly three—the Raymond, the Osborne, and, I think, the Armer. There is only Raymond's factory left, and it is being run at half time. Down east in Montreal there were two good factories, and the only one now is the Williams; the Singer Company, I believe, only put their machines together there after importing them. The sewing machine industry has been greatly hurt by the tariff. It is absurd to say that the difference in the men. Some time ago I went through the factory of the White Sewing Machine Company of Cleveland and in all departments. William Porter, the mechanical superintendent, is a man who went there from Hamilton with his two sons. I understand he gets $7,000 a year. In the tool department the chief is Wm. Shaw, who with his son got his training under Raymond of Guelph. I saw Canadians well up the ladder, twelve or fifteen of them foremen and principal men. The girl selected to show the ladies of Paris the work of the machine during the Paris Exposition is a Canadian, Miss Lewis, of Toronto. It is a disgrace to say that we can't compete in face of these facts. These people have been driven out of our country by the tariff. I know any number of Canadians who have risen high in competition with American labor. J. C. Madison, late of Peterborough, is now editor-in-chief of the American Tailor and Cutter, and stands head and shoulders above any man in America as an instructor in cutting. G. M. Deeks, a builder of Morrisburg, forced out by hard times, had not money enough to go away with. Now in St. Paul he is rated as worth from $25,000 to $30,000, and last year had a big contract for the Spokane Falls depot. There are any number of cases within my own knowledge where Canadians, forced out of business here, have gone to the States and prospered.

"Judson Black, lately of Guelph, worth nothing when he left there, runs the Bine Store, Detroit, furniture, carpets, etc., and is now worth at least $100 000. Again, very frequently in Buffalo, Detroit, and several other cities you will see advertisements for accountants, etc., wanted, and in it 'Canadian preferred.' H. Pimlott, formerly of Angus, is now in Chicago, getting, I understand, $150 per month, and his brothers, George and Frank, are in Detroit doing as well. In Claflin & Co.'s, of New York, you find Canadians occupying important positions. Mr. Derbyshire, of Richmond, told me he had two Canadians and preferred them. Canadians are not afraid of competition with Americans."

A STORMY PASSAGE.

The Steamer France Encounters Terrific Gales at Sea.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—The steamer France cleared the English coast and then ran into a hurricane. The France met an unusually terrific gale on the 13th inst. Several big seas came aboard washing away cattle pens on the main deck. The 55 steerage passengers were locked below. The storm with a high cross sea continued with all its violence throughout the night and 6 o'clock on the 14th an extra heavy struck on the starboard side just abaft the engine rooms and tore away the solid iron rails for 35 feet, rolled forward smashing the companionway and breaking the strong iron bridge as if it were pipe clay. Second Officer Baines, aged 35, was descending the bridge ladder, when he was caught up by the sea, swept overboard and lost. Part of the sea rushed forward and caught half a dozen sailors. Four men were so badly injured that they had to be taken to the ship's hospital. The vessel's coal supply was nearly exhausted when she reached Sandy Hook.

His Body Eaten by Dogs.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—About noon to-day the body of an unknown man about 25 years old was found in a lot at the corner of Boston and Sedgwick avenues. Near by lay a pistol with one chamber discharged. The body had a bullet hole in the head. In one of the pockets of the dead man an envelope, postmarked, "Jacksonville, Florida, Dec. 9, 1890," on which the name William Flint, general delivery, Savannah, Georgia, was found. This was the only clue to the identity of the supposed suicide. A horrible feature of the case was the discovery that one side of the body had been eaten away, it was presumed by dogs of the neighborhood.

To Graft White Skin on Blacks.

READING, Pa., Feb. 26.—Encouraged by his successful experiment in grafting a negro's skin on a white man's body and having it become white, Dr. John Ege, of this city, has requested colored subjects on whose bodies he may graft white men's skin to see if it will turn black.

Cape Colony Boundaries.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The Commissioner-in-Chief of the Cape Colony, Sir Henry Brighton Loch, and the Premier of Cape Colony, Hon. Cecil John Rhodes, are guests of Queen Victoria at Windsor Castle. The negotiations as to the boundary settlement, which has been going on for some time in regard to the claims made by Portugal and the counter-claims made by the Government of Cape Colony, have been concluded to the satisfaction of the chief commissioner and Premier. The only practical modification of the convention of August last in Portugal's favor is the allotment of a large extension of territory north of Tete, which Portugal proved she had already occupied. It is doubtful if the Portuguese Cortes will ratify the proposals but Portugal will be warned that if she leaves the boundary question much longer unsettled she is likely to fare still worse owing to the impossibility of restraining the South African Company from completing the occupation of the territory in dispute.

Took the Oath as President.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 26.—General Da Fonseca took the oath of office as president of Brazil to-day in the presence of the two houses of Congress. The President received the individual congratulations of the members and afterward reviewed the troops.

MARRIED.

JINKS—MITCHELL.—On Wednesday, Feb. 25th, at the residence of the bride's parents, by the Rev. Mr. Locke, Mr. Benjamin Jinks, to Miss Sophronia Mitchell.

To James A. Hall, Esq.

RETURNING OFFICER,
West Peterborough,
PETERBOROUGH.

February, 24, 1891.

I declare that I have appointed GEORGE M. ROGERS, of number 326 Water Street, in the Town of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, barrister-at-law, to act as my Agent in the election now to be held of a member to represent the electoral district of West Peterborough in the House of Commons of Canada.

I remain, yours truly,
RICHARD HALL.

TO THE ELECTORS
—OF—
West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to ensure my return in the present election. In dread of the disastrous consequences to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of the country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,
RICHARD HALL.

THE BRITISH ELECTIONS

'TIS THOUGHT THEY WILL TAKE PLACE THIS YEAR.

The New Labor Commission to Be Made A Prominent Factor in the Campaign —Tokar to Be Garrisoned By British Troops.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Information touching the Cabinet's discussion of a program leading up to dissolution of Parliament has reached the ministerial ranks, arousing increased expectancy of an appeal to the country in the autumn. Efforts to get a definite assurance from members of the Cabinet have been met simply by advice to be ready. William Henry Simth, First Lord of the Treasury, Chancellor of the Exchequer Goschen, President Micks - Beach of the Board of Trade and President Chaplin of the Board of Agriculture believe the time opportune to test the fortunes of the party in a general election. Secretary Balfour and President Ritchie of the Local Goverum ent Board oppose the idea, the former desiring first to force the passage of an Irish Local Government measure. Lord Salisbury is believed to favor the autumn as the fitting time to go to the country if he can settle the Behring Sea dispute with the United States. In the opinion of the Foreign Office critical times are impending through troubles in Newfoundland, and the Egyptian occupation reaching a climax which Lord Salisbury's fabian tactics have hitherto averted. It is deemed impossible to pro ract negotiations with France. Another year must see a settlement injurious to the Government's reputation or a grave diplomatic collision with France. The Liberals have already completed their preparations for the coming contest. The local candidates have been selected and their central election fund is ample. The Conservatives are not so well organized. The intention of the Conservatives to make the labor question a prominent plank in their platform is indicated in various movements. The Prince of Wales will be the nominal president of the proposed labor commission. In response to the Parnellite request for Irish representation on the commission Michael Davitt will be nominated, which will displease the Parnellites. Mr. Pasnell has stated in an interview with members of the Irish laborers union that he would aid in the organization of trades, and would support the 8-hours bill for every trade not liable to suffer from foreign competition by reduced hours. He would also support a reduction of the franchise to enable the election of workmen to Parliament.

The Parnellite campaign in Ireland progresses apace. The McCarthyites' delay in taking the field is a bad augury for their future. Ted Harrington, Mr. Redmond and other Parnellites warn the clergy that they will no further tolerate their hostility tamely.

The McCarthyites are confident of success after the campaign has been fairly opened. The Parnellites maintain that even if they secure only 30 members of the House of Commons Gladstone will be compelled to buy their support before carrying Home Rule. Intimates of Parnell say worry is killing him His former ghastly aspect and ill-health have returned. He speaks hurriedly, sometimes being confused and at a loss for a word. Dillon and O'Brien are still in the prison infirmary, but not confined to bed.

A social sensation has been caused by reports of a verbal fracas between the Queen and the Prince of Wales at Portsmouth yesterday. Before going to the launch the Prince heard alarming accounts of the position of Ex-Empress Frederick in Paris. He decided to go to bring her away, believing his popularity would prevent the threatened demonstration. He wired the Queen his intention. On arriving at the dockyard the Queen was heard accosting him with: "What did you say!—Turn my daughter out of Paris!—Nonsense it's impossible!" The Prince, in an undertone, replied that he was so impressed with the gravity of the situation that he had wired his sister to leave immediately if she could not await him. The Queen visibly enraged repeated that it was impossible to believe any insult could be offered to her daughter. She then excitedly played her fingers on an electric battery to the alarm of the dock yard officials who dreaded a premature launching of the ship. She blamed the Prince for his injudicious course and threatened to countermand his telegrams. The Prince in moderate tones protested that a countermand would be unwise and urged his mother to send a telegram enforcing his advice. The Queen was soon appeased, and the Prince before leaving Portsmouth sent a ciphet telegram to Ex-Empress Frederick backing his own wishes with the Queen's.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The latest advices from Suakim are to the effect that the Anglo Egyptian force is for the present resting at Tokar, where the battery of artillery is stationed, while the squadron of cavalry is scouring the country around in search of any remnants of the army.

General Grenfell has arrived from Cairo to be near the scene of operations. Among the captives rescued at Tokar were three Egyptian women, who were taken by the Mahdi's forces at the time of the capture of Khartoum. They had ever since been in the household of Osman Digna. Hearing of the Egyptian advance they concealed themselves when the dervises abandoned Tokar.

BUFFALO, Feb. 27.—The Lehigh Valley fast passenger train from New York collided with an Erie freight at East Buffalo to-night. Both trains were derailed, two engineers, one fireman badly hurt and Brakemas Bottomley mortally injured. No passengers are said to have been hurt.

MONTREAL, Feb. 27.—On the application of Mr. Seargeant, general manager of the Grand Trunk Company, the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington has determined upon making Island Point, Vt., a quarantine station for cattle from Canada destined to points in or through Vermont, and shipments may now be made to Portland and other places in that district.

FLOODS WEST AND SOUTH.

GREAT DAMAGE DONE ON THE PACIFIC SLOPE.

Railways the Principal Sufferers—An Arizona Town Drowned Out—Twenty Days' Rain Along the Tombigree.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—The latest reports show that the storm is about over. Serious damage has been done to all railway property, especially in the southern portion of the state. Soledad Canon, on the line entering Los Angeles from this city, is in almost as bad a condition as last year. Much of the new and costly work, which required 10 months to complete, has suffered from the storm. Two hundred feet of the bridge west of Los Angeles has been carried away, the track washed out, the pile work broken and the tunnel at the entrance to the cañyon damaged. On Yuma division much of the big bridge was destroyed and the track is six feet out of line in many places. The bridge near Monte was also swept away. Three washouts of a serious nature have occurred between Pomona and Cuyamange and east of Colton 250 feet of the track, roundhouse sidings and everything movable has been carried away by the waters. Between Colton and Fanning several bridges have been weakened.

On Santa Ana branch the track is under water for long stretches and in some places has been swept away. South of Downey Station the new railroad bridge was destroyed and the town itself flooded. Between Seven Palms and Yuma the track is in a bad condition: over three miles have been swept away. For 150 miles between Seven Palms and Yuma the wires are down and nothing definite is known of the condition of the track. The Sunset route will probably be inoperative for a week, and no tickets to New Orleans will be sold at present. Atlantic and Pacific has had washouts near Borstow and has suspended the sale of overland tickets via. Mojave for one week. The passengers will be sent east over the Central Pacific. The latter route is in good condition, as is the Shasta line.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 27.—The late storm was one of the worst in the history of this section. But little damage resulted in the city proper. On the river front all the railway bridges were damaged and in some cases swept out. News from the surrounding country was meagre, owing to the telegraph wires being down, but so far as received the outlook is not encouraging. There are many rumors and reports of loss of life, but the only cases so far authenticated are the drowning of a man named Wells, with his wife and child, near Wilmington. Undoubtedly great damage was done to orchards and ranches south of the city, where the floods were the worst in years. Many houses were damaged, live stock drowned and fences and outbuildings destroyed.

Up to noon to-day reports showed at least six persons who had lost their lives in the floods. The family of Charles Watts is also missing from near Downey, and is supposed to have been drowned. The Wells family, consisting of man, wife and babe, were drowned at Duart, and the bodies of two Mexicans were found in the same neighborhood. S. Laurens was drowned at Wilmington while trying to rescue some cattle. The worst of the flood was probable at Downey and vicinity. Old and New San Gabriel Rivers broke from their banks and ran together and made a great inland sea, 6 to 10 miles wide and 17 miles long. Many houses were swept away, and a number of families occupying the territory inundated have not been heard from. Shots were heard in Downew Monday morning, fired at Watts' ranch. They are supposed to have been a signal of distress. The house was soon swept away, and it is feared that the whole family perished in the torrent.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—The Chief of Police has received a letter from a clergyman in Oxford, Eng., asking for information as to the whereabouts of Thomas Kingston, who came to Toronto seven years ago. His mother has not heard from him for three years and is anxious as to his fate.

Yesterday morning the body of a female child was found in the yard of Dr. Richardson's house, No. 34 St. Joseph-street. The infant had been strangled to death, the cord being still around its throat, and there was every indication of an extremely brutal murder. Coroner Johnson was notified and ordered the removal of the body to the Morgue, where he will open an inquest at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. Harrington has been engaged to make the post-mortem this morning.

Bradstreet's Review of Trade.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's indicate that the total volume of general business transacted during February has not equalled that during an equal number of days in January last. The only cities which report anything like a genuine activity in the movement of staples from the hands of wholesale merchants are; Cincinnati, where high water has interrupted the movement of late and boots and shoes are only in fair demand; St. Louis, where cotton and pig iron are weaker and live stock lower in prices; at Kansas City, where there has been heaviness in the cattle and hog market; and Chicago. The check to business, owing to floods or impending overflows, has been quite noticeable through the Central, Western and Southern States. Dulness pervades almost all lines of general trade throughout the Canadian Dominion, and is likely to do so until after the elections. Commercial travelers have been called in. Opening of navigation will improve business some. Manitoba wheat is in good export demand. The Dominion of Canada reports 43 failures this week, against 39 last week and 34 this week last year. The total number Jan. 1 to date is 426, against 390 last year.

BACK TO LIFE AND HOPE.

THE FOUR JEANESVILLE MINERS GRADUALLY RECOVERING.

"Big Joe" Matuskewitz Tells How They Suffered—Theirs Was a Terrible Struggle in the Pit of Death—The Shock May Prove Too Much for One of Them—All the Men Now Accounted For.

HAZLETON, Pa., Feb. 27.—Jeanesville today is crowded with sightseers, drawn in the hope of seeing the four men who for 19 days were shut in the mine. But in this they were disappointed. Coal and iron policemen guard the hall in which the men are still lying and none but physicians and attendants are admitted.

Dr. Esty of South Bethlehem, arrived this morning and has taken charge. He is assisted by two trained nurses from the Bethlehem Hospital. The hall was surrounded all day by a crowd of people, swelling into the hundreds, who had come from all the towns and villages round about. Unable to obtain admittance, they wandered over the town. Many went down the mine, and one party succeeded in getting into the breast where the men were found and bringing away a number of articles—a mining lamp, the lid of a dinner pail, some half chewed sticks of wood and other things to be treasured and exhibited as souvenirs. The couches occupied by the men have been improved since yesterday, making their surroundings as comfortable as possible. The patients rested well during the night, and when big Joe Matuskowitz awoke this morning he sat up in his bed and called for something to eat. The weakest one of the party is Wassel Frinko, though his condition has improved considerably since yesterday. All have improved, and Dr. Esty stated to-day that in all probability they would be strong enough by Saturday to bear removal to the hospital.

"Will they ever recover entirely?"

"I think they will, except, perhaps this man," replied the doctor, pointing to Frinko. "His system has sustained a terrible shock, and am afraid he will not fully recover for years, if at all. The others, I have no doubt, will, in the course of a month or so, be able to go about as usual, though they may not be able to resume work for some time longer. Joe Matuskowitz has a phenomenal constitution, and I should not be surprised to see him as well as ever within a month."

When The World correspondent called this morning the doctor and his assistants were preparing to give the four men a thorough wash and change of clothing. Up to that time they had remained just as taken from the mine. Mrs. J. C. Hayden, the wife of the mine operator, was in the room many times during the day leading her assistance in catering to the wants of the sick men, and seemed to be deeply interested in their recovery. She said the men were very fervent and spent most of their time in thanking their Divine Maker for his mercy in bringing them to safety. Later in the day the correspondent visited the hospital again. The faces of the sick men were all ghastly pale, and those of Frinko and John Tomisk extremely emaciated and sunken. They all felt much better and were asleep, except "Big Joe," who, with his head propped high with pillows, was taking some beef tea. His appetite is insatiable, and he is constantly begging for some stronger food, but the doctor refuses to satisfy his cravings as yet. When he had taken his cup of beef tea he was ready to talk.

"Well, Joe, how do you feel to-day?" was asked.

"Much better; all right again soon, I guess," he replied. "I want to see my wife, but I can't. She is sick at home. Have you seen her?" He asked this very anxiously. The doctor had not yet told him that he had a little son born to him while he was shut up in the mine. He was assured that his wife, though a little sick, would be all right in a few days and that she had been wild with joy when she heard of his recovery. The poor fellow's eyes sparkled when she was told this.

"You had a wonderful escape, Joe."

"Yes, I had. It was God who saved me. I am very thankful to Him to Big Boss Dave, Supt. Macfarlane and all the men that helped. They were brave, good men, and I want to thank them all."

"Did you catch any rats while you were shut in?"

"Rats! We saw no rats at all. We scratched the bark of timbers when our bread was gone and chewed it, but it was no good at all."

"Did you try to eat your boots?"

"No, no. We didn't try that at all. We ate nothing but the bits of bread and bark."

"How long did the bread last?"

"I think about two days. I don't know right, because we couldn't tell at all. The bread was all gone before our last oil was burned."

"Where were you when the flood came?"

"Me and John (John Tomisky) were in our breast further up the gangway. We heard some yelling and ran out. When we got on the gangway the water was coming up. We started to run to the slope, but it stopped us. It got very deep, and we ran into the breast and climbed upon it. Frinks and John Barno where climbing up, too. I don't know how they got in, but we all got up to the top together. The water came up maybe 20 yards from the top. We crawled into the heading and stayed there all the time, except when we went down the breast for water."

"Did you sleep much?"

"Oh, yes; I slept a good deal. We all slept all we could, but the thirst was awful. It just burned us, and the sulphur was very bad."

"Did you think you would ever get out?"

"Oh, yes; we thought they would get us, but we got frightened. First Barno and John got a little wild and sang and laughed, but I lay still."

The physicians forbade any further conversation, and in a few minutes Joe was fast asleep.

Many stories have been sent out about the men eating rats, etc. They are all totally untrue. There was never a rap heard by any of the explorers. The first indication that anyone was alive was the sound of Joe's voice heard by Kelshaw, when the latter was trying to get up the breast through the black damp. They made no explorations, for they only had a space 60 by 30 feet to move in and that on an incline of 45 degrees. They ate no rats for they never saw any. All of the men imprisoned in the mine have now been accounted for. There were eighteen of them. Ten were found scattered along the gangway who had met instant death by drowning. Four had got No. 1 breast and had been suffocated, as already reported in the The World, and four were found alive and rescued.

DID BURGLARS KILL MRS. COWLES?

Her Husband, the Bank President, Is Charged for Lack of Evidence.

CLARKE, Neb. Feb. 27.—The charge of murder against S. R. Cowles, president of the Pacific Bank of this place, has for lack of evidence been withdrawn by the County Attorney. Mr. Cowles has been accused of murdering his wife, Feb. 4, and his arrest was made a few days ago while he was on a train bound as was supposed for Canada. The idea that the crime was committed by burglars, as Mr. Cowles declared on the morning after the murder, is now generally accepted as correct, and this belief influenced the action of the City Attorney.

The crime was a startling and mysterious one. Mr. Cowles said that he casually retired about 10 o'clock, and about midnight he was aroused by noises in the kitchen. As he entered the dining-room to investigate them a door leading to the kitchen was opened and he received a blow on the head which rendered him unconscious. The man who struck him wore a mask.

He was nearly frozen when he recovered consciousness. He rushed to his wife's room and found her dead. She had been choked to death, while her child lay sleeping in the room.

There was some valuable jewelry in the room which had not been disturbed, but in the street was found a jewel case with the jewelry in it and Mr. Cowles's empty pocketbook.

Mr. Cowles offered $5000 reward for the arrest of the murderer, but there was no one found whose arrest was warranted. The detectives' testimony before the coroner's inquest directed suspicion towards the banker. They found $50 hidden in a closet, and the hatchet with which the hidden door had been opened was found in the stable. The wounds on Mr. Cowles's head, which he said had rendered him unconscious, were declared to be only trifling, and might easily have been self-inflicted. Other circumstances, supposed to have been suspicious, were pointed out.

Mr. Cowles courted the fullest inquiry and employed a detective on the case. He was believed to have lived happily with his wife, and was regarded as a model husband by the townspeople. After his arrest he said he would be glad to have a trial, as he believed it to be the only way to fully establish his innocence. He is a Mason and Oddfellow, has held many positions of trust and honor and his bank is one of the wealthiest in the State.

Drink Drove Him Down.

ORANGEVILLE, Feb. 27.—Death claimed another of the county jail's pauper guests on Tuesday night of last week. This time it was Joseph McPherson, aged 59 and an ex-resident of East Garafraxa, who was called to his last account. Drink drove McPherson down from a position of comparative wealth as a prosperous farmer to the pauper's cell behind prison bars. There was the usual coroner's inquest, the stereotyped verdict, the solitary hearse wending its way to the Potter's field—and the sad tale is told.

A Government Employe's Death.

HAMILTON, Feb. 27.—Rudolph Rissman, Assistant Dominion Immigration Agent, and one of the most prominent German residents of this city, left his office at the Grand Trunk station about 11.45 to make some deposits in the bank. He descended the car at Vine-street and went into T. Richter's saloon and complained of feeling very ill. He asked young Richter to give him some whisky, but as he attempted to swallow it he staggered back and fell into a chair. Almost immediately he fell forward on the floor. Dr. Hillyer was summoned from his office across the street, but when he arrived Mr. Rissman was dead. The doctor pronounced it a case of heart failure. He had acted as interpreter and assistant immigration agent for ten years.

The Chicago Billiard Tourney.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Fine-Brunswick-Balke Callender international short stop billiard tournament closed to-night. Carter wins the championship and first money, $500; Ives took second place, prize $250, and Catton third $150. McLaughlin, Hately and Maggioli were tied for fourth place and divided the $100 stake. After the tournament Ives challenged Carter for the championship emblem and match to be $250 a side, 500 points 14 inch baid line, to be played in Chicago within 60 days. A forfeit of $100 was posted.

Blackburn Mills Close.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The weaving branch of the cotton trade is undergoing the most serious depression that it has experienced for many years.

The situation at Blackburn and in the surrounding manufacturing towns is becoming alarming. In Blackburn 10 mills have closed, which means the stoppage of 10,000 looms and the enforced idleness of 3000 operatives.

The manufacturers declare that it is impossible for them to obtain orders.

THE VOICE OF A VETERAN.

Speaks Out with No Uncertain Sound,

On the Question of Unrestricted Reciprocity—What Mr. Wm. Clurton has to Say on the Subject—An Opinion of the Highest Value—Founded on Half a Century's Experience.

Mr. William Clurton, of Peterborough, is known to every farmer and farmer's boy of adult years in Peterborough county, as one of the oldest and most experienced grain buyers and commission merchants in the county or district, and his opinion is of the very highest value on trade subjects. In March, 1888, Mr. Clurton read a paper on Unrestricted Reciprocity at the meeting of the West Riding Farmers' Institute. Though nearly three years have elapsed, time has only added intensity to Mr. Clurton's contentions, and the republication of his paper, as below, will be timely:

After a few words of introduction, Mr. Clurton proceeds to give illustrations of the fact that in the Canadian farmers' trade with the United States the producer pays the duty. He refers first to the matter of oats:—

A few years ago we had a magnificent crop of oats in Canada, and there was a good demand for them in the States. That year I shipped 180,000 bushels to Boston, which I bought at the several stations of the Midland Railway in the vicinity of Peterborough. When these shipments reached the boundary line at Island Pond, they were stopped by the American customs officer until I paid the duty of ten cents per bushel, amounting to over $18,000, or, I should have said, the farmers from whom I bought the oats paid the duty to support the American government.

A merchant residing at Rochester or Ogdensburg shipping 180,000 bushels to Boston from his side of the customs line, at the same time, and selling at the price at which I sold my oats, would receive $18,000 more than I received, and consequently could pay the American farmer ten cents per bushel more than I could pay the Canadian farmer.

Sheep raising in Canada should be a profitable business for farmers. Are flocks increasing? Have they not decreased since the termination of the reciprocity treaty in 1866? Why? Because the price of wool has been so low that farmers found it undesirable to keep large flocks of sheep. How would affect this property? The price of wool in Ontario for some years past has been from 18 to 20 cents, while the price in the States has been, for the same grades, 35 cents. Do away with the duty and the price in Ontario for fleece washed wool would be at least 35 cents per pound. The duty on wool imported into the United States is 10 cents per pound.

In confirmation of what I say, I submit a letter from my Boston agents—one of the largest wool houses in America.

BOSTON, August 31st, 1887.

W. Clurton, Esq., Peterborough, Ontario:

DEAR SIR,—With your request for a posting in regard to Canadian wool in mind, we now take pleasure in quoting you 35½ cents as the price current here for Canadian wools duty paid, and would further say in this connection that those wools when brought to our market come into direct competition with Kentucky and Maine wools; and, but for the heavy duty upon your class of stock, we should be able to use a large quantity of it in this country to good advantage, inasmuch as the class of wool with which it competes is in limited supply in the States.

Yours respectfully, &c.
FENO BROS. & CHILDE.

Mr. Dryden, a farmer, a member of the Ontario Legislature says, in his speech on this subject: "Last week I had a call from two American farmers, one from Pennsylvania and the other from Michigan. Both have large flocks of Shropshire grades, but the Pennsylvania farmer raised sheep for meat and the Michigan farmer for wool. Now, how do you suppose their prices compare with our ours? We sell lambs dropped in March at $3 to $3.50, and the Pennsylvania assured me that he got $5 to $6 50 for theirs. The Michigan farmer told me that the clips of his Shropshires sold for 35 cents unwashed." Mr. Dryden says: Open the American markets and the revenue to the Canadian farmer from wool, as well as from mutton, will be enormously increased. I say this because no other portion of the American continent is so well adapted for raising sheep as this Ontario."

A farmer selling 500 bushels of barley for the American market loses ten cents per bushel, or $50.00 on the 500 bushels—the American duty. There is something in the climate and soil of Ontario that produces a finer quality of barley than other parts of the continent for making the excellent pale lager beer, which is consumed in such vast quantities in the States, and the brewers there cannot very well do without it. The U.S. duty on barley is now 30 cents per bushel.

A HORSE PARABLE

Suppose you sold, to an American, a horse for $100, it would cost him, duty paid, in the States, not taking freight and expenses into account, $120. If you bought the horse back again in the States and brought it to Canada, it would cost, duty paid, on this side, $144. I you sold it again to the American at $100, which would still be the value in Canada, and bought back a second time in the United States at $120, the value of the horse there, and imported into Canada, you would have, after paying the American duty of $40 and the Canadian duty of $48, just $12 out of the price the horse was first sold for. And, as this would not probably pay the expenses of one trip to the States, it would have been better, the first time the Custom House officer said, "Stand and deliver," if you had said, "I will deliver the horse, take him, and I will go home and ponder the question as to whether the producer or consumer pays the duty." If you follow these transactions, the illustration will show that on both sides of the line the shipper—the producer—paid the duty. And this rule works in the same way on every article which the Canadian farmer produces and sends to the United States—with the exception, perhaps, of wheat and cheese. Fr duty on horses is now $30 per head.

The opponents of Unrestricted Reciprocity say that as the United States produces the same articles that Canada produces they do not require our products, and that England is our natural market. Let us see. In 1886 we sent 15,766 horses to the United States. The stated price of them was $1,703,460—nearly $120 each. The duty paid on these was $262 280. The United States imported that year from Canada 33,195 head of cattle, valued at $443,430, on which the duty was $99,698. Canada sent to the markets of the United States 243,892 sheep, valued at $943,514, the duty paid was $188,702.

The latest report indicates that we sent 18,225 horses, 45 765 horned cattle and 263,046 sheep last year. Twenty per cent. the duty on horses and cattle represents over $451,000. By the returns—June 1887—the value of imports from the United States to Canada was $34 958,110, while the value of exports to the United States was $20,823,695, or a balance in favor of Canada of $4,565,575, the total volume of trade in 1887 being $74 480 765.

Canada exported to the United States in 1876 between eight and nine million bushels of barley which paid a duty of ten cents per bushel, not taking into account malt which paid a higher duty than barley.

Canadian farmers exported in 1886 over thirteen million dozen eggs, worth in the neighborhood of one and three-quarter million dollars. Eggs are admitted free of duty into the United States. This accounts for the great impetus given to this great trade in eggs.

If we had unrestricted reciprocity with the United States, would it be unreasonable to suppose that our trade in horses, cattle, sheep, butter, wool, poultry and other products would not also be greatly increased? Farmers would get from $20 to $30 more for every horse, $10 more for every ox, $10 more for every $50 worth of sheep, lambs or poultry, ten cents more for every pound of wool and four cents per pound more for every pound of butter exported to our neighbors across the line.

WHAT A CHANGE IT WOULD MAKE

in the butter trade! At present Canadian butter has to be sent 3,000 miles to England to compete with German butterine and oleomargarine—imitations so perfectly manufactured that there is not one person out of a hundred who could distinguish these articles from genuine butter.

If the vast sums of money paid the American government for duties on Canadian produce exported to that country were distributed among Canadian farmers, giving them enchanced prices for the articles they produce, many of them would be able to remove incumbrances from their farms, and they would be enabled to buy land for their sons.

After dealing with the articles of lumber and fish in a similar manner, Mr. Clurton deals with the disloyalty cry:

If Unrestricted Reciprocity would give us everything that political union could give, what object would there be in seeking annexation?

The man that is disloyal to himself, his family and his country, is the disloyal man. If the majority of the people believe and decide that unrestricted reciprocity would benefit the country, they will have it if the Americans are willing to give it to us. A prosperous people are a contented people, and a contented people do not become disloyal. In 1847 there was a great commercial depression all over the world. In Canada it was severely felt, and business was demoralized. It continued to clog to the country, and the common cry at that time was "Rain and Decay." In the United States, with its vast resources, they soon surmounted their difficulties, and the country

ADVANCED WITH LEAPS AND BOUNDS.

Then it was that Canadians began to contrast their position with the state of things across the line, and they began to grumble, and these grumblings soon broke into the cry of annexation. Associations were formed to promote peaceable separation from Great Britain and annexation to the United States. And these associations issued manifestos which were numerously signed. The Montreal manifesto was signed by 326 of the principal men of the city, viz: Rose, Galt, Holton, Ferrier, Macpherson, Redpath, Molson, Torrance, and others. That manifesto stated what Commercial Unionists say to-day, viz:—"that reciprocity would render a field for American capital—render our rivers, canals and railways the highway for the business of the west, enhancing the value of property and agriculture. And Canadians could purchase articles at lower prices. All danger of war would cease and there would be perpetual peace and amity between the two countries."

The Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 fully proved the correctness of that forecast. When we got Reciprocity Canada got a new start by sharing in the prosperity of our neighbors across the boundary, and the cry for annexation died a natural death. If this was the result of reciprocity from 1854 to 1866 would it not be the same under unrestricted reciprocity? These twelve years were golden years for Canada, and many of the foundations of the comfortable farm houses that we see to-day on every side, and other buildings, were laid during that prosperous period.

Under the operations of the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 the gross exchange of natural products between the Canadian Provinces and the United States rose from $20,000,000 in 1853, to $84,000,000 in 1866.

THE BEST MARKET.

Our opponents say that England should be our market, and that we should loyally deal there. Advocates of reciprocity say that we have a better market at our doors of sixty millions of the most prosperous, wealthy and enterprising people on the face of the earth. I, and many others, have tried the English market, and if there is anything that would be like likely to make a man "commit profanity," as Mark Twain says, it is consigning produce to England. I have no hesitation in saying that if a bank engaged largely in that business, if its charter permitted it to do so, the bank would become bankrupt. In Liverpool produce is sold at four months' credit—"Liverpool terms"—and in London at two months' The shipper pays 2½ commission for selling and guaranteeing the debt. The commission and the other charges eat a man out of house and home. It takes nine cents a bushel to sell wheat and pay the charges after the vessel touches the dock in Liverpool. * * * Last year I shipped 10 cars of clover seed, 2,000 bags, 5,000 bushels, and this winter 9 cars to England. In England they weigh and deduct one pound for each bag, and then another pound per bag for the draft; so that on my 2,000 bags they docked me 2,000 pounds, and clover seed, with charges added thereto, is worth from 8 to 10 cents per pound. I mention these matters to show the old-fashioned way which they have of doing business.

The brightest business men they ever had in Montreal were large consigners of produce to England, and they all succumbed to the inevitable, with one exception; and they may be described as men appearing with their heads above a flood for a little while, and then disappearing out of sight forever.

If a Canadian dealer sends produce to the United States he sells for cash, gets paid for what he sends without any docking, and gets quick returns with moderate charges. The farmers in Canada are three fourths of the population and wealth of the country. If they will cling together, study their own interests, and not listen to politicians, and strive for commercial union, the country will reap the advantages, and their descendants will call them blessed.

"Some of these names have been familiar for years to the public as those of our most prominent public men under the following titular forms:—Sir Alex. Galt, Sir John Rose, Hon. Luther H. Holton, Hon. Senator Ferrier, Mr Redpath, the sugar refiner, Mr. Molson, banker, and Mr. David Torrance, importer.

How to Attain Health and Happiness.

The latter half of the 19th century will pass into history as one into which is crowded more inventions and discoveries for the benefit of mankind than in all the centuries that have preceded it. Among these discoveries none will take higher rank than those in medicine, calculated to relieve "the ills that flesh is heir to," restore vitality, and prolong life. Ladies everywhere will rejoice at the discovery of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, undoubtedly the greatest remedy for their peculiar ailments yet discovered. These pills are the result of an almost life study, and are a certain nerve tonic and blood builder, supplying the elements necessary to enrich the blood and transform pale, sallow or greenish complexions to the pink and glow of perfect health. These pills are an unfailing cure for nervous debility, palpitation of the heart, loss of appetite, headache and all the irregularities of the female system that entail so much misery and distress. Every suffering woman should give them a trial. For sale by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing Dr. Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. A Word of Advice.

Little troubles are proverbially the ones that cause the most worry, annoyance and vexation. But what are sometimes considered little troubles, if left to themselves, soon magnify into grave evils, producing disastrous results. This is especially true of cold in the head. The sufferer looks upon it as a trifling annoyance that needs no treatment and will speedily pass away. This is a grave mistake. There is not a case of catarrh in existence that did not have its origin in neglected cold in the head, and the longer the trouble runs the more serious the results. Cold in the head, developing into catarrh, renders the breath foul, causes a loss of the senses of taste and smell, partial deafness, distressing headaches, constant hawking and spitting, and in many, many cases ends in consumption and death. No case may have all the symptoms indicated, but the more the sufferer has the greater the danger. It is obvious, therefore, that no case of cold in the head should be neglected for an instant, and that to do so is courting further disease—perhaps death. Nasal Balm, in the most aggravated case of cold in the head, will give instant relief, and speedily effects a cure, thus preventing the developing of catarrh. No other remedy has ever met with the success that Nasal Balm has, and this is simply because it does all its manufacturer claims for it. As a precautionary remedy a bottle of Nasal Balm should be kept in every home. Sold by all dealers.

Purity Your Blood

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

THE JEWELED CROSS.

An old man said: "The years went by and it came time for me to go to college. I knew I had made progress in character-forming, despite my sins and failures, and when I bade my mother good-bye she said, 'I believe we can trust you to go into the world. You do not need any reminder of the past, or any incentive for the future more than your memory will furnish. But a little talisman that shall symbolize the worth of a true character may be helpful.' Then she gave me this cross." And as he spoke he drew from his bosom a cross set with precious stones.

"The stones are valuable," he went on; "some are common, some are rare. I will tell you their names, and you will see what a fit present it was for me. This is called Lapis Lazuli, a little blue stone, quite common, and not very valuable. It was was chosen that its initial letter 'L' might always remind me of Loyalty. The next is an Opal, and so brilliant a stone is rare. It is a fit emblem of Obedience, which is the rarest element of character." He pointed to a third: "This is seldom found. It is a bit of green mottled marble, very beautiful and very highly prized. It is called Verd Antique, and is the symbol of virtue. This one, that is almost transparent, is an Emerald. It always seems when I look into its face as if I was looking into the sea. Is it not a fit emblem of Earnestness? For the sea is the most earnest thing in this wide world. Next comes the Garnet. It was to say, Goodness is one of life's prime virtues. And last, this Diamond, sparkling and pure most indestructible and most valuable of all the group, was to flash up from its soul into mine always the one word, Decision.

"You do not know how I love this cross. Its simple gems have become living voices, and when I look at them I seem to be looking into living faces. I have been in many circumstances temptation and many times have sadly sinned, but this monitor has always helped to bring me to repentance and contrition."

The speaker stopped, as if his story was done, but in a moment added thoughtfully, "Boys, I have told you my story and have showed you this cross, that I might tell you also a dream that I dreamed last night.

"I was a young man once more, and was journeying through a long and lovely valley, where flowers were about me everywhere and perfume filled the air. The singing birds and humming bees, the rustling leaves and the rippling river seemed to join their voices to proclaim that here was a realm which sorrow had never entered. On either side of the valley were gently rolling hills crowned here and there with frost, and in the purple distance towered mountains whose summits reached the sky.

"It was morning, and not yet sunrise, as I walked through the valley. Presently in the coming light on a distant mountain summit I saw an up a mighty cross, that loomed darkly against the sky. Strong and stronger grew the light that heralded the coming day, and brighter grew the cross until it became one mass of gleaming gold, and then there shone out from it the brilliant colors of the very gems I had worn so long in my little charm. I saw them all. Amazed, I looked, and, looking heard a voice that seemed to be above and below and all around me, saying, 'Loyalty to principle, obedience to its requirements and virtue of life, will produce a character whose worth cannot be gainsayed or destroyed.' And then I cried in answer, 'Ah, yes, but how can I be true in the midst of this wicked world?' and from the colossal cross came my answer; for while I looked a transformation came that changed the gem into the gleaming initials of the name that each one bore, and suddenly above the cross upon the sky shone out the monogram so significant to us all, I. H. S., Jesus Hominum Salvator; and then I read the other way, God is love, and then—I woke; but all day long I have been thinking of my dream.

"This is my story. I may never tell you another, but I wish that each of you might learn its simple lesson, that the truest character is formed by loving God, for God is Love."

True Friendship.

A certain merchant had three sons. When the youngest one came of age he called them together and said to them, in a voice husky with emotion:

"Now, boys, you all go out into the world and acquire a knowledge of human nature. At the end of the year you will return, and the one who has acquired the best friend will receive this magnificent diamond ring.

The young men having taken the ring to a jeweler and satisfied themselves that it was not a California diamond, accepted the situation and started out. At the end of the year they returned, looking somewhat the worse for wear. The old man immediately issued his call for a mass meeting, and they gathered around him. He called for the reports from the various committees.

The first one lifted up his voice and said:

"I had an affair of honor. I got into a quarrel and a challenge passed. We were to fight at ten steps. My friend came forward and took my place. He was badly wounded, but I believe he saved my life. I claim the ring for having acquired the most self-sacrificing friend.'

Number two then took the floor and addressed the chair:

"I was on board a ship. We had a collision. I found myself in the water. My friend was near me on a hen-coop. When he saw me, he swam off and let me have the hen-coop. We were both picked up afterwards, but he undoubtedly saved my life. I think my friend was the boss."

"What sort of a friend have you got to back upon?" asked the father of the third son.

"I was in a tight place," he responded. "I had been fooling with the tiger, and had lost all my money. My friend came forward and advanced me $500, and refused to take my note for the account."

"To you belongs the ring," said the merchant. "Your older brother's friend was simply a better shot. In the case of the other brother, his friend was simply a better swimmer. They took risks, I admit; but your friend has sustained an actual, bona fide loss, for he will never get his money back. You gained the best friend, for he made actual sacrifices. Here is the priceless gem of the Orient."—Texas Siftings

The Old, Old Clock.

Oh! the old, old clock, of the household stock,
Was the brightest thing and neatest;
Its hands, though old, had a touch of gold,
And its chime rang still the sweetest:
'Twas a monitor, too, though its words were few,
Yet they lived, though nations alter'd;
And its voice, still strong, warn'd old and young,
When the voice of friendship falter'd!
Tick, tick, it said; quick, quick to bed;
For "tee" I've given warning;
Up, up—and go—or else, you know,
You'll never rise soon in the morning.
A friendly voice was that old, old clock,
As it stood in the corner smiling,
And blem'd the time, with a merry chime,
The wintry hours beguiling.
But a cross old voice was that tiresome clock
As it call'd at daybreak boldly,
When the dawn looked gray, o'er the misty way,
And the early air blew coldly!
Tick, tick, it said; quick out of bed,
For "five" I've given warning;
You'll never have health, you'll never get wealth,
Unless you're up soon in the morning!

Still hoarily the sound goes round and round,
With a tone that ceases never;
While tears are shed for the bright days fled,
And the old friends lost forever!
Its heart beats on—though hearts are gone
That warmer beat and younger;
Its hands still move—though hands we love
Are clasped on earth no longer!
Tick—tick! it said—to the church-yard bed;
The grave hath given warning;—
Up—up,—and rise to the angel skies—
And enter a Heavenly morning.

How to Prevent Consumption.

"Life is sweet," is an old saying, and just as true as it is old. No one in his or her right senses courts death; all wish to prolong life to the utmost limit, and yet, in spite of this universal desire to live the allotted three score years and ten—and even longer—thousands upon thousands of people through carelessness and neglect, are hastening the time when they must stand face to face with the grim reaper, and make the plunge alone into "the dark valley of the shadow of death." No disease on this continent claims so many victims as consumption, and reliable statistics prove that fully two thirds of the deaths occuring from consumption had their origin in catarrh. Nothing but negligence caused this last disease to develop into consumption, and the person who neglects to promptly and persistently treat catarrh until all traces are eradicated, is simply hastening the coming of death. Even should catarrh not develop into consumption, it nevertheless shortens life, as every breath the patient inhales passes over poisonous secretions and thus affects the whole system. For the cure of catarrh no remedy ever discovered equals Nasal Balm, which is recognized from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the only certain cure for this disease. It removes the secretions from the nostrils, stops the poisonous droppings into the throat and lungs and makes the user feel that a new lease of life has been given him. This great catarrh remedy is on sale with all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price—50cts. for small and $1.00 for large size bottles—by addressing Fulford & Co. Brockville, Ont.

MEETING OF WORKINGMEN.

A Dire Failure From the Conservative Standpoint.

Mr. Jury Carries the Meeting—Mr. Armstrong's Address Most Disappointing—Protection Does Not Protect the Workingmen—A Lively and Interesting Meeting.

The announcement that two recognized champions of labour were to meet in debate upon the public platform drew a large audience, composed principally of workingmen, to the opera house Friday night. The gallery was well filled with ladies.

The Conservatives must feel very depressed over the results of the meeting, the tone was so evidently favourable to the Liberals. Mr. Jury's clear, concise and practical address carried conviction to the hearts of his hearers, and all the rant about loyalty and the generalities indulged in by his adversaries fell with little effect. Mr. Jury was enthusiastically received by the audience, but his subsequent treatment was not so generous. In the first place he was allowed allowed only half an hour to speak, though he was distinctly told by Mr. Arthur Stevenson last Saturday night he would be given an hour. The chairman, Mr. Adam Dawson, said he could not change the programme as it had been handed him, but put on a veneer of generosity and allowed Mr. Jury forty minutes. Mr. Jury was frequently interrupted, and altogether scarcely received fair treatment. However, in the short time at his disposal, he made a telling address, full of indisputable facts, which, as the report will show, the following speakers scarcely attempted to reply to. Mr. Armstrong does not compare with Mr. Jury as a public speaker, and found it too great a task for his abilities to show that the present policy of the government was what the workingmen had been led to expect it would be.

LOCAL POLITICS.

Mr. ARTHUR RUTHERFORD was the first speaker. He explained to the audience that he was not in favor of reciprocity because in consultation with several other manufacturers he had found it would not be to his interest to change the trade policy of the country. The workingmen were willing to admit that; but what they wanted to know was, wherein the N. P. had benefitted them and is going to benefit them. Mr. Rutherford reviewed some of the leading industries of the town, which he credited to the N. P., and made the astonishing statement that if unrestricted reciprocity was brought about the Lock Works would close down within 24 hours. He also insinuated, though he did not openly assert, that a certain local manufacturer was opposed to free trade. He wound up with the usual appeal to the "trooly loil" to not desert the old flag, etc.

A RATTLING SPEECH.

Mr. JURY was called on. He protested against being given only half an hour when he came on the distinct understanding that he was to receive an hours' time. He asked if that was British fair play. (Loud cries of "No.") He said those who had broken the agreement would be responsible to the workingmen for not giving their representative a fair hearing. (Applause.) Replying to Mr. Rutherford, who said that Mr. Geo. A. Cox in 1887 was not in favor of changing the policy of the government, Mr. Jury said there was not the same need for a change then as there was now. The time had come when a change was necessary. (Applause.) He took Mr. Rutherford's statements that so many thousands of dollars in wages were spent here annually, and that the principles of our industries were much cheaper now than previously, and that our industries were all in a flourishing state—and asked, if this was the case, why did they need so much protection? If these industries were so prosperous they did not need much protection. Mr. Rutherford admitted that the town had to bonus these industries to bring them here; if it was the bonuses brought them here, what had the N.P. to do with it, then? Bonuses had the effect simply of drawing an industry from one town to another. What did we want protection for, then? From Mr. Rutherford's talk, Mr. Jury said, one would imagine it was the Peterborough Policy, not the National Policy, that had done so much for the town. All this talk about the industries closing up was simply which would be punished in England, Mr. Jury said, by fine and imprisonment. (Cheers.) He asked the workingmen what had been the effect of the N.P.? If Canada was as prosperous to-day as the Conservatives tried to make out, why was it that so many Canadians have to go to the States to live? He showed from the statistics given in the report of the labor commission in 1884, that wages then under the N.P. averaged $333 00, as against $366.00 under the Mackenzie regime. (Applause.) The workingmen were promised that under that policy Canada would be for the Canadians, as a motto suspended in the hall read, and that the articles of manufacture imported into this country would be made at home, and work given to the Canadian mechanic. How had that promise been fulfilled? Mr. Jury read a long list, taken from the trade and navigation returns showing the amount of imports of manufactured articles last year, amounting to many millions, in spite of the N.P., and the epigram, "Canada for the Canadians." (Applause.) Senator Macdonald at the Board of Trade in Toronto, when free trade was discussed, said, "Gentlemen, if you have free trade the price of goods will decrease 33 per cent."—thus admitting that a fictitious value of 33 per cent. was placed upon goods here, which the people had to pay, and which the Red Parlor manufacturers received. (Applause.) Another motto stuck up in the hall read, "Protection for the Farmers and Manufacturers alike." The N. P. protected the manufacturers well enough; they were able to place an artificial value on their products. Farmers, lumbermen, etc., the producers of the natural products, were subjected to the competition of the world, of the Hindoo, who was able to live on two meals of rice a day, have to sell and buy at protective prices. (Applause.) Look at the class of men reared by the N.P. Men like Mr. Gurney, of Toronto, who, went he had trouble with his moulders, went to Albany and got a carload of "scabs;" McCleary, of London, whose firm employed ex-convicts of Kimira State Reformatory. These were undeniable facts printed in the Report of the Labor Commission. What protection did this policy give the workingmen? (Cheers.) Imagine the Canadian workman thus thrown out of employment by these foreign importations, with the rigors of a Canadian winter coming on. He is not protected against outside competition, but he has to pay a heavy protective duty on clothes, stoves and articles to keep himself warm. Look at Redpath, the sugar refiner, living in a castle in England formerly occupied by the Emperor of France, now owned by Emperor Redpath. (Applause.) That was not the sort of protection the working people of Canada wanted. ("No" and applause.) Canadian workingmen had to pay more duty on their tools than the manufacturer did on his, and, in addition to all this, the government last year admitted duty free twelve million dollars' worth of manufactured articles required by the Red Parlour magnates to use in the production of their goods. (Applause.) Referring to the printing trade (that being Mr Armstrong's avocation), Mr. Jury pointed out that when the Mail employees' wages were reduced in 1882 or '83, they did not dare strike, because the managers of the then Tory paper had enough "scabs" ready in Buffalo to bring over and

AT ROCK BOTTOM PRICES,

PUT IN THEIR PLACES.

Mr. Jury also said that in 1878 the printers' wages in Toronto was 33c. per thousand ems, and now 30c. How well the N.P. protected the printer! (Applause.) Mr. Armstrong, he said, was a good union man, but a bitter Conservative. Mr. Jury pointed out several instances where Mr. Armstrong had shown that his political leanings were paramount to his interest in the workingmen. He only mentioned these things, he said, because he knew Mr. Armstrong was "loaded" that way and he had to reply to him first. Mr. Armstrong would run down the Ontario government and drag Ontario politics into the discussion when they had no share in it now. He should tell the workingmen what the policy he advocated has done for the man who has only his labor to sell. (Applause.) Great stress was laid on the fact that the Ontario government in five years spent a million dollars in assisting emigration, but Mr. Jury offset against this $2,253,000 spent by the present Government in seven years for the same purpose. Why had not the

to the laboring man been kept? The fact that the C. P. R. was largely built by Chinese labor (and Sir John defended this course) while the company received immense subsidies from the Government, was pointed to. He asked Mr. Armstrong to defend that government that was on trial for breaking its promises, for impoverishing the country, for having adopted its industries, that has spent millions of money recklessly, that has brought in emigrant labor to compete with Canadian workmen and lower wages, that has debauched Ryhert, McGreevy and others, that has disfranchised more than a hundred thousand young men in this election, that has refused manhood suffrage to the people—he asked Mr. Armstrong to explain these things and not deal with the Ontario government, which was on trial in June last and was again triumphantly sustained (Loud Cheers.) The Ontario government gave manhood suffrage on the broadest basis—one man, one vote, but the Dominion government granted it only under certain conditions as to salary, etc., though the workingmen was discriminated against even in this, for the workingmen could get only one vote while the rich man could vote in every division in which he owned property. At this point the chairman called "time" and Mr. Jury sat down amidst loud applause.

A PUZZLING QUESTION.

Mr. J. H. LONG, M.A., formerly principal of the Collegiate Institute here, and late Unitarian preacher at Spokane Falls, Washington, U.S., was the next speaker. He handled the question of reciprocity, and, assuming gratuitously that it meant annexation, pictured the deplorable moral degradation and business stagnation existing in the United States, a country which Canada would not desire to annex itself to. He was entirely opposed to unrestricted reciprocity and said if the Conservative party came out on that platform he would oppose them.

When Mr. Long sat down Mr. A. McFarlane asked a question. If, as Mr. Long had stated, there were laboringmen in Tacoma, Seattle and western cities working for their board alone, what had become of their wives and families?

Mr. LONG replied that he had intended to say that there were hundreds of men idle in those cities, out of work, which they could not get, and he presumed from that they were willing to work for their board. (Laughter and cries of "Oh.")

Mr. ROBT. WEIR came to the platform to announce that Geo. Record, who had worked in town, had sent home from Seattle for money to bring him back, as he could not get work.

Mr. MCFARLANE was about to add, when prevented by the chairman, that a nephew of his not long ago went out to the British Columbia looking for work, but he could get none until he got across the line into Washington State, where he is now earning $3.50 per day.

[At the conclusion of the meeting, the chairman invited Mr. McFarlane to speak. He took the platform, but the Conservative part of the audience (the smaller part, by the way) extended him the British fair play of refusing to hear him, even after the chairman's polite invitation.]

A FLAT EFFORT.

Mr. ARMSTRONG, the speaker of the evening, being called upon, first defended his character as a union man, and while deprecating the alleged personalities indulged in by Mr. Jury replied with more direct personalities, which Mr. Jury rose and gave prompt denial to. He then took up the very line of argument Mr. Jury predicted he would, and began a justification of the Dominion Government's course in emigrant assistance by comparing it with the Ontario government figures. Then he rambled and mumbled through an exceedingly dismal address aimed against unrestricted reciprocity and all who dared to speak up for this policy, rehashing the old "obstacle" about annexation and treason, and hurrah for the old flag, the old man, and the old policy. He also paid a high tribute to Canadian pluck and skill by saying that there were scores of industries in Toronto and elsewhere which could not not last six months under unrestricted reciprocity. Mr. Armstrong got so interested in petty trivialities regarding Toronto printers that he forgot all about Mr. Jury's arguments, and closed without a reference to the question of the day as they affected workingmen.

Mr. Armstrong made many brilliant oratorical sparts, and was particularly eloquent on the old flag subject. The EXAMINER regrets that it has not space for a verbatim report of his speech, but a sample or two will give a good idea—ex uno disce omnes. He closed one impassioned burst of eloquence by saying that if Sir John were returned to power every loyal Canadian could sing—"I Know that My Redeemer Liveth." (Cold chills down the Conservate spines.) After his audience partially recovered, Mr. Armstrong set off another oratorical rocket. He urged his hearers to vote for Mr. Stevenson, for "by voting for Mr. Stevenson you will be voting for your country and your God." (Horrified silence.) Bob Ingersoll is in danger of losing his medal for blasphemy.

After Mr. Armstrong went to sleep Mr. Kendry got up to contradict the statements contained in Mr. Boas' letter, and flatly denied the statements contained in the latter's letter giving the size of his woollen mills. He said that he was there to prove that the mills of the Payton Manufacturing Company, Sherbrooke, were much larger, but all the proof he adduced was his own assertion and the assertion of a correspondent. He repeated that Mr. Boas was a man of no standing and experience and accused him of trying to force a combine last summer, but he did not call attention to the fact that Mr. Boas was now fighting to kill the high tariff vulture that hatched the combine. Mr. Kendry seemed to enjoy airing his eloquence.

The meeting closed with the usual cheers.

Last Night's "Labour" Meeting.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—Kindly permit me to encroach upon your valuable space, that I may make a few remarks about last evening's rally—rather rabble—held by the Conservatives. That it was an ill-conducted affair, from the chair down, was quite apparent to everybody. Was it intended to be a meeting for the workingmen of Peterborough, or for an individual manufacturer's benefit, for giving him an opportunity to intimidate the workingmen? Are not the Conservative workingmen capable of running their own meeting without any interference on Mr. Kendry's part? The latter gentleman may have been appointed, or he may have selected the position of master of ceremonies himself. It was supposed to have been a workingmen's meeting, not a manufacturer's. Mr. Kendry pathetically related how he was included in the latter class. He certainly made an extraordinary offer—extraordinary on account of the safety upon which he made it—that of giving $500 to any charitable institution to which Mr. Boas might name, if he would substantiate his statement in the letter, which "I hold in my hand, and upon this platform." It was perfectly clear to all who had read the letter that Mr. Boas didn't state that he had the largest mill, and hence Mr. Kendry's generous (?) offer. At any rate it took well among the thoughtless, and received a goodly amount of applause, until he sprung it up again, when he was met by cries of "he didn't state that," and "read it." He then took a sudden turn from the "manufacturer of yesterday," who, by the way, is ready to stand on an equality with American manufacturers, which fact alone is enough to convince any mechanic that a man who, after twelve years' protection, is afraid to do likewise, and appeals to the workingmen for more. Is is perfectly apparent that he is simply trying to hoodwink the public. He makes us unjust, and as Mr. Jury asserted, an untruthful attack on the latter gentleman for keeping only foreign goods in his store in Toronto. A well known business man of this town was heard to say he could not "sell the Canadian unless he called them Scotch or English." Perhaps Mr. Jury played this same ruse on Mr. Kendry when he visited his store. Summing it all up the Conservative workingmen's rally was a failure so far as encouraging the latter to vote for the N. P. They who attended the meeting for the purpose of hearing Mr. Jury's statements, extremely logical as a great number of them were, disproved, were sadly disappointed, at hearing Mr. Long's plausable speech, and Mr. Armstrong's mixed up illogical address. There are say number of boys attending the Collegiate Institute better qualified to address the working class or any other than he is.

In conclusion I would venture to say that, whilst Mr. Armstrong was supposed to show why the workingmen of Peterborough should vote for the present government's reinstatement, it must have had the opposite effect, when he failed to put forth one sensible, logical statement; parleying with the miseries which he supposes the U. S. are affected. Thanking you for the space allotted me,

I remain, yours, etc.,

The Furniture Trade and the "N. P."

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I would like to correct a statement made by one of the speakers at last night's meeting in the opera house. In speaking of the state of trade Mr. Armstrong referred to the furniture trade and tried to leave the impression that the furniture trade had been largely benefitted by the N. P. and that the furniture manufacturers throughout the Dominion, and especially this Province, were going to support the three O's—that is the O.A Man, the Old Flag and the Old Policy. He also gave his hearers the impression that Toronto had a number of wholesale furniture manufacturers. Now what are the facts? In 1878 a great deal was said about this branch of trade. We were told that our people could not compete and that this Canada of ours was made a slaughter ground for the cheapest American furniture, but give us the N. P. and such factories as R. Hay & Co.'s, which was then doing little or nothing, would be running full time and employing a hundred men, where they now only employ ten. Have those promises been fulfilled? No, R. Hay & Co. were obliged to go out of business six or seven years ago, and after the N. P. came in force they only worked along with a few hands for a year or two disposing of the stock and working up the raw and partly manufactured material. Where the factory stood is now built up with warehouses, and the site where the white rooms stood on King st. is now occupied by the Canadian Bank of Commerce building. There has been several attempts to start a furniture factory in Toronto during the last ten years, but all have failed, there are no cabinet makers employed in Toronto to-day except a few who do odd jobs and ordered work. Among the names in the "Empires honor list" were those of James Hay, of Woodstock, the largest manufacturer of furniture in Canada, D. Knechtel of Hanover, Ont. To show that this honor roll is a fabrication and a lie from start to finish, one has only to read the denials that are published every day. On Wednesday evening last James Hay, of Woodstock, sat on the platform at Mr. Kerr's meeting in centre Toronto, where our townsman, Mr. John Bertram, was one of the principal speakers, and while on the the platform, Mr. Hay was told that his name was on the Empire's list. He exclaimed, is that so! Well, that is the first I have heard of it; and he said, and he was in favour of Reciprocity; that he had now a factory in New York State; that he was not afraid of competition; that his factory in Woodstock, the largest in Canada, was not running, and had not been for some time, because he could not find sale for his goods. Mr. D. Knechtel, of the Knechtel, Furniture Company, of Hanover, writes to the Globe that he is not in favour of the N.P.; that he intends to vote for the Reform candidate on March 5th. He says he is not making money, and cannot make money with the restricted market to which we have access.

In short there is not a furniture manufacturer in the province making money. The large furniture factory in Ottawa has long since gone out of existence, although they used to employ two to three hundred hands, since then the town bonused another company and gave the factory free of rent and taxes and it failed also. The Bowmanville Furniture Co. made an assignment a short time ago. Hess Bros., of Listowel, failed about 4 years ago, a new company was formed, and only this week the town of Listowel took proceedings to foreclose a mortgage on the property for money loaned them. The company had pledged themselves to employ not less than one hundred and fifty hands, but had not been able to keep fifty going, and this is only what may be said of nearly every factory in the west, at Wingham, at Berlin, at Seaforth, at Mount Forest, at Guelph, at Napanee, at Belleville and other places, not to speak of our defunct Lindsay & Seldon Furniture Co. and Mr. McKee's Parlor frame factory here. Jacob Zingsheim, of Hamilton, one of the most successful manufacturers in Canada, who confines himself to fine furniture (a sample of his bedroom furniture may be seen in my window now) said to me a week or two ago that he had been in favour of the N.P., but would vote for reciprocity. He said he had made money during the last twelve years, but felt sure that, with access to the markets of New York State alone, he could make more money in two years than he had made in the last ten. If we are able, as Canadians to go over to the States and secure the best places either as mechanics, clerks or professional men, surely we can compete with them on our own soil. Just one question for the thinking mechanics; if a suit of clothes, as was stated by Mr. J. H. Long last evening, that can be bought here for $30 00 will cost in the States $60.00 and that in a place where wheat is selling at 37c. per bushel and men are willing to work for their board, why cannot the Auburn Woolen Mills compete successfully in that market.

A Few Supplementary Facts.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—At last night's meeting a great deal was said about the government's solicitude in behalf of the workingmen, but Mr. Kendry and the other orators forgot to mention that all the stone-cutting for the customs building now being erected here was, and is being, done at Ottawa, and when the government built the post office here the stone cutting was done at or near Belleville. Peterborough stone-cutters got very little, if any, work on these buildings. But, I suppose, if any of Mr. Kendry's employees dared to vote against the government which showed its interest in the workingmen in that way, he would discharge him as he did the man who would not vote for his candidate last June. While I am on this subject, I might add that Messrs. James Thomas, William and Michael McNamara, all bricklayers, and Mr. Wm. Whitehair, are now working in Seattle, U.S., at from $6 to $7 per day. Also, plasterers in Peterborough to-day get 6c. and 7c. a square yard for two coat work, that he used to get 12½c. for in Mackenzie's time—and they cannot get work even at this figure, except with great difficulty. These facts ought to show conclusively that protection does not protect the workingman, as stump orators say it does, nor keep Canadians, and good Tories at that, in Canada.

ONE OF THE WORKINGMEN.

The Government and Workingmen.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—If the fair play accorded Mr. Jury last night is a sample of the treatment the Government intend to give workingmen, the workingmen don't want any of that government.

Yours truly
JACK PLANE.

A Fruitful Cause of Insanity.

This is a question that from time to time is discussed in scientific journals, and when one sees the vast number of broken down, listless and prematurely old men found in every community, one is almost forced to admit that the race is deteriorating. The causes leading to this decline in manhood are various, and among them may be mentioned overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, over indulgence of appetites, and excesses of various kinds, all leading to shattered nerves, loss of vital forces and premature decay, and often to insanity. To all thus suffering Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a boon. They build up shattered nerves, enrich the blood, stimulate the brain, and reinforce the exhausted system. All who are suffering from any of the causes that break down and enfeeble the system should use these pills, and will find them a sure and speedy restorative. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price—50 cents a box—by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Baby's Own Soap

When our baby was six months old it broke out with an itchy rash on its face, which soon spread over its body and limbs. It caused it much pain and disfigured it very much. I tried various remedies, but it got no better, and I was afraid it would be disfigured for life. I was induced to try CUTICURA SOAP, and before I had used half a cake I could see a change for the better, and by the time it had used two cakes the rash had entirely disappeared, and baby's skin was as clear as ever it was. I shall always keep CUTICURA SOAP in the house, as baby's skin is very liable to break out in a rash, and I find that CUTICURA SOAP is the only thing that will keep it clear. I cannot speak too highly of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I recommend CUTICURA wherever I can. I would be pleased to see any one and talk to them of the good it has done my boy.

TO THE ELECTORS —OF— West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to secure my return in the present election. In dread of the disastrous consequences to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

RICHARD HALL.

MURDERED HER BABE.

SHOCKING CASE OF INFANTICIDE AT TORONTO.

A Young Woman Attempts to Leave Her Five Weeks' Old Babe at a Foundling Hospital, and Being Refused Admittance, Wrings Its Neck.

TORONTO, March 2.—Detective Black has arrested a young woman named Sarah Fox, who has confessed the murder of the female child whose body was found on Friday morning in the rear of Dr. Richardson's house, No. 36 St. Joseph-street.

Meanwhile Detective Black had been working out some private information he had received. He discovered that a girl named Serah Fox of Davisville had been discharged with her child from the Burnside Hospital five weeks ago. He traced them to a baby-farming institution in Centre-street, where the girl had left the infant for four weeks. On Wednesday morning of last week she took it from there to a Mrs. Phillips, who keeps a similar establishment, 30 Huron-street, who agreed to keep it for her. She gave Mrs. Phillips a wrong address. The woman on Thursday morning determined not to keep the little one and started out to find the mother.

On Thursday night Mrs. Phillips sent a boy and girl to the coffee house with the child, with instructions to hand it to the mother, which they did.

Miss Fox took the little one and left the coffee house, saying she was going to take the unfortunate babe to her mother in Davisville. This was the last seen of the child alive.

Armed with the clothes of the dead infant Detective Black traced it from the house in Centre-street to the baby farm in Huron-street, thence to the mother's arms and after that to Dr. Richardson's yard. A warrant charging the girl with murder was secured and at her place of employment she was arrested. She was taken to Agnes-street station and transferred to the jail after a short sojourn in police headquarters.

From the moment of her arrest the unhappy girl made no secret of the crime. She broke down and wept, but through her tears confessed to the murder. She said that she had found it hard enough trying to support herself and could not support the child. On leaving the Coffee House she said she had strangled the infant by twisting the strings of its little cape around its neck, and this done and satisfied that it was dead she had flung it over the fence, and on this point, which happened to be the night's work. She said she supposed the skull had been fractured in falling.

Sarah Fox, the self-confessed murderess, is 20 years old, of dark complexion, medium height, and though passably good looking does not seem very bright. Her parents are working people and have resided in Davisville since their arrival from England some six years ago. The girl had only been two weeks employed in the League Coffee House, being chosen out of 17 applicants who had called in answer to an advertisement.

She will not be brought to court until the assizes are held as the coroner's warrant under which she was arrested stands as a commitment.

Alleged Forger Released.

BERLIN, March 1.—Fleischin, the German broker, arrested on the charge of sending telegrams to the London stock exchange to which was forged the name of M. Camonda, the Paris banker, has been liberated.

Foreign Labor Trouble.

A dock laborers' strike has been begun at Hull at the docks used by the Shipping Federation. The latter has plenty of men in spite of the strike.

All the dock laborers employed at Aberdeen have gone out on strike.

The coal miners' strike continues in Durham. The mine owners have refused to make any concessions to the men.

In the expectation of a general strike among the men employed in and about the coal mines of Germany, the mine owners have come to the determination to form a federation similar to the English Shipping Federation.

Killed by a Fall.

BARRIE, March 1.—Robert Fletcher, a farmer living near Ivey P.O., fell off a load of hay Friday, striking on his head, receiving injuries from which he died in a few hours.

A Corpse Held the Reins.

WOODSTOCK, March 1.—John Calkins, a fish peddler, dropped dead here to-day while driving along Reeve-street. Heart disease is supposed to be the trouble.

Three Men Dead.

BUFFALO, March 1.—James Ryan and Earl Vader, two of the men injured in the disastrous wreck at East Buffalo Friday night, died yesterday morning.

Foreign Notes.

The New Review publishes Lord Tennyson's latest poem, a sonnet of nine lines, for which it paid £108.

Despite Bismarck's refusal to stand as a candidate for the Reichstag for the nineteenth district of Hanover, Herr Schoof, a prominent National Liberal member of the Lower House of the Prussian Diet, asks the electors to return Bismarck, declaring that he will not refuse to serve now that there is a prospect of a crisis in Germany's foreign affairs.

The London newspapers devote much space to the Canadian situation and betray a good deal of anxiety as to the result of the campaign. The matter also receives attention in conjunction with the meeting of the Australian Federation conference. The organ of the Imperial Federation movement says it is impossible to overestimate the importance of the outcome in Canada. If concerns Great Britain's future fully as much as it does that of Canada, and in this view of the case the paper urges that in the event of Sir John Macdonald's return means be devised to render a similar crisis impossible in the future.

Admiral Hammer died suddenly yesterday at Weimar from heart disease.

United States Senator Hearst of California died in Washington Saturday.

Henry Hope Morley, aged 38 years, son of the late Samuel Morley, committed suicide at London, England. He was an eccentric philanthropist.

George Kynock, M. P. for Aston Manor, Warwickshire, England, is dead. He had only been a member for three years. Kynock was a Conservative and a strong opponent of Home Rule.

The death of Sir Joseph William Bazalgette, the eminent engineer, is announced at London. He was born in 1819, and was at one time chief engineer of the Metropolitan Board of Works. While in this office he was instrumental in perfecting the drainage system of London. He designed and executed the Albert and Chelsea embankments and other works. He was created a Companion of the Bath in 1871, and was knighted in 1874.

A NEW NATION.

AUSTRALIAN COLONIES TAKE STEPS TO FEDERATE.

Important Convention to be Held in Victoria—Strikers Attempt to Board a Steamer and a Number are Shot—Carroty Neil's Alleged Slayer Will be Released.

LONDON, March 1.—Monday, March 2, will be memorable in the history of the British Empire. The representatives of the Australian continent will meet on that day in Sydney to frame a constitution for their Federal Government. Tasmania will be included in this great confederation of the Southern seas, and a large share of New Guinea will also belong to it as a subordinate territory. Sydney, as the mother city of Australian colonies, has been well chosen for the gathering. It is understood that Sir Henry Parkes will probably be selected as the president of the convention. The idea of a federal constitution with a legislature and executive was his, and to his energy is due the successful initiation of the mighty scheme. The various colonies are each to be represented by the Premier or some other man almost equally prominent. It is understood that a union will not be accomplished without difficulties, and the principal difficulty is believed to be the question of free trade and protection. Most of the colonies are now protectionist as against each other and the rest of the world. Victoria especially is ultra-protectionist. It is believed, however, that the result will be the reference to the Federal Government of the tariff question with the reservation that there shall be free trade between the colonies. The Federal Government will probably be entrusted with the customs tariff, regulation of external trade and commerce, defence, posts and telegraphs, marriage and divorce, currency and banking, fisheries, beacons and buoys, quarantine, patents, census and statistics. The example of America is already being quoted as to the wisdom of federation, and the proceedings of the convention that framed the United States Constitution are being closely studied by Australian statesmen. New Zealand will send representatives to the convention, but stands apart for the present from the union. The reason is said to be that the New Zealanders believe that owing to their isolation they cannot get along without British protection, and they apprehend that the Australian union is a first step toward separation from Great Britain. This is disclaimed by Australians generally. There is but little doubt that New Zealand will ultimately come in. The Federation will start out with a fine fleet of war vessels, now being built in Great Britain at the expense of and for the Australian colonies, so that the inauguration of the new government, when it comes, will be a most imposing spectacle, both by land and sea.

The Arizona Floods.

DENVER, Col., March 1.—A special from Yuma, Arizona, says that in that town over 250 houses are in ruins from the flood and 1400 people are homeless and not a single business house remains standing, and it is feared that hundreds of lives have been lost in the Gila Valley. The telegraph wires are down into the valley and as all bridges are gone and roads impassable no reliable reports can be had from there. The river above town is seven miles wide and below the town in places the water covers the country in one grand lake over 50 miles across.

A boat which has just arrived from Mohawk, 60 miles up the Gila River, brings reports of terrible loss of life, all the country being under water. The greatest sufferers are the poor Mexicans whose entire possessions have been swept away and who have no resources to fall back upon. There is yet a vast stretch of territory to be heard from and everyone fears that when full returns are in the loss of life will prove of appalling magnitude.

A Murderer Caught After 23 Years.

BELVIDERE, N. J., March 1.—The sheriff of Monroe County, Penn., has received a letter from the State of Washington, saying that William Brooks, one of the murderers of Theodore Brodhead, at the Delaware Gap in 1868, has just been captured in that state. Brooks and his companion, Charles Orme, were tried and convicted of the crime, after which both escaped from jail. Orme was subsequently captured and hanged.

Scattered to the Four Winds.

NEW YORK, March 1.—A committee of four from the Staten Island Schultzen Corps appointed to carry out the request of Henry Meyer, proprietor of the Fuck Hotel at Pt. Richmond, that his ashes be scattered to the winds from the top of the Statue of Liberty on Bedloe's Island fulfilled their mission to-day. The four committee men, each holding one of the bags containing the ashes in his right hand, pronounced these words together: "Here goes the last of Fuck Meyer—happy days," and then scattered the ashes to the winds.

A Boston Steamer Lost.

NEW YORK, March 1.—The steamer Pennland, which has arrived from Antwerp, reports that on Feb. 23 she sighted the Warren line steamer Iowa, Capt. Owens, from Boston Feb. 10 for Liverpool. The steamer Chester, Capt. Tolls, from Rotterdam for New York, was taking off in her boats the crew of the Iowa. The captain of the Pennland thinks the Iowa was struck by an iceberg. The vessel had sustained such injuries as rendered her not only helpless but placed her in danger of foundering. There were on board a crew of 60 men, 21 cattlemen and a stowaway.

Molly Maguires Abroad Again.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 1.—A band of men calling themselves White Caps, but who pursue the tactics of the Molly Maguires, has been formed at Pricneburg, three miles south of here. Walter Gerwyn, superintendent of Gerwyn's mines, and his foreman, Mr. Gilgallen, have received warning notes decorated with coffins, skulls and crossbones, and William Leibenhan, the docking boss, was warned by a party of disguised men to resign his position and leave town. He resigned. The authorities apprehend trouble.

A Ride to Death.

WHITWELL, Tenn., March 1.—The cable of the incline at the coal mines here broke this morning as the miners were going to work and the car dashed down the mountain. Two men were killed instantly and 11 seriously hurt. Several of the injured, it is thought, will die.

FRANCE AND GERMANY.

PARIS EXCITED OVER THE VISIT OF THE EMPRESS.

The Kaiser is a Fraction Over the Treatment of His Mother—France May be Called Upon to Explain Her Conduct—The Alsace-Lorraine Passports.

PARIS, March 1.—This has been the most critical week in Paris since the Franco-Prussian war. The real gravity of the situation is becoming better understood now than when the Empress Frederick was actually present. Even Count von Munster, the German ambassador, it is now known, was of the opinion that the ex-empress was making a mistake in prolonging her stay. But of course he was powerless to interfere. The royal visitor, with the very best intentions in the world, made some blunders which showed a marked lack of diplomatic instinct. For instance, she publicly made the remark that her visit to Versailles was prompted by sentimental considerations; that there were so many recollections of her late husband centered there, etc. The Parisians could hardly fail to misinterpret this. Versailles is to them bitter memory. The coup de grace was furnished by the savage editorial of The Cologne Gazette. This article utterly destroyed every vestige of good feeling that might have sprung from a belief in the conciliatory purpose of the ex-Empress. To crown all and to destroy confidence in the belief that the incident was ended with the departure of the ex-Empress came the order of Chancellor von Caprivi for greater severity in the observance of passport regulations. A portion of the French press denounce the order in terms of unmeasured bitterness, while all the journals condemn it and draw gloomy prognostications therefrom. It is generally regarded as a wilful act of provocation. This feeling is strengthened by the comments of the Berlin press, wherein it is admitted that Caprivi's action was the result of the treatment accorded the Empress Frederick in Paris. Much disquietude and forebodings prevail.

PARIS, March 1.—M. Deroulede presided at a meeting of his friends to-day to congratulate the people upon the outcome of the patriotic agitation and the French artists' decision not to send works to the Berlin Art Exhibition. It was resolved to present silver medals to Cassagnac, Rochefort and others. A ball followed the meeting. The ladies present pledged themselves never to dance with a German.

BERLIN, March 1.—The Emperor's wrath at the failure of the visit of Empress Frederick to Paris to establish in some sort good feeling between Germany and France has fallen upon both Chancellor von Caprivi and Count von Munster, the German ambassador at Paris. Upon the former for advising the trying of the experiment, and upon the latter for assenting to the Empress' prolonged stay and to her fatally indiscreet visit to Versailles.

The Emperor is determined to obtain from the French Government some form of satisfaction for the treatment accorded his mother. There are rumors that Caprivi will be ousted from his position and that Count von Munster will be recalled.

The Paris incident is a triumph for Prince Bismarck. The well-grounded criticism of the Bismarckian press will not tend to allay the Emperor's irritation.

STRASBURG, March 1.—A decree published to-day by Prince von Hohenlohe-Schillingfurst, Governor of Alsace-Lorraine, announces that from March 3 next all the passport regulations which refer to Alsace-Lorraine will be carried out to the fullest extent and that all facilities for through tickets on railroads have been rescinded.

PARIS, March 1.—The instructions sent by Chancellor von Caprivi yesterday to the Governor of Alsace-Lorraine, Prince von Hohenlohe-Schillingfurst, to refrain from mitigating the passport regulation in Alsace-Lorraine, as previously proposed, and not to extend in any way additional facilities to the inhabitants of the French frontier communes to attend markets and fairs in German territory, have caused considerable excitement in Paris. The Parisian newspapers to-day publish violent articles on the subject and are certainly not in any way tending to relieve the strained relations at present existing between Germany and France on account of the attacks made upon the Empress Frederick during her stay in the French capital.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—On the Stock Exchange to-day foreign securities opened ¼ per cent. under the closing prices of yesterday owing to the irritation which has arisen between France and Germany in consequence of the treatment of the Empress Frederick in Paris. Other securities opened steady.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 28.—The Russian press is unanimous in endorsing the refusal of the French artists to take part in the Berlin art exhibition, as well as in condemning the irritation which the Germans have shown.

The Russell Divorce Case.

LONDON, March 1.—The Central News Association announces to-day that it learns in relation to the application made by Lady Russell, wife of Earl Russell, in the Divorce Division of the High Court of Justice for a writ of separation from her husband, that the details of the case will be exceedingly painful and that the evidence will probably be heard in camera. Adultery is not charged against the defendant. The petitioner is only 25 years of age. Earl Russell has filed a complete denial of the charges brought against him.

Sadler Likely to be Liberated.

LONDON, March 1.—It is believed that the police will have to discharge Sadler, the man accused of the murder of "Carroty Nell." One of the most important witnesses against Sadler died suddenly the other day and there is very little testimony on which to ask for his committal. The coroner's jury having failed to implicate him is also a strong argument in his favor.

The treasury department will drop the prosecution of Sadler, the man who was arrested on suspicion of being the man who murdered Carroty Nell in the Whitechapel district two weeks ago.

A McCarthy Meeting.

DUBLIN, March 1.—The McCarthyite faction of the Irish party held a quiet meeting at Rathkealer, county Limerick, to-day. Messrs. Abraham and Finucane, M.P.'s, made speeches. There were no priests at either the McCarthyite or the Parnellite meeting. This was due to the fact that Bishop O'Dwyer had advised the priests to abstain from attending political meetings.

Fatal Fall Down Stairs.

HALIFAX, March 1.—Thomas Mason of St. Margaret's Bay, a well-known sportsman, was killed yesterday by falling down stairs.

Prince Napoleon's Will.

LONDON, March 1.—It is stated from Rome that Prince Napoleon has made a will disinheriting his son Prince Victor and indicating Prince Louis as the next Emperor. Prince Napoleon is reported slightly better. He took some food to-day.

Fatally Injured by a Bag of Beans.

DUTTON, March 1.—Dugald Graham of Dunwich was engaged in loading beans at the residence of his son in Back-street when he fell off the wagon on the frozen ground. A bag of beans which he was placing on the load fell on him, fatally injuring him.

A New Boat for the Canada Atlantic.

HALIFAX, March 1.—Capt. J. M. Allen sailed in the Sarnia to-day for Liverpool. When he reaches the other side he will purchase a boat for the Canada Atlantic Steamship Company, to run between Halifax and Boston.

Shot a White Deer.

WIARTON, March 1.—Mr. Currie of Port Elgin, lighthouse keeper of Cove Island, shot a white deer near his residence. He sent the carcass to Toronto and had the whole animal set up, which cost him $105.

STRIKERS BOARD A STEAMER.

Several Shot and Others Thrown Overboard—A Lively Struggle.

LONDON, March 1.—At the Albert Docks last night a number of striking firemen and coal porters, armed with iron bars and sticks, attempted to board the Shipping Federation steamer Scotland, but were resisted by the Scotland's officers and crew and by the non-unionist laborers employed on board of her. A serious conflict followed, during which the non-unionists fired revolvers at their opponents, injuring a number of them. Several of the attacking party were thrown bodily from the Scotland's decks to the water of the dock, and were with difficulty rescued from drowning. The police arrested eight of the ringleaders of the attacking force of strikers.

The Labor Council has issued a manifesto which announces the removal of the blockade declared against vessels the owners of which accept the Furness proposal. The officers of the Shipping Federation say that this does not alter the situation, and demand the removal of the blockade on all vessels before they discuss terms for peace. The resistance of the firemen and sailors alone prevents an immediate collapse of the strike. The unionist laborers are deserting the strikers by the wholesale, in spite of the increased number of pickets thrown out by the latter.

Parnell Delivers a Series of Addresses in Ireland.

DUBLIN, March 1.—Mr. Parnell went to Navan to-day by train, accompanied by John Redmond, Kelly, Clancy, Harrison, Corbet and Dalton. Mr. Parnell received an ovation at every station. Replying to a deputation at Drogheda Mr. Parnell said he was rejoiced at the proof of support everywhere accorded him. If the differences between the two factions were not fought out upon dignified lines the blame would not fall upon his supporters. They would strain every point to accord their opponents a fair hearing, but if their opponents outraged the sense of the people by going outside limits of decency the people would justly resent their conduct.

The party were given an enthusiastic reception at Navan. Mr. Parnell addressed an immense meeting in the square. He said that perhaps some day in the distant future somebody would arise privileged to address them not as men of royal Meath but as men of republican Meath. [Cheers.] It was Meath which first gave him an opportunity 16 years ago to serve Ireland in public life. [Cheers.] At what moment during that period has he ever been unfaithful to the principles then pledged? [Cries of "Never."] They had won a hundred skirmishes together, and now he wanted to be allowed to win the battle with them. Already they had put a snaffle in the mouth of the landlord. Bye-and-bye, with a parliament in College Green, they would fit these same mouths with bit and birdoon. [Cheers and laughter.] Mr. Parnell then proceeded to review the struggle in parliament and referred to the secret system pursued in the House of Commons to sap and undermine the independence of his colleagues. Although they were only 30 against 600, his supporters had had the honesty and courage to beat their opponents. They had driven the seceders from the committee-room and they would drive them out of Ireland before long and out of the House of Commons too. [Cheers.] His supporters had foiled the weakness, treachery and cowardice of the seceders by resisting English intimidation. Thus they had given time to everything Irish, patriotic and brave among their race, at home and abroad to see the truth and to rally to their support. He had never feared the result. If he had not a colleague left in the committee-room he would still have to come back to the Irish people to get their verdict. [Prolonged cheers.] In conclusion he expressed the hope that his opponents would take warning of the portents—a popular storm was likely to sweep them away. Instead of opposing the rally to his side let them free themselves from the entanglements and English party alliances woven around them by the "Grand Old Spider". The gate of regeneration will still open. If they wait too long the gate would be shut and they would become marked in the pages of history as deliberate traitors to Ireland.

Mr. Parnell was entertained at a banquet in the evening. He will speak in London next Wednesday.

The Foreign Money Market.

LONDON, March 1.—There was an active demand for discount during the past week. Money was scarcer. On the Stock Exchange during the week business was generally dull. The unceasing rumors of the precarious position of several financial houses take the heart out of speculation, and until all doubts are cleared away there is small chance of a revival. American railway securities exhibited a better tendency towards the end of the week. Still business was flabby and dealings insignificant.

At Paris a feeling of depression prevailed on the bourse during the past week. There was a general tendency yesterday to sell. There was a prevailing feeling of anxiety on reports that the German Government was making diplomatic communications regarding ex-Empress Frederick.

At Berlin, in spite of the depression on foreign bourses, international stocks here opened steady yesterday, though they weakened toward the close. There was an average decline of ¼ per cent.

On the Frankfort bourse during the week business was dull and prices were weak, especially in the case of international stocks.

Dillon and O'Brien May be Released.

GALWAY, March 1.—The weight of their imprisonment does not at present rest very heavily on either Dillon or O'Brien, both gentlemen having tolerably comfortable quarters in the jail infirmary. They are not confined to their beds and employ their time chiefly in writing, it being understood that they contemplate the early publication of brochures on current political events. It is generally thought, that they will soon be liberated.

A Tomb Gives News of Nero.

ROME, March 1.—An important discovery of an antique tomb has just been made outside the Salara gate. The grave contains two sepulchral urns, the inscription on one stating that it contained the ashes of Eclogue, the nurse of the Emperor Nero, and the other those of Acte, his companion, but that the ashes were conveyed to the cemetery of the Dimitrius family, in which were Nero's ashes. The inscription adds that Eclogue wished her ashes to lie near those of the emperor.

HALIFAX, March 1.—John Cann, a workman employed at Sydney Mines, was descending in the cage, which stopped when 16 feet from the bottom. Cann, thinking the cage had reached the foot, stepped out. Just as he had landed the engine again started and the heavy cage came upon him, terribly mangling his body against the side of the pit and killing him instantly.

Fire in Durham.

DURHAM, March 1.—A. Gordon's jewelry store and dwelling was burned to the ground this morning. All the stock and the greater part of the furniture was removed. Cause of fire unknown. Loss about $3000, insurance $2000. The Standard Bank was saved by hard work.

Found Dead in His Barn.

PARIS, March 1.—About 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon a young man named Frank Ryall, son of Thomas Ryall of this town, was found dead in his own barn. It appears he went to the stable to harness the horse and was stricken with heart disease and died instantly.

The Only Way He Can Speak.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR.—Being deprived of the ballot, as all young men are under 24 years of age, I take the opportunity afforded me by the press of making myself heard as regards the issues in this election. Now sir, I am neither a pronounced Grit nor Tory, having had neither hereditary tendencies—(as I never knew which way my father voted)—or one sided political training, but I am a thorough Canadian, having been born, raised and educated here. Therefore when I venture an opinion it is from a well-founded conviction that is for the future good of my country. The laboring men and farmers are asked to vote against unrestricted reciprocity with the United States because it will ruin the home market for labor and agricultural productions. Now sir, I believe I am correct in saying it will do neither for these reasons:—Mr. Law the other evening in the opera house showed to every one's satisfaction that the wealth of the people of Great Britian and the United States increased in proportion to the development of their iron industries. Now, sir, we all know that Peterborough county is lavishly provided with the necessary ore of the very highest grade and with wood to make charcoal for furnace purposes; then why has it not been developed? There is but one answer, viz:—no market in which to sell, as Canada is not a large enough consumer to make its development pay. With the United States as a market, this industry is bound to open right up in our own town, because we are situated in the most desirable position for so doing, having all the natural and commercial advantages for its production and shipment at the least possible cost. Mr. Brooks stated publicly that he would have to move nearer, the "base of supplies" in order to compete with American manufacturers. Now, where could that gentleman, Mr. Law, and all other manufacturers, get nearer the base of supplies than right here in our own town, provided our raw material was developed? You may ask, why, then, do those men oppose this wider and broader sphere of continental business? Is it from a fear of American competition? I say not; it is because they enjoy a bonanza here in Canada in the opportunity presented of making much larger profits on their goods than is compatible with equal justice to all classes in the community. Take the lockworks in this town as a sample: last year they declared publicly a dividend of 33 per cent. to their shareholders, (and I believe on the quiet one of 30 per cent. more might have been added.) Now they have a protection of 35%. Supposing it was removed do you think the Lock Works would close down, it requires no argument to prove that it would not, and when they have right here at home all the requisites of iron, nickel, etc., at what an advantage they would be placed with competition, 65 per cent. in one year—(by giving them the benefit of the declared dividend of 25 per cent.) What an exorbitant profit to take off the poor consumer. No wonder the manufacturers get rich, and that they vote for the N.P. How would the farmer and laboring man benefit themselves more than by voting for this free trade measure, which is bound to make a larger home market for both. There is no fear of Americans slaughtering goods over here and thus ruining our industries, as Canada is geographically, and would then be commercially their home market and vice versa, and if they attempted such a course, it would only be necessary for the purchaser to ship the stock back beside the slaughterers' own factory, and sell to his own customers at the slaughtering prices, thereby hurting his own trade. This would be the probable remedy, free trade. And where would the aforementioned purchaser sell the goods so easily as to the people that were aware of their value? This measure does not mean annexation as Mr. Long would have us believe. Why should it? Unless he thinks that the pepie of Canada would receive such large benefits commercially that they would vote for political union with U.S.; and does he think that the U.S. or Great Britain would wish for and sanction such a measure, provided it were not the unanimous wish of the people of Canada? The answer goes without saying. Therefore, I ask all the patriotic citizens of this great country to vote for that which will add most to their material welfare and not follow party prejudices this time. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space, I remain,

Yours, etc.,
A DISFRANCHISED TAXPAYER.

Norwood "Registrations."

Mr. Hampton, of the North American Telegraph Company, is in Norwood superintending the extension of the telephone service to town subscribers. He says the line will be extended to Havelock and Peterborough in the spring. The poles are being distributed between here and Havelock, and as soon as the weather permits the work will be pushed forward vigorously.

On Saturday evening about five o'clock, Mr. John H. Gilbert, who worked in the coal sheds at Havelock, was struck by an engine and killed. He was on his way home to tea when the accident occurred. His left leg was badly smashed, his right leg broken near the knee, and severed at the ankle. He only survived a few minutes. The unfortunate man was in his 60th year, and had only been working in the yard for a short time. The remains were interred in the Norwood cemetery on Tuesday.

North Dummer.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW CHEESE FACTORY.—A meeting of North Dummer farmers was held on the 20th February in school section No. 4 school house, for the purpose of organizing a joint stock company to establish a new cheese factory. Mr. J. Hunter occupied the chair. There was a good attendance, and after discussing the prospects, it was decided to form the company. Seven hundred dollars' worth of stock were subscribed. Messrs. Richard Or[illegible], J. Hunter, H. A. Moore, F. Darling and W. Carveth were elected directors, and at a subsequent meeting Mr. Crowe was elected president. The prospects for the new factory are encouraging. A factory of good average capacity will be erected at the jog between the third and fourth concession lines, and supplied with the best apparatus and a good cheese-maker.

South Dummer.

PATRONS OF INDUSTRY.—On Tuesday evening last Mr. Richard Brock, Strathavy, who is working in the interests of the patrons of Industry Association for the county of Peterborough, gave a lecture to the farmers of Dummer on different subjects relating to agriculture, but spoke chiefly on combines and showed plainly how they were ruining the farmers of the country. Mr. Brock is an able speaking and gives anyone the privilege of opposing him on any of his platforms on any of the subjects he is about to speak upon.

The facts seemed to impress themselves so forcibly upon the minds of the Dummer farmers that no less than twenty-four of the leading men of the township formed themselves into an association under the name of the South Dummer Patrons of Industry Association.

At the close of the meeting the following officers were elected:

PRESIDENT—Mr. Richard Girven.
VICE-PRESIDENT—Mr. Andrew Knox.
SECRETARY—Mr. John Speer.
TREASURER—Mr. S. S. Spence.
GUIDE—Mr. W. S. Scott.
SENTINEL—Mr. J. E. Scott.

We Can Diminish or Increase Human Happiness.

No human being can come into the world without increasing or diminishing the sum total of human happiness, not only of the present but of every subsequent age of humanity. An immense influence in the direction of increasing or diminishing human happiness depends on the good or bad health of the individual in the community. If men and women are healthy, robust, joyous, happy and vigorous, their influence is always helpful and a blessing to all around them. If, on the other hand, men and women are sickly, nervous, weak, irritable and dyspeptic, there is a tendency to make not only their own surroundings disagreeable and repulsive, but the happiness and joys of others are more or less affected. The ordinary ills of life, which tend to make ourselves and friends so miserable, can be overcome and banished at once by the use of Paine's Celery Compound. Our irritable or morose dispositions can be changed; our sleeplessness will vanish, our nervous debility cast off; and peace, joy, contentment and true pleasure will be our portion, if we use this great remedy. Paine's Celery Compound has been called by some "the water of life," "the joy of life," "the great restorer," "nature's health giver," "the elixir of contentment."

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." E. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PHEBE MOSHER, 90 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of [illegible] will be changed to make up for [illegible]. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

RUSSIA AND ABYSSINIA.

An Expedition of Exploration Which Is Backed by the Czar.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 27.—The Russian expedition which is to penetrate into the interior of Abyssinia has obtained a semi-official stamp from the fact that the Czar has given Lieutenant Maschkoff, who commands the expedition, his autograph together with presents from the Czar to Negus Johannes of Abyssinia. The Russian foreign department will pay the expenses of the expedition.

M. de Giers, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, has been in communication with the Egyptian and Italian governments in order that the expedition may receive assistance in transit through Egyptian and Italian territory.

Unknown Schooner Sunk.

SAVANNAH, Feb. 27. — An unknown schooner sank off Tugbee, North Breaks Thursday. It is supposed her crew of five negroes were all lost.

Made Him Uneasy.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—M. Ribot, Minister of Foreign Affairs, declared to-day that he never felt able to breathe freely during the past few days, until he knew Empress Frederick had retired for the night.

Arrived in England.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The Empress Frederick landed at Dover this afternoon and was enthusiastically received by crowds of people. Great throngs of people also welcomed the Empress on her arrival here.

Perished in the Flames.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—The Petravaca pine forest near Mentone is on fire. An Alpine battalion made unsuccessful attempts to extinguish the flames. A sergeant and two privates were suffocated.

Sir Charles Dilke's Vindication.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Sir Charles Dilke has assented to the proposal of the Liberal electors of the Forest Dean Division of Gloucestershire that he be their candidate for Parliament at the coming general election, and has supplied them with a statement for private circulation vindicating himself against the charges made against him in connection with the celebrated divorce case of some years ago.

Harrington Awarded £5.

DUBLIN, Feb. 27.—The suit of Timothy Harrington against the publisher of the anti Parnell paper, Insuppressible, was decided to-day. Harrington obtained a verdict of £5 damages.

The Firm Aided by Baron Hirsch.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The house which yesterday was reported to be in financial difficulties, and the condition of which was the cause of some alarm on the Stock Exchange, is now said to have tided over its troubles. [illegible] said to be due to the Baron Hirsch interest intended [illegible] settlement. The big rise in money is distributed to the plans of the banks, which are quietly making an increase to their reserve funds.

Alsace-Lorraine.

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—Chancellor Von Caprivi has notified the Governor of Alsace-Lorraine to refrain from mitigating the passport regulations as proposed in Alsace-Lorraine in order to enable Frenchmen to cross the frontier and attend the fairs and markets in Upper Alsace. The Chancellor desires the Governor not to extend in any way additional facilities to the inhabitants of French frontier communes. The instructions in regard to passports in Alsace-Lorraine are universally regarded as Emperor William's answer to the decision of the French artists. The announcement of the passport instructions caused depression on the Berlin and Paris bourses. In Vienna this evening the bourse was much agitated.

THE GENESTA'S OWNER DEAD.

Sir Richard Sutton, Whose Yact the Puritan Outsailed.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The death is announced of Sir Richard Suttoh, the owner of the English cutter-yacht Genesta, which raced with the Boston centreboard sloop Puritan in 1885 for the American Cup. Sir Richard Francis Sutton, fifth baronet, was born Dec. 20, 1853, and succeeded his father, Sir Richard, in 1878. He was High Sheriff of Berkshire in 1887. In 1888 he married Constance Edith, daughter of Sir Richard Rowland Corbet, third baronet. The Genesta arrived in New York harbor on July 16, 1885 having sailed from England just 30 days before. The great races between the Puritan and Genesta were sailed on Sept. 14 and 16 following. Both having been won by the Puritan, the third race was unnecessary to decide the contest. Three days the Genesta captured the Commodore's Cup of the New York Yacht Club. A banquet was tendered Sir Richard by the New York Club on Sept. 24, and two days later he sailed for home. Much attention was shown the affable English yachtsman during his stay in this country which he appeared fully to appreciate.

Gave a Married Man $1000 to Elope with Her.

AMHERSTBURG, Feb. 28.—It is rumored that Adolphus Baker, a former resident of the 10th con. Mersea, has absconded and eloped. First he is said to have absconded with the proceeds of his sales and delivery of fruit trees, which he sold during the past autumn for a firm in Rochester, N.Y., and that he eloped with a woman from Sandusky, Ohio. He is reported to have told a man in Mersea or Leamington that the Sandusky woman offered him $1000 if he would go with her to Florida and start an orange grove and he was met by a Mersea man between Detroit and Chicago. He left a wife and four children in Mersea not very well provided for.

The Thief Repented.

REGINA, Feb. 27.—A man broke into Mr. A. Daykin's jewelry establishment. The noise caused by the breaking of a large pane of glass awoke Mr. Daykin, who fired a revolver at the burglar. The shot took no effect, however, and the robber escaped with about $50 worth of jewelry. The thief evidently had a fit of repentance soon afterwards, for the whole of the jewelry was brought back next morning and laid on the windowsill.

Died as Did His Victim.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 1.—James Farrell, an inmate of the State Asylum at Middletown, battered in the head of another patient, Patrick O'Brien, with a section of gas-pipe. He declared that God commanded him to murder O'Brien, who had murdered his friend. Farnell referred to the killing by O'Brien, 10 years ago, of another patient while the latter was asleep in the asylum barn.

Found Dead in Bed.

PROTON, March 1.—Mrs. Sarah Ferguson was found dead in bed yesterday morning. When she retired the previous evening she was in her usual good health.

A Very Diffident and Modest Lady.

A Voice from Winnipeg.

A lady who has lived in the city of Winnipeg for some years was recently visiting in Montreal. She had just recovered from an illness which had lasted for four months, some of the particulars of which the writer is permitted to give, without mentioning names.

The lady said:—"I found that dyspepsia had laid hold of me, and I consulted my physician who treated me in his own way. I soon became a victim to headache and insomnia, which made life miserable, I continued suffering more or less for nearly four months, when my attention was directed by a friend to Paine's Celery Compound. I had always set my face against the use of any medicine not prescribed by my doctor, always thinking it best to follow his directions. Just at that time I was getting worse instead of better, and without my family knowing it, I bought a bottle of the Paine's Celery Compound and commenced to use it. The first bottle worked in a marvellous way, and I purchased a second and third bottle, which perfectly cured me. I am always glad to say that I am in its favor, and can tell you thus many of my friends use it now, and praise it highly."

Paine's Celery Compound everywhere in the Dominion is doing a mighty work, and has the confidence of all who have tried it.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50c. and $1. Trial size free. At all druggists. dw

It Does Its Work.

Mrs. James Dix, Brock street, Kingston, Ont., says: I suffered with an inflamed throat and bad cough for seven months. Was treated by physicians without success, when six doses of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil cured me. It's as palatable as cream. For sale by all druggists.

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS,—My mother was attacked with inflammation of the lungs which left her very weak and never free from cold, till at last she got a very severe cold and cough. She received to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and, on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried.
MRS. KENNEDY, 50 Smith Ave., Hamilton, Ont. 2w6d

Familiar Family Friends.

The family store of medicine should contain a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Mrs. Hannah Hutchins, of Rossway, N. S., says: "We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil in our family for six years, for coughs, colds, burns, sore throat, croup, etc., and find it so good we cannot do without it." 2w6d

No Shadow of Doubt.

No sane person doubts that what we say of B.B.B. is true. The evidence of its power and popularity is too overwhelming to confute, besides it is all home testimony making it certain that B.B.B. will cure dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, and all blood diseases. 2w6d

MR. DENNISTOUN'S FALSE ACCUSATION.

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun sends a letter to Saturday's Review, in which he makes a false accusation against Mr. Hall. Mr. Dennistoun says:

"Last night while speaking at Mr. Hall's meeting at Bailliboro I referred to Mr. Hall as an advocate of Unrestricted Reciprocity and was surprised to hear him cry out "No! No!"

Now this is special pleading, with a vengeance; that's what a lawyer would call it, but a layman would call it falsehood. The whole truth is that Mr. Dennistoun referred to Mr. Hall as "an advocate of Unrestricted Reciprocity and ANNEXATION." To this Mr. Hall of course exclaimed "No! No," because, of course, he is not in favour of annexation. The Conservatives must be terribly hard set when men that claim to be men of honor descend to such dishonorable tactics. They are barren of arguments. Let honest electors resent such dastardly and ungodly, dishonest, tactics.

ANTI-BRITISH DISCRIMINATION.

The trade and navigation returns for the year ending June 30th, 1890, the EXAMINER's copy of which arrived only this morning, show that we continue to "discriminate against the old land" in a manner which must bring tears to the eyes of the Red Parlor manufacturers:

We imported from Great Britain goods to the value of $43,390,241, of which $10,122,520, or about 23 per cent., were free.

We imported from the United States $52,291,973 worth of goods, of which $21,716,576, or 40 per cent., were free.

The duties on the $43,390,241 of British goods were $9,576,965. The duties on the $52,291,973 of American goods were $8,126,655.

The American imports exceeded the British imports by nearly eleven millions; but the duties on the British imports exceeded the duties on the American imports by $1,450,000.

ATTACKING MR. ROAS.

Both the Tory organs in town publish a paragraph, assumedly from the Belleville Intelligencer, to the effect that Mr. Feodor Boas of St. Hyacinthe, one of the largest woollen mills proprietors in Canada had had goods imported by him seized by the customs authorities and that the goods "were seized and confiscated." If this is a heinous offence, and so much to be reprobated why do not the high taxation organs in Peterborough expose the traitorous Conservatives, who have outraged the principle of protection by smuggling goods into Peterborough and having them seized by the customs authorities. Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones.

"FOR some days past the New York Sun has headed a column of Canadian election news "Canadian Annexation," the inference being that it regards the struggle going on here in that light." This is what a Tory paper in Toronto says, and it is to the Tory papers alone that such a state of things exist. The Empire and its brood of imitators are the sole originators, concoctors, perpetrators and fosterers of the annexation cry. And the more they see that nobody is being fooled by it the more they howl.

When the Government went to the country in 1887 the net debt was $223,150,000, although it was represented to be only $196,407,000. It is now more than $237,000,000. In another four years at the same rate of progress it will be $252,000,000. When the Government went to the country in 1887 the taxation was $26 226,4[illegible]. It is now $31,588,000. In another four years at the same rate of progress it will be $37,000,000. Is it not about time to call a halt?

WORKINGMEN, vote for unrestricted reciprocity and reduce the price of coal oil from thirty to eleven cents per gallon. Vote also for a policy which will reduce the price of sugar to five cents per pound, and other necessaries of life in proportion. Vote for the policy which will lead to the speedy development of Canada's resources and furnish Canadians with employment in their own country.

The amount of duty paid upon iron and steel and manufactures thereof in 1889 90 was $2,916,672.

A Correction.

[A copy of the following letter has been sent to the Review for publication.]

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—My attention has been called to a letter in the Saturday issue of your paper over the signature of Mr. R. MAX Dennistoun, in which he states that at my meeting in Bailliboro on Friday evening, I denied that I was an advocate of unrestricted reciprocity, from the fact of my saying "No, no," to a remark of Mr. Dennistoun that I was "an advocate of Unrestricted Reciprocity." The truth is that Mr. Dennistoun referred to me as "an advocate of Unrestricted Reciprocity AND ANNEXATION," and in reply I said "No, no" with all the emphasis of which I was capable. I am not an Annexationist, but am in favor of Unrestricted Reciprocity. Dr. Goldsmith, Mr. Peter Hamilton, Mr. J. R. Stratton and a large majority of those present at the meeting can vouch for the truth of my version of the matter. Hoping that you will give space to this correction of a palpably unfair and unjust accusation, I remain,

Yours very truly,
RICHARD HALL.

Cause and Effect.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—Gratitude is a delightful emotion, and I am glad it has called Mr. Long from his Yankee duties to give Mr. Stevenson a helping hand. He doubtless remembers with gratitude the good turn Mr. Stevenson did in standing by Mr. Long in the matter of increase of salary as high school prithcipal and now he is paying him back, and, clad in broadcloth, he presents a very fine figure dictating in classic language to the Peterborough workingmen how to vote and how to increase their wages by voting for a policy of high taxation. Why did not Mr. Long, when pointing to the ruined condition of Yankeedom, also point out how such things can be in a highly protected country? If thirty years of protection has brought the Yankees to ruin, where will Canadians be at the end of that time under high taxation?

Yours truly,
A BREAD-WINNER.

Mr. Kendry Caught Again.

TORONTO, Feb. 28th, 1891.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—Referring to the statement made by Mr. Kendry, of the Auburn Woollen Mills, in regard to Mr. Jury, we beg to inform you that during the past nine years Mr. A. F. Jury has bought from us and paid for many pieces of Auburn Woollen Mills hair line tweeds, as well as other Canadian goods. In justice to Mr. Jury we shall be obliged if you will give this space in your columns.

Yours, etc.,
ROBERT DARLING & Co.,
Wholesale Woollen Merchants.

[This letter refers to the statement made in the opera house on Friday evening by Mr. Kendry, to the effect that Mr. A. F. Jury, in his merchant tailor establishment in Toronto, sold only imported goods. Mr. Jury promptly denied the statement, and the above shows that Mr. Jury was right and Mr. Kendry wrong—again.

Mr. Hendry's Statement.

To Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR.—I notice in your issue of EXAMINER of the 26th inst., a letter under the heading of "A Few Supplementary Facts," in which it is stated by your correspondent that Mr. James Kendry had discharged a man for voting against the candidate that Mr. Jas. Kendry was supporting. Now, in justice to Mr. Kendry, there is no truth whatever in the above statement, and your correspondent is making a great mistake. Now, as I think I am the party your correspondent refers to, with your kind permission I would say that I was employed with the Auburn Company a little over 5 years, and during that time there never was the slightest friction between Mr. James Kendry and myself. At the last general election, in June, I was working my notice, and was leaving the Auburn Mills of my own accord to fill a similar position in the States. And let me here state, that when my notice expired Mr. Kendry informed me that if I could content myself that I might remain with him.

Respectfully,
JAMES HENDRY,
Globe Woollen Co., Montreal.
167 Antrim St., Feb. 28th, 1891.

"Too Thin."

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—In the great struggle now going on in the Dominion of Canada between the advocates of free trade and protection, it is scarcely possible not to be affected in some measure by the excitement created thereby. I find many much concerned from the statements made at some of the meetings that our manufacturing establishments would cease working if there is any change in the Government. This they think would be ruinous to the country, and from such statements alone would be willing to vote protection. Now, sir, one cannot but ask the question how these establishments were founded and on what foundation do they rest. Was it from any promise that the law should never be altered?—or was it from the supposition that it might be some time taken from them and given to those to whom it belongs? It is a poor compliment to the directors and managers of these concerns to make such assertions. We cannot suppose that intelligent, successful men would begin to carry on to such an extent as large concerns which they might be compelled to "close down in 24 hours." No, sir, this bait will not suit. We are not like the ducks to swallow everything that comes along. Gentlemen, use fair arguments; these we will consider; but such threats as those are sometimes used in different societies when some who have had their propositions voted down declare they will withdraw their support. The N. P. has had a fair trial; evidence for and against has been heard. Able counsel has been employed beside much local talent. The verdict will soon be given from which there can be no appeal. "What will the verdict be?" I asking you for this space, as ever,

Yours truly,
JOHN BABB.

Police Court Penalties.

At the police court this morning a George street grocer was fined $50 for selling liquor in a less quantity than three half-pints.

A young married Frenchwoman, whose husband is working in the shanties, was charged by her brother-in-law with being of unsound mind and unsafe to be at large. The young woman was of diminutive stature but prepossessing appearance, though her large, beautiful eyes glowed with the restless fire of insanity. The informant stated that about two years ago symptoms of insanity were first developed, when she took a religious mania, but a reaction soon set in and she became exactly the reverse, and used dreadful language. She would burn and cut up her clothing, and be very careless with her children, sometimes going without any fire in the house before she would tell anyone she had no wood. The young woman was committed to gaol while awaiting transfer to an asylum.

A Chapter of Accidents.

A tree which he had just fell lodged in another tree, and the top of the first one was broken off, falling and striking young Anderson on the head. His skull was crushed and it is feared he cannot recover. There was a report current to-day that he was dead, but the rumor has not been authenticated.

Jos. Redmond, Jr., a son of Mr. Joseph Redmond, the well known stock breeder, Otonabee, fell from a loft in his father's barn Saturday evening and sustained painful injuries, his head being cut and severe contusions inflicted. He was reported improving to-day.

A Double Centennial.

Anniversary of the Death of John Wesley, the Great Founder of the Methodist Church, and the Establishment of the Church in Canada.

The Methodist church in Peterborough on Sunday celebrated a double anniversary—the centennial of John Wesley's death and the introduction of Methodism into Canada. In the George street and Mark street (Ashburnham) churches the sermons of the day had special reference to the occasion, but on account of the "missionary Sunday" in the Charlotte street church the Wesley anniversary celebration was postponed a week. At the morning service in the George street church the hymns sung were those of Wesley's own composition and in the evening a special service of song was rendered. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Locke, (as did Rev. Mr. Wilson in the Mark street church) delivered sermons having Methodism for their theme. John Wesley's great and glorious work, which had been handed down to succeeding generations and carried on with remarkable success, had resulted in untold good. "The whole world is my parish," John Wesley exclaimed, and that was the motto of Methodism to-day. The church now numbered twenty-five million members and adherents. On the 2nd of March, 1791, John Wesley died, and the same year the first regularly appointed minister was sent by the New York conference to labour at the village of Kingston. The doctrines of Methodism had been preached in this country previous to this by immigrants from the old country and by the U.E. Loyalists, but the church was not established until 1791. A band of devoted and self-sacrificing missionaries spread the Gospel among the settlers, and the seed sown by these noble men had resulted in a good harvest. The Methodist Church in Canada, in point of numbers, was ahead of any other. They claimed one-fifth of the population of the Dominion and one-third of Ontario. The church had a million adherents in Canada, 233 000 members and 225,000 Sunday school children—more of the latter than all the other churches in Canada combined. These were glorious results, and the speaker hoped his congregation would catch the inspiration from the memory of John Wesley and the band of holy pioneers who planted Methodism so firmly in the world and in Canada, and go forward more actively aggressive than ever in the warfare against the powers of darkness. The death-bed of John Wesley was pathetically depicted—his end was peace. At the evening service the choir of about thirty voices rendered several anthems in fine style, the volume being full and the rendition of the music accurate and energetic, while the sympathetic organ accompaniment of Mr. Seward had a most agreeable effect.

A Voice from Chicago.

Why Canadians Thrive in the United States.

The following letter from T. S. Quincy, formerly well known in Peterborough, will be read with interest:—

To the Editor of the Examiner:

CHICAGO, Feb. 28th, 1891.

DEAR SIR.—I have just finished reading your issue of 27th inst. I am filled with enthusiasm and hope that the young men of Canada will arise in their might, and for ever put down the monster that has so far barred them from taking advantage of the opportunities which would be afforded them by a liberal reciprocity treaty with the United States. Every week I answer letters to Canadians who are applying for positions in this city. Only a few days ago the principal of one of your leading business colleges wrote me that the opportunity for scholars securing positions in Canada was poor, and requesting me to assist in securing positions when possible here. Why is this, with all of Canada's resources? Why must your young people leave her shores, simply because she puts up the bars against her sister country, who is willing to reciprocate? The talk about the United States wanting Canada. I have been here for 15 years, and have never heard an American say that Canada was wanted. Do you find Americans going to Canada for employment? Only in very exceptional cases. I have ever been true to the land of my birth, but my gratitude is to the land that gave me encouragement, competency and position. I know of no Canadian who was not as fully capable as myself to secure the same remuneration. The United States has done more for me in ten years than Canada done for my father in 60 years. And this is just what the United States want to do for Canada to-day. Young men, do your duty. Take the reins. Canada is in the same hands it was 20 years ago. Are you any better off? Why are you financially the same, while those who come to this country are in better circumstances? Is it because the men have changed? Not at all. Simply because they changed their country. Stand by your country, your flag, your home, but batter down the barrier only erected for the keeping in office of the fossilized politicians, who care only for the immediate present and not for the future of either you, your family or your country.

Either vote for reciprocity or skip the country — like the loyal manufacturers threten to do if their high protection is curtailed.

T. S. QUINCEY.

Obituary.

The Late Wm. English.

The community was shocked and pained to learn of the death of Mr. Wm. English last evening, about seven o'clock, at his home on Water street. Deceased had been ill for about a week only. He was at church Sunday Feb. 22nd, though at the time suffering from the effects of a cold contracted while performing a labour of love in watching at the deathbed of his friend, the late Frederick Hall. The cold developed into congestion of the lungs, and about Tuesday his illness took a serious turn. In spite of the best medical attendance he gradually grew worse, and died Sunday evening. Mr. English was fifty-one years of age and a native of Peterborough. He spent his whole life here and built up a considerable industry in canoe manufacturing. The "English canoes" are known the world over. Besides being a successful business man, Mr. English, though not seeking public honors, was called to several positions of trust. He has been an active and faithful member of the School Board for a number of years, and as chairman of the Property Committee last year superintended the erection of the new public school buildings. Mr. English was also a charter member of the Mechanics' Institute Board and always took a keen interest in the welfare of this public benefaction. In politics Mr. English was a Conservative. He was a stanch member of the Anglican church, and the flag flying at half-mast over St. John's to-day indicates the high regard in which he was held as a Christian gentleman and active church worker. A little over a year ago Mr. English succeeded the late Chas. H. Sheffield as Church-warden, his appointment being subsequently renewed by the Easter vestry, and there is something pathetic in the fact that in so short a time the office is again vacant. Mr. English was esteemed on all sides for his thorough uprightness of character, and his invariable amiability and generosity of nature. His death will be deeply regretted by hundreds of his friends outside of the circle of relatives. His widow and four children and the bereaved relatives, will receive the heartfelt sympathy and condolence of the entire community. The funeral takes place Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock, and proceeds to St. John's church, and thence to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Baby's Face was Raw

Distressing Itching Skin Diseases Cured in One Month by Cuticura Remedies.

When our boy was six weeks old he had a rash on his cheek. It spread all over his face and then broke into running sores. We consulted many doctors and tried many remedies, but it got no better. My sister recommended me to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I purchased them following her advice, and in one week the boy looked better. In two weeks he was entirely cured. He never had a sore on him from that time. He is now a healthy boy, and his hands down so that he could not scratch his face. I cannot speak too highly of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I recommend CUTICURA wherever I can. I would be pleased to have any one call and talk to them of the good it has done my boy.

TO THE ELECTORS
—OF—
West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to secure my return in the present election. In dread of the disastrous consequences to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,
RICHARD HALL.
Peterborough, Feb. 14th, 1891. dw

ATTACKED A CONVENT.

FRANCISCAN FATHERS WOUNDED AND ROBBED BY THIEVES.

Shocking Affair Reported From Manilla—Two or Three of Those Attacked Will Die—Capture of Several of the Thieves.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—Private advices from Manilla give details of a bold attack by a band of robbers on the convent there. While five of the Franciscans were engaged in conversation in one of the rooms they were met by a crowd of men armed with knives. A severe struggle ensued, the padres defending themselves with the furniture, but at such a disadvantage they had little chance. The thieves took the procurator's keys from him and compelled him to go with them to his cell, where they obtained possession of a bag containing $900. Meantime two of the padres had succeeded in escaping to their cells, from the windows of which they called for assistance, and in the course of time the police appeared on the scene. Most of the robbers succeeded in getting away, but four of them were caught in the grounds and a number of other men were arrested later on suspicion.

Father Jiminez, the procurator, was fatally wounded. The porter of the convent was also dangerously wounded, and the last sacrament was administered to him. Father Eusbio Gomez Platero and Brother Andres Del Val, as well as the infant son of the porter, were also wounded. When the police arrived the convent presented a scene of great confusion, with blood and other traces of the conflict scattered in all directions. A number of doctors were speedily summoned to attend the wounded. The affair has caused intense excitement in Manilla.

NEWSPAPERS HAVE RIGHTS.

It Is Decided They May Buy News Wherever They Please.

BUFFALO, N.Y., March 2.—Judge Corlett has handed down his decisions in two suits, one The Buffalo Express and the other The Buffalo Courier against the Associated Press of the State of New York, denying a motion to dissolve an injunction. The injunction was obtained to prevent the Associated Press from expelling The Express and The Courier because they used the United Press reports as well as the Associated Press reports, which was contrary to the rules of the latter corporation. The result is a great victory for the newspapers and negatively settles the question as to the power of a press association to prevent its members from buying news wherever they please.

Women Oppose Bird Slaughter.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—At the final business session of the Board of the National Council of Women there were present the five general officers and the representatives of the twelve associations now duly entered in the council lists. Among the resolutions passed was a request from the clergymen of the Methodist Episcopal Church that women be admitted to the General Conference; also the following:

Resolved, That the council approve the movement for preventing the slaughter of birds for the sole purpose of ornamentation, and that it asks American women to imitate the example of the Princess of Wales, who has forbidden the use of the plumage of singing birds on her toilets.

Swallowed A Hot Coal.

JACKSON, Miss., March 2.—A curious accident, and one perhaps without a parallel happened recently to a negro known as Jabez Walz, employed as a servant by Rev. Richard Mason. The negro was lying dozing before a wood fire and had just opened his mouth to gape when a log of wood suddenly snapped in two, sending a shower of glowing coals over the hearth. One of these coals with unerring aim fell directly in the mouth of Walz, and lodging in the throat just below the uvula completely closed the passage. The unfortunate negro, unable even to scream or to let anyone know what was the matter, sprang up and rushed about the house in search of water, which, when he found, he began gulping down, and succeeded in extinguishing the coal. The uvula was so badly burned, however, that it had to be removed and Walz will die.

Sawmill Burned

PAISLEY, March 3.—At about 12.15 this morning the sawmill of Duncan Fisher was discovered to be enveloped in flames. The mill was rented by Mr. Archibald Fisher from his brother Duncan. The flames were confined to the mill. Mr. Archibald Fisher's loss is estimated about $1200 in stock, insurance unknown. Mr. D. Fisher's loss on building and machinery about $3000, insurance $1200. Cause of fire unknown.

A Baby's Playful, Suicidal Shot.

RIDGWAY, March 2.—"Mamma, I'm goin' to shoot myself!" exclaimed a little 5-year-old son of Widow Gardner, who lives in the Warren-road. The little fellow got hold of a revolver his elder brother had placed in the cupboard ready to shoot skunks; and he pulled the trigger before his terrified mother could interfere. The bullet went through the body just above the stomach.

Thieves Stole the Safe.

QUEBEC, March 2.—Thieves effected a daring robbery early Sunday morning at F. X. Soucy's hotel at the Palais. The house was broken open, the safe was bodily taken up and carried out, forced open and rifled. The safe was nearly two feet square, and must have taken two or three men to move it out. It was found yesterday morning broken open and lying in a stable on the Palais Cattle Market. There had been two watches in it and $425 in cash, all of which is, of course, missing.

Supposed to Have Eloped.

LONDON, March 3.—A Mr. Smithson, living near Aylmer, was in the city on Saturday returning from Detroit, where he had been looking after his runaway wife. Mrs. Smithson left home on Saturday last, and it is believed she has eloped with a man who was on intimate terms with the family. She was traced as far as Detroit, but there all trace of her was lost.

Bank Closed, President Shot.

MCPHERSON, Ks., March 2.—The Second National Bank closed its doors to-day. Just before it did so C. J. Haggreland, its president, shot and fatally wounded himself, whether or not by accident is not known.

Oystermen Drowned.

RICHMOND, Va., March 2.—A special states that in the terrible gale which swept the lower James River Thursday night last 24 oystermen, mostly colored, were drowned at points just above and below the mouth of the Warwick River.

THE CONFERENCE OPENED

AUSTRALIAN FEDERATION MEETING AT SYDNEY.

Canada's Constitution May be the Basis of the Federation—The Queen Regent of Spain Announces That the Commercial Treaties With Other Nations Will not be Renewed.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., March 2.—The hotels are filled with delegates to the National Australian Conference, which opened here to-day for the purpose of preparing a general constitution for the seven Australian colonies, and much preliminary discussion of the questions involved has been indulged in throughout the day. The majority of the delegates favor the scheme of federation proposed as the plan abounds with benefits of vast importance. The questions exciting the most earnest discussion are those relating to the lines upon which the federation shall be laid. A number of delegates are favorable to a constitution similar to that of the United States, while many others prefer the constitution of the Dominion of Canada as the basis of the instrument to be formulated.

There is a feeling, not very pronounced, however, in favor of absolute independence. Delegate Dibbs of Sydney is an unyielding Protectionist, and has declared that he will do everything in his power to thwart the scheme of Imperial Federation.

OPENING OF THE CORTES.

Spain's Queen Regent on Commercial Treaties.

MADRID, March 2.—The Cortes opened today. The Queen Regent in her speech announced that the commercial treaties with foreign nations will not be renewed and that it has been found necessary to establish customs relations in several fresh cases with foreign states. Amnesty to political offenders and the necessity for compulsory military service were also announced.

The Queen said she hoped all the negotiations with America would end favorably. She stated she would do all she could for the working classes.

Dundonnachie's Libel on Her Majesty.

LONDON, March 2.—The arrest of Robertson, alias Dundonnachie, for assault on a Scotch judge, has recalled his outrageous libel on the Queen. During his career as a political agitator in the lower strata of London, Robertson gleaned around Balmoral what he could of a scandalous rumor, invented more, and then printed and privately circulated a pamphlet attributing to the Queen a secret history akin to that revealed in "The Mysteries of the Court of London under George IV." The authorities refrained from arresting the author in order to avoid sullying the spotless character of the Queen with the scandalous filth, but they determined to punish him somehow. They watched and soon got a chance to prosecute him for libelling a private person. Nothing was said in court with reference to the libel on the Queen, but the bench knew of it and the accused was convicted and sentenced to two years' imprisonment. Robertson, has since become crazed and is likely to end his days in an asylum.

CHAMPION COLLEGE OARSMEN.

Courtney's Clever Cornell Crew—Dare Yale Refuse a Challenge?

ITHACA, March 2.—The Varsity and Freshmen crews of Cornell University are in active training preparing for the races next June at New London. The training this year has been under greater disadvantages than ever before, which necessitated cutting down the number of men in training so as to give them all an opportunity to use the machines. Courtney was sorry to do this, as he was obliged to throw out men who might have developed into good material. Courtney and the crew men made such a decided remonstrance that the director of the gymnasium was finally induced to allow the men to begin work earlier. Since this change was made the men have made a much better showing upon the machines.

Hagerman, of last year's crew, who is now at Yale and rowing with the Varsity, writes that if Harvard accepts Yale's challenge to a Freshman race, Cornell will not be challenged. If Harvard refuses Cornell will be challenged. Commodore Sanger left for New York Friday night. Early next week he will go to New Haven and challenge Yale to a Varsity race over a three mile or four mile course, as Yale wished. It is Yale's duty to challenge Cornell for a Freshman race, and Cornell will wait for that. Before returning Commodore Sanger will challenge Harvard both to a Freshman and Varsity race. The friends of Cornell will anxiously await the result of these challenges. Cornell in breaking both Freshmen and Varsity records last year demonstrated her power upon the water. The question now is will Yale and Harvard, after playing football with Cornell, dare to accept her challenge upon the water? The sentiment here is that neither will accept the challenge. If this should be the result it will be a virtual admission that the Courtney stroke is superior to that of Bob Cook and that the Cornell oarsmen are the champion college oarsmen of America. The Cornell crews are in good financial condition, as $4000 has been raised, while if a race should be secured with Yale a much larger amount could be raised if necessary.

FRANCE AND GERMANY.

THE WAR SPECTRE ROUSED BY NEWSPAPERS.

The Fiery Language of a Berlin Newspaper—Von Caprivi to be Removed—Unveiling a Statue in Honor of the Centennial of John Wesley.

BERLIN, March 2.—The Kreuz Zeitung speculates upon the probability of war with France, and after upbraiding Germans for being of too patient and sluggish a temperament, and expressing doubts of the friendship of Italy and England, it says that Germany, having failed to secure the love of Europe, ought to endeavor to obtain respect.

The Journal de Saint-Petersbourg hopes that efforts will be made on both sides to remove the shadow on the relations between France and Germany.

The action of the Government in regard to passports in Alsace-Lorraine is ill received by some Conservatives as well as by the Freisinnige party.

The Reichsbote hopes that the passport measure is due to other reasons than the conduct of the French chauvinists.

It is asserted by a person usually well informed on political and court matters that Emperor William's annoyance at the prolonged stay of his mother in Paris was much greater than has been represented by previous reports. He had not expected that she would remain so long, and finding her disposed to protract her visit beyond the time required to accomplish its ostensible object the Emperor telegraphed Queen Victoria requesting her to ask the Empress to leave Paris at once. In this request the Queen immediately acquiesced and a telegram representing in plain terms the expediency of her withdrawal from France without delay was forwarded to the Empress.

The Empress Frederick has written a letter to the Kaiser in which she says she has nothing but praise to bestow upon the considerate and courteous treatment she experienced during the whole of her stay in Paris from the leading personages in the French capital, and that she has no complaint to make. It is stated in well-informed circles that this letter has considerably mollified the Emperor's views with regard to the incidents connected with his mother's visit.

The Paris Siecle says that as a result of his mother's letter Emperor William has instructed Count Von Munster, the German ambassador, to thank the French Government for the courtesy with which Empress Frederick was treated in Paris.

CAPRIVI THE SCAPEGOAT.

The Kaiser May Transfer the Duties of Prussian Premier to Dr. Miquel.

LONDON, March 2.—Berlin reports are full of the possible retirement of Chancellor von Caprivi from the post of Prussian Premier, as the scapegoat, with Count Munster, of the Kaiser's failure to conciliate France. Caprivi may retain his place as Chancellor, but his duties as Prussian Minister Fresident will, it is stated, be transferred to Dr. Miquel, now Minister of Finance. The Kaiser has always expressed unbounded confidence in Miquel's management of the finances. At a recent dinner he said: "I am a gold man; and for the rest I rely on Miquel." It is probable that the new premier may retain his office as Minister of Finance, for which there is a precedent in Prussian history.

The Emperor's renewal of intimate relations with Count Waldersee is also looked upon as significant. Count Waldersee has represented an extreme and aggressive military policy. He has been charged even with desiring to bring about war with Russia and France. This charge is unsustained by any evidence known to the public, but there has been no doubt of Waldersee's desire for all Germany to stand ready armed for any event that might occur. He was retired to the command of an army corps at the very time when the Kaiser was meditating his friendly approach toward the French people.

Now he is recalled, or about to be recalled, to the imperial circle at the time when all hopes of conciliation have been blasted. Waldersee has been in Paris before, and at an eventful period. As German Charge d'Affaires in 1871 he displayed considerable diplomatic talent under very difficult circumstances. Should he be appointed to Paris in place of Munster the present situation will challenge all his ability.

Other important diplomatic changes mentioned as probable are the retirement of General Von Schweistz from the German Embassy at St. Petersburg and the appointment to that post of Baron Saurma-Jettsch, German Minister at The Hague, the latter being relieved, as already reported, by the Count De Rantzau, son-in-law of Bismarck, who has been representing Prussia in Bavaria.

"From Shadow to Sunlight."

LONDON, March 3.—The Marquis of Lorne is probably doomed to an interesting interview with his Royal and Imperial mother-in-law in consequence of the publication of his new book, which is entitled "From Shadow to Sunlight." It is stated on apparently good authority that the heroine is nothing less than a lifelike sketch of a young lady whom the Marquis once met and admired. The fact has, of course, reached the ears of the Queen, and those who should know state the Royal mother-in-law is awaiting the advance copy of "From Shadow to Sunlight" with an impatience she has not shown for a long time past.

The Lymph Again.

PARIS, March 2.—Dr. Fauvel, an expert in laryngeal diseases, to-day said he doubted the value of Prof. Lubrich's alleged remedy for tuberculosis. He feared bad effects from the use of cantharides. Dr. St. Hilaire commends the sub-cutaneous injection of dogs or goats' serum in the treatment of tuberculosis. He has records of over 1000 injections which show the treatment, if it does not result in absolute cure, improves the general health, retards the disease and relieves the patient's sufferings.

He Garroted His Wife's Priest.

BERLIN, March 1.—Pastor Schaeh, a Catholic priest of this city, was garroted by a rich butcher named Lehmann yesterday. The affair happened in the priest's parsonage, where Lehmann had called to protest against the priest urging Lenmann's wife, who is a Roman Catholic, while he is a Protestant, to have her children baptized in the Roman Church. The sexton was attracted by the cries and hastened to the priest's relief. The priest is dying.

To Legislate Against Fog.

LONDON, March 2.—Viscount Volmer in the House of Commons will ask the Government to appoint a royal commission to examine into the question whether it is possible by legislation to mitigate the increasing prevalence of fogs, which are so great a detriment to sea-faring.

A Vein of "Natural Cheese."

SEARSBORO, Ia., March 2.—Patrick McGlinn, a farmer living near this place, while digging a well the other day, struck a vein of "natural cheese" three and one-half feet thick at a depth of 83 feet. He has just received an analysis from a reputable Chicago chemist, who says it is a cheese of a very high grade. It is of a beautiful golden color and will keep any length of time. Mr. McGlinn has refused an offer of $50,000.

Fire at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, March 3.—A fire in Brock's block at Rideau-Sussex-streets this morning damaged the stock of Faulkner & Sons, gents' furnishers, $4500; McPyke's fancy stock $300; Mrs. Beckett, milliner, $100; Barrett's restaurant $700.

Baptist Church Burned.

ST. CATHARINES, March 1.—The Rev. Jame Gibson's church, the Queen-street Baptist, a fine structure erected in 1852, was completely gutted by fire this morning. The origin of the fire is unknown, but is supposed to have started from the furnace. The insurance is only $4500, not less probably $12,500.

A SISTER IN CANADA.

Suicide of a Printer Who Carried Out His Threat.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Charles W. Easty, a young English printer, killed himself in a Brooklyn undertaker's shop yesterday. Easty was the man who last Tuesday issued a proclamation to the public, notifying it that he proposed to end his life, as he was guilty of an unpardonable sin which had grieved his wife, blighted his children's prospects and broken up a happy home.

Shortly before noon yesterday he entered Frank Harper's undertaking rooms, No. — York-street. He talked in a desultory way for several minutes, asking Levins about the cost of funerals, the mode of conducting autopsies and the disposition of dead bodies which are picked up on the streets and in the rivers. Levins went into the office to write a letter. A minute later he heard a pistol shot. Looking out into the store he saw Easty tottering around. The pistol and his hat were on the floor. Easty died in two hours.

Easty, who was of a morose disposition, was a man of 33. He was married in Brooklyn 11 years ago to Miss Adele L. Wood, by whom he had four children. Six years ago he lived in Hartford, Conn., and was financial secretary of the Hartford Typographical Union. He moved to Brooklyn five years ago with his family. He figured in a scandal and owed considerable money and these facts forced him to leave Hartford.

Last Tuesday Easty rushed into a newspaper office in Brooklyn and handed the clerk a long statement, which was a confession and a proclamation that he intended to commit suicide at once. He had led a double life, he said, destroying the family of a friend and breaking his own wife's heart. He was in debt, too, he said, and thought the world would be well rid of him. He sent letters to that effect to Mrs. King and to another sister living in Canada.

CRUCIFIED HIMSELF.

James Quinn of Philadelphia Does Penance for Imaginary Sins.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 1.—With the marks of the cruel nails on both hands and feet, James Quinn, an old man, lay on a cot in the Philadelphia Hospital yesterday, suffering from wounds self-inflicted while seeking to crucify himself as his Saviour was crucified by His persecutors. Though the pain of the wounds must have been intense, the old man seemed not to notice it, but to suffer great agony over imaginary sins. He clasped his hands in constant prayer in penance for past misdeeds. Quinn's attempt at self-crucifixion, which is only the second instance of its kind known, came as the culmination of a long religious brooding and other troubles which had unhinged his mind. He lives at 1104 McIlvany-street.

For the past week he has been unusually wild in his religious ideas and on Thursday night the climax came. Rising while the rest of the family were yet asleep, he began his preparations for his astonishing performance. Roughly marking out the form of a cross upon the floor, and procuring an old hammer and some nails, he was ready for the self-sacrifice.

Placing a nail upon his right foot, a sharp blow from the hammer drove it clean through. Great as the agony must have been he probably made no sound, knowing that it would arouse his mother, son or daughter. Another nail was placed upon the other foot, but the blow from the hammer failed to drive it through. It stuck a bone, in which it became imbedded. Laying his left hand flat upon the floor, with the palm upward, he drove a third nail deep into the flesh. While seeking to drive a fourth nail into his right hand, which must necessarily have been a very difficult operation considering the laceration of his other hand, the family were awakened and Quinn was prevented from completing the job. The nails were drawn from the left hand and right foot, but that in the left foot was stuck so fast in the bone that it could not be removed.

He Pawned His Hands.

PHILADELPHIA, March 2.—James Monaghan was a brakeman on the North Penn Railroad up to 1884, when he fell off the cars while under the influence of liquor and lost both hands. One was cut off from the wrist and the other from the elbow.

The company purchased one artificial hand for him and his wife the other. After a few weeks he took to drink and began to abuse his wife and did not give her a cent of his earnings. He was finally discharged for drunkenness, and after he had spent all the money he had he finally pawned both hands for drink. His wife has now sued for a divorce.

Will Lose Both Feet.

KINGSTON, March 2.—R. H. Peoples, an old man living at Parkhill, went to Smith's Falls and on returning home by some means his horse left the road and turned into the woods, where Mr. Peoples was turned out, together with some flour and other articles. The horse then went home. A search for the missing man was begun and it was quite early in the morning before he was found. When found he was sitting up with both boots and one sock off and the foot with the sock off frozen solid to the knee and the other very bad. Both limbs will have to be amputated.

The Coat That Mary's Husband Wore.

BERLIN, March 2.—The Roman Catholic authorities in Troves announce that the holy coat of Joseph, the husband of Mary, will be exhibited during the summer, when it is expected a pilgrimage from the entire Catholic population of Germany will be made to view it. The garment was recently inspected by learned clerical experts and by them has been pronounced genuine.

Died from Fright.

OTTAWA, Ill., March 2.—Mrs. George D. Shaver, wife of a prominent farmer living near this city, died from fright this evening. She and her daughter were driving a spirited horse and the animal shied at a street car, but did not run away. Mrs. Shaver was helped out of her carriage, taken into a residence close by and died in less than half an hour.

A Greenhouse Destroyed.

HAMILTON, March 2.—Early yesterday morning a fire broke out in James Wilds' greenhouse in Barton-street, east of the city limits. There was a large stock of plants and flowers in the greenhouse. The loss is estimated at $3000.

Her Hair Caught Fire.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 2.—Mrs. Mary Jermain, wife of a newspaper man of St. Joseph, Mo., was dressing her hair near a table lamp last night when in some way her hair caught on fire. Before help could reach her she was so badly burned that she is not expected to live.

The American Delegation.

DUBLIN, March 2.—Parnell presided at a meeting held by his colleagues here to-day. The meeting adopted a resolution appointing Messrs. O'Kelly, W. Redmond, John O'Connor and Harrison a committee to go to America to raise funds.

Snowstorm in Greece.

ATHENS, March 2.—Severe suffering has been caused throughout Greece by a terrible snowstorm. The snow fell for three days in the Athens district. In Thessaly the storm was especially severe.

He will Walk on a Dog Bone.

PITTSBURG, March 3.—Samuel Rodin, the 9-year-old boy who was the subject of a bone-grafting operation recently (the bone of a dog being crushed to bits and inserted), is expected soon to have complete use of the limb operated on.

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may so easily be relieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and builds the weak strong.

"FIGURES WON'T LIE."

Official Trade Report Which Condemns Its Compiler's Policy.

How the Commerce of Canada has Been Restricted by the N. P.

At last the trade and navigation tables for 1890, so long held back, have been issued, as it is thought to be now too late for the Grits to make any use of them before March 5.

SIGNED TWO MONTHS AGO,

The returns were signed by Mr. Bowell on Dec. 29, 1890. The total exports amounted to $96,749,149, or only $7,000,000 more than in 1874, and $6,000,000 less than in 1882, and $25,000,000 less than our imports during the same year. Last year we sent to Great Britain $48,353,694, and to the United States $40,522,810. Ontario's enormous interest in is shown by the fact that of this total export of $40,000,000 to the United States, Ontario sent over $20,000,000.

The following is a statement of Ontario's exports last year to the United States and Great Britain:

	United States.	Great Britain.
Agriculture	$6,169,789	$ 915,815
Lumber	7,821 387	77,634
Animals	3,745,925	3,084,891
Manufactures	1,566,123	578,091
Fisheries	2d 8 5
Minerals	345,989	15,102

REASONS ENOUGH FOR THE FARMERS' BOLT.

Ontario's total exports to the United States were, as already stated, $20,414,304 while she sent to Great Britain a total of $4,804,755. Here are some of all Canada's exports to the United States last year: Barley, $4,582 575; beans, $250,769; oats, $11.758; peas, $445,547; rye, $13,324; hay, $922,727; malt, $149,551; potatoes, $308,915; horses, $1,959,365; sheep, $764,217; poultry, $108,940; eggs, $179,883; furs, $393,604; hides, $477,630; wool, $248,598; flax, $175 563; apples, $149,479. The tables show that our aggregate trade with Great Britain in 1890 was $91,743 935, while with the United States it was $92,814 783.

DECREASE OF TRADE.

Our aggregate trade with Great Britain has decreased seventeen millions since 1874. Our aggregate trade with Newfoundland, which was $4,609,000 in 1879, fell to $1,655,000 in 1890, and the trade with the West Indies fell from $6,086,000 to $580,900. Our aggregate trade with the world, which amounted to $217,304 516 in 1874, fell last year to $209,514,733. In 1890 we imported from Great Britain $43 389 241, and from the United States $54,201 973; and notwithstanding the excess of imports from the United States the duty on them amounted to $8,128,625 while the duty collected on English goods amounted to $9,576 965, a decided discrimination against England.

CANADA'S CHIEF EXPORTS

in 1890 were classified as follows: The forest, $27 289 284; animals, $26,630 672; the farm, $17,235 575; mine actures, $6,381,064; fisheries, $8 524 408; and minerals, $5,126 000 It will be noticed that our farm exports, which a few years ago reached $25 000 000 have fallen to $17 000 000. Ontario exports to all countries last year, $28,314 586, was the lowest, with two exceptions, since 1880, and lower by over $1,000,000 than in 1873. They were lower by the enormous sum of over $12,000 000 than 1882, when they stood at $40,765,000.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC.

Quebec's total exports to all countries last year were $44 348,693. In 1874 they reached $46,393 845, or in other words, the Quebec exports in Mr. Mackenzie's time exceeded those of 1890 by over $2,000 000. Yet the National Policy was of all things to encourage exports. The Province of Quebec and would do well to consider what kind of a policy it is which decreased the exports last year below the figure at which they stood 16 years ago and only a shade above what they were 20 years ago. Take the the imports next. It is evident that the purchasing power of the people was greater in 1873 than in 1890, for in the former year Canada's total imports reached $128,000,000 while last year they only amounted to $121,000,000. Quebec imported last year $33 003 000, while in 1873 she imported $53,715,000, and in 1883 $35 909,000. In 1875 she imported $51,161,262. Ontario imported last year $15 024,738, or over $4 000 000 less than in 1874, and the Province that her exports is in payment for these goods also decreased. The other Provinces make just as poor a showing in trade, in fact worse for the new and should be growing Province of Manitoba actually exported less in 1890 than she did five years ago, and Prince Edward Island exported less in 1890 than she did in 1875 fifteen years ago. No wonder the Government held these returns back until the last possible moment. Notwithstanding the excess of our trade in 1875 over 1890 the taxes collected from the people in 1875 amounted to only $1,536,100, while in 1890 the vast sum of $24,014,000 was collected.

ANOTHER SIGNIFICANT RETURN

is the tonnage and value of vessels built in Canada and sold to other countries. Last year the tonnage of such vessels reached 23,904, of the value of $484 148; while in 1876 the tonnage was 64,134, of the value of $2,189,270. The decline of Canada's shipping is directly due to the policy of the present Government.

MR. LAURIER'S GOVERNMENT is pledged to secure free entry into the United States for Canadian built vessels, which would revive this failing industry in every ship yard in the Maritime Provinces and British Columbia.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Balsam for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c, and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. dw

FOR NETTLE RASH, Summer Heat and general toilet purposes, use Low's Sulphur Soap. dw

The picture of the Pied Piper of Hamelin, playing upon his magic pipe, while the entranced rats of the town leave their holes and flock after him into the sea, reminds one of the speed with which the diseases and impurities of the blood leave the system when Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is taken.

It removes all humors, poisons, or taints, from the system, whether manifested in the common pimple, or eruption, or in boils, carbuncles, eczema, salt-rheum, fever-sores, white swellings, hip-joint disease, and kindred affections — in fact anything and everything resulting from impure blood.

For scrofula of the lung tissues (consumption) it has no equal, and often cures cases which physicians have given up. It is a guaranteed liver, blood and lung remedy, and the only one sold. Your money returned if the medicine fails to accomplish what its manufacturers claim, when taken in time and given a fair trial.

All the year round, you may rely upon Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to purify the blood and invigorate the system. It's not like the sarsaparillas, that are said to be good for the blood in March, April and May. The "Golden Medical Discovery" works equally well at all times, and in all cases of blood-taints, or humors, no matter what their name or nature.

It's the cheapest blood-purifier, sold through druggists, no matter how many doses are offered for a dollar, because you only pay for the good you get.

Your money is returned if it doesn't benefit or cure you.

Can you ask more?

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol to inebriate, and no syrup or sugar to derange digestion.

It's a concentrated vegetable extract; put up in large bottles at $1.00; pleasant to the taste, and equally good for adults or children.

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1. dw

Bankers' Banquet.

A very pleasant bankers' banquet may produce very unpleasant symptoms of dyspepsia, which disease is often caused by overloading the stomach with rich food, etc. For years Burdock Blood Bitters has held first place at home and abroad as a permanent and reliable cure for dyspepsia or indigestion in any form. The proprietors guarantee it to cure dyspepsia or return purchase money. 2w6d

A Bag of Flour.

As a general renovating tonic and purifying family medicine useful at all times, but especially so in the spring, Burdock Blood Bitters is unequalled.

"It's like a bag of flour in a poor man's family," says Mr. John Maunder, of Yorkville, Ont. "the oftener you take B. B. B. the better you are." 2w6d

Wm. Dredge, Elen street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions took away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. Its taste is just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

Hagyard's Yellow Oil.

This great internal and external remedy always allays all pain. It is a specific for croup, and promptly cures coughs, colds, sore throat, sprains, bruises, burns, rheumatism, cuts, wounds, etc. Good for man or beast. Stands all tests. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents. Hagyard's Yellow Oil. 2w6d

For overcoats and russian circulars are first-class articles to keep you warm, but they will not prevent the pains of rheumatism. Ask W. R. Greatrex, druggist, for a bottle of Royal Rheumatic Remedy. dw

SOME SYMPTOMS OF WORMS are:—Fever, colic, variable appetite restlessness, weak eyes and sunken nose. The unfailing remedy is Dr. Low's Worm Syrup. dw

AN INACTIVE or Torpid Liver must be aroused and all bad bile removed. Burdock Pills are best for old or young. dw

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

That Tired Feeling

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. RUGGLES, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PIERRE MORRER, 88 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

LOVE'S WAY.

Mrs. Dewsford sat in her own room, assiduously employed in fastening dried butterflies on a sheet of pasteboard, with an "Encyclopædia of Entomology" lying on the table beside her, and a magnifying glass affixed in some mysterious manner to her nose. She was a spare, prim, hard-featured matron, was Mrs. Dewsford—one who believed in Women's Rights, and thought woman generally a much abused personage, deposed from her proper sphere and trampled on by the tyrant man!

Mrs. Dewsford had come very near being a man herself—what with a deep voice and a bearded chin, and a figure quite innocent of all superfluous curves or graces! Really, if she had changed her skirt and bodice to trousers and coat, she would have passed for one of the contemned sex without much difficulty.

But Lizzie Dewsford was quite different—Lizzie Dewsford who stood beside her mother with cheeks round and ripe as a peach, deep blue eyes made mystic and shady by their long lashes, and brown hair wound round and round her pretty head in shining coils. You wondered, as you gazed at her, how they could both be women and yet so unlike.

"Nonsense, child," said Mrs. Dewsford, critically examining a butterfly with pale yellow wings, sprinkled with carmine.

"But, mamma," pleaded Lizzie, "it isn't nonsense. He really does want to marry me."

"Marriage is all a mistake, Elizabeth," said Mrs. Dewsford, laying down her magnifying glass. "I don't mean you shall marry at all."

"Mamma!"

"A woman who marries," went on the strong-minded matron, "is a woman enslaved. If I had known as much about life when I was eighteen as I do now, I would never have married. From the standpoint of a grand mistake committed in my own life, I can rectify yours, Elizabeth."

"But, mamma!" cried poor Lizzie, "what shall I do?"

"Do, child! do!" ejaculated the mother. "That is a pretty question for my daughter to ask! Why, read—study—improve your mind. Devote all the energies of your nature to the solving of the great social problems that surround you."

"I don't care a pin for the social problems, mamma," remonstrated Lizzie, "I rather like Charley Everett, and I'm going to marry him!"

"Never, with my consent."

"Oh, mamma," cried Lizzie, aghast, "surely you would not"——

"Elizabeth," said Mrs. Dewsford, in a tone of judicial calmness, "don't you see what a confusion you are creating among these insects which I have so carefully classified! I beg you will interrupt my studies no longer. Go and finish reading that Report of the English Convention for the Amelioration of Womankind. What are you crying for! A well-regulated woman never cries."

"I wish I wasn't a woman!" sobbed poor Lizzie. "I wish I wasn't something that had to be elevated, and improved, and cultivated! Oh, mamma, darling, you weren't in earnest when you said you wouldn't consent to my marrying Charley! We shall be so happy together, and he says he will be miserable without me; and"——

"Elizabeth, I am astonished at you! Of course I was in earnest! I have neither gold nor jewels to lay on the shrine of the cause; but I have a daughter, and I intend to show the world what a woman, unshackled and unfettered, can be capable of! You, Elizabeth, should glory in thus becoming an offering!"

But Lizzie, apparently unappreciative of the great lot in store for her, cried more piteously than ever.

"Tears will not melt me," said Mrs. Dewsford, calmly resuming the encyclopædia. "I only regret to be the mother of so degenerate a daughter!"

"Mamma," ventured poor Lizzie, after a few minutes of silent grieving, "I—I promised Charley to ride out with him this afternoon!"

"You must give him up, Elizabeth. Upon such a subject I can accept no compromise."

"But I promised, mamma!"

Mrs. Dewsford gravely rubbed the end of her nose.

"A promise is a promise, Elizabeth; nor shall I require you to break it." (Here Lizzie brightened.) "But I shall accompany you!" (The pretty face became clouded and overcast once more). "Where are you going?"

"To the woods beyond the glen, mamma. Charley is going to get some wood sorrel for my herbarium."

"Nor will the expedition be unprofitable to me," said Mrs. Dewsford, gravely. "There are many choice varieties of Adiantum and Asplenium to be found in those woods, and my collection of native ferns is as yet incomplete."

And Lizzie went away in great consternation—not to read reports, nor to study paleontology, but to slip out in the garden, where a great rose tree carpeted the velvet grass with showers of soft pink petals at every passing breath of air, and where Charley Everett was busied in cutting out sticks for carnations.

"Oh, Charley—Charley! I am so miserable!"

"Lizzie, what is the matter?"

He dropped knife, sticks, and all, in dismay at her woeful countenance; and Lizzie told him to the best of her ability what "the matter" was.

"Is that all?" he asked, quietly, when the recital was concluded.

"Isn't that enough?" she rejoined, piteously. "When we were going to have such a nice drive all by ourselves, and then come home by moonlight, and"——

"Don't fret, cara mia; it will be all right! So she won't consent to your marriage, eh!"

"She says most positively that she will not."

"What shall we do, Lizzie? Shall we elope quietly?"

"Oh, Charley, you know I would never marry without her consent!"

"And are two lives to be made miserable just because she thinks matrimony a mistake?"

"I suppose so, Charley."

Lizzie Dewsford's pretty head drooped like a rose in the rain. Charley watched her quivering lip and tear-wet eyelashes, and said no more!

Mrs. Dewsford was ready, with a preposterous green umbrella to keep off the sun, a tin case to put ferns in, and an extra pair of boots, in the event of swampy walking, when Mr. Everett's little light phaeton drove up to the door. The springs creaked ominously as she stepped in, and Lizzie, meekly following, was nearly overwhelmed by her mother's voluminous draperies.

"I had better sit in the middle—it preserves the equilibrium of the vehicle better," said Mrs. Dewsford, wedging herself in between Lizzie and Mr. Everett with a smile of great complacency.

And she immediately began discoursing on the properties and habits of the fern, with unfailing volubility, while Lizzie [illegible] outer edge of the vehicle, and Mr. Everett's eyes were in extreme danger with the points of the green umbrella, which veered to and fro like a ship in a storm, as Mrs. Dewsford's tale waxed in interest.

Suddenly she checked herself, as her eye caught a cluster of green waving vegetation on the crest-like point of a rock which overhung the road.

"Charles! Charles!" she cried, "stop a minute! Can't you reach that Asplenium Ebenum!"

"Is this it, ma'am?" said Mr. Everett, making a dive at a tall stalk of something.

"No, no: not that—the little green thing with the black stem!"

"This, ma'am?" hazarded Charley, clutching at a fat-leaved cluster of weedy growth.

"Oh, dear, dear, Charles, how stupid you are!" sighed Mrs. Dewsford. "I'll jump out and get it myself!"

"Mamma!" remonstrated Lizzie.

"Oh, I'll help her!" nodded Charley, springing nimbly on the cliff, and pulling Mrs. Dewsford by main force up the steep side of the rock. "Here you are, ma'am!"

"Yes," panted Mrs. Dewsford; "but—but it was very steep. I really think women should devote more attention to gymnastics. Oh, here's the Asplenium—very choice specimens, too. Charles, where are you going?"

For Mr. Everett had sprung back into the phaeton.

"Only for a little turn, ma'am, while you are gathering your botanical treasures."

"Yes, but, Charles"——

Mrs. Dewsford's words of remonstrance were drowned in the rattle of the wheels, as Mr. Everett drove briskly away, with Lizzie nestling up to his side. One long, lingering glance she gave after the departing pair, and then returned to her tin case and umbrella.

"They'll be back presently," she said.

But the afternoon sunlight faded off from the cliff, and the red orb of day sank majestically down behind the evergreen glens that bounded the western horizon, and Mrs. Dewsford grew tired, and cross, and rheumatic, and still, like the character of romance, "they came not."

"Something has happened!" cried the prophetic soul of Mrs. Dewsford. "It can't be possible that I shall have to stay here all night!"

She looked nervously round. It was a tall, steep cliff whereon she stood, cut off from the wood beyond by the rush and roar of a wide and by no means shallow stream on one side, while on the other three it was almost perpendicular, rising some twenty feet up from the road. Mrs. Dewsford began to feel, as she surveyed it, very much like St. Simon Stylites on his column in the wilderness.

"If they shouldn't come!" she thought.

But at the same instant a welcome rumbling of wheels broke the hushed stillness of the seldom travelled mountain road, and Mrs. Dewsford's strained eyes caught sight of Mr. Everett's spirited gray, dashing round the curve of the hill.

"Well!" she cried, "I never was more thankful for anything in my life! I'm tired to death waiting."

"Are you?" said Charles Everett, as he checked the horse in the middle of the road. "Yes. Why don't you drive closer?" sharply demanded Mrs. Dewsford.

"Oh, did you want to drive home with us?"

"Why, of course I did! I'd have been home long ago if I could have got off this place."

"Well, ma'am," said Charley, in accents of the coolest deliberation, while Lizzie clung, frightened and yet smiling, to his side, "I shall be very happy to help you off the cliff on one condition."

"Condition! Charles Everett!" exclaimed the astonished and indignant matron; "what do you mean?"

"Simply this, Mrs. Dewsford. I want to marry your daughter. But Lizzie, like a too dutiful child, will not become my wife without your consent."

"Which she shall never have!" said Mrs. Dewsford, emphatically. "Very well, ma'am! Gee up, Whitey;"—and he shook the reins.

"You're not going to leave me here!" shrieked Mrs. Dewsford, in a panic of terror.

"Unless you comply with my condition, ma'am, I most certainly shall."

"And that condition is?"

"Your consent to my marriage with your daughter."

"Elizabeth!" cried Mrs. Dewsford, "will you be a witness to this—this atrocious conduct, and not interfere?"

"Charley won't let me have a voice in the matter, mamma, at all," Lizzie said demurely. "He says he don't believe in women's rights!"

Mrs. Dewsford gave a hollow groan. Mr. Everett touched his horse slightly with the whip.

"Stop!" cried Mrs. Dewsford. "I consent—but it is under protest!"

"You can protest all you like," said Mr. Everett, driving closer to the rock, and standing up to assist his mother-in-law-elect into the phaeton.

Silently Mrs. Dewsford entered the vehicle—silently she rode home—silently she crossed the threshold of her house, as became a conquered party!

"To think," she said, in a hollow voice, as she sat down to dinner, "that after all my precepts and example, Elizabeth should end her career by getting married!"

"Mamma," said Lizzie, timidly, "I don't think it's so very terrible, after all!"

"To think," sighed Mrs. Dewsford, paying no attention to her daughter's reply, "that you should meet the fate of any ordinary woman!"

"But, mamma, I never had any ambition to be an extraordinary woman!" As so was brought to a termination the plots and plans for a "model existence" which had been formed for Mrs. Dewsford's daughter.

TUESDAY, MARCH 3, 1891.

REFORMERS, RALLY!

There must be a large attendance of energetic workers at the Liberal committee rooms, Water street, to-night. Every detail of organization and arrangement must be completed to-night for the great battle of Thursday. Every man must have his place assigned to him, and every man must come prepared to shoulder the duty with which he is entrusted. Let no excuse avail to keep a single Liberal worker from his post. It is work that wins the day.

IS IT INTIMIDATION?

It is the privilege under the law for every elector to cast his ballot, with the utmost freedom, for the candidate of his choice, subject, of course, to the influence which fair and legitimate argument may exercise. But intimidation and coercion are accounted by law as undue influence. Now, the threats that are being made by the managers of some of our factories that they will close at once if unrestricted reciprocity is adopted, is in reality as much intimidation as if these employers threatened to discharge employees who vote for Mr. Hall. There is, however, no weight in these threats, for these factories will not remove, no matter what the result of the election. On the other hand they will have to increase their capacity to meet the wider demand, which a wider market will create in case of reciprocity being sustained.

Mr. J. H. Long, at the labour meeting on Friday night, stated that a suit of clothes costs, in the United States, about double of what it costs in Canada. With the tariff wall removed, what a chance for the Auburn Woollen Mills to flood that market with the tweeds which Mr. Kendry boasts of producing so cheaply. If he spoke the truth in the Opera House on Friday night, there would be no trouble in finding a market, and a booming market, too, for all the goods which the mills, with doubled capacity, could produce. Therefore he would derive benefit from unrestricted reciprocity, and not harm, and the very last thing he would think of would be to close down or remove

Then the Look Works are to close if an additional market of 65 millions is opened to them. Nobody has the least fear of their closing. They are able to stand American competition. The manager says the tariff of 35 per cent. only gives a protection of 10 per cent. Well, remove this ten per cent., not to count the advantage of a larger market, and we have the dividend of the company reduced to 23 per cent. An industry that under a protection of 10 per cent. is making profits enough to declare a dividend of 33 per cent. to the stockholders would not certainly collapse and remove. It is nonsense to suppose that any such thing could happen.

Then we have the Central Iron Bridge Works to remove at once "nearer to the base of supplies," and that means closer to the iron mines of Pennsylvania in Yankeedom. There's loyalty to the old flag for you! Remove an iron industry from under the protecting folds of the old flag for the sake of getting nearer to the iron mines of the "hated Yankee" when we have at our very door —in this very county of Peterborough—just as good, and, if developed, better than any Yankee "base of supplies" you can find. No, there is not a bit of danger of the Bridge Works removing. The policy of the Liberal party in adjusting the tariff is to cheapen raw material. Iron is cheap in England and it would be $13 per ton cheaper (on some kinds) if the duty were removed. What would then prevent the Bridge Works from competing with the United States where, Mr. Law says iron is so dear?

Don't be deceived with the cry of removing factories; it is only a sort of "veiled" intimidation to get workingmen to perpetuate a system that discriminates against workingmen and fills the pockets of the capitalist and employer of labour. Can workingmen hope for any permanent improvement of their condition? The present protective tariff is only a make shift—it ties the hands of trade, swamps enterprise and retards development. Here we have enormous taxes laid upon iron, and a big bounty to boot on every ton of iron manufactured from Canadian ore, and to-day there is not enough Canadian iron produced to make a toasting fork. How long is this to continue? We shall never have any development of our immense deposits of iron, unless we have a larger market—unless we have the market at our doors opened up. We must have a market, and national development, which is the true National Policy, will follow.

Don't be fooled by "removal" roorbacks. Restrictority will certainly make our factories "go up" a story higher—to increase their capacity—and the only injurious effect competition with the Americans will have upon our manufacturers will be to bring the wages of Canadians up to the standard of Americans —the highest standard of wages in the world.

Protectionist Cries.

The Tories employ a number of catch phrases and lame arguments, some of which it may be well to examine.

(1) They say we export more agricultural products to Britain than to the States. They forget that our exports to the one are admitted free whilst our exports to the other are taxed. But supposing we sent fifty times as much to Britain as to the States, would not the farmer be benefitted by having two free markets instead of one?

(2) They say that while it does not increase the cost of living, the N.P. increases the price of Canadian park. Granting the latter assertion, does the farmer gain as much by park protection as he loses by the artificial prices exacted by the Canadian combines, or by the diminished price for his own wares resulting from the McKinley tariff.

(3) They say the N.P. exalts the artizan's wages. That is not true. But supposing it were true, how could free trade with the States reduce them, seeing that wages are higher there than here?

(4) They say the N.P. does not increase the price of manufactured goods. Then how can it augment the wages of the labor of which such goods are the product, and why do the pap-fed industries dread American competition?

(5) They say unrestricted reciprocity would be treason. If a free exchange of coal, ore and lumber, such as the Old Man proposed to Congress and Mr. Harrison last summer, be loyal, why should there be any disloyalty in exchanging the finished articles manufactured from those commodities? Does the application of labour and skill to raw material alter anybody's sentiments towards Her Majesty, who herself uses foreign wares obtained in exchange for British goods?

(6) They say reciprocity in farm products would ruin the farmer. Then why did Sir John make a pretence of favouring it until the Blaine-Baker letter appeared? Did it ruin the farmers between 1854 and 1866? If we cannot compete with American produce on this continent how do we manage to sell our stuff against it in Britain?

(7) They say unrestricted trade would deprive us of revenue. But is a revenue derived from customs taxation so much found money? Could it not be easily replaced in other ways without inconveniencing a people who would be better off?

(8) They say commercial isolation will work out all right by-and-bye. When? After we have lost another million of native-born Canadians and another million and a half of European settlers, making this a half-way house to the States? Or after we have doubled our debt in a vain attempt to combat nature? Let us have some particulars of the millenium.

(9) They say the manufacturing interest would be ruined. How so, if their goods are as cheap or cheaper than American goods, which is elsewhere alleged? The best of the manufacturers desire the largest market on even terms which unrestricted reciprocity would bring. The workings whom the farmer and the rest of us have to support out of our earning might suffer, but why not if the community at large would be advantaged?

(10) They say we are doing well enough as we are. Is the farmer doing well? Is the miner making the most of the wealth under his feet? Has the fisherman a fair show? Is business in a healthy condition? Why did the Old Man propose a lob-sided reciprocity at the commencement of this campaign if everybody is prosperous? And why are the ultra-Tories clamoring for Imperial Federation and a complete change in the tariff system alike of Canada and Britain? Where is the candidate who dares to stand upon the N.P. and upon that alone? If the people are happy why is it necessary to bribe them with protectionist money, and to lie to them and deceive them with cries clean outside of the issue?

The Close of the Campaign.

The last meeting but one of the campaign in Mr. Hall's interest (that at Enniskmore to-night) was held at the town hall Bridgenorth, in Mr. Halls interests. It was a rouser—fully as hot as one in Mr. Hall's favour. Addresses were given by Mr Hall, Mr. Stratton, M.P.P. and Mr. R. R. Hall. Mr. Dennistoun appeared for Mr. Stevenson. This meeting is but a type of the other meetings that have been held throughout the country. In every township, on every side line the farmers are thoroughly aroused and they are determined to put a stop to the jug-handled protection that has been bleeding them, as well as the wage earner, to enrich a few protected manufacturers, and they will give Mr. Hall and unrestricted reciprocity a tremendous vote on Thursday next—a vote that will surprise the high taxationists.

The Verdict of the "Jury" Sustained.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—We are informed that at a meeting held in Peterborough last night the statement was made that Mr. A. F. Jury, of Toronto, used no Canadian tweeds in his business. We beg to say that we have sold Mr. Jury many a dollars' worth of Canadian woollens during the past few years, some of which were made in your own town.

Yours very truly,
T. C. McKENZIE & Co.

Toronto, Feb. 28th, 1891.

Lakefield.

Address and Presentation to a Departing Citizen.

In yesterday's issue, the EXAMINER mentioned the fact of Mr. W. J. Moore, of Lakefield, having become a resident of Peterborough. On the eve of his departure, his class in the Methodist church, Lakefield, at the conclusion of the prayer meeting, greeted Mr. Moore with the following address, accompanied with the gift of a beautiful Bible and hymn book:

DEAR BROTHER MOORE:

The members of your class having heard with deep regret and sorrow, that you are about to remove from our village, desire before you leave to give expression to the respect, esteem and brotherly love which your life and care over us as teacher has awakened in all our hearts. The Lord indeed has been thy light and thy salvation and the strength of thy life. As a teacher, we do bear testimony to the faithful, exemplary manner in which you have led us, and whose spirit has to a greater or less degree permeated every heart. Our hearts have often burned within us under the warmth of the word as given to us by you, and here together we would devoutly acknowledge the tokens of Divine presence with us under your leadership, and trust we imitate your example as a man of prayer and power, and in your new home you will, we are sure, never be found wanting when the great needs of love and truth demand a supporter. We will miss you as a Christian companion and teacher, also your dear wife and family, and therefore we greatly regret your departure, but we most heartily wish you every success, and may grace be unto you and peace from God, the Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

As an earnest of our best wishes we ask your acceptance of this Bible and hymn book, which we are assured will remind you of the many members of your class, who ask you to continue to pray for us, that the Word of the Lord may have free course and be glorified, and that at last as teacher and members we may meet around the throne, and hear the "Well Done" from our Father. The address was signed on behalf of the class by the following ladies and gentlemen:

Mr. J. Moore and wife, Mr. S. Sheris and wife, Mr. MacElwain and wife, Mr. W. Cox and wife, Mr. Montgomery and wife, Mr. W. White and wife, Mr. Nelson, wife and daughter, Mr. Payne and wife, Mr. Higgins and wife, Mr. A. Jory and wife, Mr. Matthews and wife, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Rodgers and daughter, Mrs. Rodgers, Mrs. Garvie and daughters, Mrs. G. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Baker, Mr. Dewey Mr. H. R. Patterson, D. Burgess, Mr. Carveth and wife, Mr. Sellins, Mrs. Chapin Mrs. Sage, Mrs Ross and son, Mr. Fountain, Mrs. Grylls and daughter, Mrs. A. Sherris.

Mr. Moore made a suitable and feeling reply.

—Heed a fierce article on the front side of proprietor's which position it has reached by its own intrinsic, undoubted merit.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The saying "carpe diem" was not forgotten by those who had gathered at the palatial residence of Mr. Alex. Davidson on Wednesday evening last, to do honor to their respected friend, Mr. James Davidson, who with his bride, leaves for Manitoba in about two weeks. Mr. Davidson being a member of the High Park brass band, was serenaded on the above named evening, by that organization. After the playing of several choice selections by the band, the doors were thrown open and the boys invited in, where they were hospitably entertained to an excellent oyster supper provided by our esteemed friend, Mr. Alex. Davidson. After doing ample justice to that part of the programme, the merry crowd were escorted to another room where various games and amusements were indulged in till a late hour. The company then arose, and joining hands sang "Auld Lang Syne," after which a fitting tribute was paid the bride and groom, followed by another appropriate song. Then a hearty approval was shown the host, Mr. Sandy Davidson and his assistants, for their kindness and hospitality, followed by all joining heartily in singing "For he's a jolly good fellow." The band then struck up, "God Save the Queen," and brought to a close one of the most fashionable, as well as one of the most enjoyable parties that has ever been in this section. We all join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Davidson every success in life.

Cold Springs, Otonabee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES—Cold Springs Y.P.S.C.E., which meets every fortnight, held its last regular meeting (consecration) on Monday evening, Feb. 23. At the close of the public meeting, the officers and the committees for the ensuing term were appointed. We trust the interest manifested both by the number and spirit of those who were present may go on increasing in the society and in the neighborhood.

ENTERTAINMENT.—On Tuesday evening, Feb. 24th, Prof. Saddaby gave a very interesting entertainment in the school house. The entertainment consists of instructions in drawing and colours, violin selections, feats of illusion, ventriloquism, &c. One of the best features was the "slate" mystery, which baffles all attempts at solution. Those wishing to spend a pleasant and profitable evening cannot do better than hear and see Prof. Saddaby.

PERSONAL.—Mr. James Armstrong has disposed of his place and will move to Ashburnham. Though exceedingly sorry to lose him as a neighbour, we hope often to see him amongst us still. He will carry with him to his new home the best wishes of all in this neighbourhood.....Mr. Holden and family have lately come to reside in our midst.

A Clergyman's Experience.

There are hundreds of men in every profession and calling of life who have reason to thank Providence for the discovery and introduction of that well known and popular remedy—Paine's Celery Compound. A well known Presbyterian minister writes as follows:—"For some months before using Paine's Celery Compound I was afflicted with insomnia and more or less vertigo—all brought on by overwork and protracted anxiety. Since using the Compound I feel much better, sleep soundly, and my head troubles me less. I have not, meanwhile, intermitted or materially slackened my work. For the benefit I have gained from your preparation, I am grateful to God and thankful to you."

There is great encouragement here to all who overwork the brain, and who, through continued study, have become sleepless and nervous. Very often one bottle will suffice to regulate and restore vital vigor and healthy sleep.

If you are nervous or dyspeptic try Carter's Little Nerve Pills. Dyspepsia makes you nervous, and nervousness makes you dyspeptic; either one makes you miserable, and these Little pills cure both. dw

French Speaking Canadians.

Mr. C. A. Le Bel Esq., of Montreal held a highly successful meeting of the French Canadian citizens of the town in the interest of Mr. Hall at La Roques hotel last night. There was a large and enthusiastic attendance who listened to the address of Mr. Le Bel, which preceded the work of organization. He read and commented on Hon. Mr. Laurers manifesto and was received in a very flattering manner. He is doing good work amongst our estimable French Canadian citizens.

A Sad Death.

Mrs. Hall, widow of the late Fred Hall, confectioner, died this morning. Her death is peculiarly sad from the fact that her late husband died only a few days ago, and her sister, Mrs. Hodge, of Belleville, and Mr. Albert Hall, are now lying ill with the same malady which carried off Mr. and Mrs. Hall—pleuro-pneumonia. When Mr. Hall fell sick the others watched faithfully by his bedside, and they too took the disease, which has resulted in Mrs. Hall's death, and, it is feared may yet result in the death of the others. Great sympathy is expressed for the four little ones thus bereft of both parents.

A fine musical programme will also be rendered. Tickets only 15 cents; two for 25 cents. 1d

Japan and the Japanese.

The lecture on Japan and the Japanese by Rev. T. C. Cocking, a returned missionary, in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church last night was highly successful. It was intended to hold the entertainment in the school room, but it was found the attendance was so large that an adjournment was made to the church proper. Rev. Mr. Cocking's lime-light views were excellent and his explanations and comments most interesting. He clothed himself in Japanese costume and sang a native song. At the close of the lecture a sale of fancy and useful Japanese articles took place, which resulted satisfactorily. A silver collection was also taken at the door. The missionary cause has benefitted considerably by Rev. Mr. Cocking's visit to Peterborough.

To-Night's Torchlight Procession.

The hypocritical howlers for the old flag knew what they were talking about when they cried "annexation." To-night the "Loyalist" party introduces the thin end of the annexation wedge. Never before in the history of Canada has that exclusively Yankee institution, the torch light procession, been seen in Canada as a campaign factor, and it is quite consistent for lip loyalists to introduce as prominent a feature of American campaign tactics. Oh, for the tongue of an Empire writer to howl "Treason! treason!" "An Annexation Plot in Peterborough." "Flaunting the Smoke of a Yankee torchlight procession in the face of the Old Flag." All right; let the High Taxationists enjoy their flambeaued triumph to-night—they went have much to cry over on Friday.

Burying the Dead.

The funeral of the late William English took place this afternoon at three o'clock. It was very largely attended, all classes of citizens uniting in showing their respect for the deceased. Among the many beautiful emblems received were three from municipal sources. The trustees of the north ward school sent from a floral basket and wreath; the Civil Service Club, a wreath; and the Ladies Auxiliary of St. John's Church, a wreath. Rev. J. C. Davidson conducted the funeral service. The pall bearers were the following prominent members of St. John's Church: Messrs. R. A. Maguire, J. H. Hobbs, Rank, G. A. Smith, Sir. Reeder and Sherwood. Upon leaving the house the funeral cortege proceeded to the church where the solemn service was said over the remains, after which the procession wended its way to the Little cemetery.

Among those who followed the remains to their last resting place were the members of the School Board in a body, the Directors of the Mechanics' Institute and the employees of the Peter Hamilton Agricultural Works, the factory being shut down this afternoon for the purpose—a graceful act on the part of the company and their employees and a pleasing public tribute to the memory of one who enjoyed the universal esteem of all.

A report was current last night that Mrs. English's little girl, who was suffering from the same malady which caused her father's death, had also died. Happy to say, the rumor was untrue. The little girl is improving and will probably recover.

TO THE ELECTORS

—OF—

West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to secure my return in the present election. In dread of the disastrous consequences to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrages it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

RICHARD HALL.

Peterborough, Feb. 14th, 1891. dw

O'CONNOR AND TEEMER.

THE OARS MATCHED TO ROW IN JUNE.

The International League Will Not Form Unless Toronto Joins—Meeting of the Delegates at Buffalo Yesterday—The Business Transacted.

TORONTO, March 4.—Teemer makes a suggestion to The Boston Globe that he is willing to enter a sweepstakes race in Iowa Town, in which Hanlan, O'Connor, Gaudar and himself would start. The McKeesporter wants the stakes to be $500 each and has already made a deposit with the Boston paper.

To this amount Mr. Thayer, the well-known Hubbite patron of aquatic sports, will add $1000 if the race takes place at Point au Pitres on Decoration Day.

O'Connor objects to enter such an event, and Hanlan was non-committal yesterday. However, O'Connor is anxious for a match race with John Teemer and yesterday stated that he would row Teemer for from $1000 to $5000 a side in June or July if a course could be mutually agreed upon.

WANT TORONTO IN.

International Baseball Would Not be Complete Without This City.

BUFFALO, March 3.—The International Baseball League delegates met here to-day. The cities represented were: Buffalo, Syracuse, Albany, Troy, New Haven, Newark, Worcester. President White held a proxy for Toronto. A letter from Rochester stated that the Flour City would be in line. Newark was unanimously admitted and Worcester was fixed. Although Toronto and Rochester were by no means certain the league was particularly anxious for their presence during the season, especially the Canadian cit, which always was a paying centre. The league wanted Worcester to leave its name before them pending the action of Toronto and Rochester, but Worcester would not be subservient to any city and will seek pastures new. Each club represented paid its $100 dues. The next meeting will be held in Syracuse next week at the president's call when the schedule committee will be appointed and the $1000 guarantee will be paid.

Many ball players were about the corridors of the hotel, among them Jay Faatz, Joe Battin, who is likely to be an international umpire, "Billy" Bottenus, "Pat" Deely, Jack Rowe, Hallgan, Manager Morton and ex-Umpire "Billy" Hoover also mingled with the throng.

Yale Will Not Row Cornell.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 3.—President Townsend of the Yale Navy says that he has had no correspondence with Commodore Ranger of Cornell about a race between the two universities next June and knows nothing about the report the coming of Mr. Ranger to New Haven. Mr. Townsend says that he does not think there is any prospect of a race being arranged with Cornell. The Yale crew began eating at the training table to-day.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., March 3.—Snow fell on a hard track during the races to-day. Results:

First race, 5/4 furlongs—Whitenose 1, Baltimore 2, Prince Albert 3. Time 1.25¼.

Second race, 4¼ furlongs—Madge L. 1, King Solomon 2, Ascot 3. Time .58.

A bitter campaign between the Parnellites and the McCarthyites is being waged in County Clare on the West coast. Last night the rooms of the anti-Parnellites in the thriving port of Kilrush, were entered, the instruments of the band stolen and the drums cut.

Mr. W. Horton, barrister, died in St. Thomas yesterday, aged 73. He studied law in Toronto and London and passed as a barrister in 1840, and has since practised his profession uninterruptedly in London, Glencoe and St. Thomas. The deceased leaves a wife, a sister of Mrs. (Judge) Hughes, and nine children.

It is believed that an important archæological discovery has been made at Rome. Near the Bridge of St. Angelo, while constructing works for the embankment of the Tiber, a column was discovered bearing an inscription commemorating games that were held every one hundred years to celebrate the founding of the city and also an ode written by Horace for the occasion.

Chicago organized labor is in arms over letters from Treasurer Zeberger of the World's Fair Directory, as to unpaid stock. Many of the union labor men agreed not to pay their subscriptions to the fair fund unless the Directory first agreed not to employ non-union men. Secretary Zeberger has notified the local organizations that the Directory does not propose to be dictated to by aborting men and that no attempt will ever be made at the solicitation of the subscriptions.

FIFTY PERSONS KILLED.

FRIGHTFUL RAILWAY DISASTER IN RUSSIA YESTERDAY.

The Victims Literally Ground to Pieces—The Colonization Committee of the British House of Commons Unable to Report—A Notary Missing With a Million Francs.

DUBLIN, March 3.—While the Dublin mail train was nearing Castlerea to-day a passenger named Gavin suddenly drew a knife and commenced slashing those about him, at the same time yelling at the top of his voice. The car was loaded with passengers and all were thrown into a panic. Gavin badly wounded five fellow-passengers, and only desisted from his bloody work when both blades of his knife were broken and the weapon was harmless. He then jumped from the train while it was going at full speed, ran to a woods near by and hid himself. The wounded passengers were taken to a railroad station and several physicians attended to their injuries. The police afterward captured Gavin, who is undoubtedly insane.

50 PASSENGERS KILLED.

Two Express Trains Collide Near Morshanuk in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 3.—A horrible railway accident occurred near Morshanuk in the government of Tambov, to-day. Two express trains came into collision, demolishing the carriages of both. Fifty persons were killed outright and a larger number were seriously injured. The scenes about the wreck are described as sickening. Many of the bodies of the dead were literally ground into pieces, while some of the wounded, dismembered and mangled, lived for several hours in the most intense agony.

IN VON WALDERSEE'S COMMAND.

German Soldiers Driven Wild by Repeated Acts of Cruelty.

BERLIN, March 4.—The attention of the military authorities here has been called to the condition of the garrison at Altona, near Hamburg. For some time past the barracks at Altona have been in a constant state of turmoil owing to the cruelties practised upon the men by the non-commissioned officers, and it is represented that the men have become so unruly under their harsh treatment that they are ready to precipitate a revolt at any moment. Three of the garrison have committed suicide within a week, in order to escape the torments to which they were subjected by their petty superiors, and nearly all of the men have been driven to the point of murdering their prosecutors should an opportunity offer. This state of affairs has finally been laid before the officials of the War Office in detail.

THE COLONIZATION COMMITTEE.

Report That Manitoba Is the Only British Colony Which Desires Immigrants.

LONDON, March 3.—The Select Committee on Colonization appointed by the House of Commons find that it is impossible for them to submit a unanimous report, as many of the members are satisfied that Manitoba is the only British colony which desires immigrants.

Mail Math No Fury Like a Signor Scorned.

ROME, March 3.—In the Chamber of Deputies at Rome yesterday while the electoral mandates were being verified Signor Imbriani regretted that some members had accepted money to defend certain candidates before the committee entrusted with the work of verifying. Signor Spirito and others protested against what they called slanders.

Imbriani replied that he scorned Spirito's remarks.

The President demanded that the objectionable expression be withdrawn.

Many members jumped up to speak and a great uproar ensued. Imbriani having refused to retract his expression. The President called for order and the excitement subsided.

An M.P. Takes the League Funds.

BELFAST, March 3. Mr. Harrison, a member of Parliament for Middle Tipperary visited the offices of the Belfast Branch of the National League yesterday, and seized all the money and documents he could lay hands on. The members of that branch of the League were hastily summoned and a fiery discussion followed. Mr. Harrison and his friends declared the branch dissolved. A free fight followed between Harrison's friends and opponents. The battle was of a most stubborn character, fists, sticks and chairs being freely used on both sides. Finally the police cleared the league building of its fightingg occupants.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT

THE ONE MAN, ONE VOTE QUESTION.

Speeches of Gladstone and Others on the Subject—Will the London Fog Nuisance be Scientifically Treated—The Troops in the Soudan.

LONDON, March 3.—Sir James Fergusson, Political Secretary of the Foreign Office, in the House of Commons to-day, in reply to a question on the subject, made a statement to the effect that the Government did not assume that the whole of the Soudan belonged to Egypt, but, he added, he did not intend to define the limits of Egyptian sovereignty. The occupation of Tokar did not imply an increase in the army forces in Egypt.

Mr. Henry Labouchere asked if the Khedive had not tendered the abandonment of the Soudan.

To this question Sir James Fergusson replied that, in the opinion of the Government, the withdrawal of the Egyptian troops from the Soudan did not constitute the abandonment of the sovereignty of the Soudan ["Hear, hear!"]

Mr. Labouchere then asked: "Then does the Government recognize in the sovereignty of Egypt over the Soudan her sovereignty over Kassala and Khartoum?"

Sir James Fergusson, answering this question, said that he declined to deal more specifically with the question, and upon Mr. Labouchere's persisting in his questions upon this subject the Political Secretary of the Foreign Office, after several fencing replies to Mr. Labouchere, asked for formal notice of the questions.

The Fog Nuisance.

Viscount Wolmer, member for Peterfield, suggested that the Government appoint a commission to report upon scientific methods of mitigating the fogs which prevail in London, and commented upon the fact that the increasing prevalence of the fogs has the effect of curtailing working hours.

The First Lord of the Treasury, Mr. William Henry Smith, expressed himself as being sceptical as to the ability of such a commission to deal with the matter. Mr. Smith added that a committee of the House of Lords had already made a long and exhaustive inquiry into the subject and had recommended the use of non-bituminous coal as a possible mitigation of the density of London fogs. That and other measures in the direction of abating the fog nuisance were embodied in a bill which was now before the House of Lords, and in due course of time the members of the House of Commons would have an opportunity to consider the bill and to discuss the subject of London fogs and the best means to be taken to lessen their intensity.

The Naval Estimates.

In the debate on the navy estimates Sir J. Colomb moved that henceforth the naval budget must state the total number of war ships in commission, in reserve and building, the aggregate tonnage of the mercantile marine and the value of the sea-borne commerce of England, compared with that of foreign powers, besides containing similar returns from the colonies. He dilated upon the growth of colonial commerce and the increase of British responsibilities.

Sir William Vernon-Harcourt described the speech of Sir J. Colomb as similar to the notes of alarm which naval experts are accustomed to issue to induce the nation to believe that the naval and military expenditures, enormous as they are, would be inadequate in the event of war. Not a single ton of imports or exports, the speaker continued, would be threatened. By the Declaration of Paris the whole trade of a belligerent was absolutely safe. Not a quarter less of corn nor a yard less of cotton would be prevented from coming to England, for it would come under a neutral flag.

Lord George Hamilton, First Lord of the Admiralty, dissented from the views of Sir William Vernon-Harcourt. How could we, he asked, suddenly transfer our tonnage all over the world to a neutral flag? Rice had been declared contraband of war. What if wheat also should be declared contraband? [Hear, hear.] English shipowners would be unwise to trust overmuch to the Declaration of Paris. They must maintain the navy so as to hold the fighting supremacy in every part of the world. The Government would grant the information asked for.

Sir J. Colomb thereupon modified the form of his motion, but it was negatived without a division.

The Election Act.

Sir James Stansfeld (member for Halifax) moved that the House amend the electoral law by enacting that nobody can vote in more than one electoral area, that the term qualifying a person to vote be reduced to three months and that the act of registration be simplified. He argued that the present system is entirely out of date. It originated when the electoral franchise was deemed a class privilege and not citizen right. When Parliament passed the Household Suffrage Act the idea of one man, one vote, naturally followed. But as the law now stood a man could vote in every county and every borough where he held a house. The present plan meant that the man having the most means would have the right to return more members of Parliament than one with smaller means. These out voters often turned an election against the views of the majority of the resident electors.

Henry H. Howorth (Conservative) submitted an amendment to the effect that any alteration in the law was inexpedient unless providing that the different parts of Great Britain and Ireland should be represented in parliament in proportion to their population. Mr. Howorth said there was no doubt the balance of voting had lately changed. [Opposition cheers.] The system of voting bore more harshly upon Conservatives than upon Liberals. But if this system was changed the disproportionate representation of constituencies should be corrected.

Ireland, added Mr. Howorth, is grossly over represented. It is absurd that one small Irish town has eight times as much electoral power as a city like Dundee. Six Irish burgs, each returning members, have a combined electoral vote hardly equalling the constituency I represent. Taking the Irish electorate as a whole the representation far exceeds what is allotted to England and Scotland. It is here that reform is necessary if anywhere. [Cheers.]

Mr. Gladstone said the country would not long tolerate a plural vote when convinced that it enabled the upper classes to throw their weight against the judgment of working classes. [Hear, hear. Possession of a plural vote was objectionable because it had no connection with virtue, wisdom, character or public services. Property was not entitled to extra representation. He was unable to see that convictions of the great mass of the people were less sound than those of a higher class. The character, knowledge and education they enjoyed were of themselves an extra weight in elections, for it was the entire disposition of the people to do full justice to those qualities. The amendment was not legitimately connected with the motion. It was refusing to remove one grievance until another ceased to exist. If Ireland had 18 members more than it was entitled on a strictly numerical basis how long had this been? How long had England been greatly over-represented compared with other nations? Only now England found she had a few members less than she ought to have, England still held two-thirds of the voting power and insisted that the whole business of the nation should be transacted at her own fireside. [Hear, hear.] England certainly had no little to complain of, looking at the vast power she possessed and the use she made of it in regulating affairs in other portions of the kingdom not by their sentiments but by her own. If there existed a grievance it was not hers. [Cheers.]

Stansfeld's motion was rejected, 231 to 189. The largeness of the majority was due to the absence of Irish members.

HIS "WIFE" A MAN.

And "She" Succeeded in Robbing Him of $150.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Henry Sewers, a middle-aged man who lives at No. 195 West Randolph-street, is mourning the loss of a supposed wife and $150. He courted Johanna Sebus by letter and a week ago yesterday he married her. She left him as soon as the ceremony was over to hurry to the bedside of a dying father. He gave her $125 when she went away and promised to give her $3000 yesterday morning, when she said she would return if her parent was better. Yesterday morning she came back and commenced to urge Sewers to give her the money. He told her to wait a few days and she became angry. A fight followed. During the struggle, in which Johanna was the aggressor, "her" skirts fell off, displaying a pair of black trousers. Everyone saw at a glance that the bride was a man, and before anyone could interfere he rushed from the house and escaped.

Embraced a Priest at the Altar.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Just as the Rev Father Frederick of St. Joseph's Church was bringing the vesper service to a close last night a tall, neatly-dressed woman, with a pale face and peculiarly bright eyes, suddenly sprang to her feet and, rushing down the aisle, tripped lightly up the steps to the altar and, flinging back from her shoulders a black shawl, she threw her arms around the reverend father's neck, exclaiming: "My husband, my long-lost husband! God be praised, I have found you at last!" The scene was intensely exciting. For a moment priest and congregation were struck dumb. Father Frederick, when he comprehended the situation, gently released himself from the woman's embrace. The insane woman had quietly entered the church. She gave her name as Mary Jane White and said she lived at 105 Townsend-street. The woman has been periodically insane for the past two years.

A Family Narrowly Escapes Death.

HAMILTON, March 3.—The family of H. P. Bedlington, 17 Victoria-street north, had a narrow escape from being burned to death this morning. About 3 o'clock Mrs. Bedlington awoke and saw flames bursting through the wall near the ceiling of her room. The fire was in an attic room over the bath room. The servant girl, Emma Osborne, sleeps in the adjoining room and the two children across the hall. The flames had made considerable headway when Mrs. Bedlington rushed up-stairs through the dense smoke and alarmed them. Had she not discovered the fire when she did the girl and the children would have been burned to death, as the flames were spreading to their rooms. The house was badly damaged.

THE LAWYER AND THE PILLS.

An Ohio Lawyer's Novel Style of Argument.

COLUMBUS, O., March 1.—Mr. H. J. Booth, one of the attorneys in the lawsuit now ready for the jury, which was expected to-night to break the will of the late Dr. Van S. Seltzer, adopted a strange but convincing style of argument in making his closing speech to the jury last evening. Testimony had been given to the effect that when Dr. Seltzer was dying pills of poison were given him to hasten his death. It was desired by the party represented by Mr. Booth and others to refute this.

So he had a druggist prepare five pills by the same formula as those taken by Dr. Seltzer and these he took in the presence of the jury while making his argument, adding to the dose one pill from the same box as those taken by the doctor. He afterwards spoke for three hours, remarking as he did so that if the evidence on the other side were true he ought to be a dead man.

Tunnel Locomotives.

SARNIA, March 1.—Four of the largest locomotives ever built in the world are nearing completion at the Baldwin Locomotive Works in Philadelphia. They are being built for the Grand Trunk Railway and will be used in the St. Clair tunnel, which runs under the bed of the St. Clair River between Port Huron and Sarnia. The engines are peculiarly constructed, there are five pairs of 50-inch driving wheels on each. The water tanks are on each side of the boiler, and the cab is in the centre of the boiler, extending out over the two tanks. The locomotive is thus constructed to allow it to run backward and forward with equal facility. The cylinders are 22x28 inches and the boiler 74 inches in diameter, with capacity to carry 160 pounds of steam pressure. Each one with the water tanks filled and the starting supply of coal on board weighs 300,000 pounds, the average weight in running order, with tanks about half filled being 180,000. The rails on which they will run will weigh 100 pounds per yard.

WANTED DYNAMITE.

A British Steamer Stopped by a Rebel Chilian War Ship.

VICTORIA, B.C., March 3.—Captain Scott of the British steamship West India, which has arrived from Liverpool, states that before his vessel could obtain coal at Coronel she was required to give bonds to the extent of $14,000 that she would neither sell nor give anything from her cargo to the rebels.

An English firm furnished the necessary security, and the West India got her coal on the Sunday morning that Coronel was to be bombarded.

Having finally completed his business at the port, he started out, but was followed by a small steamer that had been impressed by the rebels and which signalled to him to heave to.

The captain took no notice of the command, and a few minutes later the man-of-war Esmeraldo moved out from her moorings and started after him under full sail. The West India crowded on all steam, too, but was not out of range when the Esmeraldo's big guns were opened on her.

The flag of England had been run up to the peak when the chase first commenced, and it was flying when the India dropped anchor with her head to windward.

A boat was at once lowered by the purser and an officer with an armed party came on board. "Didn't you see that flag?" enquired Capt. Scott of their leader, as he pointed to the English colors. "What do you mean by firing at us?" "Oh! that very good flag," was the response in broken English, "but we think you got one of our enemies on board."

The captain assured him that such was not the case, and having nothing to conceal, complied with the boarder's request to see the ship's papers. The visitor glanced over them quickly until his eye fell upon the item named in the manifest as dynamite and gunpowder.

"Must have that," he exclaimed, proceeding to explain how they would make it tell. Capt. Scott firmly but quietly informed him that they would not get it. The rebel officer insisted; the English captain still remained firm.

Four times its value was offered in good gold and refused, and the captain explained the nature of the bond he had given. The visitors suggested that he could take the money and say that the goods had been wrested from him without his consent.

This, too, Captain Scott refused to listen to, and the rebel officer then announced that they would take the cargo without leave or permission.

"Not while there are Englishmen aboard," was the reply. "There are only forty of us well armed, but we'll make a mighty lively fight."

The young officer finally decided to apologize for the detention and allow her to proceed, and so the English steamer at last got away from Chili and shaped her course toward Victoria.

This is one of the most complete and useful articles for any and every house, as it holds your flour, spices, cake materials, sugar, meat, etc., and when you are through baking you can look it up and it makes a nice piece of furniture. Having bought the right for Peterborough and Cobourg to manufacture this I am now prepared to supply dealers to sell it.

WEAK-KNEED WOOLLEN FACTORS.

It is evident that the woollen factors of Canada are not all afraid of competition with the United States. The weak-kneed whose courage is of the shoddy type, are afraid of this competition, but the manufacturer whose courage, enterprise and ambition are of the all-wool type is anxious for its chance. Witness the testimony of the following manufacturers:

John F. Morely of the Waterloo woollen mills, employing 150 hands, says:—"My own views are that a large majority of our manufacturers were never in a worse position than they are to-day, and that there will be no real improvement in our position till the condition of our consuming classes is improved. If however, we had unrestricted reciprocity our position would be this: Our machinery upon the whole is fully as good as that of the majority of American mills; the cost of our fuel, if free, would be rather lower than it is in the great manufacturing centres of New England; we can buy all other supplies as low as they can; our employees are just as intelligent and devoted to the interests of their business as theirs; then why, in an open market with them, can we not compete? By being able to sell our goods in a market of 70,000,000 instead of 5,000,000 we would be able to confine ourselves to fewer lines and thereby reduce the cost of production. Surely, then, we need not fear competition. For myself, having calculated all the chances, I would say by my vote take down the barriers, let trade flow freely over this continent, give me a fair field and no favor, and I will to build up a trade upon a more solid foundation." Mr. Richard Beechman, proprietor of the Waterloo button works, employing 80 hands, says that there were once eight button factories in the Dominion, but all have gone to the wall except four. With the market which unrestricted reciprocity would give, he is convinced that he could enlarge the capacity of his factory and run full time. Mr. Merner, son of a Conservative Senator, and manager of the Waterloo Manufacturing Company, employing over 100 men, says that the trouble in Canada is over production in a limited market, and that the remedy is unrestricted reciprocity. The company manufacture agricultural implements. The president of the Graybill Manufacturing Co. (furniture) says:—With free raw material and equal facilities I cannot see why we should not be able to find a market in our neighboring American cities, where there is a demand for high class goods." Mr. Wm. Snider, of Snider & Co., proprietors of the Union Mills, said:—"Canadian millers are perfectly able to compete with American millers." Mr. J. G. Strob, proprietor of a tannery, says that he has nothing to fear from American competition. "Unrestricted reciprocity by improving greatly the condition of the farmers and other great consuming classes, would at once relieve our industry of its depressed condition.

MANUFACTURES AND MANUFACTURERS.

The manufacturers, and their name is legion, who purpose voting for unrestricted trade on Thursday, are denounced as "Yankee enemies of Canada," and what not. Their crime lies in believing that they are able to compete with the Americans on even terms in a continental market, and in asserting, what is obvious to every intelligent person, that restriction is injurious alike to their interests and to those of the farmer. At present they have to support a swarm of parasitical industries engaged in turning out raw or half-finished products which could be got more cheaply by exchange. The iron duties, for example, augment the cost of iron without in the least degree developing our iron wealth. In this and in other cases where the N. P. levies an impost on articles not produced here at all or produced in quantities insufficient to supply the demand, the manufacturer is seriously handicapped In most industries the cost of the crude materials represents as a general thing from 40 to 60 and even 75 per cent. of the entire cost of the finished product. It follows that taxes on such materials result in one of two things—they add largely to the price of the finished article or else they diminish the returns to the manufacturer and artisan. In some cases they amount to more than the protection given to the finished article; in all, they hurt either the manufacturer or the consumer or both. Then the home market is far too small for large manufacturing operations. The manufacturers are unable to specialize their labour and machinery, and this disability, coupled with the raw material taxes, prevents them from selling their surplus abroad against foreign competition. Briefly, this is why they mean to vote on Thursday for continental free trade. Take the case of a manufacturer at Toronto, Hamilton, Stratford, Chatham, St. Catharines or any point in this Province. At present he has to search for customers all the way between Vancouver and Halifax. Abolish the customs line and he would have a larger population to appeal to within a radius of three or four hundred miles of his factory than he need go in a stretch of four thousand. And if he got his crude materials as cheap as the American manufacturer, and the same railroad rates, which he would, why should he despair of holding his own? The Tory press depicts the Canadian manufacturer as a flabby, inexperienced and cowardly person who could not survive for a twelve-month in competition with the Yankees. The fact is, men like Raymond, Waterous, Frost, Armstrong and the rest possess just as much skill, energy and brains as their American rivals; and, given equal conditions of production and sale, would show to advantage in the race. Bear in mind, too, that unrestricted trade would make a vast difference in the condition of the home or Canadian market. Now, the farmer is poor and growing poorer. If he had free access to the States for his coarse and bulky products he would be at least that much better off, and that much better able to buy manufactured goods and pay for them. It is as clear as daylight that the lumber industry would be benefited, and that an impetus would be given to the mining of iron, copper and nickel. The salt beds of Bruce and Huron would then be worked to something like their full capacity. The exodus of young men would be diminished. Every source of natural wealth would become valuable. The Canadian manufacturer would profit by the new prosperity, and a remunerative local trade would give him strength and vigor for the continental competition.

The time for arguing such points as these is past. But it is only right to observe that there is infinitely more grit as well as infinitely more patriotism in the attitude of Unrestricted Reciprocity manufacturers, who are willing to face the Americans, and to afford relief to the farmers and all engaged in the natural industries, than in that of the invertebrates and weak-kneed, who do not care if the farmer's back is broken provided they can shelter themselves for a while longer behind the N.P.

LOSS OF REVENUE SIMPLY MEANS REDUCTION OF TAXATION. THE PEOPLE PAY THE TAXES. THE TARIFF IS A TAX IF THE REVENUE IS REDUCED THE TAXATION IS REDUCED, AND THE MONEY WILL REMAIN IN THE POCKETS OF THE PEOPLE INSTEAD OF BEING WASTED UPON McGREEVY GRAVING DOCKS AND MAINE RAILWAYS.

Our Homes.

The February number of OUR HOMES has reached our table, and we note continued signs of improvement. It is printed this month with new type, which gives it a clearer and much more handsome appearance than formerly. Its selections are made with judgment and good taste, and cannot fail to to give pleasure to all classes of readers. The number contains a complete list of the winners in the recent error competition, in which the publishers gave away more than $3,000 in cash. The publishers also announce a spelling match in connection with the advertisements in the February number, in which they offer $2000 in cash prize. A copy of this number will be sent to any address on receipt of ten cents, by addressing, Our Homes Publishing Co., Brockville, Ont.

Women, be Independent.

Women should cultivate a spirit of independence if they wish to get along smoothly in this world. They are so often thrown on their own resources that equipment for life's battles is a necessity. But independence is an unknown word to women who suffer from the irregularities and weaknesses common to their sex. What then, may be asked, shall these poor creatures do? Let them use Beecham's Pills, the great female restorative. They bring back colour to the cheek, the light to the eye, and seem to give a new lease of life. w10d

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 8 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEWIS, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

A POOR SIGN OF NOBITITY.

She Has the Rar Sinister, but Was a Playmate of Queen Victoria.

LONDON, March 2.—Elizabeth Stacey, alleged to be a granddaughter of an illegitimate daughter of the Duke of Cumberland, brother of George III., has been found in a dying condition in a squalid quarter of South London. She is in extreme poverty, and for some time past has suffered from cold and hunger.

The woman claims to have been a playmate of Queen Victoria, to whose notice the assertion and condition of the woman have been brought. Meanwhile donations of food, medicine, clothing, money, etc., have been solicited in her behalf, with many generous responses.

A Statue to Wesley.

LONDON, March 2.—To-day being the one hundredth anniversary of the death of John Wesley, a statue erected in his honor was unveiled in the presence of a large concourse of people in front of the City Road Chapel, the headquarters of the Wesleyans. Rev. Frederick Farrar, Archdeacon of Westminster, took part in the ceremonies.

The Archdeacon delivered a long and eloquent eulogy of John Wesley, during the course of which he said he regretted as a churchman that the church a hundred years ago had not the wisdom to assimilate with the mighty enthusiasm which gave momentum to the Wesleyan movement. It seemed, said the archdeacon, shocking and disgraceful in Christians bound by a common Christianity to treat each other with mutual coldness. John Wesley himself, he added, set an example of splendid tolerance. The Archdeacon reminded the congregation of the words of William Penn that the humble, meek, merciful and just are all of one religion and will so recognize each other when in another world with the mask off.

"Jack the Ripper" in Germany.

BERLIN, March 2.—The State Attorney in Kustrine has offered a reward for the capture of the German "Jack the Ripper," who, since September last, has made five attempts to kill five different women, after the manner of his London namesake. His last victim is Pauline Wilder, who received a wound 20 centimetres in length across her stomach, inflicted by the "Ripper" on Feb. 21. She died yesterday. The man is described as about 30 years old, having a blonde mustache and wearing sailors' clothes.

Queen Victoria Is Pleased.

PARIS, March 2.—The Figaro announces that Queen Victoria was so pleased by the account given her by the Empress Frederick of the respect and courtesy which the latter was shown during her visit to Paris that she has promised to return the compliment, and will stop two days in Paris when the passes through this city en route to the south of France.

At the conclusion of the ball last night which followed the meeting of M. Deroulede's friends, at which the latter presided, Derou lede recited a military poem, ending with the words "Sonnez la charge. Noudes rainerons." The charge was then sounded upon bugles amid a scene of the wildest enthusiasm. M. Laisant, during the course of the evening, made a violent speech, concluding with the cry "Down with the allies of Germany!"

Losses of Emigration Agents.

BERLIN, March 2.—The Bremen, Hamburg and Brazilian emigration agents have lost 150,000 marks recently by the Russian officers discovering their secret office in the village of Bujal, near the Prussian frontier, where there were concealed 500 tickets and bogus passes, all of which, together with the money and fixtures in the place, were promptly confiscated.

French Paintings Stolen.

MOSCOW, March 2.—Great excitement has been caused here by the discovery that four pictures by French artists, which have been on exhibition here, have been cut from their frames and carried off. The general belief is that this was done by Germans as an act of revenge, and upon this theory the police are making a careful search of the houses of all Germans throughout the Moscow Government.

Fatal Mistakes.

PARIS, March 2.—While the Vicomte Brailles was walking through his grounds near Troyes one night last week he was shot, it is feared fatally, by game-keepers. The Vicomte returned the fire, killing one gamekeeper and wounding another. In the darkness the vicomte supposed the game-keepers were poachers, while they mistook him for a trespasser.

Trade Unionists Charged With Murder

LIMERICK, March 2.—Four dock laborers were committed last night for trial at the next assizes, charged with the murder of Thomas Doyle, a non-union man. The police, on the evidence given by an informer, have arrested two brothers named Dennis and a man named Peter Martin for the murder of George Franklin in Oct., 1889.

Orders for Steel Rails.

LONDON, March 2.—Orders for 12,000 tons of steel rails for Denmark, and between 20,000 and 30,000 tons for Canada and India, were given out in the North of England yesterday. The orders were divided between Middlesbrough and Sheffield firms.

FLIRTED WITH THE PREACHER.

Remarkable Incident at a Covenanter Church Gathering.

KINGSTON, N.Y., March 1.—Rev. Mr. Milligan of Pennsylvania, who is a candidate for the pastorate of the Covenanter Church in the little hamlet of Coldenham, in Orange County, and who was invited to deliver a trial sermon there last Sunday, startled the congregation in the midst of the delivery of the sermon by saying:

"I regret to state that I am an exceedingly nervous man, and am annoyed by a young lady in the congregation who has been endeavoring to flirt with me this morning. I have neither the time nor inclination to return the compliment at this time, but may do so later."

These words fell like a thunderbolt upon the Covenanters, more especially as this departure from theology was made while the eyes of the pastor were steadfastly fixed on those of a blushing young lady, who is noted for her good looks and is regarded as the belle of Coldenham.

When the services were finished there was a lively bustling of dresses down the church aisle and out into the country road, and more than one fair Coldenham damsel was willing to accept the pastor's rebuke as a personal allusion. Nevertheless the episode has had a tendency to popularize Pastor Milligan, and the chances point towards his becoming the permanent preacher of the fresh Orange County Covenanter Church.

That's Different.

That is a touching poem,
Now several cycles old,
About the hairs of silver
That mingled with the gold.

But yet for royal splendor,
For wild barbaric strength,
For richness and for fullness,
For hight and depth and length,

It can't with Mrs. Gray's remark
An instant be it compare,
When on her husband's silver head
She found a golden hair.

MAN'S BRAIN MAY BE REPAIRED.

A Cat and Dog Experiment with Wide Possibilities.

Dr. W. G. Thompson, Professor of the University Medical College, recently accomplished the remarkable surgical feat of transferring the brains of a dog and cat while both were alive. The object of the experiment was to show that brain tissue may be grafted without interfering with the normal functions of the body. The laboratory of the college was the scene of the vivisection. After first bathing animals in a weak solution of bi-chloride of mercury, they were etherized and sufficient of the skulls was sawed off, through which the larger portions of the brains of each were taken. Tabby's brains became Fido's property and vice versa. The openings were closed and dressed with antiseptic bandages.

The room was kept at exact blood heat during the operation, in order to guard against a cold. The patients were then placed in safe quarters and carefully watched, till Tuesday, Nov. 18, they were deemed sufficiently recovered to be exhibited to a class of 150 students. The cat seemed to be all right and the dog moved about with almost as much freedom as when he had his own brains, though he seemed perhaps a little stupid. At the time of the operation and just after the brains had been taken out the animals lost feeling in the paws, but the union of the old and the new brains had so far developed that the sensation had returned to both animals.

In speaking to his class of the experiment, Dr. Thompson said that a successful operation of this kind meant nothing more nor less than the possibility of repairing a man's brains with portions of those from the lower animals. Dr. Thompson, it is said, will critically examine his patients again soon to ascertain how much of a union has taken place.—New York World.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Balsam for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c, and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. dw

TO-MORROW'S CONTEST.

The campaign is over, the forces of reciprocity and restriction, respectively, have been marshalled, and to-morrow they will meet in pitched battle. On the part of the Liberals, the contest here has been conducted with earnestness, honesty and ability. The questions of the day have been discussed without appeals to passion, prejudice or bogus promises. Leading members of the Liberal party have spent day and night in the country presenting the issues of the contest clearly before the electors, and with the latter rests the responsibility of the result of to-morrow's struggle as far as they are concerned. Every Liberal knows what is expected of him—knows what his duty is in this election. He knows that by voting for the liberal policy of the Liberal party, He is fighting the battle of the people—the people at large against the monopolist and unduly protected manufacturer. The Liberal party is fighting for fair play as between every class of the community—fair play to all—each back to bear its own burden—not to enrich the unduly protected manufacturer at the expense of the workingman and the farmer. Now every Liberal knows his duty, and is expected to do it. His duty is to vote for the Liberal, candidate and to induce all others he can to vote for the him. Liberals don't wait to be drawn to the polls. Go to the polls early, cast your vote for Mr. Hall, and then, figuratively, take off your coat and go to work to bring less prompt voters to the polls. Remember you are working for retrenchment, for honest methods of government, for lessened taxation and equally distributed taxation, for a wider market, for extended trade relations—for a wider market that will tend to attract capital and aid our national development, for a cessation of corrupt government acts, for honest government, and for the best interests of the country. Remember the crisis the present contest represents—you will have either five years more of hard times, trade depression, corruption, and extravagance, or the opening of a new era of trade expansion, of development of our unbounded resources and the conditions that tend to national prosperity and growth. Let every Reformer be at his post to-morrow and do his duty faithfully.

NO HOPE OF BETTER TIMES, BETTER MARKETS OR BETTER PRICES FOR LABOR OR THE PRODUCE OF LABOR IS HELD OUT BY THE TORIES. THEY ASK THE PEOPLE TO VOTE SIMPLY FOR A CONTINUANCE OF RESTRICTED MARKETS, SCARCITY OF EMPLOYMENT, HIGH TAXATION AND THE CONTINUED EXODUS OF OUR PEOPLE. VOTE FOR UNRESTRICTED RECIPROCITY AND SEE BUSINESS BOOM.

THE EVIL OF PAIRING.

Reformers should not allow themselves to be persuaded into pairing votes with anybody for or against anybody in any constituency whatever. It may be all right, but it is better not to do it. It sometimes leads to unforseen and unfortunate consequences. Let every man come out boldly and poll his vote. The greater his trouble in doing it the greater his share of pride in the victory he will have aided in obtaining. No man who has the courage of his convictions should consent to pair his vote on such an occasion as that of Thursday; and there is not a Reformer in Canada who has not the courage of his convictions. Let them each and all aid in rolling up the majorities that are to sweep out of power the party of restriction and bogus loyalty and anti-Canadianism.

REFORMERS, RALLY!

There must be a large attendance of energetic workers at the Liberal committee rooms, Water street, to-night. Every detail of organization and arrangement must be completed to night for the great battle of Thursday. Every man must have his place assigned to him, and every man must come prepared to shoulder the duty with which he is entrusted. Let no excuse avail to keep a single Liberal worker from his post. It is work that wins the day.

THE POLICY OF THE REFORM PARTY IS TO REDUCE THE DUTIES UPON IMPORTS FROM GREAT BRITAIN. THE TORIES PROPOSE A CONTINUANCE OF THE POLICY WHICH LEAVES 22 PER CENT DUTIES UPON BRITISH GOODS AND ADMITS AMERICAN PRODUCTS AT AN AVERAGE RATE OF 10 OR 12 PER CENT.

THE LATEST BAMBOOZLE.

The Tories in the Last "Ditch"

Resurrecting Dead Trent Valley Canal Promises—A Few of the "Fakes" That Have Been Worked on the Electors—The Latest Election Dodge Telegram.

This is the latest addition to the big crop of promises that have been given in the interests of the Tory party in respect of the Trent Valley Canal:

KINGSTON, March 3rd 1891.

"The Trent Valley Canal Commissioners having reported favorably on the completion of the scheme, Parliament will be asked in the debentures next session for a grant for the purpose.

"JOHN A. MACDONALD."

It is said that this telegram is a bogus one and has been manufactured for the occasion by local Tory heelers with a view of fooling the people of this district again.

However, admitting it is bona fide, it is another bogus promise such as the people have been fooled with for the past dozen years. Witness them:

In 1882, Sir Charles Tupper, then a member of the Government, officially and solemnly pledged the Government to the immediate construction of the canal. Then a few years later we have a Commission appointed to see whether it is worth while to bother with the canal or not, and that commission being instructed to report in favor of the canal just before an election contest, we have in natural sequence Sir John's 'bogus' telegram (for it is bogus in sincerity, if no other way, judged by past promises.)

In the Lakefield Chronicle of Feb. 17th, 1887, just before the election, of course, Mr. R. C. Strickland wrote as follows:

"I had a very satisfactory interview yesterday, at the Queen's Hotel, Toronto, (presumably in the Red Parlour) with Sir John Macdonald, and received his MOST POSITIVE ASSURANCE that contracts would be let next summer on the portion of the Trent Valley Canal running through Lakefield."

Here is another promise, and that from Mr. Stevenson, who is so universally noted for keeping to the letter of his promise in political matters, but of course he can't always control facts. The night of the election in 1887, Mr Stevenson in his speech in the opera house, thus reported in the Review:

"He (Mr. Stevenson) stated that the Minister of Public Works had given him (Mr. S.) every assurance that the T.V.C. contract between Lakefield and Peterborough would be let during the coming summer. This was no election dodge because the elections were now over."

Here we have promise after promise broken, and repeated, and now, at the last moment, we have a bogus telegram of Sir John solely (as the blindest fool can see) to influence the election, sent up to keep company with defunct election dodge promises that have been made and broken in the past.

Every self-respecting elector will resent such an insult on his intelligence, such a transparent dodge as that implied in the attempted purchase of his vote at no higher a price than a rehash of a promise made and broken half a dozen times.

The Foster tariff holds the hands of the Canadian farmers and workingmen that the combinesters may rob them. Vote for HALL and ROBB and Reciprocity.

A Manufacturing Miller Speaks

A Lovely-Blended Home Scene Opinions—He Voted for the N. P.—It Has Served Its Purpose—Unrestricted Reciprocity What is Needed Now.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR.—As a wage earner for 17 years, with a manufacturer's experience of 10 years, in the heat of the present contest there are a few things that suggest themselves to me. We as citizens of Peterborough, and mechanics and workingmen especially, should weigh well before casting our vote for James Stevenson. In the present contest he claims support from you on account of his interests in manufacturing. It seems strange to me that this should be so. Every manufacturing establishment in our town supporting him, is bonused by our town; they pay no taxes to help keep up our town, and who, when the assessors come around now, has to pay the taxes? Is it these manufacturers who have become wealthy through your assistance? No sir, but the workingmen, the mechanics and business men of Peterborough, together with such manufacturing establishments as Hilliard & Peplow's Flouring Mills, Dickson Company Works T. E. Doonel's Mills, Muldrum & Davidson's Mills, Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co. Works, and Peter Hamilton's Works, who employ four times as many men as the others all told, and who do you find there manufacturing establishments supporting? Mr. Richard Hall and Free Trade relations with the U.S.—with the exception of Mr. Hilliard; and why? Because it is the policy at the present crisis best suited to our requirements. Our market is limited at home, and in order to hold our own or increase our business, we must have a larger market. Another reason. If our farmers are not able to make their business profitable, how are our business men on George street going to make theirs profitable? We are today shipping our mill offals to Boston and paying 20 per cent. duties on peas to Boston, paying 20c. per bushel duties and realizing more than we could in any market in the world to-day after paying these duties. Give the millers of Canada free markets of the large cities of the New England States, and there would be such a boom in milling as you have never seen since the war. If we can get free trade with the United States we are prepared to double our present capacity. Give Wm. Hamilton and Peter Hamilton iron and steel free of duty and you will benefit them, benefit our town and be getting a free market for our farmers. It will enable them to pay for what they buy and have to spare. The manufacturers are quite able, even those that are supporting Mr. Stevenson, to look after themselves. So far as the bribe of the Trent Valley Canal is concerned—and it is only a bribe now—how many of our workingmen would get work on it. If it was being built the contractors would do as they always do—buy the cheapest labour procurable, not excepting the heathen Chinee. There is no question it is in the interests of every business man who trades with the farmer, every manufacturer who wants an enlarged market and free raw material, and especially mechanics and workingmen, to cast their votes to-morrow for Mr. Richard Hall. The N.P. has had its day and served its purpose. I voted for it when brought forward by Sir John A. Macdonald, and after. But the policy to-day is altogether different, as with our limited market and competition it is driving manufacturers into combines in order to protect themselves, because with the duty on raw material it is impossible to export and compete with the outside world. But give us reciprocal trade with our neighbors and the hard times, scarcity of work, and over-production will disappear, as they did before. Free Trade is just as necessary to day as the National Policy was in 1878. By voting for Mr. Hall you are voting for your best interests and the best interests of our country.

Apologizing for trespassing on the space of your paper.

I am yours, etc.,
W. H. MELDRUM.

Workingmen, the ballot is absolutely secret. You are perfectly safe in voting as your judgment dictates. Intimidation cannot penetrate the ballot box.

A Voice From Niagara.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—As I was a reader of the EXAMINER for years when at home, I feel a desire to help to make its columns still more interesting.

I was born in Peterborough county, and many of the friends who do not know where I am will be pleased to know that I am at Suspension Bridge, N. Y., in the employ of Chisholm & Scott. Chisholm & Scott are inventors and manufacturers of a machine for threshing green peas for canning. One of these machines is said to be able to thresh ten acres of green peas per day. Forty new machines are being built this season, each of which is sixteen feet long, eleven feet high, and six feet wide. None of these machines are ever sold, but the company have signed contracts to do the threshing of almost all the large canning factories between New York and Colorado next summer. Some of these machines will be built at Oakville, Ont., where the inventors, Chisholm Bros., reside.

I would like to say something about Niagara Falls, but after all that writers have written and poets have sung I feel at a loss to know where to begin. I was to the Falls to-day, and walked around Goat Island, which puts me in mind of some of the primeval forests of north Peterborough county. The trees and shrubs have been preserved in their natural state, with the exception of a few which have been disfigured by persons who have tried to carve their initials in the bark.

As the sun was shining brightly, I could see parts of a beautiful rainbow, which is formed in the mist which rises from the Falls. When thinking of this I was led to compose some verses, one of which I send:

I know thy surging waters grand,
I know thy rainbow cloud sublime,
Was never formed by mortal hand—
Thy Maker lives through endless time.

But leaving the Falls, I will quote a few facts showing the importance of this place. Every branch of business here (that is in Niagara) during the past fifteen years has been obliged by increased demand to double its capacity.

The flouring mills manufacture annually 942 000 barrels of flour, value, $4 710,000; employ 110 men and pay out for wages $66,000. The paper and pulp mills turn out 9 156 tons, value $527,520; employ 126 persons and pay out for wages $64,680.

I fear I have taken up too much of your valuable space already, but hope to be able to send some more useful and interesting facts in my next.

A Flaming Fizzle.

Yankee Spread-Eagleism Does not Thrive in Canadian Air and Under the Old Flag.

Last night was the boys' night out. All the small boys in town and Ashburnham, with a sprinkling of older boys, to the number of several hundred in all, marched in line behind the band, in approved 4th of July style, waved their torches, shot off fireworks, and yelled themselves hoarse in the endeavor to keep warm and enthuse themselves a bit. The torch-light parade looked well, but as a representation of the manufacturers and mechanics of the town it was a hollow mockery. Not one third of the processionists were voters, the solid portion of the community looking upon the demonstration as child's play. A meeting was afterwards held in the opera house over which Mr. Kendry presided. R. M. Dennistoun, Mr. Morris, of Montreal, Mr. Law, Mr. Brooks and Mr. A. Rutherford spoke on the old familiar lines—the old policy, the old flag, the old leader. But it is safe to say that no voters were influenced by this "bit o' divarsion" among the boys. After last nights flat failure of Yankee election methods, the 'trooly loil' will never repeat it in Peterborough.

TO-MORROW'S BIG BOOMRACH.

The Monumental Lie Left to the Last.

A Bombshell to be Exploded To-Morrow—Electors, Look Out For This Movement. How Boorbach—The Arch Trickster Plays His Last Trump.

The following despatch to the Mail carries its own explanation with it:

MONTREAL, March 3.—To-day has been one of uneasiness in political circles. The local leaders on both sides are assuming an air of indifference, and saying that the battle is already won each party, of course, claiming a victory for itself.

But beneath all this pretended confidence there is a great deal of anxiety, and neither party is by any means certain of the result.

In fact, it is generally admitted that in no general election since Confederation has the outcome been so uncertain beforehand. Each side is waiting for the fatal day with eager expectancy.

ANOTHER CARD UP SIR JOHN'S SLEEVE.

Amongst the Liberals there is a general feeling to-night that the Government intends to play a final trump card Thursday, but they are uncertain what it will be. The Mail correspondent has good reason for believing that such a card will be thrown down on the green baize of the political gaming table. Thursday morning the Conservatives will publish a circular throughout the Dominion, which it is expected will turn the tide of battle in their favor. The circular, I understand, will give a printed copy of a letter over the signature of Mr. Blaine, Secretary of State for the United States, agreeing to enter into a reciprocal arrangement with Canada similar to that made with Brazil. Mr. Blaine, it is alleged, has written such a letter, and the idea of the Government is to make the electors believe that the United States is willing to make a reciprocal arrangement only on the Canadian Government's terms, and that the Liberal policy of unrestricted reciprocity is therefore impracticable.

A BOMBSHELL AT THE ELEVENTH HOUR.

The circular has been kept secret until the eve of the elections, in order to prevent the Liberals from having a chance to make any reply, and it is expected to have an immense effect on the electors. The greatest care, I am informed, has been taken to keep the matter quiet, but extensive preparations have been made for the distribution of the circular throughout the country to-morrow. Printers have been secretly employed for the last couple of weeks in the Government Printing Bureau at Ottawa, and thousands of the circulars have been printed and sent to various parts of the country, to be distributed broadcast to-morrow.

There is no doubt that this is the great election "roorback" which has been talked about for some time, and which the Government has evidently reserved as its trump card.

Electors! Don't be fooled by this trick. Blaine is practically out of power. The free trade Democrats compose the big majority of the House of Representatives, and in a few short months Mr. Blaine of the high tariff party will be a mere private citizen.

Workingmen, the ballot is absolutely secret. You are perfectly safe in voting as your judgment dictates. Intimidation cannot penetrate the ballot box.

Victory in North Bruce!

Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before—Another Political Pointer That is Full of Significance.

Mr. Porter, the Liberal candidate for the Legislative Assembly, was elected in North Bruce, Tuesday, by about 150 majority. It will be remembered that at the general elections last June Mr. George, Conservative, was elected, but subsequently unseated for bribery. The contest was fought over again Tuesday, when the previous minority of 17 was converted into a grand majority of 150. This victory, with the glorious example set by Hamilton last week, has given renewed encouragement to the Liberal ranks. Coming events cast their shadows before, and the redemption of Hamilton and North Bruce, it is confidently anticipated, presage a great Liberal victory throughout the Dominion to-morrow.

The "Reeve" Nelson Roorback.

A flysheet is being distributed bearing what purports to be a reprint of an alleged letter written for campaign purposes, by Mr. Andrew Nelson, of Osnabee, in which that gentleman claims to have been a Reformer, and to have always voted Reform. If this is true it is more than is generally known. He may have voted for what he construed as Reform, but he did not vote for the Liberal candidate. At the last local election he voted for Mr. Kidd, who represented the Tory candidate. It is of such material as Mr. Nelson that the "converted" Reformers are made of that do duty in this contest for the Tory party are made.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Last evening the Board of Directors held their monthly meeting. The attendance was good. Mr. G. J. Early, President, occupied the chair. Encouraging and interesting reports of the work done by the Devotional, Reception, Invitation, Finance and Membership committees, also Rescue Brigade, during the past month, showed marked progress. The General Secretary submitted his report, giving a resume of the work and proceedings of the Provincial Convention held at Kingston. It is very gratifying to know God is owning this work in these provinces, and its power and influence is spreading all over the world, reaching and saving young men for Christ's Kingdom. The key note for this year is "Personal and Boys' Work, and, by God's grace, we shall succeed. The thanks of the Board was tendered the Y.W.C.T.U. for the "at home" given our junior branch. The trade receptions will be resumed after the elections by our Ladies' Auxiliary. The invitation of Miss Eastwood, lady superintendent of Nicholls Hospital, to hold a Gospel service each Sabbath afternoon, was accepted, Mr. Richardson to have charge of same. After the formal business was dispatched, sketch plans were submitted of the proposed new building, which, we trust, we shall occupy before next year, for we are greatly hampered in our work for lack of room.

TO THE ELECTORS

—OF—

West Peterboro'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of a large and representative convention of the Liberals of West Peterborough to be a candidate for the representation of the Riding, I hereby signify my acceptance of the same, and ask your support and influence to secure my return in the present election. In dread of the disastrous consequences to the Government of the Dominion, which another session would bring, Parliament has been prematurely dissolved. In common with, I believe, a majority of the citizens of Canada, I feel that it is high time that the present Government gave place to one which will honestly administer the affairs of the country, and put a stop to the extravagance which, with increasing intensity, has marked and still marks, their administration.

I believe that the trade and retrenchment policy and platform of the Liberal party meets the wants of this country in the fullest measure, and gives the greatest guarantee of the promotion of its material prosperity, and the development of its magnificent natural resources, and with it I am heartily in accord.

In common with all the citizens of Canada, all my interests centre in its prosperity, and if you honour me with your suffrage it shall be my aim to give my best powers to the upbuilding of Canada, and the maintenance and perpetuation of its proud position as the grandest colony of the British Empire. Believing that the party whose standard in this contest I feel it an honor to bear, will put into practice the administration and policy that will to the fullest extent assist in promoting the largest material improvement of the condition of the people, and the fullest development of its resources, I appeal to you to give me your votes and influence.

In the short time that will elapse between this and polling day, I shall not be able to see the electors personally, but I know that the intelligent electors of West Peterborough know their duty and will do it like Canadian Britons, by rendering their votes in favour of economical, progressive government based upon the highest interest of every class of citizens.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,
Your Obedient Servant,

RICHARD HALL.

Peterborough, Feb. 14th, 1891. dw

CHATHAM'S DEFAULTER.

HOW HENRY WAS CAPTURED IN MEXICO CITY.

Details of His Arrest—One of the Cleverest Pieces of Detective Work Known in Many Years—$30,000 Saved for the Bank

MONTREAL, March 4.—Perhaps one of the cleverest pieces of modern detective work is that which Superintendent Kellert of the Pinkerton Detective Agency has just placed to his credit in connection with the recently celebrated James N. Henry defalcation from Chatham, Ont. Mr. Kellert has just arrived in Montreal from the City of Mexico, where he effected the arrest of Henry. In December last the whole of Canada was startled by the news that James N. Henry, for many years one of the leading and most highly respected produce merchants of Chatham, Ont., had skipped from the country after securing about $30,000 from the Chatham branch of the Bank of Montreal. The bank communicated with the Matt Pinkerton Detective Agency of Chicago. Detective Kellert at once left for Chatham. Upon arriving he succeeded in getting a hold of some envelopes which bore the post mark of the City of Mexico, and which he recognized to be in the handwriting of Henry. They visited the Hotel Jardin, the most luxurious hotel in Mexico, and there found that Henry had been stopping at this place some two weeks previous, but here the clue ended. Their next turn was in the direction of the Bank of London. Here they obtained a clue which cleverly worked, made known Henry's hiding place and his ultimate arrest. The man left his name as W. H. Orr and gave his address. It was then arranged to notify Orr that his money was ready for him. Orr came, presented himself at the bank, with a face beaming with smiles, but little did he know that behind the counter with the paying teller stood Detective Kellert, who was so soon to have him and his confederates in the clutches of the law. The bank authorities told Orr that Henry's receipt would be necessary before they could hand over the money. Orr replied that this would be impossible as Henry had left the city for parts unknown. But the bank insisted on getting the receipt and Orr left very much chagrined. His movements were shadowed and he was followed to a quaint old building, run as a soap manufactory, where he was joined by two other men who afterwards turned out to be his brothers. The engaged in an animated discussion for a few minutes, when Orr hastened back to the bank and said he could not find Henry and that it was impossible to get a clue to his whereabouts. From his manner the officers knew he was lying and at once placed him under arrest. He was taken to the balem, or prison, and thrown into a cell, where he was told he would have to remain till he divulged the whereabouts of Henry. Orr then sat down and wrote the following note to his two brothers:

"DEAR BROTHERS,—Show the officers where Henry is, as I am in the balem and can't get out till he is produced. (Signed) WILLIAM.

The note was entrusted to an officer who conveyed it to the brothers, who treated it with silent contempt. They were then arrested and treated as their brother was, but still they refused to give Henry away. Baffled here, Detective Kellert resolved to go to the factory, and accompanied by the officers he visited the place. The janitor was in attendance and threatening him with the same fate that had met his employers, if he persisted in refusing to tell what he knew as to Henry's whereabouts, he fell on his knees and imploring mercy pointed to a door leading to a little room or closet in an unoccupied portion of the building. The officers went to the door and knocked, getting no answer they forced it open, when lo! before their very eyes crouched under a little cot in the room, on his face written the terrible agonies which he suffered, and his whole frame trembling like a leaf, was the once respected and princely merchant now a felon hunted to his lair. He broke completely down and sobbed like a child. "Don't kill me gentlemen," he exclaimed, when he found words to speak, "I surrender. Take me and cart me into prison. I deserve to suffer for what I have done. Don't handcuff me, I will go peaceably." He was taken from the room and thus within 36 hours of his arrival in the City of Mexico Detective Kellert had Henry in the prison cells. But the hardest and cleverest piece of work was yet to be done. No money was found on Henry's person when he was arrested and there was $30,000 to account for. In the room was a large cake of soap about two feet square. Mr. Kellert peeled off his coat, for the temperature was very high, and set to work with a wire to cut up the cake of soap.

Kellert took from the inside of the cake an envelope containing $1000 in greenbacks, sent to J. N. Henry by his son in Detroit, to defray preliminary expenses. There remained but one thing more and that was the waste paper basket and to this Detective Kellert turned his attention, and after three hours he succeeded from the torn mites of paper which he gathered, in piecing up letters from Mrs. Henry, his wife in Detroit, and a telegram which was dated Jan. 9, upon which was the full explanation of where the money could be obtained. The telegram stated that on that date, Jan. 9, $5000 of the money had been sent by the Wells Fargo Express Company from Detroit to the City of Mexico. The parcel arrived the day following this discovery and was obtained by Superintendent Kellert. The letter showed that $10,000 more was in the Banco des National of the city in certificates left there for collection. Kellert had his man in prison and every dollar of the bank's money recovered. The next move was to go before the Governor and have Henry committed for extradition, and as nothing more could be done until the arrival of the extradition papers from Ottawa and being made sure of Henry's safe-keeping until his return to the city of Mexico, Mr. Kellert left for Chicago and is now on his way to Ottawa for the necessary papers.

Will Visit Canada.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The Senate select committee on relations with Canada to-day decided to leave Washington for Canada, April 20, to resume their investigation begun last summer.

Prince George's Alleged Libeller.

MONTREAL, March 4.—The Court of Queen's Bench was opened yesterday. The case of R. N. O'Brien, charged with libelling Prince George of Wales, will be left over and probably be dropped.

A MADMAN'S FRENZY.

HE RUNS AMUCK WITH A DRIPPING SWORD IN HIS HAND.

Arrest of A Russian at Berlin for the Murder of General Seliverskoff in Paris — Significant Conduct of Emperor William at a Banquet.

BERLIN, March 4.—A Russian named Prince residing in the suburbs of this city has been arrested on suspicion of having been concerned in the murder of General Seliverskoff who was shot it was supposed by a Nihilist named Padlewski in Paris, Nov. 18 last.

A MADMAN'S FRENZY.

He Slashes Soldiers and Civilians with His Sword.

BERLIN, March 4.—Lieut Von Blume of the Naumburg garrison, in Saxony, being seized with acute mania, jumped from his bed at midnight, got possession of his sword and attacked the guards with fury, wounding one severely and overpowering all. Making his escape from the barracks, he ran amuck through the streets with his dripping sword, attacking all he met. Six persons were seriously injured and the neighborhood was aroused. The night watchmen were unable to stop the madman. The troops of the garrison had to be called out. They pursued, surrounded and finally captured the officer after a severe struggle, for they were not allowed to used their weapons against him, and he fought like a demon until disarmed.

THE KAISER'S OPINION.

"Artillery Must be Regarded as the Backbone and Marrow of Battle."

BERLIN, March 4.—The Emperor yesterday was present at lunch with the officers of the Artillery of the Guard. In reply to a toast the Emperor said that, in view of the improvements recently made in field and siege guns and the experience of the last war, the artillery must be regarded "as the backbone and the marrow of battle."

General von Walderse, who seems to be entirely restored to the Emperor's favor, was present at the lunch.

Alma Stanley's Application Rejected.

LONDON, March 4.—The application of Alma Stanley, the actress, for divorce has been disallowed. She brought a suit last year on the ground of infidelity on the part of her husband. The case created considerable sensation at the time and the plaintiff obtained a decree nisi in July. To-day her counsel applied for absolute divorce. The Queen's proctor interfered and adduced evidence that the petitioner had been guilty of adultery herself since the decree nisi had been pronounced.

Abandoned at Sea.

LONDON, March 4.—The steamer Victoria was abandoned in mid-ocean after days of ceaseless and exhausting labor at the pumps, when the captain decided finally to abandon the vessel. The engine room was full of water and all the pumps were choked. The crew were rescued by lifeboats with great difficulty.

The New Lymph.

BERLIN, March 4.—Prof. Liebrich, in a lecture before Berlin physicians to-day, presented cases showing the rapid improvement of lupus under treatment with carbonate of potash. He dilated upon the necessity of extreme care in preparing and using the remedy.

Men Frozen to Death.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., March 4.—The bodies of five men frozen on the extension of the Great Northern Railway have been recovered. The snow is nine feet deep on the summit. Thus far the bodies of seven victims of the recent storm have been found. It is feared many perished.

Boulanger at the Bottom of It.

LONDON, March 4.—It is reported in official circles that the British Government has conclusive proof that Gen. Boulanger and his supporters concocted a plot which resulted in the expression of public opinion manifested against the Empress Frederick on the occasion of her recent sojourn in Paris. Lord Salisbury is said to be greatly incensed at the discovery made.

Anglo-French Telephone.

CALAIS, March 4.—The engineers who arrived here to-day have left to attend to the landing of the cable which is to be used for the telephone between France and England. It is pretty certain that a telephone between Paris and London will be in operation before the end of the week.

Died in a Street Car.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Abraham Rusinow, a Russian tailor, who lived at No. 304 Delancey-street, was admitted to Bellevue Hospital five weeks ago suffering from phthisis. He sent for his brother-in-law, Michael Friedberg, Monday to take him home. The hospital physicians warned Rusinow that he would die if he left, but he and Friedberg left the hospital together. They boarded an Avenue B car at Twenty-sixth-street. Between Second and Third-streets Rusinow was taken ill. He leaned his head on his companion's shoulder and in that position died.

Returned to Find Their Children Dead.

CHICAGO, March 4.—Hans Peter Jacobson, 13 years old, and his little sister, aged five, were partly burned and partly suffocated to death, in West Huron-street, last night. Their parents put them to bed at 7 o'clock and then went to the theatre. By the explosion of a kerosene lamp the house caught fire. A fireman rushed into the burning residence and carried out the children, but before a doctor could arrive they died in the rescuer's arms. As the dead children were being carried into a neighboring house the parents came rushing up.

Terrible Accident.

SHELBURNE, March 4.—While Messrs. William and Matthew Anderson were working in the bush, Matthew was standing on a log, and, supposing there was no obstruction in the way, he jumped off into the snow, but a stake, limb or sharp-pointed stick which he had not seen, penetrated his abdomen to the depth of about six inches, inflicting fatal injuries.

Six Men Drowned.

PRINCETON, Ky., March 4.—A raft carrying six men was overtaken by a terrible gale in the Cumberland River here Monday. Nothing has since been heard of it and it is believed all have been drowned.

A HORRIBLE MASSACRE.

SURVIVORS COMPELLED TO MAKE A TROPHY OF HUMAN SKULLS.

Nearly Three Hundred Women and Children Massacred and the Dismembered Bodies Thrown to the Dogs—The Berlin Government to Protect Workingmen.

PARIS, March 4.—News of a horrible massacre comes from Madagascar. Rainimitra, governor of the province of Betanosd, presenting a petition from the populace to the Government to defend them from cruelties, massacred 278 persons, including men, women and children belonging to the leading families. The slaughter continued for several days. The agonies of the victims were in many cases protracted. Sometimes their limbs were gradually dismembered. Their heads were sawn off and their bodies were thrown to the dogs. Many of the women were outraged. The survivors were forced to erect a trophy composed of the heads of the victims. The popular fury has caused the Government to announce that the offenders will be punished.

Will Protect Workingmen.

BERLIN, March 4.—Minister Von Boetticher gave a dinner to several Conservative and Ultramontane deputies yesterday to enable the Emperor, who was also a guest, to allay the capitalist apprehensions that have arisen from his conversation at the chancellor's recent dinner on his labor policy. The Emperor intimated that though firmly determined, as far as as in his power lies, to protect workmen and enable them to enjoy the existence of human beings, yet he was equally determined to repress all excesses on the part of the misguided masses and to discountenance the exaggerated claims of irresponsible agitators.

The Reichsanzeiger announces that the Department of Mines will refuse the demand of the men employed in the coal mines who asked for an eight-hour shift and for an increase in the minimum wages paid to miners. The Reichsanzeiger explains that reduced hours of labor would lead to still further reduction of the output of the mines, involving the employment of thousands of extra hands and leading to careless work by inexperienced miners, accidents and lower wages. A fixed minimum of wages, the paper says, would be a premium on idleness and would nullify the rise and fall of wages according to the briskness of trade, and in the case of Government mines the minimum wages when times were bad would fall on the taxpayers.

Novel Contest of a Will.

LONDON, March 4.—An error in the will of the famous sculptor, Sir Edgar Boehm, has made that instrument a subject of litigation and brought his two daughters into the courts as opposing parties. It was the intention of the testator to leave £10,000 each to his daughters, Georgiana and Florence, but the name of Georgiana was erroneously inserted in place of Florence, making the former the inheritor of both bequests, according to the phraseology of the will. Florence has petitioned the court to restore her inheritance and brought evidence of her father's expressed intention to bestow his fortune upon his daughters in equal portion. The court has reserved its decision.

Emperor William's Remarks.

BERLIN, March 4.—It has transpired that at the dinner given yesterday evening by Dr. von Boetticher, vice-president of the Ministry of State, in honor of Emperor William, the latter frequently urged upon the guests invited to meet him the importance of voting the full government demands for the navy and expressed indignation at the insults his mother, the Empress Frederick, has been subjected to during her visit to Paris.

A Distillery Fails.

PARIS, March 4.—A Marseilles distillery company has been obliged to suspend operations owing to the inability to stand the duty of 3 francs on maize. The closing of the distillery will ruin the pork breeders in the vicinity, who use the maize refuse in feeding their hogs.

The Queen's Drawing-Room.

LONDON, March. 4.—There was an unusually large and brilliant attendance at the Queen's drawing-room to-day, due to the presence of Empress Frederick. The Prince and Princess of Wales were present.

Still be Ex-Communicated.

DUBLIN, March 4.—The bishop of Down and O'Connor has issued a letter which practically amounts to the ex-communication of any Catholics who support Parnell.

A Liquidator Appointed.

GLASGOW, March 4.—A liquidator has been appointed to take charge of the State line of steamers.

A New Fund.

LONDON, March 4.—Parnell has decided to form a political fund apart from the fund for evicted tenants. The delegates to America will appeal for contributions to both funds.

Took a Dose of Poison.

HAMILTON, March 4.—Gertie Ferguson, an unfortunate young girl who has led a gay life, took a dose of poison in a fit of despondency this afternoon. She lives in Napier-street opposite the patrol station. She took about an ounce of laudanum. A young man who was in the habit of visiting her gave the information to Constable Coulter, who telephoned for Doctors Storm and Stark. They gave the young woman an emetic, which had the desired effect, and it is thought that she will recover.

Killed by Cigarets.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 4.—Lawrence Murphy, aged 23 years, died here to-day of heart failure, caused by excessive cigare smoking. He had been in the habit of consuming three, and sometimes four, boxes daily. He had been repeatedly advised to abandon the practice, but turned a deaf ear. His death was sudden.

Labor Notes.

Chief Arthur of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and the Rio Grande Western engineers' Grievance Committee met the officials of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad at Salt Lake City yesterday. An agreement was reached mutual concessions made and the threatened strike of the engineers was averted.

The 340 weavers of the Wauskuck (R.I.) Company are still out, and say that they mean to remain firm until the company yields. About 150 more weavers were let out yesterday, making 600 in all who are idle.

The Pennsylvania coke region is in a ferment over the arrest in Pittsburg of the labor leaders yesterday. President John B. Rae of the United Mine Workers, Master Workman Peter Wise and several others were arrested on a warrant sworn out by Louden of the Rainey Works, on a charge of conspiracy, riot, assault, etc. Louden was injured by the strikers several days ago, and the warrants were made out at the instance of Rainey, who is now running his mines in opposition to the strikers. The [illegible] are indignant at the arrests.

Killed From a Fall.

BARRIE, March 3.—John Fletcher, Treasurer of the township of Essa, was taking a load of hay from his farm in Sunnidale to Angus. He had three or four school children on the load at the time and in turning a curve in the road the hind bob of the sleigh swung around and threw them all off. The children escaped injury, but Mr. Fletcher was thrown violently on his head and his skull was injured. He was taken to his home in Ivy, where he died from injuries at the advanced age of 73.

Agreed to Die Together.

CINCINNATI, March 4.—Isidore H. Frankthal and Ernest Ballinger, students at the Hebrew Union College here, committed suicide in their boarding house early this morning. There was an agreement that they should die at their own hands.

Congress Adjourns.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The House adjourned promptly at 12 o'clock with a wild hurrah on the floor and in the galleries.

The Republican members sang "Marching Through Georgia." The Democrats attempted "Dixie," and the occupants of the reporters' gallery sang the long metre doxology.

EMPRESS FREDERICK.

Diplomatic Changes Hinted at for France and Germany.

PARIS, March 4.—That the disturbance caused by the visit of the Empress Frederick to this city has not entirely subsided is shown by the fact that the air is full of rumors of changes of a diplomatic nature. It is reported that in the event of such changes being made M. Herbette, the present French Ambassador at Berlin, upon whose shoulders a considerable amount of the blame for the unpleasantness has been thrown, will be sent to London as the successor to M. Waddington, the present French Ambassador to Great Britain.

On the other hand, rumor has it that Herr von Radowitz, the German Ambassador at Constantinople, will succeed Count von Munster as German Ambassador at Paris. Still, according to these political reports, General von Waldersee, ex-chief of the general staff of the German army, who is now in command of the Ninth Army Corps, will replace Prince Von Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst as Governor of Alsace Lorraine. The latter, it is announced, will resign the important position he now holds.

A semi-official denial is given to the statement that the ex-Empress Frederick wrote Count von Munster and Emperor William expressing her thanks for the reception she had met with in Paris. Nor is it true that Emperor William sent a similar letter of thanks to Von Munster.

Bohemian Elections.

VIENNA, March 3.—The elections in Bohemia for members of the lower House of the Austrian Reichfrath have resulted in the return of 18 young Czechs, 10 Germans and one old Czech. In Galicia 20 Poles and seven Russo-Slays were returned. The Poles lost three seats. The rural districts of Moravia returned seven old Czechs, two German liberals and one German nationalist.

A Tariff Question.

BERLIN, March 3.—The Reichsanzeiger today says that the report that the tariff negotiations between Germany and Austria do not meet with the approval of the German manufacturers is unfounded. The Reichsanzeiger adds that at the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce it was decided to concur in support of these negotiations.

MANY VESSELS AND MEN LOST.

Frightful Disasters Reported to Have Been Caused by Last Thursday's Storm.

NORFOLK, Va., March 4.—Incoming vessels report rough seas off Hatteras. On Thursday afternoon a heavy squall swept over the lower portion of the James River and capsized and damaged a number of the vessels of the large oyster fleet usually at work on the James River rocks.

The next morning the schooner Firefly came into port with the dead body of one oysterman and another suffering severly from exposure who were taken from the bottom of a capsized boat.

A report reached here last night that twenty-three persons had been drowned and valuable vessel property destroyed during the fierce squall of Thursday, but the names of the drowned (who must be mostly negroes) and the wrecked vessels have not been ascertained.

Other disasters reported are that of a large sloop which was wrecked off the mouth of Warwick River, in the Thames, opposite Blount's Point, 10 miles above Newport News, and the drowning of the entire crew of 14 men.

At the mouth of Walton's Creek, which empties into the James, a yacht went to the bottom, carrying with her 17 men.

Very near the same point two men in a canoe are thought to have been drowned, nothing having been heard of them. A rumor is current that some of the dead bodies were seen floating near Newport News.

A Child Dies in Court.

NEW YORK, March 3.—In the sergeants room at the Adams-street police station, Brooklyn, yesterday, upon two armchairs placed together so as to form a little bed, lay the body of an infant four weeks old, who had died only a few moments before in the arms of its mother.

Mrs. Margaret Bertuze, for that is the woman's name, went to the court to ask Justice Walsh that she might have charge of her brother-in-law's 8-year-old boy, John Mascarello, who is now an inmate of St. John's Home.

While Mrs. Bertuze was waiting her turn to speak with the judge regarding the boy, her babe began to cry, and she left the room to quiet him. On reaching the hall she pulled aside the shawl to look at her babe and noticed that its face was ashen white. The poor woman uttered a piercing shriek and had to be assisted down the stairs and was taken into the private room at the side of the desk in the police station.

The Receding Waters in Arizona Reveal a Terrible State of Affairs.

TUCSON, Ariz., March 4.—Reports from the flooded districts throughout the territory indicate that the water is rapidly subsiding. The Gila River at Florence (the crossing of the Phoenix and Maricopa Railway) has shifted its course nearly a mile, leaving bridges high and dry.

The management of the Phoenix and Maricopa and Arizona and New Mexico Railroads state that it will be fully two months before the roads will be in operation. The estimated damage to the Southern Pacific in the territory is over $250,000.

Phoenix is still cut off from telegraphic communication, but a party who has just arrived from there says that three hundred families are homeless, though not starving.

At Yuma, where the flood wiped the town completely out of existence, the water has receded to its natural level.

The irrigation ditches in Salt and Gila valleys are badly damaged. No communication is expected between here and California for fully a week yet.

KILLED IN A MINE.

A Miner Steals From a Companion and is Found Hanging to a Tree.

RICHMOND, Va., March 4.—Near the mining town of Pocahontas, Tazewell county, a Hungarian named Nogardy Bela broke open the trunk of a companion named John Kercks on Saturday last, robbed it of all his earnings, which amounted to $230, and ran away. Yesterday as an incoming train neared the depot at Flat Top, four miles from Pocahontas, someone on board saw the body of a man hanging from the limb of a tree. The train was stopped, and upon investigation it was ascertained the corpse was that of Bela. The body was taken down and it was discovered that he had not only been robbed of Kercks' money, but also of his own.

He had been strangled, but in order to convey the impression that he had been lynched by the Hungarians he was then hanged by the leather strap which he wore around his waist.

Shot While Shrouding a Corpse.

MILAN, Tenn., March 4.—While James Lisenby was assisting in shrouding the corpse of William McKee last night at Clay Brook, he was shot in the head and instantly killed. The shot was fired through the window. Robert Barr, an attendant, was severly wounded by flying glass. Thomas Douglas and two other negroes have been arrested for the crime. The deed is the result of an old feud. An obnoxious negro preacher was driven from the county a few weeks ago, and the negroes threatened to mob the whites. Lesenby, who is a magistrate, ordered the negroes to bring their guns to the trial. This angered the negroes and is thought to be the cause of the tragedy.

What it Costs.

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people, in buying even necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last a month.

The Money of the World.

Everybody knows that it takes a vast amount of that circulating medium which we call money to transact the world's business and turn the wheels of commerce, but just how much money is in use is not generally known. The New York Commercial Bulletin has recently thrown light on this question by giving to the public a carefully prepared statement by Mr. Leech, the director of the United States mint, showing the money metallic and paper in use in all the principal countries of the world. This statement is made up from the latest official data received from each country, and has been prepared by Mr. Leech with the care and precision which distinguish his statistical work. The figures given represent in each case as nearly as possible the paper money outstanding, less coin held in the Treasury as security. In the case of the United States, the total given represents in round numbers the legal tender Treasury notes (less the $100,000 000 in gold held to secure them), the National bank notes outstanding, and the Treasury notes issued under the recent Silver Act. While the latter notes were issued in the purchase of silver bullion, they are redeemable in gold or silver coin, and the bullion itself is not considered as directly covering them. The amount now outstanding is about $28 000,000.

We first reproduce the table, abridged, as given in the Bulletin showing the approximate amount of gold and silver in the world:—

Country.	Gold.	Silver.
United States	$702 018,869	$482,071 346
United Kingd'm	550 000,000	100 000 000
France	900 000,000	700 000 000
Germany	500,000 000	145 000,000
Belgium	65 000 000	55 000 000
Italy	140,000 000	60 000 000
Spain	100 000 000	125,000 000
Austria-Hung'y	40,000,000	90 000,000
Russia	190,000,000	60 000,000
Turkey	50 000,000	45 000,000
Australia	100,000 000	7 000 000
Egypt	100 000,000	15 000,000
Mexico	5,000,000	50 000 000
South America	45 000 000	25 000 000
Japan	90,060 000	50 000,000
India	.....	900 000,000
China	.....	700 000 000
Canada	16 000 000	5 000 000
Other Countries	134,000,000	206,000,000
Totals	$3,727,018,869	$3,820 571,346

This shows a total of $7,547,590,215 as the metallic money in circulation. Following is the paper currency, and also the total paper and metallic money for each of the countries before named:

Country.	Uncovered paper.	Total paper and metallic money.
United States	$ 440,000,000	$1,624,090,215
United Kingdom	64 000 000	714,000 000
France	96 000 000	1 696 000,000
Germany	160 000,000	805 000,000
Belgium	54,000 000	174,000 000
Italy	211,000,000	411 000 000
Spain	94,000,000	319,000,000
Austria-Hungary	280 000,000	390,000,000
Russia	600,000,000	750,000 000
Turkey	.....	95,000 000
Australia	.....	107,000 000
Egypt	.....	115 000 000
Mexico	2 000,000	57,000,000
South America	300 000,000	370,000 000
Japan	56 000,000	196 000 000
India	28,000,000	928,000 000
China	.....	700,000,000
Canada	40 000 000	61,000,000
Other countries	143,000,000	383,500,000
Totals	$2,448,000,000	$9 995,590,315

The countries included in the amount credited to other "countries," above, are Switzerland, Greece, Portugal, Netherlands, Scandanavia and Central America, with Cuba, Hayti, etc. It should be kept in mind that the object contemplated in these statements is not so much to show the whole amount of money in existence, as the amount in active use. The Director therefore deducts from the total sum of paper outstanding a sum equal to the gold and silver withheld from circulation in the form of reserves against the outstanding notes, the remainder showing what he designates the "uncovered paper." Adding to the total "uncovered paper" thus presented the total coin first above given, and we have an aggregate of $9,995,590,215, or almost an even ten billions of dollars as expressing the amount of money of all kinds in active use in the civilized world. The total paper money in existence is stated at $4,328,728 000, or $1 978,738,000 besides the uncovered paper; therefore, to get at the total money in existence we must add to the above aggregate the latter, making a grand total of $11,874,316,215.

That Fatal Bullet.

When President Garfield was shot, owing to the imperfect knowledge at that time of the action and application of the electro-magnetic button, the doctors were unable to locate the bullet. To-day, medical science has perfected a battery from which passes a current of galvanism, which easily detects and locates a bullet in any part of the body. A few years ago the people of Canada who suffered from nervousness in all its varied forms, as well as tired weary brain, expended fortunes often in their eager endeavors to obtain relief. Overworked and exhausted men and women who found themselves sleepless irritable, dyspeptic and used up generally, sought succor and rest from drugs and preparations that could not possibly confer any benefit. Thousands were left almost despairing until Paine's Celery Compound was introduced by that great man, Prof. Phelps. Paine's Celery Compound, like the perfected electro-magnetic battery, has conferred untold blessings, and must continue its great work as it becomes more widely known. It stands alone in its great work as a health giver and restorer, and is endorsed by physicians of the highest standing. The thousands of letters already ready received from all quarters fully prove its great usefulness and its wondrous curative powers.

SOME LARGE MEN.

In Tenerife a Human Skull Was Found 4 Feet in Circumference.

The Emperor Maximin was 8 feet in height; so also was a giant exhibited at Rome in 1725. Dr. Gorupius of the French Academy of Science once made a professional examination of a girl of but 12 years of age who was 10 feet 4 inches high. The body of Orestes, according to the Greek historians, measured 11 feet when being prepared for burial. Gallura, the giant exhibited in Rome during the reign of Cladius Cæsar, was over 10 feet high. Secundilla and Pusio, the giant keepers of the gardens of Sallust were exactly of the same height, each measuring 9 feet 6 inches. Firmus, the Scotch giant of the time of Eugene II measured but two lines less than 11 feet 6 inches.

Chevalier Scovoy, in his account of the voyage to the peaks of Teneriffe, says that in opening one of the sepulchral caverns they found a human skull which measured four feet in circumference and which was provided with eighty (80) teeth. The giant Ferragus, who was slain by Orlando, the nephew of Charlemagne, was 15 feet high. He always accompanied the army on foot, there being no horse tall and strong enough to carry him.

Paterus, in his published writings, tells of a giant whom he examined at Lucerne, whose body measured 19 feet 4 inches and 2 lines. In Rouen, in 1509, while workmen were engaged in digging in ditches near the Dominican monastery, they found a stone tomb containing a skeleton whose skull held a bushel of wheat; the shin bone reaching to the waist of the tallest man on the ground. Over the tomb there was a stone slab containing the following words in raised copper letters: "In this tomb lies the noble and puissant lord the Chevalier Rieon de Vallenot and his bones."—St. Louis Republic.

To Cross the Continent.

William Brotherton is a young man who has been in Napa for some time, and proposes in a few weeks to start on a walk to New York. When seen by a reporter Mr. Brotherton stated that two sporting men of New York have made a bet as to the time it would take to go from San Francisco to New York, and have offered a large sum to him if he will make the trip in less than six months. He is to wheel a wheelbarrow containing ninety-five pounds weight the whole distance and keep an account and reader a report of every bridge, trestle-work, tunnel, etc., on his way. He will go by the Southern route, through Kansas City, Chicago, Cincinnati, Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia, thus making the length of his journey 4,000 miles as nearly as may be, the shortest distance between the two points being 3,217 miles. He expects to cover the distance in four months, if no accident befalls him. Mr. Brotherton is no novice at this work, having two years ago made the trip with a wheelbarrow from Los Angeles to Cincinnati, and again from Washington to Cincinnati, a distance of 700 miles, over a dirt road. He is always accompanied by his dog, and says he would be unable to travel without him.—Napa Register.

Wanted It Certified.

He was standing in a doorway on Jefferson avenue and presently he halted a pedestrian with a wave of his hand, beckoned him to approach and said:

"How do I look?"

"Why, you present a pretty shabby appearance, if you want an honest answer," replied the surprised citizen.

"That's good. Shabby refers to my dress. How's my facial appearance?"

"Pinched and hungry."

"That's excellent. Do I look like a man who had money?"

"No."

"Would you class me as hard up and friendless?"

"I certainly would."

"Thank you. To sum up, you would set me down as a victim of unfortunate circumstances, who couldn't get out of this town too fast?"

"That's about it."

"Thanks. Here is a letter I have written to my wife asking for money to get home. She's a suspicious woman and she won't take my word for it. Please write at the bottom:

"'Attest: It's a darned sight worse than he says it is.' And sign your name."

The citizen complied, and the letter was at once taken to the post office."—Detroit Free Press.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Sarsaparilla had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

A MYSTERY OF THE MINES.

Miners Come Upon a Room Containing a Skeleton in the Bowels of the Earth.

CHARLESTON, W.Va., March 3.—A strange story comes from Amsted in the Elk River mining region. Miners have been at work for over two months driving an entrance through a 10-foot vein of coal. Yesterday, when over 1000 feet in the mountain, they broke into a "room" about 20 feet square. It had no visible signs of ever having been in communication with the outside world. On the floor lay the skeleton of a human being, the bones crumbling into dust on exposure to air or at the slightest touch, while on the walls were many rude outline sketches and what seemed to be inscriptions. It is a mystery which awaits the solution of the learned.

AN ELECTRIC WEDDING.

A Novel Display of Ingenious Inventions at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, March 3.—At a wedding here last night no sooner had the company been comfortably seated than the room burst into a flood of light from numerous variocolored incandescent electric lamps hidden among the decorations. The entrance of the bride and bridegroom was welcomed by the automatic ringing of electric bells and the playing of electrical musical instruments. After the first course the room was plunged into semi-darkness, when suddenly from the floral decorations upon the table there glowed tiny electric lamps. Not only the flowers, but the interior of the translucent vases in which some of them were gathered scintillated with flashes of light.

After a while a miniature electric lamp, which in some unexplained manner had attached itself to the bride's hair, was seen to glow with dazzling brightness. A toast having been given, two serpents slowly uncoiled themselves and issued from the wine bottle that stood before the bridal couple. Cigars and coffee were served, and the cigars were lighted by an electric lighter while the coffee was prepared in full view of the company by an electric heater. The speeches that were made were liberally applauded by an electric kettle-drum placed under the table. As the company dispersed the electric current set off a novel pyrotechnic display, amid the crimson glare of which the festivities ended.

Died While at Her Housework.

HAMILTON, March 3.—While attending to her household duties about 11 o'clock Mrs. Jones took a fit and fell on the dining-room floor. Dr. Wolverton was sent for, but before his arrival his patient was dead. The physician attributed death to heart failure.

Died at the Tea Table.

LUCAN, March 3.—The wife of Mr. Joseph Langford, a retired farmer, living in the village, dropped dead at the tea table this evening. The doctor pronounced it a case of heart disease.

Broke His Neck by a Fall.

CAMILLA, March 3.—Mr. Edward Dowdall of Elba, 21 years of age, was instantly killed by falling in front of his sleigh off a load of wood while passing Camilla. His neck was broken and he died 20 minutes afterwards.

Through the Ice to Death.

WIARTON, March 3.—Thomas Hambly father of Charles Hambly of Baltic fame, while walking on the ice from Pruder's Dock to Wiarton last evening broke through the ice. Not returning home, search was made this morning and his body was found in 11 feet of water just under the break in the ice.

Lost a Leg.

MONTROSE, March 3.—John Wright, carriller on the M.C.R., was under the cars when some of the cars at the other end of the train were shunted and he was dragged along the track several car lengths, his left leg being cut off.

Porter (Liberal) Again Elected in North Bruce.

PORT ELGIN, March 3.—The voting on the bye-election in North Bruce to day resulted in the return of Porter (Reformer) by a majority 150 majority. His majority in June last was 340.

Telegraphic Ticks.

American tournaments this summer will attract a number of English cyclists to this country. W. C. Jones and R. J. Mecready will be among the fast men who will come over.

Jos McAuliffe says he will go to Australia to fight Goddard for the $1000 offered by the Melbourne Athletic Club if a suitable sum is allowed him for expenses. Information to this effect has been cabled to Melbourne.

Mr. Charles Stratford died at Brantford Monday at the residence of his brother, Mr. Joseph Stratford, "Glenhyrst," after an illness of ten months, during which time he was a very patient sufferer. Deceased's ailment was caused from excessive lacrosse playing some years ago, a game he was very partial to.

John Close, the Westmoreland poet, has succumbed to an illness of only a few days' duration, in his 75th year. For the last 60 years the poet had been a prolific writer of verse and prose and has been the hero of many a fight. He annually, for nearly 30 years, issued a Christmas Book, which had a large sale. Some thirty years ago he was defendant in a libel action by a local solicitor, and mulcted in heavy damages. In 1860, a pension of £50 was granted by Lord Palmerston for his services to literature, but this was, after a debate in the House of Commons, withdrawn He, however, received £100 from the Royal Bounty as a solatium. The poet's works were regularly purchased by members of the nobility and gentry, and more than one was accepted by the Queen. For many years Mr. Close had spent the summer at the English Lakes, and became recognized as "The Laureate of the Lakes."

Drowned the Day His Banns Were Published.

RICHMOND, Va., March 4.—Edward Gray chief engineer of the steamship Melbourne while crossing a plank to a companion ship at Newport News Saturday night, missed his footing, fell into the water and was drowned. He was to have been married on his return to England, and by a singular coincidence the banns of his approaching marriage were published on the day of his death.

Seven Men Frozen to Death.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., March 4.—The bodies of five men frozen on the extension of the Great Northern Railway have been recovered The snow is nine feet deep on the summit Thus far the bodies of seven victims of the recent storm have been found. It is feared many perished.

A Half Price for Whalebone.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., March 4.—New Bedford merchants sold 1100 pounds of Arctic whalebone in New York to-day for $5.50 per pound, which is the highest price whalebone has ever reached. There is now less than 10,000 pounds in first hands.

Tried It on His Wife.

"During the heat of the political campaign they called on me for a speech at West Oakland," said Charles E. Smook. "I don't take very kindly to political speech-making, and I was especially timorous about making an address in the First Ward, where everybody knows me, and where, in consequence, I would be sure of the severest criticism.

"But I was in for it, and set about preparing myself for the ordeal. After I had thought out an address which I imagined had enough hurrah in it to make the boys hit the floor, I thought I'd try it on my wife.

"So I placed her in a good seat in the front row of our parlor furniture, struck my most statesmanlike attitude, and unlimbered my mouthpiece. Finally I reached one of my most impressive periods and came to a full stop a good deal out of breath.

"Well, what are you waiting for?" calmly inquired the side partner of my joys.

"'That is where I pause to permit the tumultuous applause to get in its work,' I replied.

"'Oh, I thought you were afraid you had awakened the baby,' was her unsympathetic and disheartening response. Still, I noticed when I poured that speech into the listening ear of West Oakland my wife was the first and only listener to appreciate and applaud when I paused at that critical point."—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Great Financier.

Mabel: "Well, I've considered to marry Mr. Tightfist." Mildred: "Why, I thought you hated him." Mabel: "Oh, I do; but he is bound to be very rich some day. He has such a grasp of finance." Mildred: "What gives you that impression?" Mabel: "Why, he invited me to church last night, and coming home we took a car, though he wanted to walk both ways. Well, when the conductor came around he said: 'How unfortunate! I find I have nothing smaller than a dollar bill. Have you any change?' So I paid the fares."

Crushed.

The tall youth spoke with a sharp ring in his voice.

"I will not be treated as a boy any longer, Maud Perrigo!" he said. "I consider myself a man. I am old enough, at all events, to raise a beard!"

The young lady looked searchingly at the shaded upper lip of her impetuous admirer.

"Then why don't you do it, Harry!" she asked with a plaintive sigh.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Balsam for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c, and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. dw

Religion a Refining Influence.

Lenten Address in St. John's Church by Rev. W. H. Clarke, of Toronto.

The third of the series of Lenten sermons was delivered in St John's Church Wednesday evening by Rev. W. H. Clarke, M.A., Rector of St. Barnabas', Toronto. The stormy weather was responsible, no doubt, for the small congregation present. In dealing with his subject, "The Refining Influences of Religion," the reverend speaker said if we but observed the progressive and expansive power of Christianity and its beneficent effects on the hearts of men, we must exclaim as did the Psalmist, "How excellent is Thy name in all the world." There would, of course, be those who would say the expectations with regard to Christianity had not been realised, and the speaker proceeded to point out that all reasonable expectations had been fully satisfied. Looking back to the time when the Christian faith was first introduced into the world, and to Him who introduced it, one would see that, though the Saviour was born in poverty and obscurity,

PREPARATION HAD BEEN MADE for the reception and extension of His gospel. God used His own people as well as those who knew Him not for His great purpose. The Jewish nation gave birth to the Christ and the missionaries of His faith, Greece supplied the language in which His life's works were written, and Rome gave the highways by land and water by which the faith was spread all over the world. Then looking at Christ's life, it was one of poverty, chastity and obedience, yet what a wonderful life! He came to lift up men to the highest moral and intellectual elevation, and to show compassion, tenderness and love to those who needed it. Christianity was eminently fitted by example and teaching to produce and exercise a refining influence on the minds of men. Philosophers had failed to do this, but Christ followed a different method. He worked upon the individual and took in the whole human race one by one. He planted in man's hearts the beginning of a higher, better, purer spiritual life. Believers when admitted into the church by holy baptism were made one with God, and received the seven-fold gifts of the Holy Spirit, yea, the Spirit of God Himself descended and made the body the temple in which he dwelt. The command which he laid upon those who received the holy gifts were that they should "take up the cross daily and follow Me." Was it not strange that a religion which made such strict demands on the disciples met with such marvellous success? Why was this? It was because Christianity met the deepest needs and wants of the human race, it was all-in-all for men and women of every class. It satisfied their so that learned and cultured nations, as well as poor and ignorant people, received the Gospel. The result has been that since that day a great many evils which them existed have almost entirely passed away. Strange to say, Christianity, though a religion of the earth, has influenced especially the western world. The refining effects of religion in Europe are apparent. Slavery and polygamy have been about swept away, even the ferocities of war have been mitigated, and all the nations owe their greatness to their adherence to religion. In every age it has been a refining power on the minds of individuals, who make up the nations. In thinking of God's works we cannot but feel the truth of the words in Zechariah:—"I will refine them, even as silver is refined." There have been days of bitter persecution, but God's work may be seen through it all. By sickness and discouragements and trials, He is now calling the church and us to pass through the refining fire. But we should not be discouraged, but amidst all our troubles be certain that God is bringing about our perfection of character in His own way. Let us look forward to the perfection, the completion of His work, when we shall be as refined silver, pure and spotless as God intends us to be.

BEST AND HIGHEST INTERESTS

Baptist Church Mission Circle.

The Annual Meeting—The Annual Report —Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of the Baptist church was held on Tuesday at 3:30. In response to an invitation, a number of ladies from the Mission Societies in town, also from sister circles in the county, attended the meeting. After devotional exercises, the annual reports were read and adopted. A report of the work of the Mission Bands was given by Miss Gilmour. A few words of welcome were extended to the visitors. Greetings were received from other societies, Mrs. Fairbairn, representing St. Paul's, Mrs. Van Every, St. Andrew's, Mrs. Locke, George street Methodist, Miss Roberts, Selwyn, Miss Barber, 4th Line Smith, Miss Matthews, Lindsay. Papers on Foreign Missions were read by Mrs. McKee. At the close of the afternoon meeting refreshments were served. In the evening a public meeting was held. Miss Anderson, of Lindsay, gave an address on Grande Ligne, tracing the history of this Mission from its origin up to the present time. A collection was taken amounting to $22.00.

TWELFTH ANNUAL REPORT.

In whatever work we are engaged, there is nothing more needful than to review from time to time the position we have gained and the work accomplished. Such an exercise is humbling yet cheering. It tends to discover inefficiency in ourselves, while it proves that God prospers the work of His creatures for the advancement of His glory and the good of mankind.

Our missionary year closes with a membership of 70, show an increase of six during the year. The largest attendance at any meeting, 35, smallest 10, average 18. One of our number has been removed by death; though only a short time with us, she endeared herself to us, by her meek, Christian spirit combined with zeal and earnestness in the work of the Master whom she loved.

We have been supplied with general missionary news from various sources, the mission periodicals of the day contributing largely to our store of information. Cheering reports were given at one of our meetings by the delegates who attended the district association. At our April meeting Miss Frith, returned missionary, was present and gave a talk on work among the women and children of India. In May, Rev. J. MacClaren, who spent several years in India as a missionary, visited our circle and addressed a meeting in the afternoon, and also a public meeting in the evening. On invitation, Mrs. Lillie, of Toronto, attended the meeting and presented the claims of Home Missions. A collection was taken amounting to $16 85, which was equally divided between Home and Foreign. In June, two of our members jointly undertook to support a student at one of our schools in India, generously sending the money thru, a the Circle. While Foreign Mission contributions have increased, Home Missions have not suffered, as the sum realized for the latter has exceeded any former year.

The needs of our sister Province to the east of us have not been forgotten. Nature has placed us side by side, and historically we have been longer and more closely connected than any other two Provinces in the Dominion. Grande Ligne, which draws neither from the home nor foreign fund, claims special support and sympathy. As this mission has suffered loss through fire, extra efforts have been made to send aid. In October a box of bedding, etc., was sent, valued at $34; also a sum of money towards furnishing a room in the new building, which has been replaced for the one that was burnt. The Mission Band, which is an off-shoot of our circle is increasing in numbers, and also is contributing in no small degree to the mission funds. The young people are becoming more and more interested in our missionaries and mission fields.

Fighting to a Finish.

The Last Round of the Political Battle Taking Place To-day — Comments on the Contest.

The final struggle is taking place to-day, and within a few hours after this issue of the Examiner reaches its readers the result of the Dominion elections will be heralded throughout the length and breadth of the land. Polling day has been graced with perfect weather, and in Peterborough, as no doubt is the case elsewhere, both parties are making the best use of it. Almost every horse and sleigh in town are impressed into the service, and there is, to use an expressive slang phrase, some "tall hustling" being done, the brunt of which must be borne by horse flesh. A large vote will be polled. Both parties have made Herculean efforts in the past few weeks, and if there is any merit in hard work both parties deserve to win. But it is safe to predict that one side will be defeated—which? The contest has been fought out on close, square issues in this riding, with very little of the acrimony and none of the unseemly personalities which sometimes mark political fights, though the old Trent Valley Canal, and the baseless bug-a-boo of removing factories, have been indulged in by the ears to do service on the Tory side. So closely has the contest been waged that very little betting has taken place. Neither side would give odds, while neither was anxious to put up even money.

A feature of the voting to-day is the unusually large number of outsiders who have come to town to cast a ballot for their favored candidates. The lists upon which the election is being held are three years old, and in that time a great many voters have died or become non-resident. Of course the dead are beyond recall, but under the Dominion franchise a man whose name is on the list can vote without being asked any embarrassing questions as to qualification or place of residence. He may have been a resident of the United States or any part of the world for a couple of years back, but if his name is on the list he is entitled to vote without hindrance. The thousands of young men the country over who are disfranchised in this election will have no kindly feelings towards the Government which is responsible therefor.

In Peterborough there are fourteen polling sub-divisions, and all day long these booths have been the centres of activity. At five o'clock the committeerooms will be the central points, and then the cheering and excitement will begin. The final scene will take place in the Opera House. The successful party will have a street parade, and great mass meeting. After that—well, we'll drop the curtain.

Both Mr. Hall and Mr. Stevenson, the respective candidates, plied all their energies in town to-day, and their numerous lieutenants were scarcely less indefatigable. The town is the chief battle field. It is admitted the country will do well for Mr. Hall, but as there are more votes in the town than the rest of the riding together, the great contest will be fought here. In 1887, of 2551 votes polled, 1375 were given in town, and 1176 in the townships.

Readers of the Examiner are, no doubt, much more interested in the elections than passing local events, hence the paucity of the usual quantity of news in to-night's issue will scarcely be found fault with. Political excitement supersedes every other business and social interest, and worldly affairs are at a standstill. The absorbing question is, who will win?

The public will have an opportunity of obtaining the latest and most reliable returns at the Peterborough Bookstore to-night. The Bell Telephone Company have made arrangements to get the result a from all over the Dominion, and these will be promptly bulletined in the windows of the Peterborough Bookstore, so that "he who runs may read."

Conjectures as to the result are a waste of time. The Examiner leaves the issue in the hands of the intelligent electors of the country, and feels confident that, with no sinister influences operating against their better judgment, and in spite of the poorbacks floated by the Conservatives, the verdict will be satisfactory.

The Ontario Telephone Company have put telephones in both the town committee rooms. Mr. Hall's headquarters have been removed to George street in the store formerly occupied by Mr. Rowse. Mr. Stevenson's committee rooms are in the opera house block.

Very little tidings have been received to-day of the fight in the east riding. Both parties are working hard and opinions are divided as to who will be successful.

The Globe, with its usual enterprise, will run a special train from Toronto and deliver the news of the election at all points between the city and Belleville several hours ahead of its contemporaries. Morning Globe's wish full returns will reach Peterborough at 8.20 to-morrow, and may be had at the Peterborough Bookstore.

No Contagion in the Air.

Pneumonia is not Sweeping Over the Town Like a Pestilence.

Unnecessary alarm has been created amongst nervous people by the frequency of deaths from pneumonia which have recently taken place in town. Five deaths have occurred within a week among families who were intimately associated, and this has given rise to the fear that the malady was contagious. Mr. Fred. Hall was first taken ill and died, then Mr. Wm. English, who helped nurse his friend, Mrs. Hall, her sister, Miss Hodge (of Belleville), and Mr. Albert Hall, were attacked and succumbed to the disease. Public sympathy has been aroused over these sadly sudden deaths, and at the same time the health authorities are being urged to give an opinion concerning the contagiousness of the disease and to take steps to prevent its spread. Dr. Halliday and Dr. Klug have had charge of these cases, and deny the rumors that the fatal disease is typhoid-pneumonia or any other complication of pneumonia. It was simple inflammation of the lungs, with an unusual coincidence of cases occurring in rather alarming rapidity of succession. At this season of the year lung troubles are more prevalent than at any other period, and there is no cause for fright in the cases under consideration. Pneumonia is not contagious in the common sense of the term, like fevers, etc. It is a scientific medical fact, though, that pulmonary diseases are transmitted to those with weak lungs or debilitated constitutions who frequent sick rooms or are brought into close contact with those who are suffering from this disease. But beyond that there is no contagion. In these cases Dr. Clarke, Medical Health officer, says the Board is taking steps to thoroughly disinfect the premises and are investigating into the matter, so that the public need have no fear that an epidemic has fallen upon the town.

The Boston Musical Herald.

This is one of the few musical journals of the country edited by writers of experience, which maintains a constantly dignified attitude in all its departments. It is a critical, not a trade paper. Editorially the "Herald" deals honestly and out-spokenly with topics of the day, devoting space to subjects which attract the investigator in musical literature, science and æsthetics. Its editors are Louis C. Elson, well known as lecturer, critic and correspondent, and George H. Wilson, the editor of "The Musical Year Book of the United States," and writer of the descriptive and analytical programmes for the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Elson is the critic of the "Boston Advertiser." Mr. Wilson holds a similar position on the "Boston Traveler." The "Herald" has for some time made a specialty of recording all important happenings in music in the country, not merely as news items, but with a critical touch. Boston concerts are treated at length. There is a department for musical students where the knotty questions anybody asks are answered. A new feature this year is the presentation in each issue of an article by Eduard Hanslick, the first critic in Europe and the wittiest. Hanslick's articles have never been translated into English with any regularity, and the "Herald" has gone to considerable expenses to secure them. Another department of the paper is the Reader of New Music. The "Herald" is published monthly at the low price of one dollar, at Franklin Square, Boston, Mass.

Hymeneal.

A Connubial and Complimentary Occasion.

On Monday evening Miss Chrissie Mann, was led to the altar by Mr. James Turnbull, brother of Mr. J. C. Turnbull. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's mother, Dalhousie street. The happy couple left on Tuesday evening, for Hartney, Manitoba, where their future home will be. The bride was highly esteemed in the circle in which she moved. She was a faithful worker in the mission Sunday school which loses a good friend by Mrs. Turnbull's removal. The high esteem in which she was held was shown by a pleasing presentation that was made during the wedding festivities. Rev. Mr. Trotter, pastor of the Baptist church, reading the following address and making the presentation:—

To Miss Mann:

We, the teachers and officers of the South Ward Baptist Mission Sunday School, while congratulating you on the approaching event of so much importance in your life, would bear testimony to the regret we feel at the necessary severance of the ties which have united us in God's work in this Sunday School, and to bear testimony to the punctuality and fidelity to prayer that have marked your association with the work. We desire a continued interest in your prayers; and, though far separated, may we still meet as supplicants at the throne of grace for His continued blessing upon our school.

We ask, in token of the sincerity of our good wishes, your acceptance of this little present, hoping that its daily use may be associated with happy hours, and wake in your hours memories of those who now beg to wish you every happiness; that life can bestow, coupled with the prayer that we may so live as to enjoy that reunion with Him in that land where happiness is unceasing and farewells never known.

Signed on behalf of the school,

H. Grundy,
Superintendent.
Milton Mason,
Secretary.

Peterborough, Ont., 2nd March, 1891.

Mr. Turnbull made a suitable reply on behalf of Mrs. Turnbull.

The young couple leave Peterborough accompanied by the best wishes of a large circle of friends, for a life of prosperity in their far-off prairie home.

Norwood.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

In spite of hard times and election excitement, the enterprise of the village advances. During the last weeks a detachment of the Bell Telephone Company have been busy putting in place a number of their instruments. Already there are about a dozen in use in our principal places of business. When the weather opens in the spring we hope to have connection with Havelock and Peterborough.

Our energetic reeve, Jno. Finlay, is also urging the introduction of electric light. Nine lights have been procured by the council and a large number are taken for the stores and public buildings of the town. Already the apparatus have been introduced in some of the places of business, and by 1st of April we are to be in full possession of this modern improvement. The contract has been made with the Ball Electric Light Company.

The country socials held in connection with the Presbyterian and Methodist churches, at Mrs. Clysdale's and Mr. Wm. Buck's respectfully, were decided successes. We are pleased that the ladies have met with such splendid encouragement.

Mr. W. A. F. Campbell, a lawyer from Stirling, has located here and will practice his profession in this locality. We wish him every success and believe he will be successful as we are sadly in need of a good lawyer.

He Carries the Lambs in His Arms.

Another lamb is gathered safe in the fold above,
Another one is nestling within the arms of love;
Ten thousand times ten thousand, John says, admiring stand
Around the throne, our loved one was needed in that band—
Yes, his dear voice was needed to swell the glorious song
Of rapturous hallelujahs that to the Lamb belong.

The priceless treasure lent us for seven happy years
We give to Him who loves us and will not chide our tears;
Too good for earth were oft our fears, though unexpressed,
O Shepherd, uncomplaining, we give the one loved best.
Cheered by Divine assurance we say that it is well,
All things are wisely ordered by our Immanuel.

Wise above his years grave questions he asked from day to day
New words must all be tested as right or wrong to say.
And Sunday's due observance oft gave him anxious though
Confidingly and aptly he learned the lesson taught.
O, that we all as trustful would on God's Word repose,
Peace then were ours as waters unruffled deeply flows.

We know not what about him shed such attractiveness,
But every body loved his sweet ways of innocence;
His thoughtful brow betok'd a mind of rarest mould,
Large lustrous eyes revealing rich depths of love untold,
Uplit his lovely countenance, where fond emotions played,
Like touch of light and shadow on summer landscape made.

He said "I like the prayer best of Jesus Shepherd dear,
'Cause I'm His little lamb and my little prayer he'll hear,"
To parents, sisters, weeping he bade a fond "good bye"—
Said he was going to Jesus and not afraid to die.
Heaven shone around him as angels whispered "Come."
And loved one's murmured softly "His spirit is gone home."

O, how we miss'd the welcome smile of his beaming face
When running out to meet us with loving glad embrace;
The little gifts made ready that he with such delight
Would highly prize, are sadly by us put out of sight;
We think of him with Jesus and others gone before,
His great gain reconciles us to our loss more and more.
With Josephus for the time when we'll meet on Canaan's shore.

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1. dw

Rough Skin,

Caused by cold weather, is made perfectly smooth by one application of Dyer's Jelly of Cucumber and Roses. Try it. Druggists keep it. W. A. Dyer & Co., Montreal. 6d51

As the days grow longer the sun grows stronger, and the wet and slush that follows are the sure forerunner of cold in the head. Nasal Balm instantly relieves and permanently cures. eodw

If you are nervous or dyspeptic try Carter's Little Nerve Pills. Dyspepsia makes you nervous, and nervousness makes you dyspeptic; either one makes you miserable, but these little pills cure both. dw

Obituary.

Death of Mrs. Jane Bare.

Sunday Sermon—Conversion of a New York Magnate.

At a private [illegible] says the New [illegible] of the most marvellous plastic [illegible] may be safely said, [illegible] before attempted—has just been performed [illegible]. The application of the surgeon's knife within [illegible] brain nor any other of the organs [illegible] called vital has at last signalled [illegible] of life itself.

Donna Maria Antonia de Rosario, daughter of Don Rodrigues de Rosario, of Rio San Diego de Cuba, a wealthy planter, was the patient, suffering from a peculiarly obscure disease of the spinal cord and medulla oblongata. She had been taken to a great many surgeons in search of treatment, but could find none who could give her relief. The diagnosis of tumor of the fourth ventricle and cord was made out, but no one could suggest a remedy. The sufferer visited the eminent medical men of the Old World and went from one to another in vain.

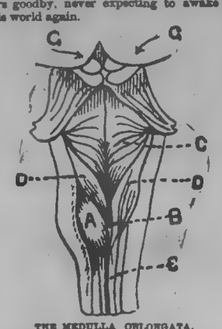
FACING AWFUL FATE.

Donna Maria had been told that there was a chance for life if she would agree to have a crucial test made on her. But there was no hope without the operation. Life was still sweet to this woman, who had begun life endowed with the gifts of fortune and consideration. She was told that a risk no other had dared to run would be taken by the surgeon who presumed to lay a knife to the base of the brain, the home perhaps of the "quivering spark" itself. And she consented. For madness stared her in the face.

The medulla oblongata in which the fourth ventricle is situated contains in an extremely small space a nerve centre that presides over almost every function of the body. To injure that means instant death. So delicate is the medulla that the thrust of a needle into it proves instantly fatal.

PREPARING FOR THE WORST.

Some time previous to the day of the operation she was removed to the private hospital of the surgeon referred to. She had been thoroughly prepared, and had taken what might be her last communion on the morning before the operation. The surgeon had her taken from her apartments to the operating room, and as she prepared to take the first inhalations of the ether she pressed her crucifix to her breast and bade the doctors goodby, never expecting to awake in this world again.



THE MEDULLA OBLONGATA.

A.—Tumor.
B.—Upper limit of centre of respiration.
C.—Floor of fourth ventricle.
D.—The alsene cineria.
E.—Spinal nerve of marrow.
G.—The brain.

At three o'clock P. M. she was well under ether and a silent group of surgeons stood around her inanimate form. The operator had invited a number of specialists to be present, and several young doctors were there as assistants. All were dressed in white gowns and wearing rubber aprons before them. Taking a sharp scalpel the surgeon began by making an incision in the back of the patient's neck directly over the back bone. He now deflected the strong band known as the ligamentum nuchae to one side, and continued its incision down to the vertebrae of the cervical part of the column. No sign appeared of a tumor.

WITHIN LIFE'S CITADEL.

"It must be entirely," said the operator, "within the bony canal of the spine itself." He now carefully dissected away the muscles from the lamellae of the second and third vertebrae. Then, taking a trephine, placed its sharp teeth against the bony wall of the canal and slowly worked it into the cavity, cutting away a button-shaped piece of bone directly over the exit of the medulla oblongata, which here comes from the cranium. On removing this the meningeal membranes came out of the aperture thus formed as though there was considerable pressure within. This was good evidence that the tumor was close by. But there was extreme danger of wounding the centre of respiration, which meant immediate death, if the least false move of the knife were made.

AT THE SOURCE OF DISTURBANCE.

This centre was quickly recognized, and to one side of it, directly infringing on its boundaries, lay a small red prominence, oblong in shape and not larger than a bean. The whole cause of the patient's long years of suffering was made clear! This tumor was slowly but surely destroying the nerve centres of the medulla.

The danger of removing the tumor from such a vital spot was apparent to all, and the surgeons consulted in a low voice before proceeding further. Should the patient cough during this delicate dissection and turn aside the sharp point of the knife death would be instant.

SAVED BY A CHANCE.

But the surgeon was quick at his work and marvellously skilful; a few cuts more and it would be over. He had just removed his knife from the wound to change it for a sharper one when the patient coughed. Providence or chance saved her, for had the knife been there the movement of the head would have been fatal. A moment more and the tumor was removed. But the tension on the operator's nerves had been so great that he was now obliged to stop a moment before finishing the operation.

One of the most remarkable circumstances of this operation was the immediate improvement of the patient's breathing and of her circulation, once the tumor was removed. She stood the operation very well.

What They Say:

The Globe says: The Government has been sustained but by a majority which, at the present writing, appears to be too small to enable it to carry on affairs for any considerable length of time. Its majority in the last Parliament was about 50. Its majority in the next Parliament will probably not exceed 12 or 15. At the outside it will be less than 20, and in times like these a Tory Administration, pledged to uphold a trade policy which is impoverishing the people, cannot work with so slender a margin.

The Mail says:—So far as the returns which come to hand show, the Government has been sustained by the moderate majority of 26. There are seven constituencies yet to be heard from, three in Quebec, one in New Brunswick, two in British Columbia and one in Ontario.

The Empire says: The returns up to the time of going to press are: Conservatives returned, 125; Reformers returned, 83; still in doubt, 7—215; showing a Conservative majority of 42, with 7 seats, of which 5 at last election returned Conservatives at the last election, still to be heard from.

The World gives the majority 39.

BOLD BALMACEDA.

LITTLE CHILI'S BIG CIVIL WAR AND WHAT CAUSED IT.

The President, with the Army at His Back, Thinks He Can Override the People—His Idea is to be Permanent Dictator.

There is serious trouble in the little Spanish-American republic of Chili. Don Jose Manuel Balmaceda, President of Chili, of whom a true-to-life portrait is published herewith, is of the pugnacious sort of politicians, who allow absolutely nothing to interfere with their plans. Balmaceda was inaugurated in 1886 and was elected for five years. His term of office expires, of course, very soon. Availing himself of an established custom, Don Jose nominated his successor—a shrewd politician named Sanfuentes. His choice, while entirely satisfactory to his party, was not at all so to the Cabinet or to Congress, at least to the lower House. The objection raised to this nominee of Balmaceda's is that his nomination is a reward for financial aid rendered Balmaceda, whether in his campaign for the presidency or not is not related. At any rate, Don Jose got the money and Sanfuentes received the nomination as his successor in the presidency. Just here the minority, who thought that financial aid rendered a high official, either during his campaign or at any other time, was a poor qualification for the presidency, began their obstructive tactics.

But Balmaceda did not intend to have his legislation hindered in that way. He dismissed the Cabinet, formed a new one with Sanfuentes at its head and closed Congress. When Congress assembled again last June, Don Jose found himself in an unpleasant minority, and the majority took pains to let him know his position by passing a severe vote of censure. In Chili the constitution and precedent require that after a vote of censure the Cabinet shall resign, but precedent counts for nothing, and the constitution can be interpreted to suit the purposes of a politician of the Balmaceda type, and therefore the Cabinet did not resign. On the contrary, they remained in office, steadily pushing the candidacy of Sanfuentes. Then Congress, or the majority, tried shutting off the money supplies, but that was only more useless obstruction, as the President controls the mint and the banks. The Government had on deposit in the banks some 65,000,000, subject to call in 30 days. Balmaceda is said to have called for the whole sum, and used it to make himself solid with the army. And appearances go to prove it, for while the army adheres to Balmaceda, the people and the navy belong to the insurgents.

The Chilian Congress has, in the past always won its point, but in her career of conquest Chili has strengthened her army to such a degree that it is likely to prove a most destructive weapon to those who have forged it. This is the weapon Balmaceda has ready to his hand. The President is charged further with attempting to execute a plan by which he would become permanent dictator of the Republic.

Jose Manuel Balmaceda, the President of Chili, whose overthrow the insurgents are industriously striving to bring about, comes of one of the oldest and wealthiest families in Chili. He was born in Santiago in 1840. He was intended to enter the church, but his tastes took other directions, and in 1864 he became an attache of ex-President Monat in a special mission. In 1868 he gained a good deal of prominence from his connection with a liberal reform movement. Two years later he was elected a member of Congress, and there he remained until 1885. President Santa Maria appointed Balmaceda Minister of Foreign Affairs and afterward promoted him to the highest official position in the Cabinet. Throughout Santa Maria's term Balmaceda was a staunch supporter of his policy, and did much to secure the passage of anti-clerical laws, aimed to bring about eventually a separation of Church and State. When he was elected President in 1886 his victory was generally regarded as a triumph of progressive principles. He pledged himself to effect economies in public expenditures, to promote the objects of the party which had elected him, and to exert himself to prevent officials from interfering with elections. He was understood to be committed to a measure for such a revision of the Constitution as would allow the civic franchise to be exercised freely, irrespective of the political leanings of the President.

The King and the Shirt.

There lived long ago a king, who became very sick, writes Leo Tolstoi.

"I will give the half of my kingdom to anybody who is able to give me back my health," he said.

Then all the wise men of the country met and consulted with each other how they might be able to cure the king, but they could not find a remedy.

One of them, however, explained that he thought it possible to restore the king to health.

"If only we can find a happy man," he said, "we will take his shirt and put it on the king, who then will regain his vigor."

The king sent out messengers, who were instructed to find a happy man. They traveled through the whole country, but could not find the one they sought. There was not a single man who was satisfied and happy.

One was rich, but sick; another healthy, but poor; and a third one was both rich and healthy, but complained of his wife, as others did of their children. All of them had unaccomplished wishes.

One evening the king's son passed by a low cottage and heard somebody within say:

"Bless the Lord, now I have worked myself tired, finished my meal and allowed to go to bed. What more can I ask?"

The king's son listened to the words with joy. Ordering the shirt to be taken from the man, who was to be liberally rewarded, the messengers were commanded to carry the shirt to the king.

These, as soon as possible, ran into the cottage to the happy man and intended to draw off his shirt. But he was so poor that he did not have even a shirt.

Beds of All Nations.

In the tropics men sleep in ham mocks or upon mats of grass. The East Indian unrolls his light portable charpoy or mattress, which in the morning is again rolled together and carried away by him.

The Japanese lie upon matting with a stiff uncomfortable wooden neck rest.

The Chinese use low bedsteads, often elaborately carved, and supporting only mats or coverlids.

A peculiarity of the German bed is its shortness; besides that, it frequently consists in sort of a large down pillow or upper mattress, which spreads over the person and usually answers the purpose of all other bedclothing combined.

The ancient Greek or Romans had their bed supported on frames, but not flat like ours.

The Egyptians had a couch of a peculiar shape, more like an old-fashioned easy chair with hollow back and seat.

What it Costs.

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people, in buying even necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will frequently last a month.

"Mere Colds."

A Few Salutary Remarks on a Universal Subject—How Colds May be Infallibly Averted—Certain Forms that are Contagious.

Much the greater part of the sickness which occurs in winter is due to taking cold.

Many diseases and derangements are directly caused by it; there are many others which this accident induces indirectly.

Beyond these there are affections which find ready victims among those who are suffering from a "hard cold," during which the system is in a condition which invites their attacks.

The significance of "a cold" can scarcely be rightly estimated except by physicians, for they alone know its hidden effects and the grave results that it is capable of producing. If a person who has been suddenly taken ill is assured that he has "nothing but a cold," he no longer feels any anxiety about himself, but treats his attack with indifference, and generally needs to be urged to use proper precautions against exposure while recovering.

All this is wrong. A cold is an accident to be much dreaded; and when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied, for there is no knowing where the trouble may end. Of course complete recovery from colds is the rule, but the exceptions are many, and not a few fatal illnesses have been ushered in by a little injudicious exposure. And there are to-day thousands upon thousands of invalids who can trace their complaints to colds which at the time of their occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected.

Persons who are young and vigorous do not take cold easily. And there are some people quite well on in life who can safely bear exposure which would threaten to kill many others of the same age. Elderly people are extremely susceptible to cold; and the same is true of all who are feeble, whatever be their ages. In conditions of the system in which the circulation is not as active as it ought to be, whether the cause be derangement or disease, colds are easily taken.

THE UNFORTUNATE DYSPEPTIC.

Probably dyspeptics are among the most frequent sufferers from exposure. The effects of cold on them are often unusual, and therefore they frequently experience them without knowing the actual cause. If a person has dyspepsia, his liver is invariably more or less affected, and very generally it is somewhat congested. If he becomes a little chilled, the blood circulating in his skin is driven from it by the contraction which occurs in its vessels. Of course, this blood must go somewhere, and in the natural order of things it seeks the internal organs. The excess of blood causes congestion, and this interferes with the functions of the organs imposed upon. A liver out of order is always easily upset, and every unusual congestion aggravates the bilious symptoms. The victim of a torpid liver may take cold and not know it, although he suffers from the effects, all of which may be felt through this intractable organ, which manifest themselves by headache, intestinal disturbance, increased nervousness, etc.

Persons of sedentary occupations take cold easily. Insufficient exercise is the primary cause, and in consequence of this fault the system becomes chocked up with waste material, and circulation and functional activity of all vital organs is more or less impaired. Ladies are also frequent sufferers from colds; and the reason must be obvious to all. Confined as they are much of the time to overheated rooms, they can only safely bear exposure when very warmly clad; and but comparatively few are so. Again, they walk but little, and circulation being sluggish, the body is easily chilled, and when it is so its heat is but slowly restored.

It is a well-known fact that after a sudden fall in temperature colds are for a time very prevalent. If the decline of temperature be sufficient to kill one person who has reached the age of 30, it will kill two who have reached the age of 39, four who have reached 48, eight who have reached 57, sixteen who have attained 66, thirty-two who have attained 75, and sixty-four who have arrived at 84 years.

The surest preventive for a cold while under exposure is exercise. One need never fear this accident while on the move. If he has been several hours in an over-heated room, and on leaving it he enters his carriage or a street car to ride for a mile or more, the chances are that, if the weather is intensely cold and he is not very warmly clad, he will be somewhat chilled before he reaches home. But all danger of this might be obviated by a brisk walk of a few blocks, during which circulation would be restored and the body accustomed to the radical change in temperature.

There are many persons who, when out in the cold, cannot take exercise enough to keep them well warmed up. Of course, the exposure they are subjected to should be as brief as possible, and on reaching home and entering a warm room, until they are thoroughly warmed, they should still wear all their outer clothing, and, if need be, they should put on additional clothing.

TREATMENT OF INVALIDS.

For invalids and those in feeble health some hot stimulant is always indicated after severe exposure. A cup of tea or hot milk is sufficiently restorative for some, while alcohol may be needed by those of very low vitality. Certain writers advise that the feeble, before going out on very cold days, invariably indulge in a warm drink. If a walk is intended it can do no harm, but if the person is to ride in a carriage or a street car, a hot drink must add to the dangers of the exposure.

Even the most vigorous and healthy are often so exposed that a cold is sure to result unless energetic treatment is applied to the body. And often confinement to a room heated to a high degree, with indulgence in hot drinks at the same time, does not lessen the chilly sensations. A brisk walk while well "bundled up" will prove the best remedy. Before two miles are covered a gentle perspiration will be induced, and the danger of a cold averted.

In the majority of cases cold first affects the head, then travels down the throat into the larger bronchial tubes. Unless interfered with by treatment, such attacks run all the way from one week to several months. Individual peculiarities have something to do with their intensity, and while recovery quickly occurs in some people, in others it is long delayed. What are known as full-blooded people generally suffer most from colds which end in bronchitis, because in them there is a natural congestive tendency which intensifies the inflammation and obstructs recovery.

Bronchitis is generally limited to the larger bronchial tubes, but it may go deeply and involve the smaller tubes. The deeper the inflammation the more serious it is, and the more tardy the recovery. Fortunately it is very seldom indeed that the minutest bronchial tubes become inflamed; when they are, the disease is then capillary bronchitis, and a fatal termination may be expected.

"One frequently hears the expression, "a cold goes to the weakest part." At least those who are subject to colds in the head would advocate the substitution of the word "vulnerable" for "weakest." And by this change the expression would be brought much nearer the truth. An organ or other part of the body could not necessarily need to be weak to have its susceptibility to cold increased. Any derangement in it, and especially a congestive tendency, renders it an easier mark under exposure.

A case occurs to the writer which will serve as an illustration. A man suffered from "biliousness." He was ordered laxative pills, each containing, among other agents, a small quantity of mercurial, in the form of blue-mass. By a blunder of the druggist, far too much of the latter was used in making the pills. The patient took them without feeling any ill-effects, until one day he visited a suburban park, and it being quite warm, he lay on the ground for an hour or two.

On the way home he had slight chilly sensations, which told him that he had taken a little cold. The next day he was quite ill, and on the following day the fact came out that he had acute Bright's disease of the kidneys. In this instance the mercurial acted badly upon the kidneys, and made them highly susceptible to cold, which, when taken, settled in them, and as a result they became inflamed.

Colds which settle in the bowels are of quite frequent occurrence, and especially among ladies. As a rule a low form of congestion in the parts renders them vulnerable. Many acute inflammations in these parts attributed to exposure are simply self-inflictions, and occur only in consequence of errors of habit, and practically of dress. That ladies are the least protected by clothing when they should be the best protected is a plainly evident fact; but unfortunately it is one which it is useless to discuss. Some time, doubtless, the fashion will change, and the dress be near the requirements of health, but the good time is yet afar off.

There is one fact regarding colds in the head which all will do well to remember, namely, that oftentimes they are contagious. Frequently where one member of a family is attacked, other members about the same time, or soon afterward, suffer from the same complaint. They attribute the cause to exposure or to sudden changes in the weather, whereas, were the truth known, it would doubtless appear in many instances that the coryza, or "cold in the head," as it is commonly termed, was of a contagious type, and has been transmitted from one to another.

The idea prevails that a heavy cold on the lungs—or, what is usually meant, a severe attack of acute bronchitis—is extremely liable to terminate in consumption. Such an attack certainly does increase the liability to this disease, although other causes must act in concert with it, or while yet the air passages are in an unhealthy state.

Almost every person with a "hard cold" fears pneumonia. This disease very generally follows exposure, but when excited by it the symptoms are soon manifested. If a person has had a cough for several days, even if very severe, and pneumonia has not set in in the meantime, the sufferer is scarcely in greater danger of this disease than he would be did he not have a cough. This assurance should quiet the fears of anxious ones.

As shown, a cold resembles lightning in so far as there is no knowing where it will strike, or how destructive its effects. And when an attack comes on let its importance be duly recognized, and it be given the prompt and energetic treatment it deserves.

The sufferer from a "bad cold" should in severe weather at least, remain at home for two or three days, and a little longer if possible. Contrary to the generally accepted rule to "stuff a cold and starve a fever," the starving process should be applied to the victim of a cold during the first day or two of the attack.

When colds are no longer neglected, then fatal inflammations and deadly fevers will be less prevalent in winter, and there will be fewer constitutions wrecked and vital organs weakened and diseased; in a word, there will be far less sickness, either acute or chronic, than now.

391 GEORGE STREET.

NOBLE CRIMINALS.

ONE OF WASHINGTON'S RELATIVES WAS HANGED.

Extraordinary Story of the Earl Ferrars—A Descendant of Kings—The Earl of Glandore a Highwayman—Margaret Dawson's Tragedy—Other Cases.

Peers of England have perished on the scaffold by the score, for political offenses. In fact, up to the time of the Tudors a natural death was probably the exception among the barons of England. Those whom the battle spared generally made the acquaintance of the headsman. But of criminal peers, that is, lords guilty of plain, vulgar crimes, without political pretense or excuse, there have been very few.

The most noted of these was Laurence, Earl of Ferrars, a distant relative, by the way, of George Washington. The Earl had a most tyrannical temper, and one day, in a fit of passion, he cut down with his sword, his steward, an old gentleman named Johnson. The latter had given no provocation for the deed, and the crime was an act of brutality, inexcusable save that the Earl may not have been well-balanced mentally. He was brought to trial for killing Johnson, and demanded and received the privilege of being tried by his peers.

The House of Lords was thronged during the hearing. The evidence proved to be conclusive, and Ferrars was sentenced to be hanged at Tyburn. Appeals were made to the king for clemency; but in vain. Ferrars met his fate with considerable bravado. He was carefully attired for the occasion, and insisted on providing a silken cord for the ceremony. To this whim the executioner agreed, and the Earl was turned off otherwise, like any common felon. It may be worthy of mention this unfortunate nobleman was not only related to George Washington, but was also a direct descendant of King Edward the Third of England. His motto, singularly enough, was "Honor, the reward of virtue."

William, the Earl of Glandore, never took human life, so far as is known; but he was a noted associate of highwaymen, and his mansion in Kerry was for a long time a refuge for those gentry, in whose spoils he did not hesitate to share. The Earl's peculiarities came to light in rather an unusual way. Lord Drummond of Scotland paid an unexpected visit to the Earl, and on his way was relieved by two highwaymen of his purse and his watch. On arriving at Glandore Castle, Lord Drummond related his mishap, and received the most earnest expressions of sympathy from his host, who also offered to supply him with money for his needs. Among the gold pieces which the Earl handed to Lord Drummond was a token which had been an heirloom in the Perth family for many years, and which had been taken from Drummond a few hours before on the highway. The Scottish lord kept his peace, but he also kept up a good deal of thinking, and shortened his stay at the mansion.

After returning to Scotland he related the circumstance, and inquiry followed, as the Earl had rested for some time under an undefined suspicion. Pending the inquiry, the Earl left the country, and sought the seclusion of France. There he remained, until recollection of the affair had died out, or at least all proof of his guilt had disappeared. Then he returned to his home in County Kerry. The Earl was also undoubtedly implicated in smuggling; but that was hardly deemed an offense in those days.

One of the most peculiar cases in English criminal history was that of the Tenth Baron Conyers, who, although never brought to trial, was openly accused of causing the death of a girl named Margaret Dawson of Newton Kyme, in Yorkshire. Conyers fell in love with the daughter of a village weaver. The father forbade the girl to speak to or take any notice of the baron, knowing of course, that his intentions were not honorable. The young woman obeyed her father, for, indeed, she herself, having a lover of her own station, did not care anything about the youthful nobleman.

One summer evening Margaret Dawson heard her name called at the gate. Her father also heard the call, and paid but little attention when his daughter went out. But when her scream and the swift tramp of horses' feet, dashing away at a rapid rate, came upon his ears, he ran out in great excitement and called for help. The carriage by this time was away in the darkness. Nothing more was heard of Margaret until her body was found, six weeks later, in a pond near Newton Kyme. Suspicion fastened strongly on Lord Conyers, but there was no evidence against him, except what has been stated, and it was thought useless to bring him to trial. But he was ever afterwards noted for his moroseness, and from being a bright, cheerful, and adventurous young man, he became moody and retiring. He offered to provide liberally for Margaret's father, but not until the old man was in his dotage did he accept the proffered liberality. The disappearance of Margaret Dawson and the suspicions against Lord Conyers have been woven into song and story in the "north countrie."

A very different affair from the Ferrars trial was the arraignment of Robert, Earl of Kingston, before the House of Lords, on a charge of murder. The killing, which was not denied, involved a question of family honor, the man whom Kingston slew having uttered a slander relating to one who was near and dear to the Earl. The nobleman was put on trial for his life, and his accuser thrice summoned by solemn proclamation to come forward. The widow of the victim had been the original accuser, but she failed to appear when the case was called, and the Earl was declared not guilty, every lord present voting "on his honor." Then the accused nobleman was discharged.

Public opinion in England would hardly be willing, at this time, to witness a revival of any of the antiquated privileges in favor of noblemen alleged to be guilty of serious crimes. And yet those privileges exist, and might be summoned into activity, to the serious detriment of justice. English law is crammed full of antiquated methods of procedure, now seldom invoked. As late as the beginning of this century a lawyer's acquaintance with ancient statutes saved a murderer, against whom the evidence was overwhelming. The prisoner had taken the life of a beautiful girl, and hidden the body in a barn, where it was found. When the prisoner was brought in to be tried he suddenly astonished the judge, jury and spectators by rising up and challenging the brother of the girl, her nearest relative, to mortal combat, to prove his innocence. Everybody was thunderstruck.

Such a thing had not been heard of in England for centuries. But the prisoner's counsel rose up and read the law, a statute handed down from the Norman kings, and never repealed. Under that law the prisoner could waive a regular trial, and have his guilt or innocence decided by a mortal combat, as he proposed. The counsel for the prosecution tried to ridicule the proposition, but the judge sternly interrupted him. "The law of England must not be ridiculed," said the Court.

There could be but one result. The brother of the murdered girl was a man of peace. Besides, he was physically inferior to the prisoner, and would be no match for him in combat. He declined the challenge, and the prisoner was discharged. Parliament hastened to repeal the law, and thus prevented any one else from taking advantage of it. But it would be strange if, among the mass of English laws, going back to the time of the conquest, some provision equally peculiar, has not escaped attention.

Fortunately, for the English nobility, while its ranks contain many knaves, they contain but few offenders against the higher criminal laws, and there is no occasion to assert the rights and privileges that could not fail to arouse popular jealousy, and stimulate popular resentment against the upper orders.

More State Socialism.

The municipal authorities of Cologne, Germany, have resolved to furnish employment to 13,000 men in that city who are now out of work. The rate of pay will be 86 cents a day. As Cologne has an adult male population of only 40,000 or 50,000 at the outside, the 13,000 unemployed are about one-fourth of the whole number. These men are practically paupers.

The Human Body is Hot.

A writer on physiology asserts that the human body generates enough heat during the day to melt forty-four pounds of ice and raise it to the boiling point. Probably the professor would get even more startling results if he would experiment with a citizen the day he gets his gas bill.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Balsam for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c, and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. dw

BEATEN, BUT NOT SUBDUED

The Conservatives Win in West Peterborough.

The Town Down the Country—Mr. Stevenson's Large Majority — A Hard Fought Contest—But Pleasantly Conducted — How the Victors and Vanquished Accepted the Situation—The Details of the Voting.

The election in West Peterborough yesterday, resulting in the return of Mr. Stevenson by a large majority, was in the nature of a surprise to both parties. Of course, Mr. Stevenson had in the contest the advantage of the prestige, which possession, in the influences it can set into motion, supplies, as well as the advantage of four years' preparation for the candidature; and his party had the advantage of the earliest possible knowledge of the date of the elections. On the other hand, the elections came upon the Liberals as a surprise and found them in a certain state of unreadiness as to organization. Mr. Hall came out at the very last moment, but both he and the Liberal party made a gallant fight, and gave Mr. Stevenson and his friends all the work they cared to do.

The contest from the first was as between the town and country, and the town gave the downward impulse to the balance. From the time Sir John issued his manifesto the majority of the manufacturers—those who fancied that they had been benefitted by the N.P.—threw their whole influence in favour of the Government, and by threats of removing their factories from the town, very largely assisted the cause of the Government candidate.

We know that no other town in the Province is as prosperous as Peterborough, nor has a larger number of thriving manufactories, and to a superficial thinker, no town would seem to afford stronger proof of the benefits of protection. The presence of these factories is due very largely to the public spirit and united efforts of both Liberals and Conservatives. Liberals have worked as hard as anybody, and by vote and advocacy have helped to extend the practical inducements, privileges and exemptions, without which, together with the the traffic facilities of the town, the N.P. had no power to induce the settlement of them in Peterborough. No one worked harder than the Liberals to bring the Edison Works to town, and even these were turned against them in this election; although the N. P. had not the slightest effect in bringing them to town—it was the patent law alone. The prosperous condition of the town, due almost solely to local and natural conditions, was turned against the Liberals, and these and the influences before mentioned together with other influences which need not be at present more specifically defined, threw the vote of the town into the hands of the Government, the voice of those who had been unduly benefitted by the N. P. and those who were made to believe that they would be injured by its repeal, drowning the voice of those who would be benefitted by enlarged trade relations and a better market, that is, the farmers and working classes.

The country did as well for Mr. Hall as had been expected, in fact, in some places better, Smith largely increasing its Liberal majority. But the total gain made in the country was, of course, overbalanced by the town. Though disappointed at the result we must accept the situation—Vox populi vox Dei. The people have had the settling of the matter, and they have to bear the consequences of the decision they have come to. If they like the N. P. well enough to stand another five years of it they have apparently another chance, though the reduced majority of the Government may force them into modifying the worst and most oppressive features of the high tariff. In which event the efforts of the Liberal party to benefit the condition of the farmers will not be lost. It is better to strive to do right, and fail, than to succeed in doing wrong.

The contest has been fought out in a decidedly pleasant manner on both sides. There was a gratifying absence of personalities, not a respectable worker speaking disrespectfully of either candidate. The questions of the campaign were as thoroughly discussed as the time permitted. Some of the more excitable and less prominent workers may at times have grown warm, but the party animosity was not deep, and it is probable little feeling remains to day. The enemy did the big fight of the contest in town. The manufacturers, to do them justice, put in their work well, and the result should repay them for their strenuous efforts. The fight is now over, and it is to be hoped that things will renew their wonted course. Citizens may disagree as to the policy that is the better for the country, and as to the effects of any particular policy, but all can agree upon using their best efforts to put the interests of the town to the front, and we are sure that all will work together harmoniously and cheerfully to this end.

THE TIDINGS IN TOWN.

As soon as the returns from the wards began to come in to the committee rooms the excitement began, and the Tories were not long in making up their minds that victory was theirs. Their shouts of triumph were loud and long, and when by seven o'clock the returns of the riding were all in preparations were made for a street parade. The same boys and the same torches were on hand again, and the crowds of enthusiastic Tories whooped 'er up as if they fully appreciated the victory they had won. A mass meeting took place in the Opera House, at which tall vent was given to the pent up excitement of the past two weeks. Mr. Moore, chairman, announced a number of returns received from different parts of the Dominion, kindly refraining from mentioning any adverse intelligence, so that the crowd cheered without any check. Mr. Stevenson, the successful candidate, made a short speech profuse of thanks and congratulations, and was followed by R. M. Dennistoun, Dr. Brennan, Jas. Kendry, T. Cavanagh, W. H. Law, Dr. Crevier, A. P. Poussette and R. Mulholland. All this time the stage was in a ferment. Some of the "trooly loil" Tories, who had imbibed too frequently during the day for their own good, surged to the front and took possession. The audience cheered continuously, the band played its loudest, friends urged them to desist, but to no avail. Led by one of their number, who was bound to speak if there was any more speaking to be done, the enthusiasts put themselves forward and refused to be squelched. Finally a couple of them were taken hold of by others on the platform, the cry of "fight" arose, stage and auditorium became a seething mass of excited, struggling humanity, to the edification of the ladies in the gallery, and in the midst of all the lights were turned out by some mischievous joker, leaving the people to find their way out in the dark as best they could. After the meeting had thus broken up in disorder, the gathering dispersed, and many of the bibulously inclined celebrated the occasion long into the night.

AT THE LIBERAL HEADQUARTERS.

As the returns began to come in the workers for Mr. Hall assembled at the Reform Committee Rooms to await the figures for the riding. It was not long before it was known that West Peterborough had gone wrong, and those present accepted the situation philosophically, feeling that hard as they had worked some more silent yet more potent influence had neutralized their endeavors.

Mr. PETER HAMILTON, chairman of the central committee, made a brief address, referring to the work that had been done, and the result of the campaign. The Liberals, he said, were always willing to submit gracefully to the will of the majority. He had hoped for different results, and had expected a wider field to do business in, but he fears expressed by the other manufacturers had no doubt influenced the voters of the town.

Mr. RICHARD HALL thanked heartily those who had assisted him in the campaign. He had entered the fight at a late hour, believing that it was his duty he owed to his party and country. Mr. Stevenson had carried the day and he hoped he was satisfied with the means employed to gain the victory. The Liberals had fought the campaign on the merits of the day, and while they were not successful, yet the Liberals of this county were as loyal as their more boastful opponents. He closed by requesting his thanks to those who had worked for him and hoped to some day have an opportunity of fighting the battle over again.

Mr. STRATTON, being called upon, said that it was quite evident that the people of Peterborough wanted the National Policy. The Liberals had assisted as much as the opposite party to bring manufactories to Peterborough, and he felt confident that to-morrow both parties, laying aside all political animosities, would work shoulder to shoulder as they have done in the past for the mutual advancement of the town. The position taken by the manufacturers had no doubt a powerful influence upon the voters of the town. The vote in the country was about all that could be expected in a small agricultural constituency when party lines were so closely drawn. He hoped the Conservatives would take their victory as temperately as the Liberals had taken their little victory last June. So far as the platform was concerned, the campaign had been a pleasant one, no personalities having marred the harmony of the numerous meetings where both parties were represented.

Mr. R. R. HALL also gave general remarks respecting the campaign. The rest of the evening was spent in receiving returns, these being received with cheers or silence, as the favourable or adverse news indicated.

News Nuggets.

—If you decide, from what you have heard or read, that you will take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute instead.

—The Belleville Ontario says:—Mr. A. B. Appleby, of Peterborough, was in the city yesterday and purchased $4,000 worth of beef hides from John Milne.

Selling Liquor to Minors.

An hotelkeeper was this morning fined $10 and costs for selling liquor to a boy under 16 years of age. The information in this case was made under an old law. At the last session of the Ontario Legislature the bill was amended to make the age of minors 18 years, and a provision included that if notice is given in writing hotelkeepers may be prohibited from selling to minors under 21 years.

The Oshawa Reformer says of this address recently given by Mr. Rowse in the Methodist church of that town:—"That he acquitted himself with credit and proved himself a more observant tourist than the majority of travellers, and one who can, after having seen anything worthy of notice, so describe it, that others may share with him the pleasure it affords." The W.C.T.U. and Epworth League of Charlotte street church promise this treat their friends, who will favor them with their presence, on the evening of Monday, March 9th. "Hands Across the Sea."

This play is occupying the boards at Toronto all this week, and a city paper says of it: The first production of "Hands Across the Sea," at the Grand last night, was well received by a capital house. The play is replete with sensational incidents, attractive scenery, and melodramatic sentiment, and is just the kind of piece which appeals to the sympathies of the general theatre-goer. The appearance of the 'old flag' on the halyards of the steamship Australasian was the signal for a tumultuous outburst of applause which lasted several minutes. Mr. Lybell as Tom Bassett was as usual a central figure, and the rest of the cast were equally deserving of praise. The play should have a good run. At Bradburn's opera house, Monday evening next. 1d

CARD OF THANKS.

To the Electors of West Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN:

Permit me to take this, the earliest, opportunity of publicly thanking those who worked so energetically and faithfully in support of my candidature on behalf of the Liberal party in West Peterborough. Although the hearty and willing efforts put forth were not successful, that fact does not weaken my obligations, nor lessen the earnestness of my gratitude to all those who gave me their help. I desire to thank those gentlemen who spent night after night in addressing the electors on my behalf; to thank those friends in town who gave so much of their time and energies to the canvass on my behalf; to thank all those who volunteered horses or teams for use on polling day, and in fine, to thank most cordially all who by effort, influence or vote, contributed to my support in this late contest.

I remain, gentlemen,
Yours very gratefully,
RICHARD HALL.

TRAFFIC IN GIRLS.

Chinese Children Trained for a Life of Degradation in San Francisco Dens.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4.—The fact is now pretty well established that Chinese girls are secretly sold in this city for slaves. For years Miss Culbertson, who is executive head of the Presbyterian Mission at No. 953 Sacramento-street, had dared much to save Chinese girls and women from actual slavery and enforced degradation. Her life has been threatened by highbinders repeatedly, but she has never faltered in her work. The home has screened about 200 females, of which, it is claimed, nearly all were slaves, possessing a moneyed value of from $500 to $3000.

Attention has been attracted to the home during the past few days by a case pending in court. Woon Taim, a Chinese girl 11 years old, was rescued from a man who bought her of her father. The father a few years ago lost his wife and four children by death. The fifth child, little Woon Taim, then aged six, was sold to Kum Moh, a Chinese procuress. The father then sailed for China, leaving Woon Taim in the sole care and mercy of Kum Moh. The price the father received for his daughter paid his passage back to China.

Woon Taim was found at Kum Mah's den in Bartlett alley. It was discovered that she was sent daily by Kum Mah to a place of ill-repute on errands. The girl was then arrested and placed in the charge of Miss Culbertson. Kum Mah immediately began a struggle for her possession, and the case is still pending.

Miss Culbertson said to-day: "There are without doubt scores of female Chinese slaves in San Francisco to-day. Most of the young Chinese girls who come here are brought as slaves for whom cash has been paid to their parents. In many cases they are kidnapped or are deluded into coming here by false pretences. There are few who come themselves."

Recently, after trying in vain to evade the Restriction act, two young Chinese girls were remanded and taken down to the dock to be sent to Hong Kong. At the dock they manifested the greatest terror, and told of the terrible tortures they would be subjected to on their return to China, because they had failed to perjure their way through the courts in San Francisco.

Miss Culbertson has found children under five years being reared for immoral purposes. Among her evidences of what is going on is a bill of sale for a girl and also the contract, which the girl who was sold witnessed by making the impression of her thumb dipped in red ink.

A Sealy, Bedding, Skin Disease, Gets Endless Sufferer Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

MY I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago, it would have saved me years of suffering and expense. For twenty-eight years I was afflicted with a terrible skin disease (scratching commenced at age of eight), for a spot not larger than a cent. It gradually spread over my body, and got worse each year. The doctors treated me, and I tried all the skin remedies and blood purifiers I could hear of, but got no relief. I was induced by friends to try CUTICURA REMEDIES, and got them from the druggist. I began to use them, and within two months I was pronounced cured. I am a poor man, but gladly paid $5 for a set of CUTICURA REMEDIES when I got them. Everybody who knows me knows what they have made of me. I am as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All want of them was $5 worth. If you had been here and told you would have cured me for $100, you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (No. 2 page 47) in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my hands and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I have had twenty-eight years, and it ought to be a kind of consent Nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

DENNIS DOWNING, Waterbury, Vt.

THE CARP MURDER.

GOODWIN CAPTURED NEAR OTTAWA CITY.

He Wept Bitterly, but Declined to Say Anything—Had Been Living in a Shanty Near Sudbury All Summer.

OTTAWA, March 6.—George Goodwin, who has been wanted for the murder of Richard Langford at Carp, west of this city, was arrested to-night about three miles from here at a point on the Richmond Road. He drove from Armprior in a cutter to-day. He stopped at Switzer's Hotel in the suburbs, and the proprietor suspecting him sent in word to the police authorities. Officers Vizard and Hogan went out and made the arrest. The prisoner says he spent the winter in a shanty near Sudbury. Detective Montgomery fully identified him to-night. Goodwin, after being placed in the cells, wept bitterly, but refused to make any statement.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, March 7.—Pigeon shooting will be allowed in the city in future but not within 100 yards of any highway.

A Reuter's telegram from Rome announces that Senator Magliani, ex-Minister of Finance, died on Saturday morning. He was born in 1834 at Lanzino, and studied at Naples, where he lived until 1860. He was one of the founders of the "Adam Smith" society, which was established in Florence for the purpose of combating every kind of socialism. Although he had long held an important official position, his first accession to cabinet rank was in December, 1877, when he was offered the post of Minister of Finance by Signor Depretis. The Ministry lasted only a few months and was succeeded by Signor Cairoli's Government. On the fall of the latter Signor Magliani again became Finance Minister, holding office from December, 1878, to July, 1879. Altogether, he was four times the director of the national finances, and during his term of office he abolished the grist tax and forced currency, and reduced the price of salt, while increasing the import duty upon certain minor necessary articles.

Ex-President Michael McConnell of the old Toronto Baseball Association has retired from an active interest in the American National game.

Yesterday Patsy Powers and Charlie Morton visited Toronto in behalf of the new International Association and interviewed the Colborne-street merchant. Mr. McConnell surprised the pair by declaring that he was out of baseball for good and if they wanted a club for Toronto they must look to other quarters for support. Mr. McConnell is willing to rent his grounds over the Don to a new syndicate or association, if such be formed.

The delegates from the International Association, Messrs. White, Fraser and Burnham, who were at New York for the purpose of obtaining the protection of the national agreement for their association, were received by the board at 4 o'clock. After listening to the arguments presented, the International Association was admitted to protection under Class B of the national agreement. Under this class the International Association is restricted to a salary list of $2500 per month. No player can receive over $200 per month, and no umpire more than $150 per month exclusive of expenses.

MURDER AT MONACO.

THE CIRCUMSTANCES RESEMBLE THOSE OF THE EYRAUD CASE.

A Man and Woman in Custody for the Assassination of an English Physician Traveling in Italy for His Health.

MONACO, March 6.—The police here have arrested a man and a woman, whom they assert are the murderers of Dr. Lindsmann of Manchester, whose body was found in a ravine near San Remo in December last.

The woman, it appears, captivated the physician and lured him to lodgings she occupied at San Remo. As to what actually took place after the woman had enticed her victim there little is actually known. It is concluded, however, that the doctor was drugged, murdered and robbed by the woman, and that the latter was assisted by the man, supposed to be her lover, who was taken into custody with her.

The arrests have caused much commotion here. It has even been rumored that the man and woman in custody may have other and similar crimes charged against them, and that the woman may have been used to lure other men to their doom. In a place like this, where the finding of bodies, generally cases of supposed suicide, is not an infrequent occurrence, it is not astonishing that the wildest theories have been advanced and that people fancy that, perhaps, the woman has made it a business to decoy successful players into her apartments, and that there they may have been both robbed and murdered and their bodies placed so that they would be classed as victims of ill-luck at the gaming tables of Monte Carlo or elsewhere.

Died at a Gambling Table.

MONACO, March 6.—Monte Carlo has been startled by the sudden death at a gambling table of an English physician, Dr. Zegart, who had been winning enormous sums. The cause of death was apoplexy.

THE EMPEROR'S MOVE.

Trying to Effect an Alliance With England.

LONDON, March 6.—One result of the repulse by the French of the Kaiser's offer of friendship has been to bring closer the relations between the British and German Governments. Owing to recent bereavements, Sir E. B. Malet, the British Ambassador at Berlin, is prevented from taking an active share in the important negotiations pending and the Kaiser has to deal with Lord Salisbury through Count Hatzfeldt at London. It is understood on excellent authority that the Kaiser has proposed that England take part in the Triple Alliance. The Kaiser has pointed out the hostility of France to the English interests in Egypt and Russia's menace to English supremacy in Asia, and he has offered the co-operation of Germany in resisting aggression in the quarters indicated.

England, on the other hand, is to aid the allies, at least with her fleet, in the event of war. It is also understood that if the matter rested with Lord Salisbury the question would at once be settled in favor of Germany, but that the Cabinet is apprehensive of the storm that might be raised in the House of Commons should such an alliance be entered into. The Liberals in the House already suspect what is in the wind and are keeping a sharp lookout on the Government.

A Berlin despatch says that the Emperor, mollified by more recent representations from his mother and grandmother, has under consideration the withdrawal of the orders sent last week to Alsace-Lorraine for increased stringency on the frontier.

Mr. Smith of Chicago "Suspected."

DUBLIN, March 4.—A day or two ago a stranger giving the name of Alfred Smith of Chicago arrived in the town of Cahir, county Tipperary, and took lodgings in a public house. The police arrested him to-day as a "suspect." He carried American naturalization papers. In his coat pockets were a revolver and a box of cartridges, and in a belt around his waist, underneath his clothing, were a short sword and two daggers. Smith refused to give any account of himself and was remanded for a week pending enquiry as to his identity and motives.

MOBBED BY MOHAMEDANS.

The British Consulate in Armenia Attacked Christians Alarmed.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 6.—The alarming news has been received from Turkish Armenia of the attack by a Mohammedan mob upon the British Consulate. The Christian population is said to be in a condition of great alarm, as a result of the frequent and unchecked Kurdish raids. Fears are entertained of a collision at Aschekian. The Armenian patriarchs called a meeting, at which the council was invited, and where it was resolved to depute special delegates to inquire on the spot into the alleged grievances, and endeavor to bring about a rapprochement between the two sections of the population.

WEEKLY STEAMSHIPS LINE.

A New Service to Be Shortly Started by the Allan Line.

LONDON, March 6.—Beginning May 1 the Allan Company will run a weekly line of steamers from Glasgow to New York. The new service will include the Assyrian, Corean, Siberian, Peruvian and Pomeranian, and will leave Glasgow on Fridays, calling at Moville. The steamers will leave New York on Tuesdays. The Assyrian will begin the service. The Allan Line is determined to be the first in the field, and is anxious to head off the new company which it is proposed to form out of the State Line, which is in commercial difficulties. The Allan Line intends to try and build at least two fast steamers to compete with other companies for the regular New York passenger traffic.

CHAUNCEY DEPEW ARRESTED.

But is Released on Furnishing Cony Vanderbilt's Bond for $25,000.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Coroner Levy this morning issued warrants for the arrest of five of the railroad officials alleged by his jury to be responsible for the Harlem Tunnel disaster. The gentlemen named in the warrants were: Chauncey M. Depew, G. N. Miller, Wilson G. Hunt, Joseph Park and William Rockefeller. Mr. Depew appeared at the coroner's office at 4.30 this afternoon and established the bond of Cornelius Vanderbilt for $25,000. Mr. Park surrendered himself at 5 o'clock and H. J. Park, his son, went on his bond for $25,000. The others also gave bonds.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

A PERTINENT QUERY BY LABOUCHERE.

A Plot to Assassinate 800 Natives in Massowah Parnell Delivers an Address at Clerkenwell Whitmans Kills 200 of the Kilosh Tribe.

LONDON, March 6.—In the House of Commons this afternoon Mr. Henry Cobb (Conservative), member for Rugby, asked if a military inquiry had been ordered in regard to the baccarat scandal, which affected an officer of high rank, Sir William Gordon Cumming. Hon. Edward Stanhope, Secretary of State for War, in reply to Mr. Cobb's question, said that the matter was now the subject of an action at civil law and that he must therefore decline to make any remark on the subject.

Sir James Fergusson, Parliamentary Secretary of the Foreign Office, replying to a question on the part of Mr. Henry Labouchere, one of the members for Northampton, declined to define the Sultan of Turkey's rights in the Soudan, saying, however, that whatever they were they had not been surrendered. Collisions, he said, between the Egyptians and the Soudanese had been frequent since 1885 and they had always been provoked by the Soudanese.

Mr. Labouchere moved a reduction of the army estimates by £100,000 on account of the troops in Egypt. He said the troops ought to have been withdrawn long ago. Mr. Labouchere's motion was rejected under closure —140 to 65.

HER MAJESTY'S DRAWING ROOM.

A Brilliant Assemblage Greets the Empress Frederick.

LONDON, March 4.—The "drawing room" held by Queen Victoria to-day at Buckingham Palace was notable for the unusually large and brilliant attendance. This state of affairs undoubtedly was due to the presence at the drawing room of the Empress Frederick of Germany, and of the desire on the part of courtiers and others to be present at Buckingham Palace upon this occasion as a token of sympathy with the Empress after her recent unpleasant experience in Paris.

Every member of the royal family now in England made it a point to be present, and as the court is out of mourning the drawing room held to-day may be said to have been one of the most successful ever held in Buckingham Palace.

It was fully 3 o'clock in the afternoon before the Queen, amid a truly royal scene, was, with much ceremony and in almost deadly silence, ushered into the immense drawing-room of the palace, becoming the centre point upon which thousands of pairs of eyes were centred. Immediately behind the Queen came the Prince and Princess of Wales and the other members of the royal family.

The members of the diplomatic corps presented to the Queen included the United States Minister Robert T. Lincoln, Mr. Henry White, First Secretary of the United States Legation, and Mrs. White, Mr. R. McCormick, Second Secretary of the United States Legation, and Mrs. McCormick, and Mr. G. Wurts, First Secretary of the United States Legation in St. Petersburg.

800 MEN TO BE SLAIN.

A Plot Which an Italian Chief of Police Revealed.

ROME, March 6.—Lieut Livraghi, chief of police of Massowah, who is accused of murdering rich natives for the purpose of plunder, in a communication to The Secolo asserts that exalted personages instructed the Massowah police to assassinate 800 natives. The public are much excited and demand stringent investigation.

The Irish "Ripper."

DUBLIN, March 6.—The man Gavan, who made a ferocious assault with a knife upon the passengers in a railway carriage near Castlerea the day before yesterday, has been declared of sound mind. Gavan has been twice in prison for stabbing persons. In neither case was there any motive for the act. The police are impressed with the man's likeness to the described appearance of "Jack the Ripper," and are making further enquiries into his past history.

Steamers Collide on the Thames.

LONDON, March 6.—The steamer Merchant Prince, outward bound to the west coast of Africa, collided in the Thames this morning with the Cunard steamer Catalonia, which was to leave for Boston to-morrow. The Catalonia had her side stove in, and the Merchant Prince was injured in the same way. The Prince, on steaming out, had previously sunk the Norwegian brig Holyhead, and had her rescued crew on board.

Wismann Punishes a Tribe.

ZANZIBAR, March 6.—Baron Wismann has punished the Kiboah tribe. He killed 200, wounded 60 and captured 50 of the tribes men. The German loss was two men killed and 15 wounded. The Germans captured 1,000 cattle and a quantity of ammunition and ivory.

Limerick's Condition Improving.

LIMERICK, March 6.—At the opening of the Limerick assizes to-day the judges announced that they were rejoiced that the condition of affairs in the city and county had improved and that boycotting and the plan of campaign had vanished.

Strangled in Prison.

Trying to Starve to Death.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 6.—Jacob Schesle, who is confined in the county jail in this city, and under sentence to be hanged June 18 for the murder of Constable Drukle in New Canaan some three years ago, is trying to starve himself to death. He absolutely refuses to partake of food of any kind and has eaten nothing for the last 11 days. No effort has yet been made to force him to partake of food. Tempting dishes are daily set before him without effect. He swears that he will never partake of food again, and it looks as though he would keep his word. Sheriff Clarkson has placed a death watch over the condemned man and every precaution taken to prevent him from doing himself bodily harm.

The Austrian Elections.

VIENNA, March 6.—Sixty-four rural elections, so far as the results are known, have completed the triumph of the young Czechs and German Liberals, ensure a majority to Count Von Taafe, although the composition of the Cartel majority will be much changed. The old Czech party is almost annihilated. Even if the anti-Semite win as many seats as they expect to win, the German Liberals will still be dominant.

STUDENTS DIE TOGETHER.

Two Young Theological Students Commit Suicide With the Same Revolver.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 6.—A suicide of two young students of the Hebrew Union College occurred at 1 o'clock this morning at Fourteenth and Race-streets. The young men were Isador H. Frauenthal and Ernst Sallinger. They were students at the Hebrew Union College. They boarded in the house of Max Scholtenfeldt and occupied adjoining rooms. About 1 o'clock Mr. Scholtenfeldt heard a heavy fall in their room, and soon after another. Being unable to open the door he got a police officer and broke in. They found Frauenthal had shot himself in the head. Sallinger took the pistol and fired a ball into his chest. He was alive when found, but died in a few minutes. On the table was a note asking that telegrams be sent for Frauenthal to Mr. J. B. Heil, No. 7137 Delmar-street, St. Louis, Mo., and for Sallinger to Henry Landauer, care Joseph Schoenman & Co., No. 18 West Third-street, Philadelphia.

Sallinger was able to speak when found, and said they had agreed to die by their own hands. Sallinger's diary had an entry yesterday saying he was going to end his never-ceasing pain. In the room of the victims of self-destruction it could be seen how all had been planned beforehand. The shutters had been closed, a thing never done before, and the back door was locked. All their personal effects had been packed away except some books and a violin, which belonged to Sallinger, who evinced great musical talent.

Their clothes which they had worn during the day had been hung up in the closet. On the table the letter to Mr. Max Scholtenfeldt was found. The letter had been written by Sallinger. The writing was not as regular as that in Sallinger's diary, which was found on the table near the letter. The young man had written this and then partly undressed, but did not go to bed. Among Sallinger's effects was a large diary of his life. It started on March 5, 1890, and is dedicated to his friend Henry Landauer of No. 505 Fairmount-avenue, Philadelphia. He states that he intended keeping a record of his life, his thoughts and his actions, as he says: "This book shall breathe the breath that I do." In a side note he says: "To-day, to-morrow, others may read and profit."

The book contains incidents of his life, and has a passage speaking of a religious argument he had with a friend. This is the last entry prior to the following, which is dated March 3. The former entry was Nov. 13.

It has been a long time since I last wrote in this record of my life, and now once more and the last time I take up my pen to bid you farewell. When I began, some time back, I hardly thought in so brief a lapse of time I should be called on to close up my account, but such, alas, is the state of the case.

I have determined that this day shall be my last on earth, and to-night I leave for parts unknown. When I look back upon these tablets of my life I see many a fault and many a wrong, yet I have the supreme satisfaction of feeling that even though I erred at times, my actions were always prompted by what I considered to be right.

I have tried to live as uprightly as my powers permitted, and with that assurance I feel satisfied to meet my Creator. The thought of my parents' grief has long deterred me from taking my life, but now with a raging brain and a body racked with never-leaving pains I take consolation in the thought that they would rather have me dead than have me as I am. May they take consolation in the thought, and may they feel that though my departure was sudden and unexpected, it was for the best.

May the all-loving Father, to whom I commend my soul, have mercy on all my loved ones in this sorrow, and help them bear the grief with fortitude.

To you, my beloved Henry, I have entrusted the disagreeable task of informing my beloved ones. A man of such character need not be told how to act in such an emergency, for all you ever did was done well. To you as the best friend I leave behind me, I entrust this record as a token of the heartfelt love I bear you. Ask my dear family to forgive me, Henry, and that soon, though he is dead. You are aiding your loving friend. ERNST SALLINGER, Amen.

PARNELL AT CLERKENWELL.

He Expresses His Deep Sympathy for Workingmen.

LONDON, March 6.—Parnell addressed his London supporters at Clerkenwell. He was received with prolonged cheering. There were cries for Davitt, but the call was hooted. A resolution was adopted expressing confidence in Parnell and contempt for the seceders. Parnell said the English would ultimately see that they must allow the Irish to manage their own affairs. The question of leadership was for the Irish to decide. He had the deepest sympathy with the aspirants of English workingmen and he regretted Mr. Morley's attitude on the labor question; but though the Liberal leaders declined to take their place at the head of the labor movement it was not for the leader of the Irish to interfere in British questions. He enlarged upon the shortcomings of the Gladstonians in this respect and expatiated on his own ideas of what the new parliament could do for the workingmen. For himself and his colleagues he could promise to second every attempt on the part of the laboring classes to better their condition.

The Queen.

LONDON, March 6.—The Queen, accompanied by the Empress Frederick, by the latter's daughter Margaret, and by the Prince and Princess of Wales, drove to-day in an open carriage from Buckingham Palace to Islington where the royal party spent considerable time in visiting the horse show at Agricultural Hall.

The Queen and her party received a perfect ovation as they passed through the streets on their way to and from the horse show.

The present proprietors will be retained on a salary. The syndicate has a capital of $6,000,000 and will own and operate all the foundries. The price of type will not be advanced.

Seamen on the Lakes.

CHICAGO, March 6.—The Lake Seamen's Association has decided to affiliate with the International Union. This is in the direction of centralization of all the seamen's unions in the world. The Lake Association includes 136 local bodies in the U. S. and Canada. Headquarters in Chicago. The president of each union is a paid officer whose duty it is to look after the interest of all sailors who enter the port in which he resides. At the next convention proposed changes in the maritime laws of the United States and Canada will come up. Amendments to the laws providing for properly qualified seamen and regulations regarding the load line will also be conceded.

SATURDAY, MARCH 7, 1891.

EAST PETERBOROUGH.

The latest returns indicate that the East riding has gone government's. Though it is conceded that Mr. Burnham is elected, the complete figures are not to hand. Mr. Burnham's success is very gratifying to himself and his friends. He is personally well known throughout the riding, and has a fair share of personal popularity. He has a good deal of quiet diplomacy, and is sagacious in using it to serve his purposes. On the other hand, Mr. Bark, though a staunch former, thoroughly upright and highly respected, was handicapped by not being personally well known and experienced in the organizing and platform departments of campaign work. He and his friends were unprepared from the elections being brought on so suddenly; he had no time to visit a large portion of this extensive riding, and he was besides assailed by the policy of false reports concerning his personal standing. Under all these circumstances it is not much surprise that Mr. Bark, though he worked to the utmost of his ability, was unable to contend against the many adverse influences, legitimate and otherwise, that he had to contend against. The EXAMINER would have no fault to find with the representation of East Peterborough if the member-elect were as little open to objection on political as he is on personal grounds.

THE CONFLICT OVER!

The Fierce and Tempestuous Sea is Now Calm!

Excitement Subsides—Scenes after the Storm—A Life Boat Sent out to Rescue the Wrecked and Weary!

The political ocean of Canada for the last few years has been so calm and tranquil; so smooth and clear; that even the frailest, and most unseaworthy craft could at all seasons ride with safety on its expansive bosom.

For four years its waters have scarcely shown a ripple; and the vessels of contending politicians and their crews, have passed to and fro on its vast surface without having experienced any catastrophe worthy of note.

Two months ago, however, ominous mutterings presaged a terrible storm. These storm indications at first were almost unheeded; and the warnings of the wise and knowing ones, were received with indifference and incredulity by the great majority of the rank and file of the army of professional politicians and their friends, who were calmly and peacefully floating on the great political sea.

Suddenly the mutterings were heard again but louder and deeper than before, the thunders were let loose and reverberated from hill to hill. The waters were lashed to fury, and the great storm was at its height.

The bugle call of leaders was sounded for the marshalling of forces; and craft of all sizes, and various builds, were soon seen on the raging and billowy ocean, with their red and blue flags unfurled to the ever-increasing gale,—all putting forth herculean efforts to escape the treacherous rocks and shoals, which at all times makes the course to Ottawa a perilous and dangerous one.

Never, can the onlooker forget the terrible scenes that were then presented to view in the mighty conflict. Men wild with excitement, and oblivious to the dangers around them, were frantically calling upon their respective crews for greater efforts. Men agonized, and wrestled with each other for vantage ground; and the weak, as a consequence, fell before the strong. It was a conflict wherein friend smote friend; brother lifted up the battle-axe against brother; and son wielded without mercy the sword against father.

"The weak fought valiantly but lost;
The stronger won at fearful cost."

Our oldest inhabitants in their calm and dignified moments speak of this conflict as the most terrible ever beheld by them.

To-day the din of battle has ceased; the storm has abated; the thick smoke has passed away; the atmosphere is clearing; and thoughtful, contemplating men are enabled to make a survey of the vast political sea, whereon the great action took place; and are enabled to form a just estimate of the fearful loss on both sides.

We use the word "fearful" not because any direct fatalities have occurred. We thank Heaven that such consequences have been averted! Still there is no intelligent man who does deny the fact, that this hard fought struggle has brought upon us many serious and direful results. Such a struggle as the one just passed through—a continuous day and night battle, which raged incessantly and without interruption for nearly two months, must of necessity have its dreadful and shocking effects on some.

With armies and governments, the time of peace is not always the time of preparation and fortifying with them. Precisely so, with the thousands who fought on both sides in the political contest just ended. Thousands who fought on both sides in the political contest just ended. Thousands we say, entered the struggle in weak and sickly condition; nerves unstrung, brain clouded and weary, irritable, sleepless, morose, dyspeptic, and rheumatic. All such must now be languishing on beds of sickness, or confined to their homes.

Even amongst those who were strong and robust before the tocsin of battle sounded, there are now thousands who feel used-up, broken-down, hired-out, sleepless and weary, with dull heavy eyes, confused brain, and palpitating nerves. In the great struggle, they have disregarded the unerring laws of nature in regard to rest, eating and drinking; and in addition to the ailments just referred to, very many have become dyspeptics.

Can any same man truthfully assert that there are no dangers, no ills, or no losses to repair?

These ills and maladies would be slight indeed, and unworthy of this notice if a few days rest would suffice for recuperation and bring relief.

They, unfortunately, cannot restore the disabled and wounded sufferers. Unless some great effort is made, and that quickly, as a means of rescue, thousands of the fallen and wounded will go on blindly to the verge of brain softening, paralysis, parcels and insanity; while others will linger on with irretrievable feelings of misery; showing haggard, weary and pale faces and nervous for months, perhaps, of years, completely exhausted.

The great call of the hour is now for the "life boat," that vehicle of rescue, whereby the weak, weary and wounded ones may find that perfect safety and true deliverance, which means health, strength, robustness, vigor, cheerfulness, and the promise of long years of future usefulness for our young Dominion.

To the disabled and wounded of both political parties, it is hardly necessary to say that this great "Life boat," this "Ark of Safety," is Paine's Celery Compound, a remedy as popular to-day as ever was a Sir John A., a Blake or a Laurier. While the great reputation of Paine's Celery Compound is world-wide, the names of many of our political chiefs are unknown, except in our own young country. Paine's Celery has at all times brought peace, joy and contentment in its train. The political warrior may slay his thousands, the mission of the great remedy now referred to is to snatch its tens of thousands from the verge of open graves, Victor, vanquished, and wounded, will have cause to rejoice, when they have tested its wondrous powers.

A Pioneer of Methodism Dead.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 6.—Rev. Rober Hopkins, D.D., said to have been the oldest Methodist Episcopal clergyman in Pennsylvania, died suddenly yesterday at Sewickley, Allegheny county. He would have been 98 years of age in April and was one of the last links connecting the present with the early days of Methodism.

Over 65 years ago he joined the Pittsburg Conference, and was the last of the original members of that body. In 1844 he was, against his wishes, named for bishop, and came within one vote of being chosen. He was for 19 years a presiding elder, sat as a delegate in five general conferences, was at one time secretary of the Seaman's Friend Society, and for years contributed to the church publications.

Of his early struggles he said recently: "The first circuit I ever preached on covered a distance of 200 miles. It was the Grand River circuit and required one month. I preached every day. The meetings were held in little log huts. My colleague was a married man. When the collection was taken up he got all the cash, as it was thought that I, being unmarried, did not require money. Some of the male members made me a present of a Dearborn wagon, which was afterward deducted from my salary. The young girls gave me a pair of socks and a neck scarf. This, with $63 in money, was my salary for the first three years of my ministry."

In Danger of Excommunication.

BELFAST, March 6.—The Right Rev. William Reeves, D.D., Bishop of the United Dioceses of Down and Conner and Dromore, who has issued a letter amounting practically to an excommunication of the Catholics who support Mr. Parnell, which letter has caused considerable excitement in the city and elsewhere, says during the course of that epistle: "Those men who are supporting Mr. Parnell have become the propagators of public scandal, and have by their own acts placed themselves in company with those to whom it is unlawful for priests to administer the sacrament."

Bankers' Banquet.

A very pleasant bankers' banquet may produce very unpleasant symptoms of dyspepsia, which disease is often caused by overloading the stomach with rich food, etc. For years Burdock Blood Bitters has held first place at home and abroad as a permanent and reliable cure for dyspepsia or indigestion in any form. The proprietors guarantee it to cure dyspepsia or return purchase money. 2w6d

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away." but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50c. and $1. Trial size free. At all druggists. dw

Hagyard's Yellow Oil.

This great internal and external remedy always allays all pain. It is a specific for croup, and promptly cures coughs, colds, sore throat, sprains, bruises, burns, rheumatism, cuts, wounds, etc. Good for man or beast. Stands all tests. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents. Hagyard's Yellow Oil. 2w6d

A Bag of Flour.

As a general renovating tonic and purifying family medicine useful at all times, but especially so in the spring, Burdock Blood Bitters is unequalled.

"It's like a bag of flour in a poor man's family," says Mr. John Maunder, of York, ville, Ont. "the oftener you take B. B. B. the better you are." 2w61

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Ellen street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions took away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

Purify your Blood

The importance of having the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

STAR-PHOTOGRAPHY.

THE LENGTH OF EXPOSURE FOR JUPITER 19.4 SECONDS.

Other Details in Astronomical Photography of Interest to Everybody—The Difficulties Which Beset the Operator

There was an interesting lecture delivered the other evening by Prof. James E. Keeler, who is connected with the Lick Observatory in California, upon astronomical photography. He said that astronomical photography presented few difficulties, and that more knowledge of astronomy was required than of photography by the observer; in other words, that the ratio between the two was about three parts of astronomy to one of photography.

If, however, a photographer should attempt to photograph a star he would find that his image would be blurred, owing to the movement of the object during the exposure, therefore it was necessary that the instrument must be kept in motion in keeping with the motion of the star and the apparatus for photographing stars, therefore, adjusted to meet these difficulties. The usual method of keeping the star on the plate in photographing was by moving the telescope, but owing to the size of the instrument at the Lick Observatory this was impossible, as the telescope weighed seven tons. The plan adopted, therefore, was to make the plate movable by means of turning screws.

When the photographer wished to do some of his work the thing first to be done was to move the big telescope so that a lens could be capped over the end. It is necessary to put on a different lens for photographic purposes, and it happens that a different focus is obtained in the big telescope. The dry plate is therefore placed in the tube nine feet from the eyepiece, a hole having been cut in for that purpose. A seed-26-plate is used, and for development the ordinary pyro and potash. The developer is used very weak, and plenty of time given to bring out the image. When the plate is developed the operator has to go it in a blind sort of fashion, as the smaller star images will not appear till the developing work is done.

Smaller stars than can be seen with the naked eye are located in the dry plate and brought out by development. This is owing to the fact that the effect to the eye in looking at a star is immediate, and the light seen as sharp as is possible, but when the rays are directed on a plate the light is cumulative and increases on the image till enough light is gained to fix the star, and of course on development it is brought out clearly. The clear air at Mount Hamilton makes it more desirable for the use of photography, and many pictures are taken there. They are mostly small stars, however, and the photographs are made for the purpose of measurements.

The photographs of the planets are more difficult to secure, owing to the refraction in the atmosphere. Some fairly good pictures have, however, been made of Jupiter and Saturn, and this winter pictures of Mars will be taken. Prof. Keeler showed pictures of the planets and the moon, as well as drawings to illustrate the difference between the two. The outer ring of Saturn, which was not discovered till the big Lick telescope was turned on the planet, does not show in the photograph. The pictures of the milky way, which Prof. Keeler had in his collection of lantern slides, are most excellent and are the best ever taken. The hundreds of stars shown on the picture are none of them visible to the naked eye.

The photographs of the planet Jupiter showed plainly the different positions of the spots and bands on the surface of the planet, which demonstrate that they are constantly changing, and that probably the surface of Jupiter is a mass of changing matter.

It is a well-known fact that better photos are obtained through the smaller telescopes than through the big ones. Photographing stars, especially the small ones, is tedious work, as in some cases the exposure must last for several hours. During all that time the plate or telescope must be moved so that the image of the star will continue in one place. The exposure for a star of the sixteenth magnitude is two hours, and only one at a time can be secured unless the stars happen to be of the same magnitude, so that getting clusters is particularly long and tedious in its operation.

In procuring the photographic star pictures, often what is known as the trailing process is followed, that is, the plate is exposed to the star, and then no attempt is made to fix the image in one place, but it passes along over the plate, making a trail. A number of trials can, of course, be got on one plate, and then studied out and measured afterward.

The exposures for planets are short—that of a sun-spot taken in Paris was about as lightning-like as possible, the shutter being attached to the strongest kind of a spring. The exposure for the moon takes about a quarter of a second, and that for Jupiter about four seconds.

People who visit the Lick Observatory often ask very remarkable questions in regard to the telescope, as well as to the methods of photographing the stars. The covering of the observatory is made of three-inch steel plates, and, of course, is arranged so that a plate can be moved to allow the telescope to point to any part of the heavens. A visitor who happened into the observatory when all the plates were closed asked most earnestly if the steel plates were transparent. A frequent question asked in regard to star photographing is if a flash light is not used to make the exposure. There is an old saying that intelligent men are the first to lose their wits when entertaining an astronomical observatory, and seem to forget the simplest laws. Many cases of this have been noticed at the Lick institution.—Chicago Times.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

A SIX-YEAR-OLD PIANIST.

A Pretty Girl Whose Performances Are Attracting Attention in Chicago.

A seven-year-old little girl of six years is attracting the attention of music lovers on the West Side. At an age when children are learning the alphabet and wrestling with the mysteries of the First Reader this little lady is giving brilliant audiences at Prof. Friemeyer wonderful exhibitions on the piano. Prof. Friemeyer has a conservatory of music on Chicago avenue near Leavitt street, and teaches the little girl. Her parents have given evidence of the musical talent of their child, and now, with little or no training, she appears before skilled musicians and astonishes them by the precocity of talent that they have spent long years and much fortune in acquiring. Little Miss Stark plays as naturally as children do to whom books, and the most difficult compositions are interpreted with as much ease and grace as she plays the simplest pieces. Phebe appeared at several recitals in the First Christian Church, and the unfeigned and unfeigned receptions tendered her were evidences of a well-deserved popularity. Modest in manner and possessing many winning ways, this sweet and gifted child is gathering hundreds of admirers, and ere long the fame of Chicago's new child musician will have traveled beyond the borders of the Garden City.—Chicago Herald.

Tranquility.

Probably nothing tires one so much as feeling hurried. When in the early morning the day's affairs press on one's attention beforehand, and there comes the wonder how in the world everything is to be accomplished—when every interruption is received impatiently and the clock is watched in distress as its moments flit past—then the mind tires the body. We are wrong to drive ourselves with whip and spur in this way. Each of us is promised strength for the day, and we must not wear ourselves out. If only we can keep cool and calm we shall be less wearied when we have reached the event day. The children may be fractious, the servants trying, the friend we love may fail to visit us, the letter we expect may not arrive; but if we can preserve our tranquility of soul and demeanor we shall get through everything creditably.—Christian at Work.

Gold in Colors.

When gold is dissolved in nitro-muriatic acid it forms chloride of gold, a beautiful yellow liquid used by gilders, photographers and others. When this solution is diluted with water, and chloride of tin is added, metallic gold is precipitated as a beautiful purple powder, which is used for gilding and coloring porcelain and glass. This color is called "purple of Cassius," from the name of its discoverer, Andreas Cassius of Leyden, who made it for the first time in the year 1685.

In gilding procelain it is spread upon the pattern by means of a paste, and by the action of heat in the oven it takes the ordinary golden hue and brilliancy, but by modifying the composition of the paste it yields also rose and purple colors. When a small quantity of it is mixed with the materials used in making glass the glass produced has a magnificent ruby tint, seen to perfection in the well-known Bohemian glass.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Balsam for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c, and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. dw

Familiar Family Friend.

The family store of medicine should contain a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Mrs. Hannah Hutchins, of Roseway, N. S., says: "We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil in our family for six years, for coughs, colds, burns, sore throat, croup, etc., and find it so good we cannot do without it." 2w6d

No Shadow of Doubt.

No sane person doubts that what we say of B.B.B. is true. The evidence of its power and popularity is too overwhelming to confute, besides it is all home testimony making it certain that B.B.B. will cure dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, and all blood diseases. 2w6d

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS,—My mother was attacked with inflammation of the lungs which left her very weak and never free from cold, till at last she got a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and, on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried. MRS. KENNEDY, 50 Smith Ave., Hamilton, Ont. 2w6d

It Does Its Work.

Mrs. James Dix, Brock street, Kingston, Ont., says: I suffered with an inflamed throat and bad cough for seven months. Was treated by physicians without success, when six doses of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil cured me. It's as palatable as cream. For sale by all druggists. dw

MONDAY

Fatal Accident.

We regret to chronicle, says the Minden Echo the death of Mrs. John Fell, wife of John Fell, Esq., M.P.P. for East Victoria We learn that on Thursday last as Mr. Fell was leaving to attend the nomination he left Mrs. Fell at his son's residence to wait for his return. The evening was somewhat stormy, and she decided to remain over night. On the following morning in descending the stairs, she in some manner missed her footing and fell to the bottom, it is thought breaking her neck, as she died in a short time. Mrs. Fell was in her 77th year, and was highly respected in the neighborhood. It is needless to say that Mr. Fell and each member of the bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community in this terribly sudden bereavement.

Who Wins the Pantaloons?

The guessing contest at Mr. W. J. Green's clothing store aroused considerable interest. The ballot box was opened to-day, when it was found that there were 312 guesses made. Of these 212 were for Mr. Stevenson and 100 for Mr. Hall. The guesses ranged from 100 majority for Mr. Hall to 300 for Mr. Stevenson. The great mass of the estimated majorities were very low, showing that there was a general opinion that the contest would be a close one. Only eighteen guesses of the 212 for Mr. Stevenson went over a hundred, while the same proportion held good with Mr. Hall's majorities. If the returns as published yesterday, 235 majority for Mr. Stevenson, are correct, Jas O'Brien wins the pants, R. J. Williamson the silk handkerchief and Archie Statham the necktie. However, the prizes will not be awarded until the official returns are published. The following guessed nearest the actual majority:—Wm. Bateson 205, H. W. James 207, Archie Statham 227, R. J. Williamson 230 James O'Brien 233, J. J. Turner 235, Bruce Chowen 275.

Mr. Burnham's Majority Substantially Reduced.

Further figured out issued to-day pull down Mr. Burnham's majority to 33, with one division in Burleigh to hear from. Latest advices from Dummer are to the effect that Mr. Rorke's majority there is 56, instead of 33, as represented yesterday. Glamorgan and Monmouth have also been heard from. Caldwell's school house, in Burleigh, from which no returns have yet been received, gave Mr. Lang and Mr. Blezard good majorities in the last elections. The revised figures are:

Majority for Burnham, 33

The East Riding Conservatives, assisted by the torches, band and small boys from Peterborough, had their innings last night. The street parade came over to town to exhibit itself, after which the cheering and excitement were confined to to the village hall for a couple of hours, where a public meeting was held. The East Riding Conservatives certainly have reason to be proud of their victory.

Warm Mark of Appreciation.

A Veteran Municipal Legislator's Services Recognized.

On Saturday last Mr. Michael Sanderson, the venerable reeve of Smith, in compliance with an intimation to that effect, called at the office of Mr. F. J. Bell, clerk of the township, where he found a deputation representing the council and his constituents. Mr. Sanderson, after the usual greetings had passed, was surprised by receiving a present of a magnificent Astrachan fur coat and a pair of Persian lamb gauntlets. These articles were presented as a recognition of the services which Mr. Sanderson has rendered the township and county. And the gift was most timely and fitting, Mr. Sanderson is now in his twentieth year of service as reeve and deputy-reeve of the township of Smith. He has filled the office of Warden, and has in that capacity, and as a member of the county council, rendered services of the highest importance to the county. Especially has his work been effective in the celebrated Grand Junction matter, which was decided in the county's favour. Mr. Sanderson fought the railway step by step, from the inception of the suit to the Privy Council. Mr. Sanderson also did splendid service in the long and successful struggle between this county and Victoria. He also enjoys the reputation of having a very extensive, practical and available acquaintance with municipal law, as most persons intimately acquainted with Mr. Sanderson can readily believe. Mr. Sanderson has sound judgment unimpeachable integrity, and though he is far beyond the Psalmist's limit of human life, there is not a member of the county council who does more or better work, or more assiduously attends to his duties. We congratulate Mr. Sanderson upon having received such warm tokens of appreciation of his services, and hope he may be long spared to wear his coat of fur, which could not cover a warmer heart, and his gauntlets, which could not enclose a more honest hand or one more ready to help a friend.

Bigotry at Baillieboro.

(From Our Own Correspondent)

The smouldering fires of the bigotry of semi-barbaric days, broke out at Baillieboro on Thursday night last. During the day preparations had been made, and after the returns of the result of the elections were heard, the Conservatives delighted themselves in burning Hon. Wilfrid Laurier in effigy, thus exhibiting a spirit, which only lacks power to wreak upon the persons proper of their opponents the burning which they inflict on an effigy. A fine example of the liberty of conscience and tolerance of opinion for which our forfathers have fought and bled!

Where Pumice Stone Comes From.

We often hear it remarked, and particularly after an eruption of a volcano, that pumice stone ought to be plentiful and cheap, as quantities must have been ejected during the volcanic disturbance. As a matter of fact, however, none of the white stone in general use is obtained from active volcanoes. It comes from deposits of the article discovered in one or two quarters of the globe, the best of which is at present to be found in the island of Liparis, situated in the Tyrrhenia Sea. The island is mountainous in character, and consists of tuffs and lavas and of highly siliceous volcanic products. The district where the stone is found is called Campo Bianco or Mote Petalo (1,500 feet above the level of the sea)

After riding a considerable distance, partly along precipitous paths sufficiently dangerous to be interesting, and partly through vineyards and over grassy plains, one almost suddenly comes upon a seemingly snow-clad narrow valley enclosed by hills, also quite white, and the whole glaringly bright on a sunny day. Into these hills workmen are ceaselessly digging deep burrows, working within by candle light. In their excavations they come across many lumps of pumice stone, which are placed in baskets, subsequently being conveyed along the valley to the seashore, where small boats are loaded and sailed to the seaport near by, where the stone is sorted, packed and shipped to distant parts, either via Messina or Leghorn.

Let Us Have Will Power.

La Rochefoucald says:—"Nothing is impossible, there are ways that lead to everything; and if we had sufficient will, we should always have sufficient means." "Will power," when properly directed, can overcome all difficulties, and level what by some are considered to be insurmountable barriers. "Will power," even in the hours of pain and disease, can help the subject to calmly and rationally consider his position, and will enable him to act promptly. Instead of giving away to fears and doubts and anxieties, the sufferer and victim of nervous debility, sleeplessness, run down constitution, headache, dyspepsia and indigestion will have the will and the courage to at once lay hold of that great modern discovery, Paine's Celery Compound, and by its use will renew himself mentally and physically. He will go on building up a strong and vigorous constitution, a keen and healthy appetite, a clear brain, and a cheerful disposition. Sufferers remember that though apparent difficulties are in your way, rest assured that if you exert sufficient "will power" to use Paine's Celery Compound, and throw all quack nostrums aside, you can have all the joys and comforts that health can bestow.

All for a Postal Card.

An elegant Special City Prize valued at from $10.00 to $20.00 will be given each day to the person in Peterborough from whom is received the best list of English word (of not less than three letters) formed from letters contained in the two words, "Ladies' Newspaper." This offer is made by the publishers of a large, 32 page, four column journal, edited by women, for the intelligent women of Canada. Over two hundred valuable prizes are offered, in addition to the above extra special prizes given daily. All fortunate enough to secure a prize in this competition will obtain a valuable one, as none other will be given.

This competition will be upon an entirely different plan from any before offered in Canada, in fact, after the style of those introduced by leading English publishers, and will be conducted in the same honourable manner which has governed English competitions.

The publishers of "The Ladies' Newspaper" are not offering these competitions expecting to make any money from direct results, but will expend several thousand dollars in this manner for the purpose of introducing their journal.

The first object will be to make them strictly fair and impartial and establish an enviable reputation for the publication itself. Persons desiring to enter the competition may start at once, but send your address on a postal card and receive a free sample copy with full particulars. Address

J. S. STRATTON.

The Population of France is Stationary.

The reason is in the statistics of families. Out of over ten million households there are over two million in which there are no children, two and a half million with only one, two and a half million with two, and one and a half million with three. Long marriages and small families are the explanation of the decadence of France. America.—The astonishing fact disclosed was that 200 Fifth avenue families, with all the means of rearing children and relieved of all anxiety of want, had brought ninety-one children into the world during the past ten years, while 300 Cherry Hill families, over whose defense on beside the Damocleian sword of poverty is always suspended as by a single hair, have brought six hundred children into the world during the same time. It thus appears that, with all their adverse circumstances, the Cherry Hill families were more than seven times as prolific as those of Fifth avenue. Limiting the inquiry to the past twelve months, the discrepancy is still greater. In the 200 wealthy families there were only six births during the year, while in the 300 poor families there were 111, or 185 times as many. This accounts for the decrease in the ratio of our growth in population as signalized by the census returns.

American Opinion.

What the N. Y. Tribune said on the Morning of Election Day.

The New York Tribune (Administration) says in its issue of March 5th in an article on the Canadian elections: "The conduct of the Liberals in this election has been immensely to their credit. They have pitilessly exposed the inconsistencies and hypocrisies of the Government, but they have kept to the real issue and have sought by facts and figures to persuade and convince. If they win they will be a position to carry out their policy successfully, for the people of the United States have admired their courage and frankness and millions of Americans who have hitherto looked with distrust upon any kind of alliance of Canada will be willing to meet a government whose existence is the pledge of Canada's fair and just disposition. If they lose they can but be obstructed, not permanently put down. For their cause, so far as Canada is concerned, is the cause of progress, safety and wealth. The government, on the other hand, winning, can enjoy but a brief and inglorious triumph. Its success can be construed only as a declaration of industrial war against the United States. Its leaders, with droll audacity, have left us no option but to shut our doors against them, and to hold them hostile if not dangerous neighbours. There can be only one result of methods so selfhurtful. The resources of Canada, vast and rich as they are, can only postpone the destruction of a government wedded to profligacy, monopoly, debt and disorder."

Singing at Selwyn.

Mr. J. H. Ketchum's singing class at Selwyn celebrated the close of the term by a most successful concert. The temperance hall, where the concert was given, was packed to the doors. A splendid programme, consisting of solos, duets, quartets and choruses was presented in excellent style. The choruses were taken by the Selwyn class, and the manner in which they acquitted themselves reflects great credit upon both the class and Mr. Ketchum, to whose careful instruction and training their excellent singing is due. The solos, duets, and quartettes were taken by Misses Fawcett, Brundrette, Wrighton (E.), and Ketchum, and Messrs. Rose, Drope, Brooks and King. Miss Nellie Wrighton acted as accompanist very efficiently. The occasion was a most delightful one.

SCIENCE ALL ALIVE

BUILDING OF THE MT. BLANC REFUGE OBSERVATORY.

The Highest Scientific Station in the World Successfully Established—How the Practicability of the Project Was Proved by a French Alpine Climber.

The ascent of Mt. Blanc has always been regarded as one of the most fatiguing in the list of Alpine climbs. Many tourists anxious to make the trip have been deterred by the fact that there has been no refuge at the summit in which the Alpinist could rest before retracing his steps. Last summer J. Vallot, a member of the French Alpine Club conceived the idea of constructing near the top of the mountain a building which could be used both as a shelter and as a scientific observatory.

When Vallot announced his plan of building a refuge on the summit the idea was laughed at. It would be impossible, it was said, to engage in any kind of work at such an altitude. The originator of the idea expressed his willingness to demonstrate the incorrectness of this belief. He proceeded to pass three days and three nights as the mountain top. During the daytime he busied himself with scientific observations; at night he slept under a tent. The practicability of working at a high altitude had been proved, and Vallot received abundant assistance to carry his scheme into effect.

Plans of a small structure best adapted for withstanding high winds were drawn, and the building was constructed at Chamounix. The house was then taken apart, and each timber was marked properly so that the parts could be put together readily on the mountain top. One hundred guides volunteered their services to carry the parts of the building to the point fixed upon as the site. The dismantled structure was tied up into 111 loads, and the work of transportation was begun. It was a tedious undertaking carrying the cumbersome packages up the ascent. Three days were consumed in conveying each load to its destination. The work commenced on June 15 and on July 31 the last section of the building and the last of the ninety packages of scientific instruments had reached the site of the refuge observatory.

Six days before the last date Vallot selected five of the hardiest mountaineers as masons and carpenters, and set out for the mountain top to build the foundation. Two tents were set up for the temporary shelter of the party. The temperature was rather low for summer; the mercury dropped to 9° below zero at night, and did not rise much above zero at noon. The men were clothed in regulation Esquimaux costume, with huge woollen gloves and heavy mountain caps. The style of dress was not conducive to rapid work, but the men labored vigorously from 7 in the morning till 7 at night. In two days the foundation was completed, and on the third the frame work was in place, in spite of the persistent attempts of the wind to overthrow it. On the fourth day the last plank was nailed on the roof, and at night the workmen were able to sleep in a less windy chamber than their tent.

The work, however, was extremely exhausting in the rare atmosphere. At the end of the second day one of the men was disabled. He was given a few whiffs from the oxygen bag which Mr. Vallot had taken the precaution to include in his supplies, and recovered sufficiently to start down the mountain. The following day a second mountaineer was exhausted, and a third weakened on the third day.

Although the house was not entirely finished on the fourth day it was thought inadvisable to remain longer on the summit, especially as the weather had become unfavorable. All hands, therefore, descended and took a brief rest. On Aug. 31 the party reascended the mountain, accompanied this time by Mr. Vallot's wife, an enthusiastic Alpinist. The refuge was properly braced with masonry, and the finishing touches were added. Lightning rods were put in position, after which colors were flung to the breeze to celebrate the completion of the work.

The building is divided into two apartments, one designed for the use of travelers, and the other for scientific observers. The latter room is a private compartment. The public room is supplied with all the conveniences needed by the tired tourist. Nine beds are placed in the room, and a supply of provisions and of oil for light and fuel is always kept on hand. The observatory, which is said to be the highest in the world, is 14,750 feet above the sea level. It contains automatic registering devices and the most approved appliances for making scientific observations in high elevations.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease pronounced Incurable by Eminent Physicians.

If I had known of the CUTICURA Remedies eight years ago, I would have saved myself and doctors' bills over $100. I had been troubled with a scaly, itching, skin disease for twenty-eight years, and during that time tried almost everything, and got no relief. I was induced to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES by seeing them highly recommended by a person who had been cured by them. They have made me as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All mind of them was 28 years. If you could have seen me and told me you would have cured me for $100, you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (No. 3 page 67) in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my hands and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well I scratched twenty-eight years, and it cost to be a kind of second Nature to me. I thank you a thous and times.

FIREBUGS AT LISTOWEL.

ONE OF THE MOST DARING CRIMES ON RECORD.

Masked Men Cut the Fire Alarm Wires Tamper With the Waterworks, Bind and Gag the Watchman and Set Fire to Hess Bros.' Factory.

LISTOWEL, March 8.—About 2 o'clock this morning two masked men seized the night-watchman at Hess Bros.' factory here, tied his hands behind his back, filled his mouth with cotton and tied a wooden gag in his mouth; threw him to the ground and one held him there while the other proceeded to fire the premises in several places. When the watchman was liberated he made his way to the nearest dwelling and by kicking at the door aroused the inmates, when he was freed and the alarm was given. It was found the whole premises were burning beyond control that the pumps in connection with the water works had been tampered with and were useless and also that the wire in connection with the alarm had been cut. Oil used in the factory had been turned on the floor and everything done to make the work of destruction complete. The whole premises are in ruins, with several dwellings and other places damaged. There is about $31,000 insurance on buildings and machinery besides a large amount on the contents. The only companies interested as far as known at present are: Western, $5000; Lancashire, $5000; National of Ireland, $3100.

$40,000 Blaze at Montreal.

MONTREAL, March 8.—A fire broke out to-day in the stationery department of Mr. Louis Fortier, St. James-street, and spread to the adjoining premises, doing damage amounting to over $40,000. Mr. Fortier's loss is $22,000; R. J. Wilson, tailor, $5000; James Bayle & Co., $6000. Mr. Fortier has $24,000 insurance and the losses of the other firms are all covered.

Fire at Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, March 8.—The contents of Chevrier's clothing store were burned last night. Loss, seven or eight thousand. Benoit's photograph gallery overhead was damaged about $500. MacFarlane's store was also damaged.

A WITNESS MISSING.

Particulars of the Arrest of Suspected Murderer Goodwin.

OTTAWA, March 8.—George Goodwin, whose arrest for the murder of old Richard Langford in his barn in Huntley township on Dec. 7 last was telegraphed Friday, was yesterday remanded for a week. Goodwin affects almost complete forgetfulness as to his whereabouts during the first and second weeks in December. "You know a poor fellow like me," he said, "who wanders all over the country without a home is in so many different places in a week or two that he can't always remember where he was at any particular time." His last place of employment, he says, was at Hagarside, a small station on the C.P.R. above Mattawa. Goodwin says that having left Hagarside he took the cars down to Arnprior, and yesterday morning hired a horse and cutter there to drive to Bristol Corners on the opposite side of the Ottawa. According to his own story he lost the road, however, and found himself on the way to Ottawa.

An unwilling witness at the Langford murder inquest was Robert Cassells, whose house was searched the night after the murder. Most reluctantly he admitted that Goodwin had spent the night at his house, and in the course of his evidence told how next morning he ordered Goodwin to go away and never be seen around his house again. Robert Cassells, if reports be true, will never testify in court again; for early in January he disappeared from Sharbot Lake, and is said to have suicided by throwing himself into the river. No trace of the body has been discovered, and the only evidence of the supposed self-murder was the finding of a bundle of his clothes on the ice, and the report that he was seen going in the direction of the river, and was never seen or heard of after.

FIRST VOTED, THEN DIED.

Sensational Suicide of a Dereham Township Farmer.

BROWNSVILLE, March 8.—Thursday afternoon George Prentice, a well-to-do farmer of that section, went out to his barn and deliberately shot himself through the heart with a revolver. Prentice went out and voted in the morning, and was not thought to be any way deranged. He recently rented his farm and purchased a residence in Brownsville intending to take things easy for the future.

A TERRIBLE FATALITY.

While Driving to a Neighbor's Two People Drive Into a Gully.

HALIFAX, March 8.—Frederick Squires of Broad Cove and his servant, Lizzie Noseworthy, were frozen to death near their home at Broad Cove. They were driving to a neighbor's when they missed their way in a storm and drove into a gully and were unable to extricate themselves. The horse was also frozen to death. The girl was 24 and the man 67 years of age.

SLAUGHTER ON THE NIGER.

600 Natives, Including Their Leader, Killed by French Troops in Senegal.

PARIS, March 8.—A despatch from St. Louis, Senegal, says: The French expedition has had a severe battle with the natives at Diano on the Niger River. The French carried the native positions, 11 sharpshooters being killed and many wounded. Six hundred natives were killed, among them being the leader.

A General Amnesty Extended to All Who Surrendered in the Soudan.

SUAKIM, March 8.—Gen. Grenfell, commander of the Egyptian army, read to an assembly of sheikhs from all parts of the Soudan yesterday the Khedive's proclamation of general amnesty. The proclamation was read with fervent cries of loyalty by the sheikhs. General rejoicings followed and in the evening the town was illuminated.

General Booth Ill.

LONDON, March 8.—General Booth is quite ill, sufficiently so to be confined to his bed for the past few days. The illness is in consequence of an exhausting tour through the north of Europe, during which the General caught a severe cold. He has decided for the present to postpone the great meetings called for next Monday and Tuesday evenings at Exeter Hall.

FROM OVER THE SEA.

A REVIEW OF THE WEEK BY G. W. SMALLEY.

Not Ready to Abandon Plural Voting—Sir Charles Dilke's Re-Entrance into Public Life and its Effect on the Purist Party.

LONDON, March 7.—There has been a revival this week of bear rumors in the Stock Exchange, which are evidently the reflex of the newly aggravated situation in the Argentine. Several houses found it necessary to give each other friendly assistance. The Murietas have almost ceased to be talked about, because they are now generally admitted to have surmounted their difficulties. Though not customers of the Bank of England, the latter has lent them £500,000 sterling. They have obtained other assistance elsewhere, and their position is now considered stronger than it has been for months past. Three of the largest financial houses of the city were rudely shaken by these bear attacks, but there is no substantial ground for believing that any of them is seriously affected or that we shall witness any big disaster. The suicide of Antrobus, junior partner of Coutts', will not affect that bank.

One interesting topic has been summarily disposed of during the week. I refer to the one man, one vote resolution. The Radicals desire to deprive all the propertied classes of duplicate qualifications and to reduce the period of residence from twelve to three months. Mr. Gladstone took part in the debate, denying any compact of 1885, when the last Reform bill was carried, that such a measure should be regarded as a finality. Mr. Chamberlain's criticism of Mr. Gladstone's speech was one of the ablest efforts of that rival statesman. Mr. Chamberlain was as anxious as Mr. Gladstone for a further extension of the suffrage, but denied its opportuneness. The substantial element of his objection to the Radical proposal was that the resolution only touched the fringe of the grievance. It was useless to nibble at plural voting while Parliament suffered from the remarkable anomalies of the present ratio of representation. The main point of this argument was, of course, leveled against the disproportionate numbers of the Irish representatives. The Gladstonian party were intensely annoyed at the large majority against them on the division, mainly owing to the absence of the Irish members. Mr. Gladstone had counted on substantial support from the McCarthyites, but his wing showed as much indifference as the Parnellites, with the result that the Government secured over 100 majority.

Great interest is felt just now over the new developments in the colonial policy witnessed in South Africa, Canada and Australia. A convention in Sydney is aiming at the confederation of the Australian peoples, the chief obstacle to which lies in tariff arrangements involving less than £500,000 sterling. Actually the outcome of Mr. Rhodes' interviews with Lord Salisbury is of less importance as regards Portugal than in their effect upon federal development in South Africa.

The Canadian election has touched the still greater question of separation. Englishmen are beginning to ask themselves: What will happen should the federalised items of the empire, while indulging in free trade within their borders, nevertheless set up tariff barriers against the Mother Country? Lord Salisbury's speech this week contains some of the strongest declarations ever made on the Conservative side against the British Government departing from free trade conditions. This attitude might have been expected from Mr. Gladstone or the Liberal leaders, but the Conservative party contains many advocates of fair trade, some even demanding protection, and a large number favoring the imposition of differential duties if, thereby, the British colonial "Zollverein" could be secured. This last-named opinion, notwithstanding Lord Salisbury's declaration, is undoubtedly spreading. Scores of Cobdenites have abandoned, or are ready to abandon, their flag now that it has been revealed that no other country besides England is prepared to carry out free trade.

Sir Charles Dilke's determination to stand for the Forest of Dean has revived the hostility of the purist party by reason of his conduct toward Mrs. Crawford. The story that the famous Fanny has been induced to make a statutory declaration against the truth of Mrs. Crawford's statements, denying her own familiarity with Sir Charles and the report of the private committee who are working in order to secure his "whitewashing," have not sufficed to check the action of Mr. Stead and his friends. These gentlemen take their stand chiefly on Sir Charles Dilke's declaration that he would not attempt to enter Parliament until he established his innocence. Mr. Stead declares that if nobody else opposes Sir Charles he will himself take the field against him. If Sir Charles continues his candidature this contest will attract enormous interest, but the belief prevails that at the last moment Sir Charles Dilke will not persist. Defeat would mean absolute destruction to his aspirations, and if his committee of friends have really secured the proofs which they now allege there will be ample time to convince the public of Sir Charles' innocence before the next general election.

MET A TERRIBLE DEATH.

Two Brothers Killed in Hastings While Walking on the Track.

MARTINVILLE, March 8.—John Lester of Shannonville and Alexander Lester of Newburg, brothers, while walking on the railway near this place yesterday were struck by a train and instantly killed. John Lester was a married man and leaves his wife and his aged mother totally unprovided for.

Struck by an Ice Train.

SARNIA, March 8.—John Brush was on Saturday struck by an ice train as the tunnel yards and badly injured. One leg was cut off, and he sustained other injuries which make it almost impossible that he will live. He is about 50 years of age and has a wife and three children.

Dropped Dead at Her Work.

MILTON, March 8.—Mrs. Philip Horning of Brown got up apparently as well as usual and attended to her household duties until 10 o'clock, when she took a bad headache and four hours later she died of cerebral apoplexy.

Frozen to Death.

WINNIPEG, March 8.—Mounted Policeman Herron left Kipp, Alberta, about a week ago for St. Mary's and has not yet turned up and is supposed to have been frozen to death. He does have returned [illegible]

A NIHILIST ARRESTED.

THE MURDERER OF A RUSSIAN OFFICER CAUGHT AT LAST.

Sensational Suicide of a Member of a Well-Known London Banking Firm—The Stock Exchange Excited by Alarmist Rumors—The German Navy and the Emperor.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 8.—Degajeff, the Nihilist leader and murderer of the chief of the secret police in 1883, has been arrested at Kostroma, the capital of the Government of Kostroma. When taken into custody Degajeff was found lodging under an assumed name in the house of a Government official. A reward of 10,000 roubles has for a long time been offered for the capture of Degajeff. The chief instructor at the Kostroma Gymnasium, who was suspected of being implicated with Degajeff either in the actual murder or in the conspiracy which led to it, committed suicide just as the police burst open the door of his room with the intention of arresting him. A number of other arrests have been made and sensational developments are expected.

A BANKER'S SUICIDE.

A Partner in Coutts & Co.'s Banking House in London Shoots Himself.

LONDON, March 8.—Mr. Robert Lindsay Antrobus, second son of Sir Edmund Antrobus, Bart., and a junior partner in the well-known banking house of Coutts & Co., London, was found dead in his bed this morning with a pistol by his side. It is believed that Mr. Antrobus committed suicide. The deceased banker was born Aug. 9, 1857, and was not married. The cause of Mr. Antrobus' suicide is not known. He is said to have had no business or social troubles. He was at business yesterday.

A SUNDAY IN IRELAND.

What Parnell and the McCarthyites Had to Say Yesterday.

DUBLIN, March 8.—Messrs. Lane and Maurice Healy, members of Parliament, went to Middleton to-day to address an anti-Parnellite meeting. On arriving they were received by the town commissioners. Outside of the station a large crowd hooted at the visitors and a band which had been engaged to escort them to town refused to play, but followed mute. The subsequent meeting, however, was a success, being attended by contingents from every parish in East Cork, headed by priests. Canon Keller supported the meeting and Messrs. Lane and Healy secured a hearty reception. It was announced that Canon Keller would soon start for America on behalf of evicted tenants. The feeling in Middleton is shown by the fact that materials required for the construction of the platform for to-day's meeting had been brought from a place six miles outside the town, the local builders refusing to do the work.

In several short speeches yesterday made by Mr. Parnell at stations where his train stopped on the way to Newry he said he was confident that Ulster was as sound for him as other provinces. He did not expect a general election for a year, but would be glad if it came to-morrow. Mr. Parnell was unable to speak at Dundalk where he encountered a hostile reception. On arriving at Newry, however, he was greeted by a friendly concourse of people and was escorted from the railway station to his hotel by a torch-light procession. In replying to-day to addresses from 15 branches of the National League, councils and other organizations, he dwelt on the significance of the presence of deputations "from districts where every dastardly means had been employed to stifle public opinion. "He next attacked Justin McCarthy for traducing the memory of John Mitchell in his history. After his usual references to what should be the land and police provisions of the Home Rule bill, Mr. Parnell said that, owing to the comparative absence of industries in Ireland, Irishmen were precluded from a leading part in the great labor movement, but could join hands with British workmen to secure needed legislation and thus show that the "brotherhood of nations as regarded the working class was solid between England and Ireland." An open-air meeting, attended by crowds carrying banners and escorted by bands, followed. The meeting passed a resolution of confidence in Parnell. In the speech which he made in response to the honor done him, Mr. Parnell reminded his hearers that the Liberal party had been as active coercionists as others.

While a Belfast contingent returning from the Newry meeting was passing Tandreagel-street to-day two shots were fired from a carriage, wounding two persons seriously. The occupants of the carriage were detained at Belfast. No weapon was found upon any of them.

The Dublin Trades Council by a vote of 38 to 3 has decided not to take part in the proposed conference on Saturday, at which Parnell has promised to expound his views on the labor council.

Fair Trade in England.

LONDON, March 8.—Mr. Vincent's Fair Trade League has been joined by a considerable number of Members of the House of Commons. Among those who have consented to act as vice-presidents of the League are Mr. Galt of Canada, Mr. Spriggs of South Africa and Mr. Vogel of New Zealand.

Oppose the Police Spy System.

LONDON, March 8.—The Parnellites and anti-Parnellites are united in support of a bill in Parliament to put an end to the police spy system known as shadowing. It is provided that shadowing, except it be committed for the purpose of making an arrest with a warrant or upon a charge justifying apprehension without warrant, shall be punishable by a term of imprisonment not exceeding six months with hard labor. The bill also provides for the disarmament of the constabulary and its conversion from a semi-military into a civil force.

The Menace Murder.

LONDON, March 8.—Further facts brought to light concerning the murder of Dr. Leidermann of Manchester, near San Remo, show that he was killed by a pin similar to those used in pricking cards at the gaming tables at Monte Carlo. The woman who was arrested with her paramour for the murder is a reputed Polish countess. Deceased had been seen gambling in her company. The police believe he was afterwards led to the countess' room and murdered.

The Imperial Family Witness Thermidor.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 8.—Sardou's "Thermidor," which was recently suppressed in Paris, was performed in the French theatre last evening before a large audience which included the Imperial family. The play is regarded here as a failure.

Frightful Railway Accident.

PEORIA, Ill., March 8.—The Jacksonville fast passenger train over the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe left the track near Havana, 41 miles south of here, this morning and the cars were piled up. Fireman Saddler was buried under the engine and instantly killed. Engineer Birkenhead had an arm and leg cut off, and two others were fatally injured as well as a number of passengers seriously hurt.

Earthquake at Tacoma.

TACOMA, Wash., March 8.—Quite a severe earthquake shock was felt here at 7.49 p.m. yesterday, the vibrations lasting only about one second. There was also a shock at Seattle, at Ellensburg and several other points on the Northern Pacific. Three distinct shocks occurred. No damage is reported.

A Cyclone in Mississippi.

DURANT, Miss., March 8.—News has reached here of a cyclone which struck the region of Newport, Attala county, yesterday. Information is meagre, but it is learned that the cyclone made a clean sweep of houses, barns and trees and two colored people were killed.

THE McCARTHYITE PAPER.

Parnell Leadership Fund—The National League Money on Deposit.

DUBLIN, March 8.—The first number of The National Press, the new daily paper devoted to the interests of the McCarthy faction of the Irish Parliamentary Party, was issued to-day. The National Press, in its leading editorial, announces that it will recommend that the policy of years past be pursued, as it resulted in a united Irish party. Further on the new paper characterizes the object of Mr. Parnell's appeal to the United States as not being for aid for the evicted tenants, but to bring grist to the Parnellite mill. It is the intention of the McCarthyites to use the new paper in pushing their campaign against Mr. Parnell, which begins in earnest to-morrow.

The Freeman's Journal to-day publishes the first list of the Parnell leadership fund, the total showing a subscription in one day of £350, and points with pride to this response, sent in a few hours by the subscribers.

The communications which have passed between Messrs. McCarthy and Parnell in relation to the funds of the National League which are in the hands of a banker in Paris were published in the second edition of The Times to-day. After several letters on the subject had passed between Mr. McCarthy and Mr. Parnell, the former offered to agree to an arrangement by which a sum necessary for the immediate wants of the evicted tenants could be released. An agreement of this kind was necessary, as the money was deposited in the joint names of Messrs. McCarthy and Parnell and the late Mr. Biggar. Mr. McCarthy proposed that the sum then withdrawn should be intrusted to James F. Xavier O'Brien and J. J. Clancy for distribution. In the concluding letter of the series Mr. Parnell, who does not appear to have agreed to Mr. McCarthy's proposition, says that, until some definite plan in regard to the funds is agreed upon, there are sufficient funds in hand to render the sale of any of the securities deposited in Paris unnecessary. He expresses the hope that a permanent plan for the release of the funds will be agreed upon.

ANNEXATION OF CUBA.

A Spanish Paper States That Spain Will Have a Say About That.

MADRID, March 8.—The Heraldo, in an article protesting against a supposed scheme of the United States Government to annex the Island of Cuba, says Mr. Blaine ought to recollect that the Congress of American nations plainly proved that Spanish-Americans are not disposed to allow themselves to be absorbed by the great northern republic. The people of Cuba, it says, are strongly Spanish and are equally opposed to becoming a part of the United States. Probably with the exception of a few tradesmen there is no one in the island who is at all desirous of annexation. Spain, The Heraldo continues, would shed her last drop of blood in resisting any attempt to deprive her of her colony, fearing neither a Cuban revolution nor a war with the United States.

A MOTHER'S DEVOTION.

Her Gallant Rescue of Her Babes From a Burning House.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., March 8.—A house at Bay Roberts, occupied by John and George Babcock, was burned a few nights since. The fire originated in the kitchen of the end belonging to John, and the whole down stairs part and the stairs leading to the second floor were in flames before the sleepers had had the least warning of danger. Escape by the stairs was cut off and John, after alarming George, whose end of the house was now on fire, dropped from the second story window to the ground and his wife passed the children out, going from the window to the sleeping room through the flames until she had all except one, when her own night clothing and that of the child she held in her arms took fire and to save herself she had to jump, still retaining her hold of the babe. She had to leave the remaining child to be burned to death. The heroic mother in leaping from the burning house broke one of her legs at the knee joint. All the children are more or less injured by the fire; one of them so much that its life is despaired of. Mrs. Babcock passed through the burning house six times, each time bringing a child in her arms.

TO BE EXTRADITED.

Joseph Brothers of Milton Will be Brought Back.

MILTON, March 8.—Government Detective Murray has been here a few days, having been instructed by the Ontario Government to enquire into the circumstances of the Brothers alleged forgery case near here about a year ago, with a view to commencing extradition proceedings. He is satisfied that the charge against Joseph Brothers is fully justified. The case will be pushed, and Brothers will probably be on his way back to Canada very soon. He is now living in California.

Liberty Must Wear a Gown.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 8.—The members of the lower house of the Wyoming Legislature have entered a protest against the new State seal upon which the figure of Liberty appears as a nude female, instead of the conventional draped figure of the old seal.

The bill adopting this device as the great seal of the State was signed by the governor, but the members of the house have protested so warmly against the nude figure that the governor has signified his intention of using the old or draped seal until the new or nude device can be formally disowned by the next Legislature.

To Purify the Billboards.

MANKATO, Minn., March 8.—After a lively discussion the city council decided yesterday by a vote of 4 to 3 to direct the police to tear down all obscene pictures that may be found in the city, and to keep the billboards free from them.

Particular objection was made to marching Amazons in tights and ballet girls whose dresses didn't reach to the knees.

All such pictures were placed under the ban, and to-day the officers of the law will carry out the order.

Voted at 96.

HAMILTON, March 8.—Probably the oldest man who voted in Canada last Thursday was William Gunner of this city. Mr. Gunner is 98 years of age. He is getting feeble now, but he insisted on going to the poll to cast his vote for the Conservative candidates.

His Ashes To Be Thrown Into the Ohio

LOUISVILLE, March 8.—The body of Professor William Steffen was taken from Turner's Hall to-day to Cincinnati, where it will be cremated immediately upon its arrival and his ashes will be thrown into the Ohio River, as he requested in his will. Professor Steffen's body was taken to the hall last night and remained in state until this morning.

EATEN BY DOGS.

An Awful Double Butchery in Tours, France.

PARIS, March 8.—The story of a terrible double murder comes from Tours. "About a week ago a wealthy aged couple named Delhomais, residing in that city, mysteriously disappeared and their neighbors, thinking there was something wrong, notified the police, who forced the doors of the old couple's house, when the discovery was made that a horrible crime had been committed. Both the man and his wife had been brutally murdered and the house stripped of everything of value that could be conveniently carried away. The bodies of the aged victims presented a ghastly appearance, the housedog having been driven by hunger to feed upon the corpses, large portions of which had been devoured by the animals. No arrests have as yet been made.

Everybody Knows

That at this season the blood is filled with impurities, the accumulation of months of close confinement in poorly ventilated stores, workshops and tenements. All these impurities and every trace of scrofula, milk, rheum, or other diseases may be expelled by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier ever produced. It is the only medicine of which "100 doses one dollar," is true.

Our Fruit Tree Enemies.

The Remedies for Fungus and Injurious Insects—Danger in Insecticides—A Protest against Arsenical Poisons—More Vigorous Varieties Wanted—Jarring for the Plum Curculio.

Perhaps I may be allowed to say for the immediate information of some who have come to look upon spraying as an essential fundamental principle of fruit growing that in reality it is not so. If this was admitted then what would become of an industry of such immense growing importance to the best interests of this great country. Why, it would simply become extinct, and that in less time than it would take to grow the trees. If men were convinced that they would be compelled to supply a continual spray of liquid poison to the whole mass of their fruit trees, or to any considerable part of them, before they could be sure that anything good could be gathered from them for their own or for others uses what would they do? Would they plant fruit trees at all? Not under ordinary circumstances.

Just think for a moment what this thing in its minutiæ means. It means in the first place that every fruit grower before he can ever indulge in the fond hope to see beautiful bright red apples, or rich, luscious golden plums on those trees must keep on hand a heavy stock of poisons in the form of London purple or Paris green, articles that should never be seen or thought of in connection with an orchard or a fruit garden, much less to be used in them. It means, further, that a heavy and expensive paraphernalia consisting of impliments and machinery of various forms and designs be kept always on hand for the manufacture, preservation and application of this essential liquid poison many times during the season to each and several of those trees. It means farther the possession and use of the constant, watchful, scientific eye; the eye, indeed, of the practised expert and the close observer of phenomena to discern the exact time time or times when to apply these poisons, some for insects and some for fungus, so as to be most effectual and to be ever ready just at the proper moment to apply them. It means, finally, an immense amount of valuable time and of persevering attention and industry, a large outlay of expenses and a display of talent and business tact in this particular line of work that is only granted to the favoured professional few.

But it means, again, far more than all this and something that involves in its conception an immense amount of value, as well as invaluable, life to the insect and animal. We all know full well, and some of us to our sorrow, how very dangerous these deadly poisons are, not only to handle, but to anything with which they come in contact. In spraying trees, either for fungus or insects, it must be done in early summertime, when the most plentiful supply of insects of all classes, both friendly and unfriendly, are on the move in beautiful activity. To hastily conclude that the whole brood of them are necessarily enemies and ought to be poisoned is rash, false and ruinous in the extreme to the best interests of this country and its own population; and so, if we go at this business on a systematic scale, we shall find it out to our deepest chagrin and regret. It will be quite safe to say that many of our most valued friends, as well as our most virulent enemies, will be thus destroyed by coming in contract with poisoned fruit trees at this early season of the year.

But, again, a liberal application of these deadly ingredients to our fruit trees during the early summer means leaving much of their force and deadly power over and above the fruits themselves, some of which sticking undissolved and visible about the cavity, and some considerable of it adhering to the calix of the eye. These destroyed fruits coming into the hands of young, eager, inconsiderate children, and animals, are quickly devoured bolus-bolus and without a thought of danger until a pain seizes them in the stomach and bowels, and the foundation of deathly disease is firmly laid in the system, but the secret potent cause is never for once suspected. Who would like willingly and knowingly to supply an article like this so dire in its effects to the young and rising generation, the hope and the confidence of this country.

Spraying fruit trees in orchard or garden means danger of a probable contact to other plants and fruits in the near neighbourhood, greatly endangering their use, but the most common form of danger is to the domestic horse or cow or the sheep that is allowed to graze upon the tender grass or herb found growing in those gardens or orchards. This grass is as surely and certainly doctored as these trees themselves are, and the danger of using it is as virulent and deathly. In the face of all these considerations, considerations of immense importance and fraught with serious consequences to us, we must certainly conclude that to rely upon the constant use of these deadly poisons for our fruit deliccacies is not, to say the least, a safe thing to do.

FUNGUS AND ITS CURE.

Let us now for a moment consider the case as it stands, in respect to fungus? What is fungus? Well, it is in the first place a sure and certain indication of disease and impaired vitality, or bad health, if you please, in the tree or fruit upon which it is feeding. It is, further, an indication and infallible sign of improper treatment and bad management on the part of the orchardist, or of wet, worn out or unsuitable soils and locations. But it may most likely of all be a sure and certain indication of an obsolete, worn out or exhausted variety.

This being the case, what is the most obvious and reasonable thing to be done? Run to the poison barrel? Not by any means in all cases, for relief will not certainly be found in this line. Imagine an application of poison spray to a dying man to restore him to a state of primal health! A far more rational procedure would be to call in the physician, seriously consider the whole matter, and carefully learn how the case stands.

If special varieties of our standard fruits are so giving out that they are no longer profitable, they must be replaced by newer and more vigorous varieties. There lies the whole secret of our success or failure of fruit culture in this or any other country. It is progress, movement ahead, intelligence and intelligent action, keeping pace with the times.

Can these dying trees be made to live? Yes, of course they can, and more certainly and effectively than ever they could be made to live before, because the vital forces of to-day are far more plentiful than in any merely past age in the world. In the far West, in Japan and in northern Europe there are fruitful trees and plants that if introduced amongst us would speedily change our whole prospects; would replace our worn out and dying stock with new, vigorous life, and make us rich indeed. In the West especially, as being the nearest to our hands and the most friendly to our conditions and climatic requirements in the case, we may look for most sure and satisfactory rewards both in apples and plums. In apples imported from Japan and Russia, and many of which have been fruited with fine success, we will, by permission, name the following:—Antonovka, Tetofsky, Hibernese, Hibernay, Longfield, Bright, Grand Sultan, Sonoma, Tetofska, Duchess of Oldenburgh, Alexander, Yellow Transparent, etc. Of their own products from western crosses and seedlings, the following have been tested and proved, viz., Sweet Russet, North-western Greening, Prince Royal, Arkansas Beauty, Crawford, Leaver, Malinda, Red, Shannon, Stark Western Beauty, Red Reinigheimer, Wolf River, Pewaukee, Wealthy, Haas, Walbridge, Gano, Salome, etc.

In not this a list good enough to pick from to use to replace your fungus-covered, worn out, effete apples. If not there are yet others and good ones too.

IN THE MATTER OF PLUMS.

We have tried all the best European varieties of plums procurable, and we affirm most positively that, taken on the whole, they are not suited to our conditions and peculiarities of soil and climate. To import from that direction or look to them for success in that line, is in our experience, sheer uselessness and waste of valuable time, effort and funds. But what about the north and west? Have they not anything curculio-proof or fungus-proof? We cannot now absolutely promise this, but we do know that they have some most excellent strains of native seedlings and crosses that promise them very desirable results indeed. Some of these western plum seedlings are great annual bearers and fungus-proof, and almost curculio proof. From the reports we get we have great faith and confidence in them and their future usefulness. As far as we have noticed some of the best and most promising of them are named as follows:—Arkansas Lombard, Marianna Pottawattamie, Wolf, Wild Goose, Sabuma, Oregon Blue, DeSoto, Rolling Stone, Newman, Moor's Artic, Faust, Rose, Forest Garden, Hawkeye, Weaver, Minor, Shipper's Pride, Garfield, Wayland; and Japan varieties, Prunus Simoni, Ogan, Botan, etc. In this list of fine Western plums there are, no doubt, many of great excellence and would give by a little improvement the best of results amongst us, and thus without the help of poisons or any such foreign undesirable assistance. This appears now to me to be our line of duty, the way in which we should move if we expect to have the shadow of a chance to provide for ourselves this most desirable fruit.

Having consumed so much space to the consideration of this important part of my task, I will now very briefly attempt the consideration of the best form of treatment for our noxious insects.

For apples and the codling moth, which is by far the one insect to be dreaded, I would recommend not Paris Green or poison spraying, but trapping by means of creosote bands placed upon the trees, and steadily, perhaps, fires or lights kept burning in the orchard or garden at night during a week or two at the most exposed season. The first of these methods is abundantly authenticated by our most popular and instructive treatises on the subject, and by our professors and teachers in our agricultural colleges. The second method though liable to the objection of destroying many of our night-flying insects that are known to be not our enemies per se, yet is found to be practically useful just at the particular season when the mature mother insect is engaged in the work of oviposition.

For the plum weevil, commonly known to us as the curculio or the Little Turk, we say most decidedly the remedy is jarring trees and capturing and destroying the beetles. This makes a neat, clean business of it, as everyone so captured is one successfully stopped in his nefarious operations and leaves the number less. The statement is made with great confidence, and upon the authority of our best scientific and professional magnates, not only on this side but also on the other side of the boundary.

I think, sir, that I have said enough for the present upon the subject, and what I have said I have tried to say in the best interests of fruit growing in this country, and nothing merely from some personal motive or merely mercinary object. It is a subject about which there is much room for difference of opinion, but the real practical matter of chiefest interest to us and most intense concernment is "to save the fruits."

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. REGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PIERRE MOSSEAU, 29 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers need not fear it if the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

"It is the Safest and Fairest Policy I Have Ever Seen,"

Was the remark made by a prominent representative of one of the largest and best American Life Insurance Companies when he had carefully examined the ordinary life policy of The TEMPERANCE AND GENERAL Life Assurance Company.

This is the only policy offered to the Canadian public that can neither lapse nor expire as to its paid up value till death ensues, after three annual premiums have been paid on it.

Our Limited Payment Life Policy, or Instalment Bonds, our Common Sense Renewable Term Policies, and our Survivors' Endowment Bonds are all possessed of new and excellent features and are all worthy of careful consideration.

THE ST. CLAIR TUNNEL.

THE GREAT BORING TO CONNECT THIS COUNTRY WITH THE U. S.

A Great Engineering Achievement of International Importance, and Which Will Probably be Duplicated Very Soon—To be Opened in April.

It is expected that the Grand Trunk Railway tunnel under the river St. Clair, near Lake Huron, will be completed and opened during April, 1890. The tunnel itself was finished January 1 of this year, but the plastering and work on the approaches prevents traffic being opened at once. The tunnel is a wonderful engineering achievement. It will be an important trade link between Canada and the United States. It will greatly facilitate the traffic over the several thousand miles of railways in the Grand Trunk system, and will be of immense importance in the transfers between Chicago, Milwaukee, Grand Haven, Muskegon, Bay City and Detroit to Buffalo, Toronto, Suspension Bridge, Wiarton, North Bay, Kingston, Montreal, Quebec, the White Mountains and Portland and intermediate points.

The Grand Trunk Railway has used for many years large steam-ferries between Fort Gratiot and Point Edward. The passenger and freight trains had to deviate several miles from Port Huron and Sarnia. The river's current is swift and ice jams are not unusual. No stream in the world bears more commerce than the St. Clair River. Nearly the whole year vessels are passing Port Huron all the time.

The Grand Trunk Railway reached Sarnia, in 1858. The Peninsular line was extended to Valparaiso, Ind., in 1873. It was consolidated with the Chicago and Grand Trunk Railway and finished to Chicago, where it arrived in 1880. The Grand Trunk management foresaw the benefits to be derived from a tunnel between Port Huron and Sarnia, and in 1864 surveys were made, the location determined and the kinds of soil ascertained. The river there was almost half a mile in width and about forty feet deep. Quicksand and blue clay were found. In 1886 the St. Clair Tunnel Company was organized, and most of its officers were and are officials of the Grand Trunk Railway system. The engineers are Messrs. Joseph Hobson, Thomas E. Hillman, M. S. Blaiklock, J. T. Eames, and Thomas H. Murphy. In 1886 testing shafts were sunk on each side of the river. The American was ninety-two feet deep, the Canadian ninety-eight feet. Each was four by fourteen feet and lined with pine. Small drifts from these shafts, under the river, were soon stopped by natural gas and water. In the summer of 1887 the company abandoned these experimental borings, and decided to recommence work inland from large shafts. On each side of the river brick-walled shafts were sunk, twenty-three feet in diameter. The Canadian hole, at a depth of ninety-eight feet, was decided to be impracticable. The American was sunk fifty-eight feet and turned into a ventilator. Then the successful plan was devised, namely, to use shields from cuttings.

Large and costly plants were erected for the tunnel machinery, in Ontario some 1,900 feet from the river, in Michigan, about 1,800 feet back. In each plant was included, three boilers, a pair of hoisting engines, a ventilating engine, with a blower capable of 10,000 cubic feet a minute, a hydraulic pump, a drilling machine, a bolt-screwing machine, a planning machine, with extra bed and table, an water pump, two electric light dynamos and engines, a carpenter shop, a blacksmith shop, and a machine shop. The permanent plants are a small pumping house in Michigan, and in Ontario a brick engine and boiler house, containing at present four boilers, four electric light engines and dynamos, two ventilating blows," and the two great pumps for draining the cut.

The great cuttings for tunnel approaches were begun on New Year's Day of 1889. The Canadian was begun somewhat narrow. At a depth of fifty-eight feet a headside deposited about sixteen feet of soil in this cutting. Work was started again about ten rods farther back. At the portal the Canadian great cutting is sixty feet deep. It is 300 feet wide at its broadest portion. From the portal it rises one foot in fifty feet for 2,193 feet. The American great cutting is fifty-two feet deep, about 300 feet wide at its broadest part, and rises one foot in fifty feet for 2,353 feet. An inclined track was laid for flat cars to haul out the tunnel soil. In September, 1890, two steam shovels began work on each side of the river. Each shovel was attended by a locomotive and train of flat cars. Hundreds of men were employed day and night. While the tunnel proper was completed scarcely more than two layers of the soil had been removed. The tunnel company grew impatient, and on Monday, Feb. 9, 1891, took the Canadian work from the contractors. Over 900 men are employed. As the tunnel will not be opened for trains until the approaches are completed the work on the cuttings is being rushed.

The American shield started July 11, 1889; the Canadian Sept. 21, 1889; they met at nearly midnight of Aug. 30, 1890. The Canadian had gone 2,026.10 feet, and the American 3,313.35 feet. Work had been pushed night and day, in shifts of eight hours, for electricity lighted the shields and tunnel, and early completion of the tunnel was a great object. The average progress of each shield was ten feet a day; but one day twenty-seven feet and ten inches were accomplished, and the record of tunnel construction was excelled.

Chief Engineer Hobson advised having these tunnel walls of cast iron. Each section was composed of a key and 13 segments, each segment being 4 feet 10 inches long, 12 inches wide, and 2 inches thick. Each had inside flanges 6 inches deep and an inch and three-quarters thick. In each segment were 4 holes in each end and 12 holes in each side flange. These 32 holes were occupied by steel bolts, each seven-eighths of an inch in diameter. Each section of the completed tunnel was a circle whose radius was 9 feet and 11 inches. Each section required for the longitudinal joints 56 bolts, and for the circular joints 157 bolts, a total of 213 bolts for each foot and a half of the tunthe tunnel. It required 928,150 bolts to fasten together the 27,000 tons of the cast iron lining of this tunnel. Each segment was heated and dipped into a vat of coal tar. By the time it was cool the tar was dried in. This method was the happy thought of a workman. Another workman invented a tool which increased three times the rapidity of loading the clay upon the cars.

It was estimated that the tunnel would cost $2,500,000, plants, materials, and labor included. Not much will be left of that sum. It is likely that a second tunnel will be built beside this one. If so, this one's plant and experience will be quite serviceable. If it is built it will be made of cast iron, as that has been found to be better than masonry.

The tunnel and its approaches have a total length of 11,795 feet, divided as follows: Canadian cutting, 3,192 feet; American cutting, 2,583 feet; from Canadian portal to water's edge, 1,994 feet; from American portal to water's edge, 1,716 feet; tunnel under water, 2,490 feet; total length of tunnel, 6,000 feet. Grades in the cuttings are one foot in fifty feet; in the tunnel, one foot in 1,000 feet. The greatest depth of water above the tunnel is 40.47 feet, and the least depth of clay above the tunnel 8.43 feet. The number of feet from the level of the water in the top of the tunnel is 57.83 feet; and the number of feet from the level of the water in the rock, 86 feet.

The Population of Peterborough is about 10,000, and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large Bottle 50c. and $1. Familiar Family Friends.

The family store of medicine should contain a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Mrs. Hannah Hutchins, of Rossway, N. S., says: "We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil in our family for six years, for coughs, colds, barns, sore throat, croup, etc., and find it so good we cannot do without it." 2w6d

No sane person doubts that what we say of B.B.B. is true. The evidence of its power and popularity is too overwhelming to confute, besides it is all home testimony making it certain that B.B.B. will cure dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, and all blood diseases. 2w6d

DEAR SIRS,—My mother was attacked with inflammation of the lungs which left her very weak and never free from cold, till at last she got a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and, on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried.

Early Methodism in Canada.

How the Church has Grown and Prospered—A Church on Which God Has Set the Seal of His Approval.

In the Charlotte Street Church Sunday the pastor, Rev. S. J. Shorey, preached sermons on the John Wesley centennial and the hundredth anniversary of organized Methodism in Canada. The sermon Sunday evening was specially interesting, in that it dealt with the history of the Methodist Church of Canada. He prefaced it by the reading of the rules of the church as laid down by John Wesley. Rev. Mr. Shorey based his remarks upon Romans viii, 31:—"What shall we then say to these things, if God be for us who can be against us." At the close of the centennial of organized Methodism in Canada, he said, he was persuaded that a fair retrospect of its history would convince any man that Methodism in Canada had indeed been the child of Providence, and, if not the favoured one, at least one on whom God has smiled favourably and conferred His highest blessings and benefits. In this was the seal of God's approval, and of the grander achievements the church hoped to accomplish in time to come. The position the church occupied in Canada was not obtained without a struggle. Its course of growth and prosperity had not been altogether unbroken. The Methodist Church in Canada was first organized in 1791, but before that Mr. Duffy, a British officer at Quebec, Mr. Geo. Neil, an officer at Niagara, Paul and Barbara Heck and others, who had imbibed the Methodist doctrines in England,

PREACHED TO ALL

whom they could reach. In 1790 Rev. Wm. Losee, minister of the New York visited among his U.E. Loyalist friends in the Bay of Quinte district. They signed a requisition asking for the appointment of a minister, which Mr. Losee took back with him, and the following year, 1791, he was himself sent across the lines to establish Methodism in Canada. He was stationed in the vicinity of Adolphustown. Darius Dana joined him, one taking east of Kingston and one west. The first Methodist church was erected in Adolphustown, the second in Ernestown, and the third close to Picton, the latter standing intact to the present day. Rev. Mr. Shorey said he was proud to say he was a native of the birthplace of Methodism in Canada, and had himself preached in the old church at Ernesttown. The first quarterly meeting was held in a barn in October, 1792, and the following Sunday the first Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered. Rev. Mr. Shorey spoke of the trials and hardships of the earnest consecrated Christian pioneers. In 1800 the church numbered a thousands souls. Methodism had a hard struggle to acquire its rights, and in 1823 Egerton Ryerson began the effort which twenty years later ended in the securing to the church its rights and the placing of all denominations on an equal footing. In 1826 the first missionary society was organized, and from $200 to $300 the first year, the contributions in this the 65th year of its existence had increased to $290,000. Divisions arose in the Methodist church on account of the objection to being ruled from across the lines, but the various bodies were gradually re-united and in 1883 finally all Methodists

BECAME ONE BODY AGAIN.

The church in Canada now numbered 1,743 ministers, 3,142 local preachers, and 233 868 members. There were 3,173 Sunday schools in connection with 23,411 teachers and officers, and 226,050 pupils. There were 3 092 churches and 1,168 other preaching places—for the Methodists did not wait until they were able to build a church before they began preaching the Gospel. The church property to-day was valued at $11,597,491. Possibly some day, said Mr. Shorey, the church would get too rich and purse-proud, and forget to go to the masses as it had in the past. In the last four years $857,000 had been raised for missionary purposes, and $8,063,000 for other purposes. To-day the Methodist denomination was the largest of any in Ontario, and the largest Protestant denomination in Canada; and all this in a hundred years! The Methodist church the world over numbered six million and a half members, and thirty million persons were brought under the influence of the church. There were more ministers and local preachers now than there were members at the time of Wesley's death. In connection with the denomination there were 365 periodicals, 200 colleges, and 2,000 professors and teachers. Rev. Mr. Shorey said he wished for no higher seal of God's approval than these facts afforded. Other churches might look to the past for their authenticity, but it was evident to him that God had blessed the Methodist church. He believed there would yet be a union between the Methodist and Presbyterian churches, and hoped God would hasten the day. There was, however, a feeling of estrangement between the Anglican and Methodist churches which, in view of the way the former had endeavored to push out the daughter which had left her, he did not think could be brought about without the loss of self-respect on one hand and identity on the other. In looking at the causes which had contributed to

THE SUCCESS OF METHODISM,

Rev. Mr. Shorey said that from its inception it had a warm heart, it had sympathy; it went down among the masses, to the homes and consequently to the hearts of the people. The sweet and solemn hymns played an important part in the great revival. The Methodist church was essentially revival in its nature, and the early Methodists were dead in earnest and there was a constant flow into the church. God never put the seal of His approval more markedly than He has on this church in the centennial just celebrated. Let us, said Rev. Mr. Shorey, go forth, not boastfully, but believing our church to be the best adapted for the needs of humanity, for all classes of mankind, and with earnestness and piety in our hearts, and continue the good work. Let us be true to Methodism and we shall be true to ourselves, our fellow men and our God, and this land shall be won to Christ.

East Peterborough.

Just after the Examiner went to press Saturday afternoon intelligence was received from the single polling place in Burleigh which yet remained to be heard from, giving Mr. Burnham a majority of 10. This gives Mr. Burnham a total majority of 43 or thereabouts. The exact figures will not be known till Mr. B. Morrow, returning officer, makes his official returns on the 17th of March.

Personal.

Mr. R. H. Henderson, of Toronto, was in town over Sunday on his way home from a very successful business trip in Manitoba and the Northwest.

Mr. E. F. Benton, representing MacLennan's Royal Edinburgh Concert Co., gave the Examiner a call this morning.

Mr. T. P. Pearce, of Belleville, voted at Belleville, Cobourg, Blairton and West Peterborough on Thursday last.

Mr. H. Owens is recovering from the heavy cold which has confined him to the house for some time past. The report that he was suffering from pneumonia is incorrect.

Mr. Carl L. Smart, of Los Angeles, California, is in town for a short visit. He is still in the newspaper business, and he, together with other Canadians, is doing well. There is a colony of Canadians called Ontario, which owns Ontario county, and also a Canadian Club, composed of over 50 Canadians, who meet once a week to talk over old times in old Ontario, and to exchange home gossip. Mr. Smart returns home on Wednesday and will probably not remain his visit very soon, as Mrs. Grandy says there is a well-founded rumour that he contemplates settling down permanently at a fireside guarded over by one of the fair angels of Los Angeles. He will be accompanied to the south by his father.

Obituary.

The Late Charles Taylor.

Mr. Charles Taylor, till recently one of the oldest residents of Smith, died very suddenly at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Geo. Wallace, "Inverlea," on Sunday evening. Mr. Taylor had not been in robust health since an attack of la grippe last winter, and was troubled with heart affection. He was not confined to his bed, but was about the house on Sunday. About half past seven in the evening he was sitting up in bed, when he said he wished to lie down. He was lowered to the bed, and turning over died almost instantly. The deceased gentleman was a native of Blackteft, Yorkshire, England. He came to Canada in 1820, and settled in Smith Township, where he has resided up to about two or three years ago, when he took residence with Mr. Wallace. Mr. Taylor lost his wife by death about twenty years ago. In politics Mr. Taylor was a Liberal, and in religion a Baptist. He leaves behind him three sons and four daughters. The daughters are Mrs. Jonathan Mann, town; Mrs. Wm. Treneum, Bobcaygeon; Mrs. J. J. Hartley, town; and Mrs. Geo. Wallace, Inverlea, town. The sons are Mr. William G. Taylor, "Beechwood," Douro; Mr. Nathan Taylor, Bridgenorth; and Mr. J. H. Taylor, who lives on the old homestead, Smith. Mr. Taylor was widely known and highly respected, especially in the township where he spent about sixty of the later portion of his eighty-one years of life.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Young men's meeting Saturday evening was opened by a large number of young men. Owing to the illness of Mr. E. A. Mansell, the General Secretary opened up the topic for the evening, "Jacob the man of prayer." A number present took part, which added interest and profit to the meeting. A number remained to the after meeting, and good results followed.

Mr. Wm. Freeborn led the consecration meeting Sabbath morning in an acceptable manner, and all present were blessed.

The service at the Nicholls Hospital was conducted by Messrs. Early and Sutherland.

Mr. Albert Hamilton's earnest straight talk at the personal purity meeting for men only, was listened to with profit by a large number of young men. The orchestra led the singing acceptably.

Owing to the unavoidable absence of Rev. Mr. McAuley, Mr. Wm. Wallbrook addressed the Gospel and song service last evening. The hall was filled, and the power of the Holy Spirit was present to convict and convert by the impressive practical address. We are believing for results.

Bible class Tuesday evening at 3 p.m. All young men welcome.

That Sweet Word "Mamma."

Girls of Canada you should never become so old or so womanly as to forget that dear word of the English language "Mamma." Some may say that it sounds babyish and childish for girls of eighteen to twenty to use the word. Do not heed such opinions dear girls; bear in mind that this sweet word "Mamma" was the first you lisped in babyhood, and therefore it should be the last one to forget. Whether you are about to assume the management of a house of your own, or still remain under the old parental roof, be sure to think of "Mamma." She feels worn out, weary and nervous at times after fatiguing work. You observe that at times she is pale and suffers from headache, and cannot get sound, refreshing sleep. Are you aware, dear girls, that at this time you can help "Mamma" and do her a world of good by getting her to use Paine's Celery Compound? Insist upon her having it; rest not until it is in her home. Its use will dispel and drive away all her nervousness; it will bring to her face a glow of health; it will whet her appetite, and make digestion easy and natural, and lengthen her valuable and precious life.

Church Chimes.

Rev. Wm. Johnston, chairman of the Lindsay district, preached in the George Street Church Sunday. He gave admirable sermons. At the evening service Mrs. W. Daly sang a solo.

The Sunday school anniversary of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church takes place Sunday after next, when Rev. C. O. Johnston, of Napanee, will deliver the sermons. The following Monday he will lecture in the church, and on Tuesday the school will give an entertainment.

Bachelor Doctors Always Popular.

A late number of the Orting (Washington, U. S.) Oracle has the following in reference to a former well known resident of this town, Dr. Edwy Stratton:—"The entertainment given last Friday evening by the G. A. R. was an enjoyable affair and well attended. The voting contest for the most popular gentleman resulted in a close race between Dr. Stratton and J. F. McCarthy, in which the former won and received a gold-headed cane." Canadians hold their own wherever they go, and make a success of life in spite of competition with the "smartest people in creation."

THE GERMAN NAVY.

Vigorous Opposition in the Reichstag to the Proposed Increase.

Berlin, March 3.—By his personal influence the Emperor William has succeeded in preventing the defeat in the Reichstag of the Government on the proposed addition to the navy, but this has only been done by inducing some of the members to abstain from voting. The debate on the subject disclosed the fact that both the Centre and Freisinnige parties were strongly opposed to consulting the amounts required for the construction of two or three gunboats, one ironclad and one despatch boat. The question itself, though not of striking import, became one of serious moment for the Government when the two parties combined to oppose the increase of the navy on general principles.

Emperor William is very much discontented over the defeat of his cherished idea of a grand navy. His Majesty lays the blame for the defeat on the indiscretion of Admiral Holtman in making his disclosures and Chancellor von Caprivi's want of parliamentary tact. Admiral Holtman has offered to resign the secretaryship of the admiralty. The position of Gen. von Caprivi is understood to be critical, although the Emperor ought not to blame the Chancellor for following his orders with a fair display of skill, or for the reverse in the Reichstag succeeding the episode of the Empress Frederick's visit to Paris and the menacing labor conflicts. Imperial circles think the Chancellor is unable to control the combination and prophesy his early downfall.

THE WAR SHADOW.

France Increasing Her Stock of Cartridges—Mr. Blackstone Talks.

Paris, March 3.—The Echo de Paris says that the utmost activity now prevails at the military works at Bourges, the Department of War having ordered the amount of cartridges ordinarily produced to be doubled.

The XIXme Siecle publishes an interview with M. Herbette, the Ambassador of France at Berlin, in which the minister says that he considers that in refusing to exhibit as Berlin the French artists obeyed the mandates of a few blusterers. It was, he said, illogical for artists who presented their works at Stuttgart and Munich to decline to do so at Berlin.

With regard to the recent visit of the ex-Empress to Paris, M. Herbette said that it was perhaps imprudent, and added that it was undertaken without anyone having been consulted thereto. The Minister denied that he had been sounded on the subject of the imperial journey, and asserted that the French Government had not been advised of the purpose of the ex-Empress until the day before she arrived in the capital.

London Board of Trade Returns.

London, March 3.—The board of trade returns for February last, as compared with those for the corresponding month of the preceding year, show an increase in imports of £2,260,000, and a decrease in exports of £590,000.

ONE FEDERATED NATION.

The Colony of Victoria is Anxious About Her Protective Tariff.

Sydney, N.S.W., March 3.—At yesterday's session of the Australian Federation Convention Mr. Munro advocated uniform duties between the federated colonies, but, he added, the interests of Victoria, the protectionist colony, must be guarded, and the conference would fail to do its duty if it allowed the important manufactures which had been created in the colony of Victoria to be ruthlessly dealt with.

Mr. Mollwraith said that if the resolutions in regard to the tariff were passed the federal government could readily be formed, even though all the colonies did not join the federation. The resolutions implied free trade within the federation and protection against the world. Absolute free trade was impossible, owing to the necessity of raising a revenue.

Mr. Deakin of Victoria said that the work of forming a common tariff was a question involving millions of pounds invested in industries built up by protection, and a guarantee must be obtained that the federation would preserve those interests. The constitution should require that existing tariffs should only be reduced a certain percentage in a certain number of years.

The Ball-Tosser in Jail.

St. Louis, March 6.—Mark Baldwin, who has been here the past few days, has been arrested and lodged in jail at the instance of Chris Von der Ahe, for conspiracy in attempting to make O'Connor jump from the Browns to St. Louis.

Another Great Turfman Dies.

New York, March 6.—A cable last night says that Leonard W. Jerome, the well-known turfman, died at Brighton this morning after a lingering illness.

Mr. Jerome has been ill in England for several months, suffering from gout and rheumatism. A few weeks ago he was brought to be getting better, and was removed to Brighton, a resort in the south of England.

They Want to Settle.

Hamilton, March 3.—Rich and Robinson of Bradford, Pa., the absconding shoe dealers who are confined in jail here, have offered their creditors 40 cents on the dollar as a basis of settlement. This offer has been refused, but it is likely arrangements will be made by which creditors will take about 45 cents. Rich and Robinson, who are both of Jewish persuasion, are getting very tired of jail life. Their wives board in the vicinity of the jail and pay visits to their husbands every afternoon.

BIRTHS.

GIBSON.—At 585 George street, on the 8th of March, 1891, the wife of Mr. Alex. Gibson, of a daughter.

"This ends all relations between us."

"Go," said the wife, "I do not care now, for our home is only in name."

Suddenly there burst upon the night the strains of "Home, Sweet Home." It was the music of an orchestra that had just then begun a serenade to a resident near by. It seems that the company of musicians had been inspired, for the piece was never rendered any better than it was that night.

The husband and wife ceased quarreling, and both stood as if rooted to the spot. The effect upon them could be seen at a glance. Both were weeping. There was a brief but terrific struggle between duty and pride.

The husband glanced at the wife in a pitiful sort of way, and his look was returned. As the strains of the great song were dying away they rushed into each other's arms. The love of former years was then and there renewed.

Carlyle's Character Maligned.

If Mrs. Alice Wellington Rollins had not already written "Neither Saint nor Martyr," Mrs. Conway could, if she chose, say a word or two that would interest on that much-discussed topic, the domestic relations of Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle. One day—and this with the character of domestic churl usually attributed to Carlyle well in mind—the Conways were invited to dinner with the pair. When they arrived within sight of the house they found Mr. Carlyle on the steps in the keen wind. He came down the walk to tell them Mrs. Carlyle was very ill and the dinner must come off some other time. He had been there fifteen minutes, waiting to intercept them and guard against a peal on the doorbell. How many husbands have equal consideration for a wife's headache and "nerves?" Mrs. Conway pays glowing tribute to the conversational abilities of Jane Welsh Carlyle, but she says she was wholly destitute of housewifely gifts. At the period, for example, of the famous bread-making episode—the bread she set up until midnight to bake with many heroics—Mrs. Carlyle had three servants. Mrs. Carlyle could not cook, Mr. Carlyle was a dyspeptic; let it not be assumed that Mrs. Carlyle ought to have made herself a Savarin or a M. Blot, but let not Mr. Carlyle have his character taken away.

The American Indians are the most stolid of races. We hear of them time and again sitting for hours without moving a muscle, and yet among them the language of pantomime flourishes at its fullest. It is much the same with them as it is with the Italians. As a nation of gesticulators, we should class the Italians far below the French, but owing to their peculiar divisions it has been found indispensable to have one general language, and to keep it at a fair average of cultivation. A most striking example of the perfection to which sign language can be brought forced itself into history in 1266. In that year the Sicilian Vespers rebellion was arranged throughout the island, and even the day and hour fixed, without a word being spoken or written. Every detail of the conspiracy was commanded by gesture.

FASHION DOTS.

Women's vests are to be a feature next season. They were warmly indorsed by the "swell" trade last Summer, and leading manufacturers are now showing them in great variety and elegant patterns.

Evening dress overshoes intended for carriage wear are quite as delicate and dainty as the slippers and half shoes they cover. The soles are very pliable, the heels are high, the material is quilted, silk lined and edged with swansdown.

Blazers for women will be much more elaborate than last season. White grounds will be plentifully ornamented with engraved gilt buttons and silk cord garniture, in white and gold or silver.

He's Reflecting.

When the King of Dahomey started out to fight the French in Africa he said: "I am the greatest king of earth. I am greater than all others together. The sound of my voice will make them run away." He is now reflecting on how curiously things came about—the loss of his army—how he ran away—the loss of territory—how he dropped to a light-weight, and he feels real bad.

An Old Trick.

Husband and wife playing cards.
Wife—Let us play for something.
Husband—Well, what's half it be?
Wife—Let us play for a new silk dress. If you lose I'll go around to Macy's with you and pick out the dress; and if I lose you can pick it out, but it mustn't cost less than $100.

TERRIBLE STORM IN SOUTHWESTERN ENGLAND.

Mr Charles Dilke Accepts a Liberal Nomination for Parliament and Will Return to Public Life—General Foreign News.

LONDON, March 9.—At a sitting held today the council of the Liberals of the Forest of Dean decided to invite Sir Charles Dilke to become the Liberal candidate for member of Parliament for that constituency and said they felt confident of his moral integrity. Sir Charles spoke and said he had often announced his decision not to return to public life until he had cleared his character. No legal process existed by means of which he could prove a negative, but the vindication published in the pamphlet recently issued enabled him to prefer the troubles of a political life to the ease of a literary career. He would therefore consent to become a candidate if the constituency ratified the invitation which the council had extended to him.

A NIHILIST'S AWFUL DEEDS.

Degajeff, the Murderer of a Russian Chief of Secret Police.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 7.—Degajeff, the Nihilist leader and murderer of the chief of the secret police in 1883, has been arrested at Kostroma. He was lodging under an assumed name in the house of a government official.

The chief instructor at the Kostroma Gymnasium, who was suspected of being implicated with Degajeff, either in the actual murder or in the conspiracy which led to it, committed suicide just as the police burst open the door of his room with the intention of arresting him.

For his connection with the murder of General Strsinitkoff at Odessa, Degajeff was transported to Siberia, but escaped and returned to St. Petersburg, professed to have renounced Nihilism and offered his services to Lieut.-Colonel Sudeikin, chief of police for the district of St. Petersburg, and soon became his confidential spy.

Degajeff was also engaged in the secret service of the Revolutionary Committee, then sitting in Paris, which began to suspect him of treachery and sent on Lopatin to enquire into his fidelity. Lopatin reached St. Petersburg in safety and soon brought matters to an issue by ordering Degajeff to murder his patron, Sudeikin, in proof of his loyalty to the Paris committee.

This he did, and next day crossed the imperial border with a passport from the official he had murdered and fled to London.

THE LONDON BANKER'S DEATH.

The Verdict is That He Died by Accident and Not Suicide.

LONDON, March 9.—An inquest was held to-day on the body of Mr. Robert Lindsay Antrobus, second son of Sir Edmund Antrobus, Bart., and a junior partner in the well-known banking house of Coutts & Co., who was found dead in his bed yesterday with a pistol lying by his side. From the evidence given by the members of his household it was learned that nothing unusual had been noticed in his habits recently. It appears that he died at between 9 and 10 o'clock in the evening. The fatal shot was heard by no one in the house. The surgeon who was summoned when the body of Mr. Antrobus was discovered testified that in his opinion the death of Mr. Antrobus was due to an accident and happened while he was examining a new and curiously constructed pistol. A verdict was rendered in accordance with these facts.

MISHAPS TO STEAMERS.

The Cunarder Catalonia in Collision in Liverpool Harbor.

LONDON, March 9.—The Cunard line steamer Catalonia, at Liverpool for Boston, while lying at anchor in the stream, was run into by the British steamer Merchant Prince. The Catalonia was damaged on the port quarter. She will be compelled to discharge her cargo and go into dock for repairs. The bows of the Merchant Prince were stove.

The steamer Dunmurry, Hamburg for Philadelphia, has arrived at Tobermory, Scotland, in tow, for Greenock, in a disabled condition.

The steamer Scotia, at Glasgow from New York, lost 17 head of cattle on the voyage.

The British steamer Westbury has arrived at Plymouth in a damaged condition, having been in collision yesterday off the Lizard with the German steamer Wandrahm, from Hamburg March 1 for New York. The Wandrahm proceeded.

The Bishop of Ardagh Warns His Flock Against Secret Societies.

DUBLIN, March 9.—Most Rev. Bartholomew Woodlock, who has been preaching at Athlone, exhorted his hearers to shun secret societies, as an immediate attempt was being made to entangle young men in the renewal of plottings which have been the curse of Ireland. He was grieved to have to state that certain Catholics of his diocese had broken into a meeting house while services were being held and had insulted and assaulted the minister who was conducting the services.

The Bishop of Cork denounced the promoters of the proposed Parnellite meeting to be held in Cork on St. Patrick's day. He says he will not administer to the needs of the souls of his people unless they protest against the desecration of the holiday.

Collisions, Broken Machinery and Accidents of Many Kinds.

LONDON, March 9.—The steamer Strathendrick from Cardiff for Sourabaya collided with the steamer Devonhurst at Sourabaya and sank in 36 fathoms of water. The engineer of the Strathendrick was drowned. The Devonhurst was badly damaged.

The steamer Clan Macinay, while leaving Galle, struck on the rocks and filled with water.

The steamer Belient, while on a voyage from Rotterdam for Sunderland, broke her shaft and drifted helplessly in a dense snowstorm. The vessel eventually stranded at Filey, a watering place of England, and filled with water. Her captain and crew escaped.

A Decision That Cost Thousands.

LONDON, March 9.—The appeal which the House of Lords has decided with regard to the liability of banks to pay forged bills which have been duly accepted by the principal will cost the Greek firm of Vagliano about £100,000 including the £71,000 which Vagliano, their clerk, obtained from the Bank of England on the forged bills.

A LIFE'S BITTER RECORD.

THE DIARY OF YOUNG SALINGER, THE SUICIDE.

He Sought to Know Himself—Cares and Remorse Racked Mind and Conscience and Drove Him to Self-Destruction.

PHILADELPHIA, March 9.—A morbid, almost a maniacal story of baffled hopes and thoughts racking past endurance is told in the diary of young Ernest Salinger, the Philadelphian who on Wednesday last committed suicide at Cincinnati, where he was studying divinity. Up to the day of his death he kept a record of his ghastly thoughts, "sickled o'er" with brooding and self-rebuke. He meant the strange tale to be kept from the eyes of the world, but the ruthless hand of a coroner has brought it all to light.

KEPT UP TILL DEATH.

The diary was begun on March 5, 1890, and the final entry was made on Tuesday, March 3, 1891, the day preceding the night of his suicide.

The following request accompanied the diary:

"Private journal to be delivered as soon as possible to its owner, Henry Lansdaur, Private residence, No. 805 Fairmount-avenue, Philadelphia.

"Please try your utmost to keep this from the hands of outsiders. Use your own discretion as to how to do it.

"ERNEST SALINGER."

Young Salinger left a written request to be cremated. It is expected that his ashes will arrive in this city to-day.

Who Knows Himself.

The first entry in the dairy begins thus:

"Solon was a wise man. If he had died without having said more than the short sentence I am about to use, that sentence alone would have made him one: 'Know thyself.' How short, and yet how profound! Thou art right, Solon. To know thyself one's self is to know all. Yet who knows himself? Who knows all? I, for one, do not. Yet I would love to—aye, with all my heart I wish I knew myself. What I love I try to fathom. I love myself better than all the things I know of, and yet hitherto I have never tried to understand myself. I am my sun, my moon my heaven and my hell. Yet I am not their master."

He then went on to say that he proposed to "know himself" by recording his deeds every day. He gave a detailed story of his life. When in Europe in 1890 he was the pupil of a great violin teacher. In many of the subsequent entries Salinger made mention of the delights of the Turkish bath and the massage treatment.

LIFE IS A RUBBER BAND.

He wrote considerable verse, and in April of last year this entry was made in his diary:

A QUESSION.

This life is but a rubber band
That's placed at birth on each one's hand.
We stretch it as we feel a touch.
We stretch it till it's stretched too much;
The band then breaks, it has snapped in twain,
Shall he who broke it live again?

He describes at great length his powers as a hypnotist, and says that in Philadelphia he frequently got people under complete control of his will-power by this mysterious influence.

"They were all very much afraid of me," he adds. "I am thoroughly convinced of my powers as a hypnotist."

SOCIETY GIRLS.

One of the daily records bitterly condemns the lack of wisdom in "society girls," and the young divinity student says:

"I, too, like beauty and riches; but give me a brainy, poor, ugly girl every time in preference to her direct opposite."

PARNELL MUST BE DROPPED.

If the Irish Champion Him the Liberals Will Abandon Home Rule.

LONDON, March 8.—The Liberal official circle expects an early deliverance from Mr. Gladstone on the party's electoral program, which will either be issued as a special manifesto, or declared in his coming speech at Hastings. The pronouncement is expected to let the world know that that if the Irish people champion Mr. Parnell the English Liberals will abandon Home Rule.

Canadian Trade Relations.

LONDON, March 9.—The Farmers' delegates' reports are now issued and in course of circulation throughout the country. Their general tenor is highly satisfactory.

Funds are coming in fairly well for the relief of the sufferers by the Sprunghill disaster. It is hoped to raise here altogether a thousand or fifteen hundred pounds.

In the course of an interview here to-day Howard Vincent stated that the United Empire League was making remarkable headway. The promises of support given by members of Parliament and colonial leaders were numerous and influential, especially as the movement only started a week ago.

Novel Attempt at Suicide.

NEW YORK, March 9.—John Braun, aged 65, leaped overboard from the ferry boat Waterbury to-day, and directly he came to the surface the passengers on the boat saw him raise both arms aloft and strike at his head. With boat hooks the deck hands hauled Braun aboard. Strapped to his wrists were 2 sharp-pointed knives, and with these while in the water he had made several severe wounds in his breast, which accounted for the motions that the witnesses to his plunge had seen. The weapons were unstrapped, and Braun after the Brooklyn slip had been reached was taken to the hospital. He is not likely to recover. Braun was formerly a barber in Brooklyn. He has been without employment for some time.

SPANISH PRIEST'S STORY

OF A BURIED MILLION AT WILKESBARRE, PA.

It May be a True Story of Hidden Treasure, and It May be Only an Attempt to Get a Few Dollars From Credulous People—Take Your Choice.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 9.—The First National Bank of Pittston has received a letter from Spain, signed by a priest, stating that a vast sum of money is buried somewhere in this vicinity. The letter says that one of the most favored of the courtiers of the late Alphonso was given a large sum of money, said to be a million francs, while the King was on his deathbed, in return for the performance of a dying wish. The Queen Regent was jealous of the courtier, and at the king's death instructed her ambassador to arrest the courtier for stealing a cash box containing a number of jewels from the palace. He fled to America and buried the treasure, but returned to Spain and was arrested and put in prison, where he died. The plans of the place where the treasure was buried were in a satchel, which was taken by the tribunal, who, not knowing of the contents, offer to disrobe the suit on payment of costs. The priest asks for money to pay the costs and obtain the satchel and plans.

THEY IGNORED HIM.

The Donor Got Mad and the Institution Lost $25,000 in Consequence.

BUFFALO, March 9.—The will of Jonathan Scoville, ex-mayor of this city, was admitted to probate to-day. It devises nearly three millions of dollars to public charities, churches, educational institutions and in private bequests. Amongst the church bequests is $5,000 to the Roman Catholic Church Society of Lakeville, Canada. A $25,000 gift to the Buffalo Fine Arts Academy was revoked a few days before Mr. Scoville's death. The history of the revocation is a curious one. About a month ago Mr. Scoville sent some statuary to the Fine Arts Academy, but no acknowledgment of the gift was made; then he sent for his lawyer and had the codicil framed. The dilatoriness of the Academy people knocked the institution out of a clean $25,000. Mr. Scoville is said to have said, "If these people don't think enough of a gift I send them to acknowledge it, why they need not have any more." So he changed the will. The Academy trustees give as an excuse that the statuary came just after the regular monthly meeting and they were waiting for the next meeting to make the official acknowledgment.

At a Ripe Old Age.

CALEDON, March 8.—Mrs. McKinnon, mother of Chief McKinnon of Hamilton, died here yesterday, aged 88 years. Mrs. McKinnon came to Canada in 1819 and settled with her husband in Vaughan township, York county. The McKinnon homestead was one of the rallying points for the sympathizers of William Lyon Mackenzie during the troublesome time of 1837, and subsequently the farm was claimed as rectory lands by the Church of England, and for many years the case was before parliament, but finally the title was made good. Only two of Mrs. McKinnon's family of nine survive her—Chief McKinnon and his sister. David McKinnon, one of the sons, was at one time a prominent lawyer, and Alexander McKinnon was editor of The Hamilton Banner and was elected M.P. for West Elgin at the early age of 26.

A Murderer Caged.

GENEVA, March 9.—Lieut. Levraghi, the Italian officer charged with having murdered Abyssinian merchants, has been arrested at Lugano.

Wedded to a Burly Negro.

SPRINGFIELD, O., March 8.—Delicate little Mary Thornton, a blonde without a drop of negro blood in her veins, to-day married black Austin Thornton in this city. The groom, though of the same name, is not her relative, and is unlike her in every way. He is a burly, repulsive negro. Squire J. J. Miller married the pair. Then they walked arm-in-arm up the street before thousands of citizens.

A Vitriol Thrower Arrested.

JAMAICA, L.I., March 9.—Thirty Polish cloakmakers from East New York, raided a non-union shop here to-day. They smashed in the doors and proceeded to destroy the stock. The proprietor, who tried to restrain them, was assaulted, and one of the party took a bottle of vitriol from his pocket and threw some of it on the storekeeper's little daughter, burning her in a terrible manner. The fiend was arrested. He gave his name as Frank Rango.

No Joking at Prayers.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Privates Meyer and Kucher, Company A, United States Engineer Battalion, stationed at Willet's Point, are suffering respectively with a fractured skull and a half severed tongue.

A week ago they attempted to interfere jokingly with a comrade, Private O'Rourke, who was praying at his bedside, when O'Rourke seized a poker and struck Meyer on the head. He dealt Kucher a blow with his fist under the chin and Kucher's tongue being apparently between his teeth, that member was nearly cut off. O'Rourke will be court martialled. The men will recover.

"Our Mary" Makes a Stir.

LONDON, March 9.—Miss Mary Anderson (Mrs. Navarro) has created some stir in theatrical circles here by advertising the sale of all her stage dresses, theatrical scenery and stage properties, thus confirming the announcement that it is her intention to retire definitely from the stage.

Two Met Death.

MONTREAL, March 9.—An unknown man was killed to-day at Dorval by being run over by a freight train on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Joseph Paupert, a Grand Trunk Railway brakeman, was run over by the cars at Hemmingford. He was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital to-day, where he lies in a critical condition.

Death of a Newspaper Man.

QUEBEC, March 9.—Mr. James Carrel, editor and proprietor of The Daily Telegraph, died suddenly last night. The deceased was well and widely known as a newspaper man and had been president of both the press gallery of the Legislature and the Associated Press of the province.

To Be Liberated.

HAMILTON, March 9.—A meeting of the creditors of Rich & Robinson, the Bradford bankrupts, was held at the Royal Hotel to-day to settle at 40 cents on the dollar, cash. Rich & Robinson will be liberated as soon as the funds are forthcoming.

Killed by a Kick.

CHATSWORTH, March 9.—Anson Smith was feeding his hens and went to drive away one of the horses, which were running loose, when the animal wheeled and kicked him in the bowels, killing him instantly. The deceased leaves behind him a widow and eight children.

Foreign Notes.

Prince Jerome Napoleon is sinking fast.

A terrific blizzard prevailed throughout the southwest part of England and it is feared enormous damage has been done.

Impaled on a Cane.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 9.—T. I. Powell, assistant superintendent of the South Penn Pipe Line Company, died to-night of a peculiar injury. While out walking with a companion yesterday Powell stumbled and fell. In falling he struck his companion to the ground, and a sharp cane in the latter's hand pierced Powell's abdomen, literally impaling him. Powell died in a few hours.

C.P.R. Round House Burned.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., March 9.—Fire destroyed the round house of the Canadian Pacific Railroad here last night, together with an engine and several cars. Loss $40,000.

WEDDED A NEGRO COACHMAN.

Miss Ella Tice's Strange Infatuation Makes an Uproar in Williamsbridge.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Miss Ella Tice of Williamsbridge, white and said to be pretty, has startled the neighborhood up there by running away from her home and marrying a colored coachman named James Randolph.

Miss Tice is the daughter of the late Isaac S. Tice, inventor of the machine for gauging whisky, which is now in use by the Government. After her father's death her mother married Thomas Hyde, a Westchester county politician, and the family went to live in the Boston-road, about a mile from the railroad station.

Mr. Hyde is found of playing cards, and as Randolph is one of the best players in the neighborhood Mr. Hyde used to have him at his house to play. In that way the coachman got acquainted with Miss Tice, and they met frequently afterward at the Baptist Church, which both attended regularly. Randolph is employed by Mr. Stickney, a Broadway merchant, who lives out there.

The coachman got into the way of going to and from church with Miss Tice until the neighbors began to talk about it. Then Mr. Hyde interfered and drove the negro out of his house. Miss Tice protested, and Wednesday night she left her home to take refuge with an uncle of hers who is a Justice of the Peace at Fordham. On the road she met Randolph, and went with him to the house of a news dealer named Skinerton, who lives just back of the Williamsoridge station.

A little later Randolph and Miss Tice, with Skinerton and his wife, went to the house of the Rev. F. M. Lamb, pastor of the Baptist church, where Randolph and Miss Tice were married. The town boys followed them to Skinerton's house and gave them a charivari.

The next day there was so much excitement in the town over the marriage that Randolph disappeared. He was seen in Williamsbridge yesterday, but not with his bride. She remains alone at the Skinerton's.

Mr. Hyde says he will have the marriage annulled on the ground that Miss Tice is not of age and her parents had not consented to the marriage. Mr. Lamb is censured by the townspeople for not insisting upon the consent of the parents before he performed the ceremony.

A WIDOW SUICIDES.

She Was a Native of Picton, Ont.—Her Loved Ones Gone.

KINGSTON, March 9.—Mrs. Emma Frances Walker, a widow, suicided by taking poison. She was twenty-five years of age. She was born at Picton, Ont., her maiden name being Dietrich. About five years ago she married a liquor dealer named Walker, who died two years later. About the same time Mrs. Dietrich, her mother died, and soon after her father also passed away. The young widow and orphan, who had the care of two younger brothers, then began to work as a fur trimmer and also made dresses at home. In this way she managed to provide for herself and her brothers, and she made no complaint until recently, when her brother were also taken from her. Frank, the elder of the two, died in July last. He was 21 years old, and Walter, the youngest of the family, died in December last at the age of 16.

Her only surviving relative was her brother George, married, and a conductor on the Sixth-avenue surface road. To him she addressed the letter written just before she took the fatal dose. The note read:

"DEAR BROTHER: When you read this I hope to be in cold death. I am so sick and lonely since all my loved ones have gone. I am insured in the Hancock for $100, to your benefit, and have $90 in the Bleeker-street Bank, which I want you to get, and whatever is left after my funeral, have a railing put around the graves.

"Do not have any wake or liquor or beer, George, I want a cloth-covered casket with simply my full name on it; no age, no date.

"I want to be buried in the grave with my mother. Give Lizzie and Alice something belonging to me, whatever they may fancy.

"I donot owe any one anything. I leave everything that I have to you. You can do as you like with my things. You will find whatever books and papers I have in the bottom bureau drawer. My insurance I left with Gus. As I am tired will close.

"May the blessing of God be with you and yours, is the last wish of your loving sister,

"EMMA FRANCES WALKER.

"P.S.—Send word to Libbie Lyons, Trenton, Ont. I should like to be buried on Sunday. E. F. W."

FLOODS AND STORMS RAGE.

The Cumberland and Tennessee Rivers Rising—Damage at Nashville.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 9.—The phenomenal rise in the Cumberland River continues. Much damage has been done. Probably between 1500 and 2000 people have been driven from their homes, and goods in warehouses and cellars have suffered much damage.

As viewed from the bridge the river is a vast angry torrent, spreading out over the low lands. Nearly all the lumber yards are overflowed. Merchants were busy all day Sunday removing goods from cellars and warehouses near the wharf to higher ground.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 9.—Very heavy rains prevailed throughout this section yesterday and last night and all streams are out of their banks. A seven-year-old (colored) child was drowned and a colored man named Hunter was also drowned yesterday.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 9.—The Tennessee River here is rising three inches per hour. Experienced river men predict that it will reach at least 45 feet, which overflow much of the city in low lying places, cut off several railroads and for a time suspend the operations of several manufactories.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Despatches from various points throughout Minnesota, northern Iowa, central Illinois, southern Wisconsin and eastern Nebraska report that the severest snowstorm of the winter raged on Saturday night and all day Sunday. There was a regular blizzard blowing, and the snow is badly drifted. Trains are running behind time, and especially in Minnesota; in some localities no a wheel is turning.

Dr Parker and Disestablishment.

LONDON, March 9.—Rev. Dr. Parker in his sermon in the City Temple to-day expressed his regret that the disestablishment of the church should be made a political question, when it was purely a religious one. Though firmly believing in disestablishment, he declared that he would not work for its accomplishment in company with atheists, nor would he allow the ungodly to participate in the movement if he were able to prevent it.

Died of a Broken Heart.

NEW YORK, March 9.—The wife of Herman Rothmau, a card manufacturer, living at No. 130 South Eighth-street, Williamsburg, died at her home yesterday morning of a broken heart. Ever since the disappearance of her son, Barthold Rothman, several days ago Mrs. Rothman has pined, and yesterday morning death relieved her from suffering.

Cardinal Manning is with McCarthy.

LONDON, March 9.—Cardinal Manning is announced to preside at the banquet of the McCarthyite faction, to be held in London on St. Patrick's Day. This is the first time that the venerable prelate has openly placed himself at the front of the movement in opposition to Parnell, and his acceptance of the chairmanship on this occasion is believed to be in pursuance of a hint from Rome that the stand taken by the Irish bishops should receive his support.

A CAMPAIGN CONTRAST.

The contrast between the manner of conducting the campaign of last June and the late contest is as distinct as that between the weather that marked the two seasons. While the late contest was earnest, in fact the hardest fought on both sides that has ever been known in the riding, it was conducted with the most gratifying absence of personalities or vindictiveness. On the part of the Liberals the battle was waged upon the lines of the main issue in the contest. Unrestricted Reciprocity was the text, and the various platform speakers and workers stuck to the text and no attempt was made to indulge in offensive personalities or to import embittering side issues into the discussion. The Liberals were defeated, but they can look upon their defeat as an honorable one, so far as their connection with it is concerned, and can regard the source of the cause for which they worked as only temporarily checked. How great is the contrast between the way this contest was conducted and the way in which the Conservatives conducted the contest of last June! The Ontario government was on its trial, yet hardly a word was heard as to its record, but the most petty, frivolous and foreign side issues were introduced; no effort was spared to add malignity to the struggle. Bitter personalities were uttered, scurrilous and scandalous stories were spread broadcast, the worst passions of intolerance, bigotry and sectarian rancour were stirred up, party organizations were worked into issuing partisan resolutions, which were printed and scattered about, and the dragon's teeth of sectarian bigotry were sown, with unsparing hand, from Cavendish to Cavan. But the good sense and tolerant spirit of the electors stamped out such tactics and showed that any political movement that made appeals to passion and intolerance, must expect no success.

These considerations should be carefully turned over in the minds of Liberals, for they contain lessons and warnings which it would be well to lay to heart. We all recollect the attitude assumed by Conservatives last spring in the matter of the elections. In face of the candidate brought out by the so-called Equal Rights party, which contained a few deluded Reformers, the Conservatives went through the farce of calling a convention, with no more bona fide intention of nominating a candidate, than had the alleged Equal Rights' convention of last month of nominating anybody in opposition to Mr. Stevenson. The scheme worked by the Conservatives on both occasions was too transparent to deceive anybody more than once. True, a few were deceived last June, but the tactics of that time, taken in conjunction with those of the last contest, show every true Liberal that when the Conservative party as a body affect to show any consideration to an opponent, or assume a quasi neutral position, they are preparing to gain some distinct, though cunningly concealed, party advantage. At the last local election the EXAMINER insisted that the Equal Rights movement had for its real object the defeat of Mr. Mowat, who was in no way responsible for the affair that gave birth to that movement. We leave it to any candid, fair-minded person to say whether or not we were justified in assuming that position. Nine-tenths (there were a few honourable exceptions) of the Conservatives who posed as Equal Righters last spring, and were thirsting for Mowat's blood, fell into line this election like lambs, worked like tigers for, and voted like machines, for the Conservative candidate, who was one of the heinous hundred and eighty-eight who were to be slaughtered by the Equal Righters at the Dominion general elections. The Equal Righters (with a few exceptions) and the Conservative party understood each other last June, and at the last election threw aside all the pretence with which they had tried to entrap a few Liberals in the local election, and went solidly in the Dominion contest for the Conservative candidate, which shows how much dependence can be placed in conservatives denouncing one of their party for what seems wrong in their eyes.

THE Globe is a newspaper, and a thoroughly live one. It has so often broken its own record for enterprise that its "breaks" in this direction excite admiration, but no surprise. The morning after the election the Globe, containing the results of the voting of the previous day, by means of special trains, were delivered on every breakfast table in Ontario, four hours ahead of all its competitors. Four hours lead in news matters is an age and represents the cream of the profits. This spirit of enterprise has become a habit and part of the nature of the Globe, and has placed it in the position of the leading paper in the Dominion, and second to none on the continent, for enterprise of management in both news gathering and distribution.

WEST NORTHUMBERLAND has, says the Globe, elected the youngest member of the new Parliament, in the person of Mr. Hargraft. His most active opponent was not Mr. Guillet, but ex-Judge Clarke, now connected with the Canadian Pacific, who worked untiringly, but unsuccessfully, to defeat him. The electors of West Northumberland did their whole duty. They will never regret their decision. Mr. Hargraft will make an excellent representative.

LONDON and Brantford are notable exceptions to the rule that the cities and towns went Conservative. London is situated in the heart of a fine agricultural country, and is thoroughly in touch with the farmers. Brantford is a manufacturing town, but its manufacturers are not of the red perlour variety.

HOME WITHOUT A MOTHER.

The room's in disorder,
The cat's on the table,
The flower-stand upset, and the mischief to pay:
And Johnny is screaming
As loud as he's able,
For nothing goes right when mamma's away.

What a scene of discomfort and confusion home would be if mamma did not return. If your wife is slowly breaking down, from a combination of domestic cares and female disorders, make it your first business to restore her health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is without a peer as a remedy for feeble and debilitated women, and is the only medicine for the class of maladies known as female diseases which is sold under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers that it will give satisfaction, in every case, or the money will be refunded. It is a positive cure for the most complicated cases. It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, and a soothing and strengthening nervine, imparting tone and vigor to the whole system. It's a legitimate medicine, too—carefully compounded by an experienced physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. For all the chronic weaknesses, functional derangements, and painful disorders peculiar to the sex, it is an unfailing remedy. It's because it is unfailing that it can be sold under a positive guarantee.

If it fails to give satisfaction, in any case for which it's recommended, the money paid for it will be promptly returned.

It is a legitimate medicine—not a beverage. Contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to sour or ferment in the stomach and cause distress. As peculiar in its marvelous, remedial results as in its composition.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets regulate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels. One a dose. Sold by druggists.

Do What the Present Demands

Carlyle says: "Our grand business is not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies clearly at hand." We should never, if we value His, aim to grasp at wealth, honor or fame, while we suffer mentally or physically. Our great aim should be mental and physical soundness,—let us secure these great foundation blessings, which lie within our reach, and when secured we may then with safety reach out to objects which are dimly seen at a distance. Get rid at once of any trouble or ailment which is likely to bring suffering and disaster. Your circulation is imperfect and sluggish, your head aches often, you feel used up, your brain is clouded, your nerves are unstrung, and you cannot get refreshing sleep at night. If any of these troubles assail you bear in mind that Paine's Celery Compound will at once give you release from suffering and approaching disease. It is we will certainly strengthen and invigorate your system and will give you a clear and fertile brain for future action.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

TALMAGIAN HYPNOTISM

HE DENOUNCES IT AS A DASTARDLY AND VILLAINOUS HUMBUG.

"The Evil Eye" Superstition of Last Century Revived in this 19th Century Method of Shifting One's Burden of Wrong Upon the Shoulders of Another.

At a recent Friday evening lecture, Dr. Talmage said: Through the Associated Press, a few days ago, went a story of a case of hypnotism which was reported as coming under my own observation. It is time that all moral and religious teachers should express themselves on the subject of hypnotism. It is a word older than Noah Webster's Dictionary; but the ancient definition, which says that it is a somnambulism produced by means of animal magnetism, is as much out of time as the coal scuttle bonnets of your great-grandmothers are different from the dainty head-covering of a modern lady.

Hypnotism, as now believed in, is a spell that one person holds over another, compelling him or her to surrender all power of will and self-control, and do as the operator pleases. Indeed a celebrated case recently came into the courts of Paris where an offender of the law was adjudged insane and set free because he could not help doing the crime he having been hypnotized.

The only case that has come under my own observation is the one to which I referred, as recently seen in the newspapers. A few months ago a lady called at my house and desired to see me on important business. She appeared refined, intelligent and pleasant. There was nothing in her appearance to indicate anything unusual. She began by saying that she was from Indianapolis, Indiana, and that she had come to secure my interference in her behalf. She said her uncle had died in Indianapolis. He had been slain through a spell put upon him by his wife. The uncle had suffered from a long and distressing disease; that his wife had, through hypnotic influence, compelled him to decline taking food. That a physician had been called, and the aforesaid wife had also hypnotized him so that he gave the wrong kind of medicine or no medicine at all. That this baleful influence was continued until the invalid went down under it and finally expired. That she, the lady talking with me, had complained of the treatment given her uncle, and had pronounced it a case of murder, and that, as a result, the woman who had slain her husband had, in revengeful spirit, cast the same spell upon her,—my informer. That to escape it, she had gone clear out to Oregon; but distance had no relaxing influence; and that she could endure this malign pursuit no longer; and that she had come to Brooklyn to request me to employ attorneys in her behalf, and have her wrongs, and those of her deceased uncle, ventilated in the Courts of law. Although the recital of the incident may to you, who did not confront the case, seem bordering on the facetious, to me the conversation was a fearful tragedy. I could see no sign in her face of mental aberration. There was nothing like an enlargement of the pupil of the eye, that generally indicates intellectual shipwreck.

After she had done speaking, I said, "Madam, I am very sorry for you, but why do you not try to have your wrongs righted in Indianapolis, where there are as clever lawyers and as good judges of Courts as we have in Brooklyn?" "Oh!" she replied, "they say in Indianapolis that I am not responsible, that I am insane, and I could get no justice done me there, and I have came all this distance, confident that you would help me out from under this awful influence, which haunts me day and night." I said, "Madam, I am very clear as to what is the best thing for you to do. Will you take my advice, if I frankly give it?" She said, "I thinks I will." Then I said, "My advice is for you to take the first train for home. Your uncle is dead. No amount of fuss in the courts will restore him to life. There is only one person that you have to look after,—that is yourself. I do not say the people of Indianapolis are right when they declare you insane, but I tell you plainly that unless you get off this track you are now on, you will be insane. Now go straight home and seek out a good family physician who will give you some medicine to tone up your nervous system and quiet your brain. There is no spell upon you. You are under a terrible hallucination. If you will accept a doctor, I will get one; but not a lawyer. Go right home." With the close of that conversation ended my acquaintance with the case until the newspapers informed us, a few days ago, that that unfortunate lady had been arrested in Indianapolis; deadly weapons were taken from her, and she went to the insane asylum. There have, no doubt, cases of more or less malignancy come under you observation. I think it is a new phase of the old superstition, called in the last century, "the evil eye," a capacity, by glance of the eye, to afflict with sickness or strike with death any one who came under its power.

What do I think of hypnotism? I think it a dastardly and villainous humbug. That we may influence each other toward right or wrong is most certain, but it is a power of persuasion or a power of example or a power of association. Hence we naturally become good if we go with the good; intelligent, if we go with the intelligent; refined, if we go with the refined; or bad, if we go with the bad; vulgar, if we go with the vulgar; boorish, if we go with the boorish. But that you can compel me to do right or compel me to do wrong, I deny with an emphasis, red hot with indignation. The Bible, which is our only guide, makes it plain that every man and every woman is a free agent. If you have the power of what is called, "animal magnetism," or what I shall call, "infernal magnetism," to compel me to do wrong, where is my free agency? The old Book says, "If thou be wise, thou shalt be wise for thyself; but if thou scornest, thou alone shalt bear it." No one can shirk responsibility by throwing it off on others. What is the meaning of the "Thou shalt nots" of the ten commandments if we have no power to resist evil? If some one with a bad eye can make us morally collapse, if some overpowering influence can first kill our uncles and then chase us from Indianapolis to Oregon and from Oregon to Brooklyn? If you, my hearer, or you, my reader, feel that there is such a spell on you, you are in a state of incipient insanity, and you need a doctor, and a doctor right away. Your difficulty is cerebral and nervous. There are only two forces that can overwhelmingly effect you—and the one is Divine, and the other is Satanic. The Divine influence is healthful, is gracious, is elevating, is saving, is heavenly; while the Satanic is depraved and damnatory. But even the Satanic enthrallment will snap if you appeal for Divine release.

My friends, we need all to resign the habit of ascribing to others our own deficits. Eve thought that the serpent had hypnotized her, but all three got punished,—the serpent by being pursued by the clubs of all the ages, and our first parents by being ejected from their homestead, leaving us, their descendants, to scramble for a living. If things go wrong, the husband is apt to blame the wife and the wife, the husband, and the brother the sister, and the sister the brother, and the associate his associate. The besotting doctrine of hypnotism has gone farther than you imagine, if you haven't investigated this subject. The besotting doctrine of hypnotism, becoming more and more prevalent, always puts the blame on others. The Christian religion teaches us to put the blame on ourselves. We are apt to go out in the world, trying to get all the people right with references to ourselves. The simple fact is, that our hardest job is to manage ourselves. The people who control themselves have no great difficulty with others. Stand up in a manly Christian independence! If we do wrong, confess it to God, and try again. There is not a being in the universe, except God, who could hinder you from being honest and good and useful, and God never yet stopped a man or woman travelling in the right direction, but always helps the struggling soul, seeking for something higher and better.

And here let me advise you to stop pottering with those strange and queer and destructive systems, sometimes called by one thing, sometimes by another. Ever and anon some philosophic or religious crank starts a new theory about God or the soul or humanity, and no system is so absurd that it does not have disciples. If some one should propose building a railroad from the top of Trinity Church to the moon, there are those who would rush down and take the stock. Stick to your Bible, and try everything by that standard. That is the book which will stand with its system of morals and religion triumphant five hundred years after all the volumes of hypnotism and polytheism and agnosticism, and all the other volumes of diabolism, shall have been so long forgotten in the world.

The Population of Peterborough is about 10,000, and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large Bottle 50c. and $1. The Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Lindsay, will deliver a lecture in St. Paul's church, on Friday evening, March 13th, under the auspices of the Mission Band. Subject, "Hymns and Hymn Makers of the Christian Church." During the evening the choir will render two anthems, and Master Gussie Arlidge will sing two solos. Admission 25c.

Canon DuMoulin's Lecture.

The fifth Wednesday evening Lenten lecture will be given to-morrow evening in St. John's Church by the Reverend Canon DuMoulin, Rector of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto. His subject will be "The Bible" and not "The Litany," as announced. Service at 8 o'clock, the lecture commencing at half-past eight.

St. Luke's, Ashburnham.

The time of the Wednesday evening service has been placed half an hour later. This change was made because it was found many could not leave work in time to attend. It is now at 8 p.m.

The committee of the Temperance Society held a meeting in the Rectory to make full arrangements for next Thursday evening. The Rev. C. H. Marsh, Rector of Lindsay, will deliver an address. A good attendance is looked for.

The Bible class and service on Friday evening next will be conducted by the Company of St. Andrew. Different members will take part.

At the Opera House.

"Hands Across the Sea" occupied the boards at the opera house last night and gave an average performance of an average English play to an average house. The company was hampered by lack of stage room and the scenic effects were not so complete as they should be. The play is of the orthodox English type, there being a few thrilling climaxes and a final exposure of the villain, with a dash of comedy at rare intervals to relieve the monotony of heavy tragedy. The company is strong and well balanced, and gives a very nice, smooth performance.

The Roll of Veterans.

Mr. Edward Hunter smelt and felt the effects of powder in 1837. He is 81 years of age. He enlisted in Peterborough in 1837, joining Capt. Kingsmill's company. His superior officer's name was Colonel Kingsmill. Mr. Hunter went with his regiment to Fort Erie, Queenston Heights, and was at Navy Island and took part in the skirmish, in which he received a bullet wound in his right arm, shattering a fractured bone, etc. Mr. Hunter went out to India with the 100th Regiment and took part in suppressing the Indian Mutiny. He also accompanied the Canadian volunteers to Ridgeway during the Fenian raid.

Musical and Literary Entertainment.

The weather was decidedly against the musical and literary entertainment held in the Charlotte Street Church on Monday night, and consequently the attendance was small. Rev. Mr. Shorey occupied the chair. The first number on the programme was a well played organ solo by Mr. Geo. Schneider, the organist of the church. Then followed the chief feature of the evening, the lecture of Mr. O. C. Rowse, "Ten thousand miles by sea and land." The lecturer took his hearers across the sea, describing the incidents of an ocean voyage, and then through England and Scotland and over to Paris, giving graphic descriptions of the scenery, incidents and historic buildings visited. The lecture was well worthy of a larger hearing than that afforded by the small audience of last night. There was some disappointment in Mr. and Mrs. Daly and Miss Gorman failing to respond to the call of their names. Miss Fawcett seemed to feel called upon to make up the deficiency, for she sang her solo in a very creditable manner indeed. The Y.M.C.A. band was present and gave two nicely performed selections.

A Half Hour Session.

The Council Meet and Transact the Little Business Awaiting Them in Quick Order—A Grant to the Springhill Sufferers.

It was within a few minutes to nine o'clock Monday night when the town council settled down to business. A couple of committees met for business shortly after seven o'clock, and while waiting for the Mayor who did not come in until after proceedings were opened, the time passed away quickly. However, there was very little business to transact, and the council sat for exactly half an hour—a remarkable record indeed. The councillors had evidently had enough of meeting during the election campaign. When the council assembled, Mr. Cahill, in the absence of the Mayor, was voted to the chair, the other councillors present being Messrs. Dennistoun, Keadry, Langford, Meldrum, Moore, Dawson, Hall, Kelly, Wisch and Davidson.

Petitions were read from Mrs. Beauregard, D. Sofaie, R. H. Hartley, Mrs. M. A. Wilson and Jos. Robinson asking for remission of taxes.—Referred to the Court of Revision.

A petition was presented from a number of grocers and dealers in town, asking the council to amend the market bylaw so as to permit them to purchase on the market at nine o'clock or earlier.—Referred to the Market Committee.

Mr. Wm. Brooksbridge offered to supply material for filling up the goose pond for 20c. per cubic yard and the cribbing of Crescent street for 25c. per cubic yard. —Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee to report.

The Secretary of the School Board notified the council that owing to the death of Mr. Wm. English there was a vacant seat on the Board, and asking them to take steps to have the seat filled. On motion the clerk was instructed to take steps to have an election held to fill the vacancy.

Mr. John Haggart applied for reduction of his auction license, $100 to one half that amount.—Referred to the License Committee.

Mr. J. E. McIntyre and a number of proprietors of pool and billiard tables in town asked for reduction of the billiard license.—Referred to the License Committee.

The Mayor entered and took his chair.

PRACTICAL SYMPATHY.

Mr. LANGFORD moved, seconded by Mr. DENNISTOUN, that the town clerk be instructed to communicate with the authorities of the village of Springhill, N. S., and tender them the sympathy of the mayor and council of the town in the terrible disaster that has overtaken them, and that the town treasurer be instructed to forward at once the sum of $100 for the relief of the sufferers.—Carried unanimously.

Mr. MELDRUM moved the first reading of the license bylaw (which expired 1st of March) but as the petitions with regard to licenses had been previously referred to the License Committee, the bylaw was deferred, and the council adjourned to meet again in two weeks.

February Weather Notes.

Mr. Thos. Telford writes:—Our wee short month has again come to a close, and that at least of '91 into lasting obscurity. No so the many robberies, suicides, murders and accidents, specially that of Springhill, N.S., causing so much grief and suffering among the widows and orphans. Of deluges, storms and drifts, there is nothing out of the ordinary run of our winter visitation to note. The month came in fine, and with only three exceptions did the minimum register below zero—on the 4th at sunrise it stood at 10° below zero, 9 a.m. at 6° below, noon at 5° below, 4 p.m. at 3° below, 5 p.m. at 6° below, 9 p.m. at 15° below, being the coldest day throughout during the winter so far. On the 11th at sunrise it was 1° below, and on the 14th at 6° below. At noon on several days the thermometer went up to 40° and over, the highest being on the 24th, at sunrise 40°, at noon 48°, and sundown 44°, leaving the mean temperature of the month at 23° 6/28°. Rain fell on 8 days to the depth of 1 inch and 17/100 of an inch; snow fell on 16 days to the depth of 20 inches, both being a pretty fair average for February. We had auroral lights on the 14th, gales and drifting snow on 5 days, white frost on 3 days, and almost continuous good roads. The following are the different points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise during the month, respectively, namely, northwest 13 days, southwest 6 days, northeast 2 days, east 2 days, west 2 days, north 2 days, and south 2 days.

News Nuggets.

—A meeting of the Board of Trade is called for Tuesday evening of next week.

—The Ashburnham village council did not meet last night. It will likely meet next week.

Murray Street Baptist Church.

The Young Peoples' Welcome to Their Pastor.

A pleasing incident of the exercises of Monday night's meeting of the Murray-st. Baptist Y.P.S.C.E. was the welcome given by the society to the pastor, Rev. J. E. Trotter, on the occasion of his first meeting with them. After the study of the topic, the president, Miss M. Mann, read the following address:

"Rev. J. E. Trotter:

DEAR PASTOR,—We, the members of the Murray-st. Baptist church Young Peoples' Society of Christian Endeavor, desire to welcome you as our pastor and assure you that we realize that our Heavenly Father has heard our prayer in sending us so speedily an under shepherd, and we congratulate ourselves in having one for our leader who has shown himself an approved workman of God in the fields of labor He has called you to, and rejoice that you have stamped upon the lives of your people the impress of the Lord Jesus.

It is our desire that we should be workers together in the work of the Lord Jesus Christ in our church and town, and we shall endeavor by God's grace and under your leadership to "walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work and increasing in the knowledge of God"—and thus advance the cause of Christ and the church.

Signed on behalf of the society,

M. MANN, President.
W. D. SCOTT, Vice-President

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A very successful entertainment was given in the hall on Friday evening last under the auspices of the High Park Brass Band. Although the weather was not very favorable the hall was crowded to the doors. The musical selections were very fine indeed, while the humorous readings, recitations and dialogues kept the audience in roars of laughter. The programme was pronounced by all to be the most interesting one ever presented to a Monaghan audience, as a glance at it will prove:

Ennismore.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

HYMENEAL—On Wednesday, 4th March an interesting ceremony took place at Mr Alex. Clark's residence in the township of Ennismore. The occasion was the marriage of his third daughter, Miss Carrie Clark, to Mr. Geo. Boat, of Emily. Rev. Mr. French, of Omemee, performed the marriage ceremony. Miss Lizzie Clark, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. John Boat. The guests were only the immediate friends of both families. After the ceremony was over, all sat down to a sumptuous dinner. Amusements of all kinds followed with the usual wedding merriment. Later on the groom returned with his bride to their home in Emily amid congratulations and well wishes of all present.

Ottawa Gossip.

OTTAWA, March 9.—Dr. Fyrell stated to day that the Premier was progressing favorably. Sir John was able to see a few friends to-day. This morning he received a cablegram from the Princess Louise and Marquis of Lorne congratulating him on his success. He also received, through Lord Stanley, a cablegram to a similar effect from Lord Salisbury.

Mr. Chapleau says the rumor that Hon. Mr. Colby would be offered the seat for Richelieu, where Sir Hector has been elected, is unfounded, but Mr. Colby will be offered the candidature in the county of Huntingdon against Mr. Scriver. The nomination in that county takes place Wednesday next.

"Do you think the verdict of the people of Canada will in any way endanger the success of the proposed trade negotiations with Washington?" was asked.

Hon. Mr. Chapleau: "No; on the contrary the Government of Washington realising how false were the reports made by some leading Grit politicians of Canada, that the Government of Sir John had not the confidence of the people and would be defeated at the next elections, will have reason to believe that any agreement entered into with us will last. Uncertainty about the government of this country and the majority supporting them has disappeared, and the two countries will be able to enter on more amicable trade relations for at least the next five years. The public sentiment in the United States is undoubtedly opposed to the McKinley bill, as has been proved by the result of last fall's elections, and the Washington Government may not be sorry to find reasons for introducing modifications and entering into more friendly relations and closer commercial intercourse with Canada as with other neighboring countries. The result of the elections will also have this effect, that the Imperial Government is now informed of the strength of public opinion and the sympathy of the Canadian people with Sir John's government on international questions affecting the interests of Canada."

Hon. J. A. Chapleau will go to Montreal on Wednesday.

Hon. Mr. Carling returned to the city last night. Asked if it was true as stated in several papers that he had announced his intention of retiring from politics, he replied that he had made no such announcement, but could say nothing further at present. The report that he would run for Algoma was entirely unauthorized.

Hon. John Costigan returns to the city to morrow night.

Hon. Mackenzie Bowell returns to the city this evening.

Sir Hector arrives to-morrow.

Mr. Bain, late member for Soulanges, arrived at noon in the city. He says he will protest the election of his opponent, Dr Mousseau.

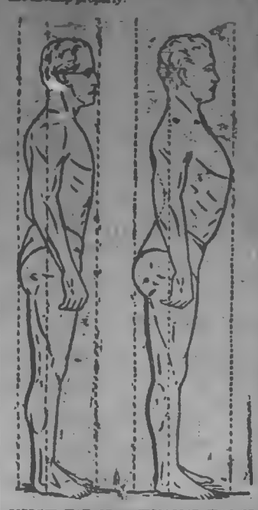
A PHYSICULTURE SYSTEM.

A Method that Employs the Mind to Develop the Body.

Mr. Edwin Checkley, of [illegible], began his system by [illegible] most men and women [illegible] ance means muscles, and therefore to use dumbbells properly.



CORRECT WAY OF STANDING. INCORRECT WAY OF STANDING.

In early life, he says, they find that it is easier to make use of certain muscles than others, and gradually they depend entirely on these and allow the others, through lack of use, to deteriorate. Then, too, the muscles are made largely to do the work of the joints, and these are neglected.

Mr. Checkley's theory is that if one is reared to know his muscles, and especially the joints of his bones, what they are to be used for and how to use them, he will naturally in his various movements throughout the day get all the exercise he needs and will develop properly. A man in such a condition may be called upon to undergo any unusual exercise, and will be equal to the occasion without the sensation of lameness or soreness that now generally follows unusual exercise. All his muscles, having been constantly brought into play, are in a healthy condition and do not suffer.

The entire secret of Mr. Checkley's method, therefore, is to teach his pupil what he doesn't know about the formation of his body, and to have him cultivate his body by using his mind. He generally begins by showing the pupil the incorrect way of standing, which is apt to be the pupil's own way, and then the correct way.

Mr. Checkley is a very good advertisement for his own system, as his body is beautifully developed, and every muscle is under such perfect control that he can move it, and it alone, at will, no matter how subordinate or insignificant a muscle it may be.

Undemonstrative Men.

Ladies, as a rule, are apt to be favorably impressed by gentlemen who "wrap themselves up in the solitude of their own originality" and defy the world to probe the inner depths of their souls. Woman is prone to believe that she can read such characters like an open book; that she has a key to all their mysteries. Underneath the marble exterior she sees plenty of plastic material which only needs her love and tact to leaven in delightful and delighting shapes. Mines of tenderness, of intelligence, of magnanimity underlie, she thinks, the blank uppercrust of reserve. Too often, after having tried her hand at working them, she repents of her folly in sackcloth and ashes.

Your utterly undemonstrative men seldom make good husbands, says a writer in the New York Ledger. Understand, however, that there is a wide difference between morbid reticence, and mere shyness. The shy man keeps you at a distance from him by shrinking back from you, the unconfiding man by holding you at arm's length. A lady about to make a choice for life between the two will do well to give the preference to the former. Very reserved men are very difficult to govern.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

REOPENING OF THE ASSEMBLY YESTERDAY.

The Address in Reply to the Speech from the Throne — Compulsory Education and Free School Books—A Lively Debate in the House

TORONTO, March 11.—The Legislature met yesterday to resume the business interrupted by the Dominion elections.

Mr. Joseph Tait, in rising to move the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, effected to be embarrassed and prayed for the indulgence usually granted a new member. To make the indulgence certain he showered compliments on the Lieutenant-Governor, the Government and the Opposition.

After referring with regret to the death of J. B. Freeman of North Norfolk, to whose worth he paid a graceful tribute, Mr. Tait took the clauses in the speech.

It was gratifying to know that arrangements had been made for settling the long-pending disputes between the Province and the Dominion. Ontario's past experience in such disputes was presumptive evidence of her success in this. Municipalities interested in the Land Improvement Fund would be glad to know that the attitude of the Quebec Government would not interfere with them being paid the money due to them. The Provincial Board of Health deserved thanks for disseminating information regarding sanitation and hygiene. As an example of its work, Mr. Tait noted the decrease in that loathsome disease, smallpox. In 1874 there were 200 deaths; in 1885, 21 deaths in 7 counties; in 1886, 3 deaths in 4 counties; in 1887, no deaths; in 1888, 3 deaths from the disease contracted in Buffalo; in 1889, 13 deaths from disease contracted in the same place, and in 1890 there were no deaths. The House should do all it could even to improve the efficiency of the Board.

The mining regulations were next touched upon, but Mr. Tait was cautious. Of course much might be done by wise legislation to develop the mines, especially the nickel mines, and much might be done by unwise legislation to minimize the value of the great inheritance, etc. Mr. Tait was strong on this one point, that no legislation regarding mines could be considered or carried which would be an additional burden to the taxpayer.

Regarding education, Mr. Tait remarked that the elections in Hamilton and North Bruce proved not only the death of all racial and religious feelings but the burial of them 50 fathoms deep. Compulsory attendance at schools had caused great discussion in the United States. It would seem that compulsory education led to the providing by the state of free text books. Many parents were actually unable to buy books and therefore it would be a mockery to enact the one and not make provision for the other. Free school books were necessary if compulsory education were adopted.

After expressing the belief that the session would be short and business-like he moved that an address of thanks be presented to the Lieutenant-Governor for the gracious speech he was pleased to deliver to the Assembly.

Mr. J. T. Garrow seconded the address and succeeded in rousing a storm by his references to the local elections. The leader of the Opposition was a foe worthy of any one's steel, able to lead his cohorts well and to make the attack as severe as the occasion might require. Yet Mr. Garrow hoped the last had been heard of Mr. Meredith's recent mode of warfare, the last of an attempt to carry on a party on principles of race and creed. [Applause.] He spoke sincerely and was ashamed to think that they were raising those dead issues for the evil purposes of power. He implored them to take up any other honest issue. He assured Mr. Meredith that many Catholics in West Huron had been driven out of the Conservative ranks. The Liberal party appealed to higher issues, and when they could not secure men except by such issues they would resign.

Coming to the points in the speech from the throne, he hoped with regard to agriculture that what had been done for cheese-making might also be done for butter-making. He hoped in time to see more than one agricultural college or institute for teaching the scientific principles of farming. Prison reform could not be discussed without the report, but from the evidence it was apparent that provision must be make for a better classification of prisoners and that the extension of relief to the indigent must be considered. From his experience in the Huron County Council he believed the Government would be supported in any effort in the direction of making the care of the poor more stringent. He seconded the address.

Mr. Meredith said that Mr. Tait had claimed the indulgence extended to new members, but he was under the impression that Mr. Tait's voice had been heard from the wilds of Algoma to the flowery city of Rochester. [Laughter.] Mr. Tait's modesty was very great when he claimed indulgence as a new member. [Laughter.]

Regarding the mining lands Mr. Meredith said the Government had appointed a Fish and Game Commission and a Prison Reform Commission. If the Mining Commission which the Opposition had urged had been granted instead of the others the result would have been more satisfactory. It was in the interest of the province that a commission on mines should be appointed in order that the province might understand the extent of its capital and what it could depend upon for its future expenditure. The withdrawal of the nickel lands from sale was wise, but it should have been done sooner. It was reported that the great bulk of the nickel lands was already in the hands of speculators. He did not know what proposition the Government had to make, but if it was on the lines of increasing the revenue to the province it would have his hearty support.

Mr. Mowat was vigorous and emphatic in reply. He had sat for years in the House with Mr. Meredith and never saw him exhibit greater excitement. They did not differ on principles, but on the application of them. The charge that the Government had forgotten its principles was a false charge. The charge that encroachment of the Catholic Church had been permitted was equally false. The Government held the principle of civil and religious liberty as strongly as possible. He repudiated the charge that the Liberals were not loyal to the Dominion. Liberals know that loyalty to the Dominion consists in loyalty to the Province likewise. The prosperity of Confederation depends upon the rights granted to the Provinces being faithfully carried out. The leader of the Opposition in being loyal to the Dominion had been disloyal to the Province.

He deplored the loss of Mr. Freeman and also of Mr. Hunter of South Grey, who had been upright and conscientious in the discharge of his duties and whose death was a loss to the House.

The reason a commission was not appointed on the timber and minerals of the Province was that in formation on this point was already in the possession of the Crown Lands Department. There was a good prospect that this session would be a business one.

The address was then carried with the usual formalities.

Before adjourning, Mr. Meredith said that when the member for Ottawa (Mr. Bronson) was in his place he would have occasion to make some remarks about the changes in the Cabinet.

Hon. G. W. Ross gave notice of a batch of bills he will introduce at an early date respecting education. A bill respecting truancy and compulsory education, with more stringent regulations regarding the attendance at schools, is the most important. As a complement to compulsory education, provision will be made in bills consolidating and revising the acts referring to public and high schools for free school books. The Minister will also introduce a bill to amend the act concerning his own department.

HAMILTON, March 10.—The firm of Nesbitt & Bicknell has received instructions to protest the election of J. M. Gibson, and the petition will be filed with the Court of Appeal within a few days. HIS WIFE WENT ON A VISIT.

And Farmer Cornish Became Despondent and Cut His Throat.

THAMESVILLE, March 10.—Yesterday Morris Cornish, a farmer living in the township of Orford, about three miles from here, saw his wife off on the train on a visit to friends in Hamilton. After returning home he went to the house of a neighbor and while there seemed to be very despondent. This morning the neighbor found the five small children of Cornish, the eldest of whom is only nine years old, huddled together in the corner of the orchard. The children said their father was lying on the bed dead. On entering the house he found Cornish lying across the foot of the bed with his throat cut. In the room adjoining the bedroom was found a razor covered with blood, lying on the table, showing that after having committed the act Cornish must have walked at least 10 feet. A large pool of blood was to be seen on the floor and another on the bed where he was lying. The children say that they left their father sitting reading the newspaper when they went to bed about 8 o'clock and on arising in the morning they were horrified to find him as described. An inquest will be held to-morrow afternoon.

A Four Year-Old Bites off His Baby Sister's Big Toe.

CANTON, Ohio, March 10.—A month ago Mrs. Frank Bauer gave birth to a baby girl, for whom Mrs. Bauer's four-year-old son conceived an intense dislike, because, as he said, he wanted a little brother. The youngster has never missed an opportunity to maltreat his little sister, and yesterday the continued crying of the babe led the mother to make an examination, when she discovered that the great toe of the right foot had been bitten off at the joint. The four-year-old acknowledged his guilt.

LONDON, March 10.—During the month of December last the sun did not shine here one day. During the entire year 1890, out of a possible 4455 hours, when the sun should or might have been visible, it, as a fact, was visible only 1089 hours and these were mainly in the afternoons.

Claimed Seven Lives.

GLASGOW, March 10.—A condenser used in the manufacture of ammonia at Dixon's iron works exploded to-day with terrific force. When the ruins of the building in which it had been erected were examined seven mangled bodies were recovered, including that of the manager of the works, Mr. Miles.

A Sarnia Man Killed.

DETROIT, March 10.—Thomas Pardy, switchman for the Michigan Central, was crushed between two cars while coupling at Bay City Junction early this afternoon. He was taken to Detroit Sanitarium, where he died shortly after his arrival. A coupling pin had passed nearly through the lower part of his abdomen. He was only 26 years old and leaves a young widow and babe. The remains will be removed to Sarnia, Ont.

Timed His Own Death.

VICTIMS OF FIREDAMP.

COLLIERY EXPLOSION IN WESTPHALIA, GERMANY.

Remarkable Abduction of a Wife by Her Husband in Manchester—The Newfoundland Question Approaching a Settlement.

MANCHESTER, March 10.—As the congregation were coming out of church at Clitheroe yesterday three men drove up, and jumping from the carriage one of them endeavored to seize Mrs. Jackson and her sister, and, assisted by the other two, attempted to carry them off. The leader in the assault was the husband of Mrs. Jackson, who had not lived with him since they were married in 1887.

Friends resisted this summary proceeding and a free fight followed, in which half the congregation took part. The sister of Mrs. Jackson fainted. Jackson's face was covered with blood and his companions were badly hurt. But they succeeded in forcing the unwilling wife into the carriage and, whipping up their horse, drove away to Blackburn. Her friends followed them some distance, but they escaped. Mrs. Jackson had inherited a large fortune, and it was on account of this the husband sought to gain possession of her person. The courts restored to him his conjugal rights in 1888, and under the color of this decision he acted. The friends of the wife will now take the case before a higher court.

After the abduction crowds of people surrounded Jackson's house, which they threatened to storm in an effort to release Mrs. Jackson, but the chief constable warned them that in so doing they would be guilty of a breach of the peace, while Jackson himself from a window of the house shouted defiance at those outside, saying he had a large force ready to resist any attempt at rescue. Both sides were on the alert throughout last night and all to-day. The police have succeeded in maintaining order outside the house. Mrs. Jackson's solicitor has obtained a warrant against the abductors for assaulting his client's sister at the time of the abduction, but the abductors still remain barricaded within the house and cannot be arrested. Crowds of people are still watching the house.

BEHRING SEA DISPUTES.

Negotiations Take a Most Favorable Turn —A Basis of Settlement Reached Between the Two Governments.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The Behring Sea negotiations have taken a most favorable turn and the Governments of the United States and Great Britain appear to have at length reached a basis upon which to settle their difficulties, as is evidenced by a communication from Lord Salisbury to Sir Julian Pauncefote, British Minister here, which was laid before Secretary Blaine. In this communication Lord Salisbury says: "The despatch of Mr. Blaine under date of Dec. 17 has been carefully considered by Her Majesty's Government. The effect of the discussion which has been carried on between the two Governments has been materially to narrow the area of controversy. It is now quite clear that advisers of the President do not claim Behring Sea as a mare clausum, and indeed that they repudiate that contention in expressed terms. Nor do they rely as a justification for the seizure of British ships in the open sea upon the contention that the interests of the seal fisheries give to the United States Government any right for the purpose, which, according to international law, it would not otherwise possess, whatever importance they attach to preservation of the fur seal species and they justly look on it as an object deserving the most serious solicitude. They do not conceive that it confers upon any maritime powers rights over the open ocean which that power could not assert on other grounds. The claim of the United States to prevent the exercise of the seal fishery by other nations in Behring Sea rests now exclusively upon the interest which by purchase they possess in a ukase issued by the Emperor Alexander I. in the year 1821, which prohibits foreign vessels from approaching within one hundred Italian miles of the coast and islands then belonging to Russia in Behring Sea. * * * The ukase was a mere usurpation, but it is said that it was converted into a valid international law as against the British Government by the admission of this Government itself.

Lord Salisbury contends that not only can it not be shown that the British Government at any time has admitted the soundness of the pretension put forward by the ukase, but that it can be shown that it has categorically denied it on more than one occasion.

Lord Salisbury asserts that the treaty between Great Britain and Russia in 1825, on which Mr. Blaine lays stress, does not contain a word to signify the acquiescence of Great Britain in the claim put forward by Russia to control the waters of the sea for 100 miles from her coast. Lord Salisbury says no objection will be offered by his Government to the first and second questions proposed for arbitration by Mr. Blaine. They are

What exclusive jurisdiction in Behring Sea and what exclusive rights in the seal fisheries therein did Russia assert and exercise up to the time of the cession of Alaska to the United States?

How far were these claims of jurisdiction as to the seal fisheries recognized and conceded by Great Britain?

The third question is:

Was the body of water now known as Behring Sea included in the phrase 'Pacific Ocean,' as used in the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia, and what rights, if any, in Behring Sea were given or conceded to Great Britain by the said treaty?

Lord Salisbury does not object to referring the first part of the question to arbitration, but will not admit the decision of it can conclude the larger question involved. He excepts to the part concerning the rights in Behring Sea conceded by treaty, and says Russia did not give any rights to Great Britain in Behring Sea because they were never here to give away. He is willing to accept the proposition implied in the fourth question, that Russia's rights as to jurisdiction in Behring Sea passed unimpeached to the United States. As to the fifth question Lord Salisbury says the first clause, "What are now the rights of the United States as to the fur seal fisheries in the waters of Behring Sea outside of the ordinary territorial limits?" would be very properly referred to an arbitrator, but the subsequent clause which assumes that such rights could have grown out of the ownership of the breeding islands and the habits of the seals in resorting thereto involve an assumption as to the prescriptions of international law to which Her Majesty's Government are not prepared to accede.

Lord Salisbury concludes as follows: There is an omission in the questions which I have no doubt the Government of the President will be very glad to repair and that is the reference to the arbitration of the question what damages are due to the persons who have been injured in case it shall be determined by him that the action of the United States in seizing British vessels has been without warrant in international law. Subject to these reservations, Her Majesty's Government will have great satisfaction in joining with the Government of the United States in seeking by means of arbitration an adjustment of the international questions which have so long formed a matter of controversy between the two governments.

Gavan Duffy Says Clerical Interference is Fatal to Ireland's Aspirations—Parnell's Manifesto to be Issued on Thursday.

DUBLIN, March 10.—The Freeman's Journal publishes a letter from Sir Charles Gavan Duffy, in which that gentleman says that the policy of independent opposition which Mr. Parnell has so far carried on successfully originated in 1847 with the Irish confederation. Then, with the exception of two bishops, the whole Irish Catholic episcopate resisted the policy with all their power and banished priests to penal parishes for their support of the independent party. The latter, by reason of corruption and intrigue, became reduced from 50 to five members of parliament, the bishops always condoning or approving every act of treachery. The letter concludes as follows: "Until all this clerical interference is changed there is no more hope for the Irish cause than there is for a corpse on a dissecting table."

The Evening Standard says that Mr. Parnell in his Newry speech of yesterday forestalled Mr. Gladstone's expected final declaration to shake off Mr. Parnell by himself shaking off Mr. Gladstone, as no longer of use as an instrument wherewith to secure Home Rule.

The Times, criticising the character of the Parnell agents sent to the United States, says that James O'Kelly is an ex-Fenian, who was lately engaged in the work of procuring arms for the Clan-na-Gael Society. John O'Connor The Times classes as a man dragged from the rat holes of conspiracy by John Devoy, while it describes John E. Redmond as an "avowed adherent of the harp without the crown." The article concludes with the declaration that "if any person can persuade the advanced section in the United States to open its purse it will be these."

DUBLIN, March 10.—The National Federation Convention opened here to-day. Justin McCarthy presided. A letter from Archbishop Walsh was read. It said that four-fifths of the constituencies were ready to follow the lead of Kilkenny and declared Parnell's policy involved the destruction of the work of the last 10 years. Letters approving the course of the McCarthyites were received from Archbishop Croke and most of the bishops in Ireland.

Sir Thomas Esmonde, secretary of the convention, stated that 115 organizations had sent delegates. Letters had been received from 90 other organizations stating that they would support McCarthy.

Mr. McCarthy said the League had allowed itself to be captured in a recreant way by a "crowbar brigade." The Federation, he declared, was well rid of the National League. For Mr. Parnell he had no words but those of compassion. In following awrong course Mr. Parnell's fate as leader of the Irish parliamentary party had become sealed.

Thomas Sexton (member of Parliament for West Belfast) stated that during the Boulogne negotiations the representatives of the majority of the Irish parliamentary party offered to leave the chairmanship of the party open for a year if Mr. Parnell would retire temporarily from that position. The negotiations proceeded on this basis. Parnell's leadership is no longer within the range of practical politics.

An Executive Committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. McCarthy, Condon, Davitt, Deasy, Dickson, Murphy, McCarton, Arthur O'Connor, Sexton, Sheehy, Sullivan and Webb, and also Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien, if they are willing to serve.

Justice Stephen's Case in the Commons.

LONDON, March 10.—Questions were put to the Government in the House of Commons this evening with reference to the alleged inability of Justice Stephen to perform his judicial functions. Mr. Smith, First Lord of the Treasury, in reply said that the Government had no authority over a judge; that the constitution respected the absolute independence of the Bench, though a member of the House might move that the Crown remove a judge.

LONDON, March 10.—The singular spectacle of the Privy Council of a Christian Queen deciding nice points of Mohammedan doctrine has just been witnessed here in a case of alleged heresy against the leader and crier in prayers of a mosque at Tafpore, India. LONDON, March 10.—The authoress, Edna Lyall, has presented the daughter of the late Charles Bradlaugh with a check for £50, with the condition attached that the money shall not be used in connection with the propaganda of free thought. The gift is made as a mark of the donor's high regard for the character of Mr. Bradlaugh.

Manitoba Legislature.

WINNIPEG, March 10.—The Manitoba Legislature began its regular business session to-day. Lawrence of Morden moved the address in reply to the speech from the throne, which was seconded by Graham of Souris. Gillies and Martin spoke in opposition, after which the House adjourned till Thursday to allow members to attend the funeral of late ex-Speaker McMicken and out of respect to the memory of Speaker Winram.

Fire in Clinton.

CLINTON, March 10.—The Railway Hotel, owned by John Butler and occupied by Michael O'Hara, was burned down this morning about 5 o'clock. The entire building and contents were consumed, the occupants barely escaping with their lives. Cause of fire unknown.

STORM IN ENGLAND.

Blizzardly Weather For a Week—A Furious Time in London.

LONDON, March 10.—A snowstorm has been raging in Scotland and the north of England for a week past, while in the south of England the weather was mild until Sunday. Sunday's gale which was totally unexpected, advanced in a northeasterly direction across the Bay of Biscay. A blizzard prevailed over the whole of the south of England. It commenced in London at 4 in the afternoon. The storm increased in fury all night and there was an unusual rise of the tide. All the channel steamers had rough passages. Even in the harbors the water was so rough that it was difficult to hold vessels to their moorings. The Bowermail boat nearly sank in the harbor. Her paddle box was completely smashed. The mail service steamers cannot cross the channel. The sea makes a clean breach over the admiralty pier, where the telegraph clerk and a signal man are practically prisoners. Similar reports come from points all along the coast.

Throughout Great Britain telegraphic communication is interrupted by the blizzard.

Bismarck a Candidate for the Reichstag.

BERLIN, March 10.—Prince Bismarck's candidature for Gestemunde is the principal topic of discussion in the lobbies of the Reichstag. It is freely asserted the Government feel embarrassed over his decision. Chancellor von Caprivi and Minister Magnes had a long conference on the subject Sunday. The seat for Gestemunde has long been held by National Liberals, though in 1890 it was only secured on a second ballot against a Socialist. There is no doubt Prince Bismarck will secure an immense majority.

The Spring Medicine.

It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

THE NEWFOUNDLAND QUESTION.

Two-Rowed Barley.

The Results of the Experiments Made Last Season.

A deep interest is felt in the subject at the present time by many Canadian farmers, but more particularly by those residing in those counties in Ontario where barley has been for many years one of the leading crops, and a general desire has been expressed to know the results of the many tests which have been made during the past season, especially with the variety which was imported by the Government for seed. The following summary contains these results as far as it has been possible to get them, nearly one half of the farmers who joined in the test having reported.

It will be well to premise that about 2,200 bags were distributed amongst about 2,600 purchasers. From 1,050 of these reports have been received, and from these reports has been prepared the following summary.

In the summary which has been presented the experience of hundreds of farmers in Ontario has been given, covering, it is believed, every district where the two-rowed barley has been grown. This list might have been greatly increased with similar testimony equally good, but enough has been given to show that there is not much fault to be found with the barley. A proportion of the reports are less favourable than some of those which have been given, but in most instances these may be attributed to a very wet season, lack of drainage, or want of care in the preparation of the land. Many think that the straw is a little weak, but a very wet season does not afford a good opportunity for correct judgment on this point. There is no doubt that two rowed barley takes a longer time to mature than the six-rowed, and that it should be sown early.

INDIVIDUAL EXPERIENCES.

The individual experience of farmers in this district will be interesting reading, and is extracted from the bulletin of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, as below:

PETERBOROUGH.

E. Hawthorne, Warsaw, had a yield of 25 bushels per acre. He says:—"It yielded better than any six-rowed I have seen threshed in this neighbourhood." John Buckham, Bearesford, had a yield of 36 bushels, 25 bushels per acre, and says:—"It has been a poor season for barley in this section, the common six-rowed not yielding so well as the two-rowed has done with me."

Chas. Nicoll, Norwood station, had 38 bushels from one bag sown; Wm. Stewart, Peterborough, a total yield of 35 bushels, 28 bushels per acre.

F. Birdsall, of Birdsall's, sowed four bags on five acres; yield, 30 bushels to the acre. He says:—"In several places in this neighbourhood it has turned out better than the six-rowed."

Geo. A. Grover, Norwood, had 31 bushels, or 26 bushels per acre. He says:—"A poor year for barley; the six-rowed did not yield 10 bushels per acre on same soil; this is the best crop on the whole farm in bulk, and if a price is once established will be profitable."

C. Stirton, Bensfort, had 42 bushels from one bag of seed, or 34 bushels per acre. He says:—"Weather wet and unfavourable; it did not ripen very evenly; I intend to try a few acres of it next season."

A. Scott, of Peterborough, had 30 bushels per acre; L. Hunter, Lakefield, 24 bushels per acre; and E. M. Sanderson, Springville, 29 bushels. He says:—"I think my barley has done very well, as it was a very poor season."

VICTORIA.

John Calvert, Reaboro, got about 40 bushels per acre, and says: "I would advise to sow 4 pecks per acre; many of my neighbors sowed 1½ bushels, and it went down more than this sown."

W. H. Taherse, Downeyville had 42 bushels from 1½ acres.

John Campbell, jr., Woodville, sowed one bag on 2 acres, and had 60 bushels. He says: "I think had it been sown a little thicker it would have yielded better. I am so pleased with it I shall sow no other barley the coming season."

Samuel Mitchell, Dunsford, had 40 bushels on a little over an acre, and says: "Sowed it too thick, and it lay down. I never had a crop that paid as well; am selling it to my neighbors at $1 per bushel."

Thomas Newman, Lindsay, had 60 bushels from about an acre, and says: "Sown too thickly; think it did fairly well, better than six-rowed barley."

John Westlake, Manilla, had 40 bushels per acre, and says: "The two-rowed did better in this part than the six rowed." Joseph McGahey, Eden Valley,—total yield 51 bushels, 38 bushels per acre, says: "We like it well." Isaac W. Read, Reaboro, total yield, 50 bushels; 30 bushels per acre; J. S. Cruess, Cambray, about 30 bushels per acre; James Taylor, Oakwood, 41 bushels from one bag sown on a little over one acre. He says: "I am more than satisfied with my returns of this barley." Thomas Delahay, Reaboro, 30 bushels; Alex. McGee, Fenelon Falls, about 40 bushels on 1½ acres; Thomas Robinson, Ommee, 30 bushels per acre, who says: "The two-rowed yielded more per acre than any six-rowed I sowed."

Professor Saunders closes his valuable bulletin by giving the following hints on BARLEY CULTURE.

I desire to refer once more to the importance of early seeding and of a thorough preparation of the soil before sowing. The figures given in the early pages of this Bulletin on the results of the tests of the past season show in the increase of crop the advantage of sowing barley after roots, but where there this is not practicable, a good mellow piece of ground should be selected, one that has been well worked and is in fair condition as to fertility. This crop will not give good returns when sown on cold, wet ground, or on land that has been too much impoverished by frequent cropping and scanty manuring. The roots of the young barley plant make rapid growth under favorable conditions, but they do not strike so deeply in search of food as those of some other cereals; hence, the nutritive elements they need should be presented to them in the soil in such a well digested condition as to admit of its being readily taken up by the growing rootlets. A little experience will no doubt enable our intelligent Canadian farmers to obtain in favourable localities an average season's good results from this promising crop.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Elections are still talked about in the village.

Mr. A. A. Goodfellow, postmaster and village merchant, has got the post office nicely arranged now for the benefit of the surrounding country. Numbered boxes are placed in the front of the office. There are let to the people at the small fee of twenty-five cents.

Mr. Wm Laughon, the village blacksmith, has been doing a large trade all winter on account of so many thaws.

Mr. Thomas Smyth is now busily engaged making preparations for a new frame dwelling.

The enterprising trustees of Cairo school have purchased a new bell for the school, which will be put on in the course of a few weeks. This will no doubt be a large addition to the Cairo corner and will be found a benefit to the surrounding country, especially the Egyptians, to let them know that nine o'clock comes earlier in the morning than they think.

Parties are more numerous this winter than usual. A few nights ago a sleighload of boys and girls of the village started to a party west of Ballilieboro, but after going about half way they were stopped by an inundation of the water rushing across the road, preventing them from going any further. After making a few efforts to get through they were obliged to turn back. This, of course, raised the anger of the driver, and while coming home he somehow capsized the sleigh, turning everything out on the roadside. Soon they scrambled around and gathered up their duds and all were getting in, when a gentleman with his number twenty-four dancing shoes on jumped in on the violin, smashing it to atoms. This ended the fun of the night.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, March 11.—John Teemer, the McKeesport sculler, writes to a friend in this city that his backers are prepared to match him with Jake Gaudaur or William O'Connor for a race for $1000 a side, the time and place to be mutually agreed on.

Teemer is at present located at St. Joe, Mo., where he has trained regularly and is reported in good condition. O'Connor has already expressed a willingness to meet his late opponent for a suitable purse such as Teemer names. So there is little doubt but that articles for a race between these two great American scullers will likely be drawn up and signed before the end of the present month.

The sixth annual convention of the Association of Provincial Land Surveyors of Ontario began at the Canadian Institute yesterday morning.

A large number of surveyors from all parts of the province are attending the meeting, which will continue to-day and to-morrow. Besides the usual business of the convention, fifteen papers will be read and interesting reports from the various committees will be submitted.

Mr. Patsy Powers, manager of the Buffalo International Baseball Club, returned to Toronto last night, and will resume his task to-day of interesting Toronto financial men in a Toronto club for his league. With the cooperation of Mr. McConnell Mr. Powers expects to have a meeting called shortly and shape matters that a team for this city will be a certainty. Manager Powers will not sign any men for his Buffalo club, as he is waiting for the men who will soon be released from National League and American Association clubs.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover loans and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

BRUTAL BULLFIGHTING.

A THRILLING EXHIBITION AT MONTEREY, MEXICO

Victory of Ponciano Diaz, the King of Matadors—Piercing the Animal With His Sword and Drawing Out the Weapon—Horses and a Man Killed.

A bull fight in Monterey, Mexico, is always a success, but the last-of-the-season one was pronounced by those who are good judges of the merits of such sport to have been one of the most brutal and exciting fights ever given in Mexico.

THE BULL FIGHTER.

The matador, or bull-killer and captain of the fighters here, was Ponciano Diaz, who is known as being the greatest bull fighter Mexico ever produced. He is of pure Mexican blood, about 30 years of age and has been in the bull-fighting business 15 years, having during that time accumulated a fortune of $400,000. His home is in the city of Mexico, where he lives in luxury, surrounded by a retinue of servants and admirers. He was invited to Spain a few years ago to show his progress in bull-fighting. He went, and captivated the people of that country by his daring action in the ring.

It is very seldom that Diaz will consent to fight outside the City of Mexico, and his visit to Monterey on this occasion made the event the greatest of the kind that the city has ever witnessed. The bull ring is located in the centre of the city, and the amphitheatre surrounding it is capable of seating about 5,000 people.

At 4 o'clock the fighters then entered the ring. They were seven in number, and at the sight of them the crowd cheered and seemed to go wild with enthusiasm. At the head of the fighters marched Ponciano Diaz, the matador. He was followed by four others, whose duty it is to work the bull into a state of frenzy by their red cloaks and instruments of torture. The latter are about three feet in length, and have on one end a barbed steel lance fastened into the wooden handle.

They were followed into the ring by the two picadors, who were on horses and carried long spikes to ward off the attacks of the bull. They rode spirited horses. Immediately after the fighters entered, the judges and bugler took their seats in the judges stand, located on one side of the amphitheatre. The band then struck up the national march, and the bugler sounded a blast for entrance of the first bull. An attendant pulled aside the slide door, and as the mad animal came bounding into the ring, he received his first punishment from the mozo, who, sitting directly above the entrance, drove a small sharp instrument, called a divass, into the bull's neck. The matador, banderilleros and picadors were distributed around the ring, and the bull, without an instant's delay, made a charge at one of the horses, and with his long horns succeeded in goring the animal severely.

The banderilleros came to the rescue with their scarlet cloaks, which, when waved in front of the mad bull, caused him to leave the horse and attack the other fighters.

For some time the picadors and banderilleros employed themselves in goading the bull to madness, and then Ponciano Diaz, the matador, who up to this time had taken no active part in the fight, took his place in the ring at the call of the bugle. He was loudly cheered as he approached the bull, which he must kill in only a certain prescribed manner. He carried a scarlet cloak in his left hand, and in his right was a sword about three feet in length, with which he must finish the animal by severing the spinal cord from a position directly in front, after three charges. When Diaz approached the bull two of the necessary charges were made in rapid succession, but the matador avoided them by quickly jumping to one side.

The bull was pawing the earth in rage and pain as Diaz approached for the third time. As soon as the animal caught sight of him he made a terrible plunge. Diaz stood firm, with his right arm extended ready to plant the sword between the shoulders. It took only a second for the bull to reach him, and just as the horns were about to get in their deadly work the daring matador planted the sword squarely between the shoulder blades it seemed.

But the spinal cord was not severed, as the beast did not drop.

After further goading Diaz, the matador, then approached, and as the animal made toward him threw his cloak over the bull's shoulders, and by a dexterous movement succeeded in wrapping the cloak about the hilt of the sword and drew the weapon out.

All this was done with lightning rapidity almost, and before the bull could turn around.

At the second charge Diaz plunged the sword into the bull up to the hilt, but still the animal did not drop. Finally on the third, Diaz finished him by stabbing him to the heart. The two lazadors then drew the dead animal out.

It was barely a half minute between acts, and the second bull came tearing into the ring, bellowing, and with head lowered and tail erect. He charged upon the banderilleros with wild fury. But in the first attack of the bull Diaz struck the sword to the hilt between the shoulders. The animal made one more charge, and then dropped dead, and was hauled out by the lazadors.

The third bull was perfectly crazy with madness, and the banderilleros and picadors had a lively time avoiding his horns. He was finished with one blow of Diaz's sword, and the fight was over. Some American ladies present fainted at the sickening

Clothed Up to Fashion's Demands

A Dinner, a la Edward Atkinson.

The modern recipes for making dinners are framed upon the supposition that you are to obtain the materials of manufacture for nothing. They should be written in this form: Go to the market and beg a beef bone from the butcher; steal a couple of parsnips and half a dozen potatoes from the peddler's cart; get your grocer to trust you for half a pound of rice; borrow from your neighbor a cupful of flour; from another neighbor a hod of coal; put your bone into a quart of water and let it stew slowly; slice your potatoes and parsnips; get an onion somewhere and slice it also; put them in with the bone. Stew two hours and add your flour. Simmer 20 minutes and serve. This dinner will supply a father and mother and 16 children, according to the modern cook book. Cost one match to light the fire. —Boston Courier.

Sunday Reflections.

Fortune is not more fickle than are her wooers.

Now is the time to do whatever you dislike to do.

Dyspepsia fears a bucksaw more than a pill box.

Opportunity is a slow coach that seldom overtakes, but may readily be overtaken.

Money is a root, the understanding of whose tonic properties is not confined to the Smithsonian school.

Cutting one's garment according to the cloth is poor policy, unless one happens to have a sufficiency of cloth.

Drop by Drop.

A great many people have an erroneous idea as to the great force of water. At a recent entertainment in Leavenworth a wager was made that the strongest man present could not stand a quart of water dropped into his open hand, drop by drop, from a hight of three feet. A strong, manly fellow eagerly accepted the bet, thinking that to stand the force of such a small quantity of water, was mere child's play. Before 500 drops had fallen into his hand he almost cried with pain and said he had enough. After a little water had fallen each drop seemed to crush his hand, and a blister in the centre of it was the result. This is a very practical illustration of the old adage that constant dropping wears away stones.—Leavenworth Times.

The Rule of Harmony.

A careful study of the rule of harmony costs nothing and will help the amateur decorator and furnisher not a little. Not only does this relate to color, but to form as well. Wall decorations, furniture hangings and carpets must all combine to form a concordant whole, and each must help the others to appear better. The wall decoration must help the vases and pictures, the carpet must improve the furniture, and so on, while on the other hand, the vases and pictures must reflect some of the beauty to the wall, and the furniture must be on equally good terms with the carpet. The tones may be light or dark, cool or warm, rich or soft, strong or sombre, but harmony of color and tone there must be if there is beauty.

The Population of Peterborough is about 10,000, and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. Familiar Family Friends.

The family store of medicine should contain a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Mrs. Hannah Hutchins, of Rossway, N. S., says: "We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil in our family for six years, for coughs, colds, burns, sore throat, croup, etc., and find it so good we cannot do without it." 2w6d

No Shadow of Doubt.

No sane person doubts that what we say of B.B.B. is true. The evidence of its power and popularity is too overwhelming to confute, besides it is all home testimony making it certain that B.B.B. will cure dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula, and all blood diseases. 2w6d

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS,—My mother was attacked with inflammation of the lungs which left her very weak and never free from cold, till at last she got a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and, on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried.

A feature of the show cases is the whole glass sides and tops, each plate eight feet long and very strong. The tops are capable of sustaining a weight of 200 pounds. The Grand Secretary's report showed that a large number of new warrants had been issued during the year, and the membership of the order considerably increased. Some warrants in an uncertain condition a year ago are now in good shape, and several applications for new warrants were pending.

The Grand Treasurer reported a larger surplus than ever before recorded by this Grand Lodge.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME.

County Master Hamilton, on behalf of the County Lodge of Peterborough, read the following address of welcome to the Grand Lodge:—

ADDRESS.

To the Right Worshipful G.O.L., O.E.:

BRETHREN,—We, the respective officers of the Orange Corporation of West Peterborough, cordially welcome you to our county town on this your thirty-second annual meeting of the Provincial G.O.L., O.E.

Our welcome will be couched in a few words, none the less heartfelt and sincere.

We welcome you not only as personal friends, but as worthy and esteemed grand officers and guardians of our glorious institution.

We would take occasion at this point to express our confidence in the working of the system of local Grand Lodges, believing them to be eminently calculated to advance the interest of our institution universally. "Our county yet contains material that, if properly worked, will render us second to none in Canada, socially, religiously or politically, for, when the principles of our Order are established and the constitution and laws carried out, we shall appear "fair as the moon, bright as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners."

We constantly pray that the Great Spirit may direct the councils of this Grand Lodge during its present session, and that your presence amongst us may stir us up to renewed zeal and determined perseverance in the good cause, and that it may flourish like a green bay tree, and that those who would persecute or stand aloof from us may be constrained to say:—"Thy people shall be my people and thy God my God."

Signed on behalf of County Lodge, West Peterborough,

ALEX. HAMILTON,
County Master.

Nassau, 9th March, 1891.

The following committee were appointed to draft a reply:—The Grand Master, Deputy Grand Master, Past Grand Master, Grand Secretary, and Bro. Evans, Past Grand Lecturer of British America.

The Grand Lodge adjourned till evening.

REPLY TO THE ADDRESS

To the Worshipful County Master and Members of the County Orange Lodge of West Peterborough:

BRETHREN,—The Right Worshipful Grand Master, officers and members of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ontario East, desire to assure you that they heartily appreciate the cordial welcome you have extended to them on their visit to this loyal and progressive town of Peterborough, and also reciprocate the fraternal greetings contained in your address.

It is with feelings of profound and heartfelt satisfaction that we learn of the prosperity of the Orange association in this county. We sincerely trust that this condition of things may long be continued amongst you.

It is a matter of supreme delight to us to know that the brethren of this county have been mindful of their obligations as Orangemen in maintaining the integrity of the Empire, of which our Dominion forms such an important part, and to find the principles of our glorious order, "Our God, Our Country, Our Queen," so well understood and so faithfully supported.

We heartily join you in imploring the Divine Guidance in all our deliberations, and pray that the Grand Master above shall so direct the hearts and minds of the members of our association that all our doings may be ordered by His governance and redound to His glory.

Signed on behalf of the Right Worshipful Grand Lodge of Ontario East at Peterborough, this 10th day of March, 1891.

Icy Enterprise.

Peterborough's Ice Supply for Grand Trunk Refrigerator Cars.

Tuesday evening the last car load of ice destined for the Point Edward ice houses of the Grand Trunk was loaded.

During the last three weeks Mr. R. M. Roy, storeman of the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk, has had a gang composed of about 20 teams and 60 men employed in cutting ice on the Little Lake and loading it on the cars for transportation. The ice is of great thickness, averaging about three feet, some being fully three feet four inches in thickness. The ice is first cut with a plough into long ribbons, which are then sawed transversely into blocks. During the past three weeks there have been loaded and sent out three trains per day, each containing about 900 tons aggregating altogether about 16,200. The cost of cutting and loading this was about 40 cents per ton or $6,480. This sum was distributed entirely among the men engaged in the work, for the raw material cost nothing. The Grand Trunk requires 20,000 tons to supply their refrigerating cars. Earlier this winter about 4,000 tons were shipped from Hamilton to Point Edward, the balance having been sent from Peterborough, as related above.

The Ontario Legislature.

The Address Moved—The Debate on the Address.

TORONTO, March 10.

The Legislature reassembled to-day after the recess made necessary by the Dominion electoral campaign. The day was given up to the debate on the address. The speeches of the mover and seconder were equal to those of any former year. The Opposition leader criticized but briefly and not very severely, so that the address was brought to an early close.

A NEW RAILWAY.

Mr. James M. Ashley, of New York city, president of the Toledo, Ann Arbor, and North Michigan railway; Mr. A. P. Fonsette, of the town of Peterborough; Mr. A. V. R. Young, of the same place; Messrs. E. Bristol and Douglas Armour, of Toronto, have a petition before the Legislature which states that valuable iron mines exist in the township of Belmont, in the county of Peterborough, and in the township of Marmora, in the county of Hastings; that it is impossible to work these mines at present, owing to the fact that there is no railway communication from the mines to the existing lines of railway, and that it is desirable for the purposes of establishing such communications and for opening up and developing the mining interests of these districts that a railway be constructed from a point on the Grand Junction railway at or between the village of Hastings and the village of Campbellford, running northerly, crossing the Ontario and Quebec railway near the village of Blairton, and thence running northerly and east to some point on the Central Ontario railway. They ask for an Act incorporating such a road, with powers to extend such lines, and also ask that the name of the road be the Ontario, Belmont and Northern Railway Company.

"Canadians in the Imperial Service."

A Reference to Mr. J. Hampden Burnham's New Book.

"Canadians in the Imperial Service is the title of a 240 page volume written by Mr. J. Hampden Burnham of this town. The book is well printed, well illustrated with woodcuts, and handsomely bound, with gilt tops. Mr. Burnham has handled his subject well, and though, from the nature of it, it is difficult to eliminate the catalogue-character from its treatment, he has made it interesting from start to finis. The position taken by Canadians in the Imperial service shows that Canada's sons are worthy of their sires, thus discrediting the Homeric assertion, "Few sons attain the praise of their great sires." The record which Mr. Burnham has compiled includes such names as those which follow:—Sir William Fenwick Williams of Kars, who was born at Halifax, as was Major-General Sir John E. W. Inglis, K.C.B., the hero of Lucknow, and Sir Provo William Parry Wallis, G.C.B., senior admiral of the fleet, and now in his 100th year, the "Father of the Royal Navy," which are as interesting as to Canadians it will be new. Admiral Sir George Augustus Westphal, born at Preston, N S; General Sir Gordon Drummond, G.C.B., born at Quebec; Admiral Sir Edward W. C. R. Owen, G.C.B., G.C.H., born on the island of Campobello, now part of New Brunswick; Admiral Sir Edward Belcher, Lieut.-General Sir Richard England, G.C.B., the Crimean commander, and Col. A. R. Dunn, V.C This list might be much enlarged, but fuller details would rob the reader of much of the pleasure he would derive from the book when it comes into his hands. Mr. Burnham has treated his subject very concisely and conscientiously. The style is simple, chaste, and direct, and the writer claims not to have more than entered upon the threshold of the subject. To gather the facts which he has submitted in such compact, and yet readable form, the author has travelled 12 000 miles, and held as much correspondence as would fill another volume similar to the one under notice. While Mr. Burnham claims not to have exhausted his subject, he has produced a work which is the pioneer in the field, and must be the standard around which all future additions to this stock and kind of knowledge must rally, so to speak. Mr. Burnham's "Canadians in the Imperial Service," should find a welcome place in every Canadian household.

Phosphate Mining in our North Country.

For years past, says the Lindsay Post, the township of Monmouth, in common with the other townships comprising the provisional county of Haliburton, has been looked upon as possessing valuable mineral deposits, and veins of iron and copper ore have been uncovered here and there by industrious prospectors; but the mines have remained unworked for lack of capital and a profitable market. A couple of years ago a further discovery in the shape of crystals of phosphate was made, and several Toronto gentlemen became interested and engaged a practical mineralogist to thoroughly inspect the neighbourhood. Upon the strength of his report as to the richness and extent of the phosphate deposit, a company was at once formed with a capital of $100,000, of which Mr. John J. Gartshore, dealer in railway supplies, Toronto, is president; and T. Lockhart Gordon, lawyer, Mr. Gzowski, banker, Kilgour Bros and other men of capital, are members. Some 1,400 acres surrounding the "pocket" was at once purchased, and Mr. F. Stenith Martin, C.E., a gentleman experienced in all kinds of mining, was engaged to superintend the development of their property. Twenty men were put to work during the latter part of last summer; thirteen pits were sunk, some to a considerable depth, and upwards of 100 tons of phosphate of exceptional purity—nearly 89 per cent.—was taken out. Next summer operations will be resumed upon a large scale. In all some 25 or 30 veins have already been traced, one of them being four feet in width. Solid phosphate crystals are also to be found in abundance—one taken out last fall weighed close upon 300 lbs.

THE BRITISH ARMY.

Its Enormous Strength and Effective Numbers in Peace and War.

The total expenditure on the army, out of taxes, in the year, in the case of the United Kingdom, was last year, according to Sir Charles Dilke, £16,800,000; and in India the same, or £23,000,000 sterling (£34,000,000 in the present year), besides the expenditure out of loans, and that of the self-governing colonies, for the armies of the British Empire. The colonies altogether spend for themselves about £1,800,000 a year for army purposes, in addition to the contributions made by some of them toward the Imperial forces and toward marine defence. While the armies of the British Empire cost about £35,500,000 sterling a year, the German Empire costs about £33,500,000 sterling, and the French army a little over £36,000,000.

Our armies cost us, therefore, considerably more than theirs; but while each of these powers would have in the field on the twenty-first day of mobilization over 2,000,000 of men, with between 3,000 and 4,000 guns, and behind this vast force a large garrison and territorial army in reserve, we could altogether muster but 880,000 men from all the resources at our command. But the ingenuous Briton will retort that, though our forces are small, they are of exceptional quality; that one Englishman is equal to two Frenchmen, that one volunteer is as good as two pressed men, and so on—and so weiter, etc., etc. Not so.

The 2,000,000 active German or French troops, of whom we have just spoken, are "pretty much the same all through"—that is to say, they are of uniform quality, even if it be granted that their standard be not as high as ours. Our muster-roll, on the contrary, is built up from the most heterogeneous sources, and the quality, when the training and education of the soldier are considered, if in some cases high, is in others deplorable. The total we arrive at is made up of 170,000 troops, excellent though deficient in some particulars; 50,000 to 55,000 first-class army reserve, useful but not periodically drilled as is the reserve of every Continental army; 2,000 second-class army reserve, hardly worth counting; 113,000 militia, who may be said to be without half their officers; 3,000 Channel Island militia; about 1,000 Malta and St. Helena militia; 11,000 yeomanry; 224,000 volunteers; 74,000 regulars in India (undoubtedly a splendid force); 68,000 good native troops in India; 56,000 bad native troops; and 21,000 of what Sir Charles Dilke terms "odds and ends."

In other words, the figures we can produce include everything we can possibly term a soldier, from a guardsman to a native policeman. They include some regiments of Indian infantry which are recognized even by ourselves as worthless, and whom we from time to time disband as such. They include the St. Helena Militia and the Royal Irish Constabulary, who, however efficient in their own sphere, would probably be so occupied in it that they can hardly be available to fight a foreigner. But, more than this, not only is our force thus variable and sometimes unsatisfactory as regards the quality of its component parts, but it is singularly badly proportioned as regards the arms of which it is composed.

If there is one thing which recent experiments have established more than another, and upon which there is complete unanimity of opinion among military men, it is this—that modern armies should in future campaigns be remarkably well furnished with both cavalry and artillery. Infantry will be unable to face modern musketry unless they are well supported by guns, and have the way of their attack prepared for them by artillery fire. A thick veil of horsemen will shroud the movements of a modern army from an opponent, and an army which has not a strong force of cavalry, both to gain information for it and to ward off its opponents' scouts, will be at the mercy of a better informed antagonist.

It will neither be able to see nor remain unseen. Yet how do we find that our attenuated levies are furnished with these necessary adjuncts? Contemptibly so, it seems, as regards artillery. We have but a nominal 600 guns all told, against 2,000 to 4,000 belonging to the Powers that may oppose us; and of these we could not place above 320 in the field!

Not only have we an absurdly small number of batteries, but we propose on an outbreak of hostilities to reduce them by fourteen in order to make up ammunition columns! That is to say, we organize, equip, and educate a scientific body of men in order that they may on the outbreak of hostilities be equal to the duties which Pickford's or Carter Paterson's draymen daily perform in our streets! The Germans on Oct. 1 last added to their artillery almost as many guns as we have in the whole world, and Roumania and Switzerland can each of them put in the field about as many guns as can the British Empire. Nor when we come to analyse our cavalry returns are matters more reassuring. We have only 12,000 horses to mount 19,000 troopers both in India and at home together. —London Saturday Review.

TAUGHT A LESSON.

How a Spendthrift Wife Learned the Worth of Money.

A man with large business interests and a handsome income married a lady, says the Youth's Companion, who, unaccustomed all her previous life to the luxuries of wealth, had never formed any clear conception of the worth and purchasing power of money. For some months the indulgent husband gratified his wife's every whim.

One day the lady, to carry out some caprice, asked for a check for so large a sum that the gentleman was disturbed. He saw that such prodigality, if persisted in, meant ruin; but, not wishing to grieve his wife by a downright refusal, he determined to give her a lesson in finance. He therefore smilingly remarked that he could not give her a check as usual, but would send up the money from his store.

About noon the promised money came, not in crisp bills, as was expected, but in silver dollars, the sum total filling several specie bags.

The wife was at first vexed, then amused, and finally, as the afternoon wore away, became deeply thoughtful. When her husband came home to supper she took him gently by the arm, and, leading him into the room where the ponderous bags of specie were still standing, said:

"My dear, is this the money I asked you for this morning?"

"It is, my love," was the reply.

"And did you have to take this money all in dollar by dollar, in the course of your business?" was the next question.

"Yes," he answered, gently; "it represents the results of many weeks of hard labor."

"Well, then," she said, with tears in her eyes, "send a man to take it back to the bank in the morning. I can't use so much money for so trivial a purpose. I didn't understand about it before."
